2. Newborn hamsters develop cancers after injection with a monkey virus which also causes changes, highly suggestive of malignancy, in human cells grown in laboratories.

3. Studies of tissue and blood plasma from patients with leukemia have revealed particles which resemble the virus particles found in mouse leukemia.

4. A strain of virus that normally causes malignant growths in chickens was recently shown to produce similar growths in newborn monkeys, two to six weeks after inoculation. Grace said the data was the first proof that a virus can cause malignant tumors in primates.

5. A virus which causes benign tumors in monkeys also produces similar tumors in humans.

Grace told the 17th World Medicine Association's scientific session that the findings were gathered by several research institutions.

Canada Balks Uncle Sam

Automotive Incentive Plan Meets Rules

WASHINGTON (CP)—A high U.S. source says a U.S. plan to attack Canada's new automotive production incentive program through the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade has virtually collapsed.

The informant said American authorities sought substantively for some legal grounds to charge Canada with a breach of GATT obligations and failed to come up with a sufficiently strong case which could convince the GATT membership that counter-measures should be taken against Canada.

However, the U.S. still believes the new plan which industry Minister C. M. Drury plans to unfold before Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges in detail Thursday is in violation of the spirit of international trade obligations.

During his visit here Drury also plans to confer with Under-secretary of State George Ball and with Defence Secretary Robert McNamara. Drury will press McNamara to seek a reduction of congressional funds in order that the U.S. Army can continue to purchase Canadian Caribou transport planes and participate in development of the Caribou II aircraft, a bigger and more powerful version of the present plane.

Funds for both purchase and development were cut off by Congress last week.

The informant said Hodges plans to tell Drury that the U.S. is strongly opposed to the Canadian plan, seen here as aimed at building Canadian automotive production at the expense of imports from the U.S.

And Drury may be told that while the U.S. may not be able to do anything about it under GATT rules, the Canadian step will be taken into consideration in future Canada-U.S. tariff and trade bargaining.

As outlined through preliminary Canadian discussions with U.S. officials, the Canadian plan would be virtually a full extension of the year - old tariff incentive program on Canadian production of automatic transmissions and engines. Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. automobile manufacturers were able to get a tariff rebate on that portion of imported parts equivalent to the value-added in Canadian exports over the previous year.

This partial program is due to expire Oct. 31 and American informants understand that the Canadian government plans to renew and extend the program to cover all automobile parts, including about $300,000,000 worth of annual imports, mostly from the U.S.

Young Algerians Rush To Answer Moroccan Threat

Mobilization Ordered But Peace Still Sought

ALGIERS (AP) — Thousands of Algerians responded into army barracks today in answer to President Ahmed Ben Bella's general mobilization decree to meet the threat of war with Morocco.

The mobilization decree was issued Tuesday night after more fighting in the disputed Sahara border region between Algeria and Morocco. The Algerians claimed they still controlled two disputed outposts after two days of bloody skirmishes.

Ben Bella ordered all former soldiers—estimated to total 90,000—to report for army service. At the same time efforts continued to negotiate a settlement of the dispute.

Those who answered the mobilization call included numerous young volunteers carried away by the officially whipped-up war fever. Many were clearly too young ever to have fought against the French.

THOUSANDS REPORT

Algerian sources said Ben Bella's call to arms was answered with spontaneous enthusiasm. Several thousand men reported at the former French Orleans barracks in Algiers.

Despite the atmosphere of crisis, it seemed unlikely that the governments would allow the dispute to degenerate into war.

Mohammed Yazid, former Algerian information minister, and Slimane Hoffman, an aide of Defence Minister Col. Houari Boumedienne, flew back to Algiers Tuesday night after a day of talks in Marrakech with King Hassan II of Morocco and other Moroccan leaders.

The two emissaries immediately went into conference with Ben Bella. They were to return at dawn to resume their talks in Marrakech.

MAKE LITTLE PROGRESS

There was no official word on the negotiations, but informed sources said little real progress had been made.

Reports from the Sahara said fighting had subsided.

The government - controlled press and radio aimed a steady barrage of abuse at Morocco's King Hassan II.

'Hassan to the gallows, Hassan to the gallows," Algiers crowds chanted in response.

A U.S. information centre at Constantine became a target when the Algerian radio charged American pilots had flown Moroccan troops to the battle zone. The allegation was denied by the U.S. mission here and the state department in Washington.

Committee Dismisses All Claims

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges by retired Commodore James Plomer of navy negligence, bad leadership, ignorance, arrogance, lack of ethics and stupid and dishonest decisions were in effect dismissed Tuesday by the Commons defence committee.

After more than three hours of rebuttal testimony by military officers, Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, chief of the 21,000-member navy, the committee declined Commodore Plomer's offer to appear again as a witness.

Committee members said privately that they had in effect absolved the navy of Commodore Plomer's charges. They said Commodore Plomer had a case but had overdone it by insisting on a royal commission.

An example of this was Commodore Plomer's charge that all Canadian admirals act and talk like amateurs.

The report of John Lloyd (L—Halifax), Admiral Rayner, a sailor since 1930—he won the Distinguished Service Cross and bar as a destroyer commander in the Second World War—put his qualifications on the record.

RECOMMENDED RELEASE

Admiral Rayner said that he had recommended a year ago to Defence Minister Pearkes that Harkness that Commodore Plomer, then deputy naval comptroller, be promoted. Mr. Harkness had "directed" that Commodore Plomer, now 52, be released.

Admiral Rayner said that more than a year ago Commodore Plomer had taken his complaints — the same ones he had been making to the defence committee last week—to Mr. Harkness. The minister had ordered an inquiry and as a result had approved Commodore Plomer's release.

Outside committee, authorities said Commodore Plomer is now on a pension of about $7,500 a year, did not resign from the navy but had asked to be released on the grounds that he was of no further use to the service.

The burden of Commodore Plomer's charges was that the navy is run like a private club by a "self-perpetuating clique" of admirals and that the fleet is not ready for action because of poor maintenance.

LISTS BREAKDOWNS

Admiral Rayner conceded that some of Commodore Plomer's charges had an "element of truth." He gave the committee a list of ship breakdowns in the last three years caused by design faults or inadequate or delayed maintenance.

But he said the navy is efficient and had proved it in the Cuban crisis a year ago when the Atlantic Fleet went to sea.

The committee witness Thursday will be Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the army general staff and generally regarded as Canada's ablest field commander in the Second World War.

7 Canadians Hold Tickets On Favorites

DUBLIN (CP)—An apparently unprecedented double draw for a Canadian in the Irish sweepstakes—two tickets held by the same Canadian—and the last 1963 drawing in the Irish hospital lottery Tuesday as 362 tickets held by Canadians were drawn on 86 horses eligible for the Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England, Saturday.

Seven Canadians hold tickets drawn on Hoity Cloud, and five on Fair Astronomer, the two favorites.

Commercial Duck-Hunters Got 2,000 Birds In One Bag Speaker Tells F. G. Club

Back in 1918 when they didn't use coal pockets or sacks to carry home the daily bag of wild ducks.

They used wagons. And the limitless haul used to reach between 2,000 and 3,000 duck dinners.

You had to be a licenced commercial duck-hunter (there were such things in those days) in order to fill the wagon.

Sixty-three-year-old Charlie Doesberry of this city is authority for those statements. Charlie is an international-class woodcarver, artist, and fishing and hunting expert of the city.

"I've always regretted the slaughter of ducks of those days," he told the Fish and Game Club at its monthly meeting last night.

"It used to get between 2,000 and 3,300 ducks of all breeds at one shooting," he said. "I had a hamilter and used three double-barrelled shotguns. At one time I brought down 150 ducks in a little over an hour. I used to buy ammunition in 200 and 300 lots."

The ducks were sold to metropolitan interests, Charlie said.

"We had no trouble getting the ducks," he said. "There would be some 10,000 low flying in the bay because natural food was plentiful. We would blast our guns at them. They would circle and come back time and again. It was easy, too easy."

"Then," Charlie said, "came the end of the natural food and the sharp decline of duck population in the bay."

"Carp," he said, "are pro lific breeders with voracious appetites. They have ruined the wild rice and wild celery beds. Carp have made great inroads on the wild potato food."

PROPOSES REMEDY

"Had I hamilter and used three double-barrelled shotguns, I'd be more than ready to do it done, he predicted, within a few years there will be no ducks and no carp. The ducks will seek other food spots and the carp will "eat themselves out of house and home."

As a remedy to preserve wild food for waterfowl he suggested that the banks and wire nets in marshes just below the point where the streams enter. This, he thinks, would keep the carp out and allow the food to grow. He also suggested a large restocking of the food.

Going back to his commercial hunting days, Charlie said that after three years he got ter," sold all his equipment, tired of the "senseless slaughguns etc, and quit" the business.

Fish and Game Club president Jack Layton chaired the meeting. Three hunting and fishing films were enjoyed.

Action of the proposed award of $100 for information leading to arrest and conviction of property - destroying hunters was held over until legal advice has been obtained.

Carl Shaw won the "big prize" of the evening, a handsome Winchester rifle.

Pre-deceased by her husband, David Edwards, 23 years ago, she is survived by a daughter Mrs. Robert (Kathleen) Kitchen of this city, and a son Jack of Deseronto. There are three grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

She was the last of her family.

The funeral will be held Friday from the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien.

Historians Search for Early Buildings

The Hastings County Historical Society sponsored a very successful walking tour of the former Front Street and Pinnacle Street area on Sunday. Guided by Mr. Rodger Greig, the group started from the County Museum at 2 o'clock. The sites of the first Belleville hospital on Church Street and also the first grammar school in this district were visited before the party moved west on Campbell Street. There the historic Safe residence and also the Corby Library building (once the old Merchants' Bank) were of interest. Where now stands a parking lot at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Campbell Street stood the Opera House over 80 years ago.

An alleyway leading from Pinnacle Street to the rear of several buildings on Bridge and Front Streets revealed an interesting look at the rear sections of some very early buildings, one of which may date back to the original survivey of Belleville in 1816.

The city hall, the old police station (once the town hall and fire station), and the attention on the Market Square. Continuing south on Pinnacle Street, the Bank of Commerce office (once an early school on the Market Square) and the Holland Publishing Concern (formerly the Pinnacle Street Church before the erection of the Bridge Street Methodist Church) were viewed.

ORIGINAL SITE VISITED

Other early buildings on Pinnacle Street and the site of the original town market were visited.

Once on Front Street, several very interesting buildings were viewed — including the historic Mackenzie Feeds building, and other houses just south of the C.P.R.

At the corner of Dundas Street and Front Street, the tour paused to examine the Wallbridge Home — for so many years an historic landmark in the Belleville area. The site of the early fish market and of an early blacksmith shop (marked by a horseshoe in the sidewalk) were also noted.

Proceeding north on Front Street, the interesting styles of architecture were noted and the tour then proceeded up Campbell Street, pausing to examine some early buildings located behind the Bank of Commerce. The historic Court House of 1837-38 was seen at a distance.

The final stop was the old Moose hall, formerly the Congregational Church, on Victoria Avenue. This building is now in the process of being wrecked and tour members had the opportunity to examine construction methods of the 1850's, since the church dates from 1855.

ENJOY HIDES

Returning to the County Museum, the tour members enjoyed light refreshments, viewed several slides of the area visited, and had a chance to see a part of the museum's collection of early pictures.

The tour was made possible by the co-operation of a number of members of the Hastings County Historical Society, including tour director Rodger Greig, assisted by Tom Ransom and Gerald Boyce. Refreshments were arranged by museum curator Mrs. J. Gagnant, assisted by Miss Cheryl Hall.

All those present agreed that this was a very splendid afternoon, especially in view of the exceedingly fine weather. It was decided that more tours

IN MEMORIAM

MERRICK — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, who passed away October 16, 1961.

Remembrance is a golden chain, Death tries to break, but all in vain,

To have, to love, and then to part, Is the greatest sorrow of the heart.

The years may wipe out many things,

But this they wipe out never, The whisper of happy days, When we were all together.

Always remembered by his wife, daughter and family.

BRANT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Ernest Edward Brant who passed away Oct. 16, 1953.

God knew that he was suffering, That the hills were hard to climb, So He closed his weary eyelids, And whispered "Come unto Me."

Away in the beautiful hills of home.

By his wife, son and family.

Some day, we know not when, We'll meet our loved one again.

—Sadly missed by wife, son and family.

Curling Clubs Prepare Plans For Bonspiel

Representatives of the three curling clubs, Trenton, RCAF and Quinte, who have sponsored a tri - club bonspiel for the past two years, met at the Trenton Country Club on Tuesday night to lay the groundwork for the spiel this year and which will be held from January 30 to February 2nd inclusive. Wing Commander "Bud" Powell, chaired the meeting, the RCAF being the host club this season.

Committees were set up for the bonspiel with Mr. Powell as general chairman and the drawmaster and ice chairman for the RCAF, Bill Lewis. Ice chairman for Trenton will be Grant Chorey and for Quinte, B. Benn. On the reception committee will be James Fewell of the RCAF, Clyde Mason of Trenton and Gill Wamboldt of Quinte. The entertainment chairman will be Doug Bannon of Trenton with Hugh Filleul of RCAF and Jim Durrant of Quinte. In charge of prizes will be Rolly Lloyd of RCAF, Ken Bailey of Trenton, and Cec Kirkwood of Quinte. Tom Hetherington of Trenton will be the treasurer. The bar officers will be Charles Sprague of RCAF, James Duncan of Trenton and Ken Pinder of Quinte. Bonspiel manager will be Bruce Canty, manager of the Trenton Country Club, who did an excellent job in that capacity last year.

At the present time there is only room for four more entries as many of the 64 rinks that took part last year have signified their intention of again competing in the spiel. This early report by the manager shows the keen interest that is being taken by curlers in the three clubs and those rinks from outside the district.

There is a possibility that the Sunday concert and buffet supper that proceeds the final games will be held in a new location this year. Last year the RCAF kindly donated the airmans' mess for the gathering but the plans are now to build a new clubhouse at the east end of the RCAF rink and if this is completed in time, the new lounge will be used. Plans have been drawn and it is expected the new room will be ready for occupancy before the spiel starts. On Thursday night a junction will be held as usual at RCAF station.

The manager announced that all the sponsors of last year had signified their intention of again being part of the spiel and this news was received with great acclaim by the committee. The sponsors last year were Corbys, Elliott Motors, LaPalm the Mover, O'Keefes, Lafferty Transport, Bata Shoe Company, Pepsi Cola and McFarlands. The budget was discussed and passed with little comment and the cost of prizes will be the same as last year. Some thought that the prizes should be reduced in value but the majority prevailed. Before adjournment, Claude Tice was named to the publicity committee from the Quinte Club. Others will be appointed from the other two clubs at another meeting.

Send Municipal Voters' Lists To Printers

The machinery for the December 2nd municipal election has commenced to turn at city hall, with the year's voters' lists going to the printers yesterday.

The lists will be printed and ready for posting by October 20th; after which voters will have 14 days to determine if their names are on the voters' list.

There are two voters' lists — the regular list in which owners and tenants are enumerated, and the municipal franchise extension list, on which the names of roomers, boarders and sons and daughters of owners and tenants living at home are included.

City Clerk Adams Stalker today emphasized that it was the duty of all residents to see if their names are on the voters' list.

If, for some reason names have been omitted, Mr. Stalker asked that the city clerk's office be notified during the 14-day checking period, and he will apply to the court of revision to have the omitted names added.

The date for the Court of Revision has yet to be set, although it will be some days after the 14-day period in which voters' lists are posted.

TWO QUESTIONS

Belleville voters will be asked to vote on two questions as well as for mayor, city aldermen, public utilities commissioner and school trustees.

One of the questions will be that of Sunday movies and the other will be that of increasing the number of public utility commissioners from three to five members.

Voters whose names appear on the regular voters' list will be entitled to vote for mayor, aldermen, public utilities commissioner, other public separate school trustees and all questions.

Only the other hand those whose names are on the municipal franchise extension list are entitled to vote only for mayor and alderman, and the Sunday movie question.

RELIEF FROM RUSSIA

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass news agency reported from Havana Wednesday that three planeloads of relief supplies for hurricane victims have arrived there from the Soviet Union. The dispatch said more planes are due within the next few hours.

Dr. Boyd Upper Succeeded by Gordon Awde

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Awde, 42, a staff organizer and public relations consultant with the Ontario Liberal Association for two years, was named Tuesday as executive assistant to Farquhar Oliver, the party's provincial parliamentary leader.

Mr. Awde, a graduate in industrial psychology from the University of London in 1946, worked in the field of industrial psychology in Britain and the United States before coming to Canada in 1957 to do free-lance public relations.

He succeeds Dr. Boyd Upper, who had been assistant to the political leader for seven years until his resignation after the Sept. 25 general election.

Three Depts. Called to Fire Near Batawa

Three volunteer fire department units, one from Batawa, one from Campbellford and the third from Sidney, were called to a bush fire south of the Bata Shoe Factory at Batawa Wednesday.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance of the Belleville Fire Department, co-ordinator of the Mutual Aid Society, said the blaze was apparently started by Hydro employees working in the area burning brush.

The volunteer department answered the call at 2:45 p.m. and remained at the scene, fighting the blaze of 100 acres of burning bush until 9:00 p.m.

The wooded area was located just north of the shoe factory on a side road running east from the Glen Miller Paper Factory.

Church Building On Victoria to Be Torn Down

Another century old link with the past in the Victoria Road district, the old Reformed Episcopal Church, in recent years used as the Moose Hall — is being torn down.

The old building is still owned by the Church congregation with a spokesman saying that no immediate use for the vacant lot is planned.

The old structure was stated to have been in bad shape and unfit for further occupancy for lack of parking facilities, was out of step with the times.

Two months ago the Moose Hall meeting place was moved to a Front Street location.

Construction date of the old frame Victoria Ave. building is not known but is estimated to be well over 100 years old. Until it was rented by the Order of the Moose some years ago it had always been used as a church meeting place.

Scouting activities

Belleville District Committee of Boy Scouts Leader' Auxiliaries are urged to attend their annual meeting Thursday, October 27th, at St. Thomas' Parish House at 8 p.m.

Mr. David Williamson, a 1st Avondale Scout will show slides and speak on his trip to Greece this past summer.

The new officers will be installed by Mrs. P. C. Gelsthorpe, past president of Belleville District Committee.

Advertising Most Dangerous Occupation

Advertising executives are under more pressure — and are in greater danger of poor health — than any comparable group of men in the world, the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club was told last night.

James Mathews, advertising executive turned chiropractor and exponent of chiropratic, said occupations in the second most dangerous occupation, personnel management fourth, general management fifth, sales management sixth and so on.

Men in these occupations, Mr. Matthews said, are usually men in any other occupations, subject to greater stress than men in any other occupations and stress, he added, is the main factor in any disease.

Boredom is the main cause of tension in these "dangerous jobs" or in any other executive level positions, Mr. Matthews said. Other sources of stress he mentioned included insecurity, fear of not being liked, dissatisfaction with career progress, plans for an early retirement and the need to take work home from the office.

STRESS CAUSES DISEASE

All stress, Mr. Matthews said, results from stress and can be avoided or cured by removal of the causes of stress. He quoted Canadian, Russian and U.S. authorities to support the claim. He said proper control of stress, or avoidance of it, could add from 10 to 25 years to a man's life, if he could avoid physical accidents.

He himself had quit the advertising business, Mr. Matthews said, because he finally realized he was heading himself for an early grave. He spent four years in school to gain the degree as Doctor of Chiropractic. He is a practising chiropractor now, and Associate Professor of Anatomy and Developmental Anatomy at the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College.

Mr. Matthews was introduced by the club's Terry McCabe, and thanked by John Denton.

Three Mishaps Cause Damage Of $800

Three separate rear end traffic accidents in Belleville yesterday caused a total of more than $800.

At College and North Front a car driven by Harold Hodgins struck the car of Harold Pursey, 56 Graham Street, as Pursey made a left turn.

On Dundas Street East near Charles Street, police say Allan Dustin, 55 MacDonald Gardens, was watching school children on both sides of the road when his car struck the back of a horse-drawn milk wagon.

Robert Foltz was turning into his driveway at 87 South Front Street, when his car was hit by an automobile driven by Robert Wayne Bunnett.

Humane Society May Lay Charges

TRENTON—The Ontario Humane Society may lay charges against Frank Tom Johnson of RR 1 Murray Township, society manager Tom Hughes, of Toronto, said today. Purpose of the charges, Mr. Hughes said, would not be to have Mr. Johnson jailed, but to have him placed on probation.

Twenty dogs were confiscated, last week, from Johnson's property after a complaint was laid by Mrs. Hilda Jones, president of the Trenton branch of the Society. The dogs, the Society claims, were without food or water for more than 48 hours. They were examined, on the property where they were found, by a veterinarian, then sent to the animal shelter in Kingston, where they were re-examined. In Kingston, according to Society officials, all the dogs were found to be sick.

Mr. Johnson told Society officers he had left a 19-year-old boy in charge of the dogs when he left, but the boy had apparently neglected the job. The dogs will be $20 to $25 each, according to Mr. Johnson, and he wants them back.

The dogs may be returned, according to Hughes, if Johnson will undertake to build kennels and provide for proper care for them. The dogs will not be released from the animal shelter though, until they are pronounced fit by a veterinarian.

HUNTER SAFETY COURSE

TRENTON—A hunter safety course will be held in the town hall over the police station on Tuesday, Oct. 22 and Friday, Oct. 28. The starting time for the class is 7 p.m. both nights.

Those who plan to hunt for the first time must attend both nights and pass an examination at the end of the course before a licence will be issued.

We Put Protection and Performance in our Family Car

The new '61 Studebakers are really changed . . . but you can't see all the important differences. For instance, your family is surrounded in the protection of a unitized body built on an Armor Guard frame, a steel reinforcing bar in the roof, girder like members on all sides. You can have Disc Brakes that stop in nearly half the normal distance, even when wet. Seat belts are factory installed.

This protection is available only from Studebaker so only Studebaker cars give you that extra safety so important for you and your family.

Take a fresh look at a great new car—today.

They Could Use Some Help

All members of the five-man Soviet delegation of meat and milk industry experts, now touring Ontario and Quebec, can understand some English. Two of the members speak enough to get by in the language, and one of those two can say almost anything he wants if he is given enough time. None of the members have travelled before in North America, and none has any significant experience in a capitalist country.

The Soviet Government, for reasons known to itself, sent the five men to Canada with no provision for a Soviet or Canadian government guide. From Montreal, the delegation came to Belleville by train, where Black Diamond Cheese personnel guided them. Black Diamond also provided transportation for the group to Toronto, but the delegates were left to their own devices to make arrangements with the hotel in Toronto.

The Soviet group consists of technicians not diplomats, and one assumes they would prefer to spend their time working, and learning, to a series of organized receptions. It would be to their benefit and only common courtesy on the part of the Canadian government, however, if the government had supplied them a guide, used to the ways of Canada, to handle the mundane details of the trip.

To a Canadian, the idea of providing a government official to help visitors may smack slightly of the Russian Intourist organization, and the implication of a government watchdog. Russians, however, are not likely to be worried by a system they use themselves, and it would not be difficult for a guide to show such a delegation that he is their assistant and not their watchdog.

There is a lot to be gained, by both Russia and Canada, in maintaining a regular exchange of delegations of technicians, such as the one that visited Belleville last week. Is it too much to expect the Federal Government might do something to smooth the way for such delegations?

Need Rescue Force

At least 1,800 persons were killed when a landslide caused a dam to overflow in Italy, more than 1,000 were killed by a hurricane in Cuba and about 5,000 were killed when the same hurricane passed over Haiti, and an earthquake equal to the San Francisco 'quake of 1906 has been recorded in the Kurile Islands area, during the past week or so. The toll of human life lost in natural disasters has been higher than usual during this time, but no one of these disasters is unusual. The simple fact is that man has not yet control of his environment, and that nature is still a threat to humanity. In response to this threat, there are some volunteer organizations which specialize in aiding victims of such natural disasters. Most of the world's armies have helped, at one time or another, in the more serious disasters.

It might be good practical politics to supplement Canadian armed forces with an international rescue squad. Such a squad would be organized along military lines, with military discipline, and could be airlifted with full equipment to a disaster area on short notice. There would be little harm, in fact, if units of such a force were stationed near potential disaster areas.

An organized international rescue squad would be cheaper than the armed forces Canada now supports, and there is always the possibility that such a force might demonstrate to the underdeveloped countries of the world that the West is willing to lend them a helping hand. And if it can do this, such a force might be more effective than all the armed forces of the West combined in averting the next war.

Anyone for Albany?

Mrs. William Le Fleur of Albany, New York, may be an excellent instructor in her specialty, driving an automobile, but we suggest that she could do with a refresher course in English.

Mrs. La Fleur teaches women only now, but in the past she has taught many men to drive.

"Men," she says, "have better reflexes, learn quickly but have a tendency to get wild once they know how."

We thought all men had an intuitive knowledge of how to get wild.

But perhaps that is not what Mrs. La Fleur meant. Perhaps, as we said, she should take a refresher course in Engl—.

Come to think of it, perhaps that is exactly what she meant, and that is why today she teaches only women.

To Understand Great Men Is To Honor Them

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Perhaps the two most influential men of the 20th century — in terms of changing the moral and intellectual climate of our times — have been Einstein and Freud.

Yet, by the paradox that always accompanies their kind of greatness, neither of them is really understood, not only by the masses, but even by the majority of educated people.

Of course, their technical theories cannot be understood; what I mean is that not even their basic premises are grasped accurately and clearly. To most people, Einstein said, "Everything is relative," and Freud said, "Everything is sex."

Both these statements are totally false, and would have horrified the men to whom they are ascribed. Leaving Einstein aside for the moment, let us consider the widespread distortion of Freud's view into "Everything is sex."

Some psychiatrists in the past believed this. They were known as "pan-sexualists," and they fought these men vigorously and relentlessly. But at the same time, he was fighting another emotional society, and forcing us to recognize that many kinds of non-sexual behavior had deep sexual roots.

What we have forgotten — if we have ever known — is that Freud also demonstrated the opposite: that, in neurosis, what often seems to be sexual conduct is not really sexual at all.

Take, for example, patterns of adultery and promiscuity. These certainly seem to be motivated by sexual drives. Yet, in many if not most cases, the sexual "acting out" is merely a symptom of other discontents and dissatisfactions.

Of the people who behave this way, relatively few are driven by genuinely sexual needs. They are unhappy in other ways, they are enslaved by infantile fears or conflicts never resolved within themselves — and their sexual misconduct is simply a symptom of their deeply unconscious problems.

Freud showed that many things we do and think of as "sexual" are sexual in origin; but he also demonstrated the opposite — that "pseudo-sexuality" is one of the prime ways in which the disturbed or immature person attempts to come to terms (unsuccessfully, of course) with its conflicts. This is why, as Freud pointed out, there is no real joy or lasting satisfaction in such compulsive behavior.

The finest tribute humanity can pay its great men is to understand them. Instead, they are venerated or condemned, out of blind adulation or blind ignorance; which is why Freud said, "I am not a Freudian."

Sukarno's Sing Along

Calgary Albertan

We understand that President Sukarno has banned the twist in Indonesia. If he is worried not so much about the purely physical hazards of the dance as about its Yankee-imperialist connotations, then he may well have bitten off more than a relatively small-minded dictator can chew. For once a government begins to assess a thing like music for its political potential, where does it stop?

What about the English waltz, for instance, with its colonial connotation? Would recordings by the Six Fat Dutchmen perhaps stir unhappy memories? We imagine that "The Volga Boatman" would be a little risky at the moment, as would "I'd Like To Get You on a Slow Boat to China." Oh, no—there's still "Hail Hal." And if the government wanted to try some counter-messaging of its own, it could always encourage a sobig like "I'll Walk Alone."

General contractors have been awarded the contract for the construction of the telephone repeater station which is to be built at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets, it was announced. Activity functional in appearance the building has been designed to meet wartime requirements. It will form a terminal for the Toronto, Belleville underground long distance cable now under construction and will be a vital link in the long distance facilities joining Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. In commenting on future plans of the Bell Telephone Company in Belleville, Mr. G. W. Proctor stated that while plans at the present time were tentative K.N.O. he expected that eventually the repeater station will form the first unit of a new dial telephone building for Belleville.

John Street United Church celebrated the 97th anniversary of the founding of the congregation on Sunday. It was in 1846 that certain members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here withdrew from that congregation and formed a congregation of the Free Kirk. This movement was a result of the differences within the Church of Scotland which occurred in 1843 — three years prior to the laying in place of the separation here. The first meeting place of the new congregation was in a building on store at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets where the post office building now stands and the first minister was the Rev. William Gregg, who later became principal of the three charges to serve in the Knox College, Toronto. He had three churches in charge in this district. In 1851 the first church was built; it was of frame construction and stood on the site it was demolished and a stone church built. It was burned and replaced by the present stone building, to which has been added recently a church hall and Sunday School wing. The Rev. William Gregg was succeeded in 1857 by the Rev. William McLaren. He remained as minister for ten years and then like his predecessor became a professor at Knox College. Following him numerous ministers served John Street Church; the present minister being the Rev. Robert Hall. With the union of certain Protestant bodies some years ago, John Street Church became one of the United Churches of Canada and lost its identity as one of the oldest free Presbyterian churches in this part of the province. John Street Church assists greatly in foreign missionary work and Miss Mabel Clazie of this city is its personal missionary in India and her maintenance and work is supported by the contributions of John Street Church congregation. At the service on Sunday the congregations were favored by eloquent sermons were delivered.

Lt.-Col. Doyle is the oldest serving officer in the regiment. During the Great War he was quartermaster of the 44th Western Battalion and saw service. He is also the possessor of the Long Service Medal denoting 25 years of service, the Military Forces Long Service Medal and the Victory Medal. This is certainly a record of which Lt.-Col. Doyle may well be proud.

Money Matter

Ottawa Journal

Trade will find a way, without love.

The Americans who don't like the look of the Russians and the Russians who have not approved of Americans have been taking to trade in Ottawa.

The Russians don't want to do business with private firms in the U.S. and the private firms in the U. S. say they can't form a combine to do business with anyone.

So there's talk of a "consortium" of U. S. firms which apparently is legal although our dictionary calls it an association or partnership.

With $200,000,000 or so in wheat business at stake we bet the Americans find a way. The main benefit to Canada of such a deal will be an end to American hints that we have been too ready to deal with nations tainted by Communism.

Letter to The Editor

Dislikes Attitude In Downtown Stores

Editor
The Ontario Intelligencer

My experience shopping "downtown" yesterday inspired this my first letter to a newspaper.

In search of an item of women's wear, in the accessory field, I shopped in four downtown stores. In the first, after a cursory check, I was informed that the item did not come marked in the manner I described any more and I would be well advised to take my closest, or switch to another type. I remarked as I was leaving that I guessed I had better go to Toronto, and the reply was that I would fare no better there. In the second store, an inexperienced, though courteous, salesperson, who did not at first know what I wanted at all, finely concluded they did not have the item. The third store had it, and said there was really very little call for this item and when I reported that my husband preferred this type and I really did myself, she replied that she did too, for "after all, everyone is wearing the others, so what can one do?"

I crossed the street and retraced a block and a half to an other high class store, where I met the same some-what indrecdulous attitude and no luck. By this time I was beginning to feel like a bit of a "queer" but decided to try the Shopping Plaza as a last resort in the city. I went into the store, stated my requirements and was immediately greeted by the production of same. The color not being quite what I wished, I was told that it would be glad to order a quantity which I would purchase as I required them.

What is the problem with the downtown stores? Are they understaffed? No wonder people are shopping at the Plaza! The only reason there are more money people shopping away from downtown is the reason I have stated, given in answer to the quaintances — ie. somehow one just has become used to downtown and nothing else will seem the same. The obvious conclusion is that the downtown stores cannot find the right type of sales person, but if this is so, why are they all working at the Plaza? The downtown stores to be that for you either purchase or you don't get or the dickens with you! Do none of these people realize that they are selling not only the time, even when they do not sell goods?

The downtown merchants would, it seems to me, be well advised to institute some kind of a training course for their sales personnel. They have one hurdle to contend with at all times, namely, the parking available at the Plaza, and to add poor sales personnel would seem to be making a handicap of trying to have people shop downtown pretty difficult.

This problem of course, is not peculiar to Belleville, but perhaps Belleville could become the leaders in trying to do something about it. I think a "woman in the street" survey would confirm that a great many women have frustrating experiences such as I experienced.

"Queer?"

Nikita Quotes Scriptures

Kansas City Times

Does Nikita Khrushchev keep a Bible hidden somewhere around the Kremlin? Perhaps nobody will ever know. But the world's most talkative leader does enjoy quoting from Scriptures. He has done so several times in the past. Recently, he referred to the story of Christ and the feeding of the multitudes.

It would be interesting to know what other religious experiences created such an interest in Biblical texts. Or perhaps Mr. Khrushchev has a good wrote when he sees it. But doesn't it set a terrible example for his Marxist constituents.

To Your Good Health

Many Questions Are Asked Concerning Anesthesiology

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(Anesthesia: Part Two)

We'll continue to answer questions posed in yesterday's letter from Mrs. S. W. H., the woman who had such a worrisome time with anesthesia and her operation.

Q. Why is a "saline solution" given intravenously?

A. The salt water, injected into a vein, bolsters the blood pressure which tends to decline under anesthesia. An injection also is a convenient method of giving sugar (calories) and various medications to the patient while he is either unconscious, or needs rest, or may be too ill to take them by mouth.

Q. Potential brings unconsciousness very fast. Is it a hypnotic drug? Does the patient just sleep or does he respond to commands? Is he apt to be talkative?

A. Yes, pentothal brings unconsciousness rapidly. Depending on the amount given, the patient might become drowsy (it is one of the drugs which is used in small quantities as a "truth serum"). Although he doesn't necessarily force the truth, it makes lying difficult. With increased quantity the patient responds to commands; a little more and he "goes to sleep" entirely, in which case he won't respond.

A light dose often is used for short surgical procedures such as opening a carbuncle or removing a cyst. The advantage is brevity of effect; the patient quickly regains consciousness, and the shorter the time one needs to remain under anesthesia the better.

Q. Why do some people fight anesthesia while others who are normally cooperative?

A. There are various phases of anesthesia and fortunately most of the patients are comfortable. The patient may seem to resist the anesthesia. This is normal. If you used a stop watch, you would find this phase to be very brief. As the anesthesia takes hold, the patient yields and remains asleep.

Q. What is the purpose of the tube in the throat? Should it be inserted while the patient is awake, even though some discomfort is involved?

A. It has two main purposes. One is to prevent the tongue from falling back and blocking the air passage. The other is to permit "intratracheal anesthesia," which is used generally in some instances, but not in a particularly when surgery involves the throat, neck or the mouth. There are times when the tube should be inserted before anesthesia begins and times the reverse. I decline to stipulate which, any more than I would try to tell you when to put a quarterback to follow on an "option play," or else to advise a woman when she should bribe her husband best by "blowing her top" or by the "coax" technique.

Tomorrow, the rest of the questions from Mrs. S. W. H.

Dear Dr. Molner: What good may be derived from drinking the content of sauerkraut juice before breakfast? — W. C.

I can't think of any — and will laugh-ter with my own question: Who said it would?

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I had two sores on my lower legs from falling. They healed all right but left big brown spots. Is there any way to get rid of them except by plastic surgery? — Mrs. N. C.

The spots are brownish because circulation is not as brisk in the lower legs. If you don't have varicose veins, the other impairment of circulation, then give the brown spots time to fade. Cover them with a light-colored cosmetic meanwhile. If you do have varicose veins or other circulatory trouble, have treatment for that, instead of for the brown spots. The discoloration may be permanent.

Windsor Star

Observant travellers through the more central and eastern parts of this province must note the old stone fences on many farms, or even large stone piles in the middle of fields. They must wonder how the pioneers moved these big boulders and got them into position.

Truth to tell, after felling the forests, this clearing of the stones was the heaviest and hardest work for the pioneers. At first it had to be done with rudimentary tools. The big stones had to be dug up (or often blasted into pieces) and rolled onto a stoneboat and then hauled to the stone fence or the lane of stone or forces. Then with much heaving and prying with crow-bars or other levers, they were put into place.

Later a machine was devised which lightened and expedited the work. We noted a picture of one in a book the other day, short sections of which are in action. It was called a stoning machine. It was a contraption brevity of effect; the patient quickly regains consciousness, and the shorter the time one needs to remain under anesthesia the better.

Q. Why do some people fight anesthesia while others who are normally cooperative?

A. There are various phases of anesthesia and fortunately most of the patients are comfortable. The patient may seem to resist the anesthesia. This is normal. If you used a stop watch, you would find this phase to be very brief. As the anesthesia takes hold, the patient yields and remains asleep.

Q. What is the purpose of the tube in the throat? Should it be inserted while the patient is awake, even though some discomfort is involved?

A. It has two main purposes. One is to prevent the tongue from falling back and blocking the air passage. The other is to permit "intratracheal anesthesia," which is used generally in some instances, but not in a particularly when surgery involves the throat, neck or the mouth. There are times when the tube should be inserted before anesthesia begins and times the reverse. I decline to stipulate which, any more than I would try to tell you when to put a quarterback to follow on an "option play," or else to advise a woman when she should bribe her husband best by "blowing her top" or by the "coax" technique.

Tomorrow, the rest of the questions from Mrs. S. W. H.

Dear Dr. Molner: What good may be derived from drinking the content of sauerkraut juice before breakfast? — W. C.

I can't think of any — and will laugh-ter with my own question: Who said it would?

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I had two sores on my lower legs from falling. They healed all right but left big brown spots. Is there any way to get rid of them except by plastic surgery? — Mrs. N. C.

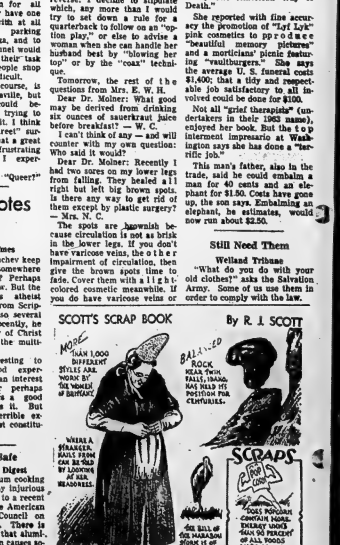
The spots are brownish because circulation is not as brisk in the lower legs. If you don't have varicose veins, the other impairment of circulation, then give the brown spots time to fade. Cover them with a light-colored cosmetic meanwhile. If you do have varicose veins or

High Costs For Living

From the Financial Post

From Washington comes a footnote to the uproar over Jessica Mitford's criticism of the funeral business. In a new book, "The American Way of Death."

She reported with fine accuracy the promotion of "Lyf Lyk" pink cosmetics to prpodmee "beautiful memory pictures" and a morticians' picnic featuring "Bodyburger." She says the average U. S. funeral costs $1,400; that a tidy and respectable job badly needed to all involved could be done for $100.



Not all "grief therapists" (unlike owner of the 1963 name), enjoyed her book. But the top interment impresario at Washington says she has done a "terrific job."

This man's father, also in the trade, said he could embalm a man for 40 cents and an elephant for $1.50. Costs have gone up, he says, mentioning an elephant, he estimates, would now run about $2.50.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices eased slightly in light morning trading on the stock market today.

Papers were lower, Consolidated Paper and Great Lakes Paper down ¼ each.

Pipelines softened, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Trans-Canada Pipe Line both dipping ¼.

Refineries backtracked and banks were mixed to lower. Steels advanced, Algoma ahead ⅜.

Noranda fell ⅜, International Nickel ⅛ and Falconbridge gained ⅛ among senior base metals.

In speculative mines, Merrill slipped five cents to 85 cents.

On index, industrials were down .50 to 833.48, base metals .33 to 209.12, golds .09 to 87.99 and western oils .08 to 120.78. Volume at 11 a.m. was 746,000 shares compared with 800,000 at the time Tuesday.

Urged on by selective buying on a fairly narrow front, the industrial index broke its own record four times Tuesday to close up 2.34 to 656.06.

Other sections declined fractionally with base metals taking the major loss.

Chemcell advanced ⅜, Canadian Industries Ltd. ⅛ and Levy ⅛ among industrial gainers.

Distilleries were stronger, Distillers-Seagrams gaining ⅛ and Walker Gooderham ⅛.

Papers, steels and banks softened with some issues losing up to ⅛ point.

Nickel producers helped to weaken base metals. Falconbridge and International Nickel both dipped ⅜.

Merrill led speculative mines, down 11 cents to 90 cents. Newnorth slipped 1½ cents to 25 cents.

On the foreign market, Falconbridge declined ⅛ and Dominion Stores was ahead ¼. Sarcee climbed 15 cents to $1.38.

On index, industrials gained 2.34 to a record 656.06, base metals were down .33 to 209.44, western oils .32 to 120.86 and golds .31 to 88.08. Volume for the day was 2,411,000 shares compared with 2,527,000 Friday.

Need for More Beautiful City Theme of Talk

Alderman Frank Murray addressed the Belleville Horticultural Society stressing the need for a more beautiful city in order to properly commemorate Canada's Centennial in 1967. The speaker commented Belleville to the many beautiful towns and villages he had visited during the past summer both in Canada and British Isles. He described how the people of Ireland beautified their land with extensive flower plantings and fresh painted buildings in preparation for President Kennedy's visit.

"Why not Belleville", Alderman Murray stated, as he emphasized that something startling in the way of downtown improvement be undertaken. "Eyesores and ugliness should be removed from our city in order to bring out the beauty that could make Belleville a city to which visitors could be proudly welcomed."

It was suggested that many beautiful gardens existed in the backyards of the area with their beauty shared by so few people. "Why not bring some of decoration out so the people on the street may share the significance of what flowers can really do to enhance the city."

The speaker concluded his talk by asking the people present to further encourage the sense of civic pride to the citizens of Belleville.

During a question period following the talk by Alderman Murray, several members expressed the opinion that before the citizens could be expected to act, the city itself would have to start by cleaning up some of its own untidyness throughout the city.

Several examples of littered streets, uncut weed lots were brought to the speaker's attention, as well as suggestions about removal of unsightly hydro and telephone wires throughout the city. A question was asked about whose responsibility it was to keep the weeds cut at the base of utility poles.

The meeting concluded with the showing of films on bulb growing in Holland and the methods of using bulbs to beautify the home garden in Springtime.

New Building On Front Street To Cost $40,000

A new two-storey store and office structure is being constructed on the site of the Upper Front Street building housing the former "Honest Joe's" discount store, which burned early this year.

William Mayer, owner of the burned store is constructing the new building to cost an estimated $40,000.

Preliminary work for the construction of the new building commenced about a week ago.

Ann Landers

Thoughtless Adults Cause Adopted Child Grief

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Why don't people keep their mouths shut when they don't know what they are talking about?

I am the mother of twin boys, eight years old. I had a very difficult pregnancy and almost lost my life when the twins were born. The doctor advised me against trying to have more children so my husband and I decided to adopt. It took two years before we were able to get our adorable little girl. Laurie is now five years old and what a joy!

Last week Laurie came home crying as if her heart would break. One of her playmates had told her his mother said we couldn't possibly love her as much as we love the twins because they are of our own flesh and blood and she is not.

I tried to comfort the child and reassure her, but she hasn't been the same since. She seems withdrawn and unhappy. Can you suggest any way we can help her? — FURIOUS MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — I trust (and hope) that Laurie had been told by you and your husband that she was adopted before the neighbor kid got to her. If not, perhaps this is part of the reason for her unhappiness.

Continue to give Laurie generous doses of love and attention. Let her know that as a chosen child she is special and that you were lucky to get her because so many others wanted her, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son is soon to be married to a lovely girl.

It is customary where I come from for the mother of the bride to ask the mother of the groom for the names of close relatives to assist at the reception. Our family is small but some members will be coming a great distance for the wedding.

I'd like my brother to be at the punch-bowl. My husband has two wonderful aunts, charming and well-bred, and I'd like to have them pour.

I realize the bride's family puts on the wedding and the reception but it is our son's wedding, too, and it would seem like a slap in the face if our family were ignored. Please tell me if I should inform the mother of the bride that I feel strongly about this. — A. B. W.

DEAR A. B. W. — The groom's family should indeed be included in the reception activities. If the suggestion comes from you, however, it might be resented.

Ask your son to mention it gently to his fiance and let her take it from there. If you bear no more about it, let the matter drop. The unpleasantness which might result would not be worth it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last year I wrote to you about a problem I was having with my husband. He agreed to do as you said and it worked out fine. Now we have another problem we'd like you to settle. Again he has promised to take your advice.

Our 8th Wedding Anniversary is coming up. It falls on the opening day of the hunting season. He wants to go hunting with the fellows. I say a wedding anniversary is a lot more important than hunting, and that he belongs home with me.

We get along a lot better than most of our friends and I would say our marriage is a good one. Please settle this because we've been talking about nothing else for two weeks. Thank you. — MRS. CALL OF THE WILD.

DEAR MRS. WILD — And just what kind of an anniversary celebration do you think you'll have with a long-faced martyr who would rather be hunting?

Of course his choice shows he's a self-centred little boy but let him go anyway. Every marriage should have at least one adult and in your home you'll have to be it.

Wally Koster Will Have Leading Role

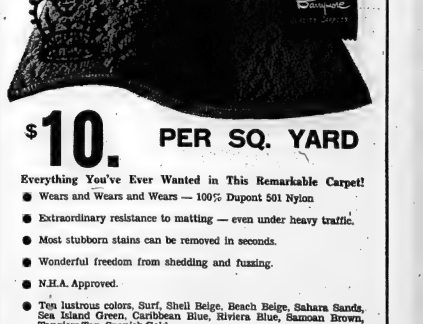
The Kinsmen Club of Belleville was advised recently of the leading role in the Rodgers and Hammerstein production of "Carousel" to be played here at B.C.I. and V.S. on Monday, November 25th, by the Kingston Club.

It was announced that Mr. Wally Koster, a widely-known television celebrity, would be taking the leading role and that he would be in Belleville to attend the local club's regular meeting on November 4th. The female lead has not yet been announced.

Santa Parade Committee to Hold First Meet

Fire Chief Gerald Vance announced this morning that the first meeting of the Santa Claus Parade Committee would be held on Thursday evening at 8:00 p.m. at No. 2 Fire Station.

The Chief urges all interested persons to attend this meeting as a great deal of help is needed to make this day a successful and memorable one for the children in Hastings County.



Each year much work goes into this big event and it is discouraging to the Chief and his committee members when only a few show up to help.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

TWO AND TWO

Arithmetic has always fascinated me as a subject, because it has such infinite variety. For instance I can take a column of four figures, add it up three times and come up with a different answer each time, which is quite an amazing feat and enough to confound the financially wise.

But I had a real hate at one time for those characters A and B, who got themselves into such financial difficulties and expected me to extricate them. You know the kind of thing. A has X number of chickens which lay Y number of eggs, which he sells at so much a dozen. How many chickens would B have to own to make the same profit if he sells eggs for, well, anyhow, the problem confuses me, let alone the answer. And when that measky C entered the picture, I was lost entirely.

Once in public school a kind hearted teacher gave me 5 marks on an arithmetic paper . . . for neatness! I wasn't much of a mathematician, but I was neat. The teacher's name was Nettie Feeney, later Mrs. Gavin Wallbridge, and I loved her until she died, and remembered her fondly for that one act of kindness. And strangely from that all-time low, my arithmetic began to improves. But then it had nowhere else to go but up.

IF YOU HAVE EYES

An editorial in the White Cane Chronicle, a monthly news sheet published for the blind in Belleville by Arlie Scott and Clarence Morris contains some good advice for sighted people. I hope the editors will not mind if I reprint it here:

"Each person accumulates good and bad habits. Some of these are embarrassing when they involve the visually handicapped. For instance, expecting the blind person to know who you are by just a slap on the back, a tap on the shoulder, or the frequently used expression, don't you remember me, know who I am, or who this is? Another very embarrassing moment occurs when a person is in conversation with a blind friend and walks away leaving him talking to no one. Speaking briefly of the guiding of a blind person, may it be mentioned that it is quite embarrassing and rather difficult for the blind when someone thoughtlessly starts to push you along, instead of offering to let you take his arm. This is preferable also when the blind persons is being escorted to a seat in a bus, streetcar or train. Such habits, if corrected, would save the blind person from many awkward moments."

A DOG'S LIFE

A little dog was seen on Front Street recently, a French poodle, wearing a coat with a hood that pulled over its head. But what struck us as unusual was that there were two pockets in the coat. In one there were some Kleenex tissues, and in the other some loose change. Well, who knows when a dog might want to take a taxi home? Or maybe it was mad money.

• • •

P.S.: To that driver who actually stopped and allowed a pedestrian to cross Front Street at a crosswalk . . . thank you.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Are your table manners as charming and gracious as they should be? Let's see:

1. How should the napkin be folded on the lap?

2. What's the proper way to eat bread and rolls?

3. Is it permissible to use a bit of bread to sop up gravy?

4. When should one begin eating?

5. How does one decide which spoon and fork to use?

6. May elbows be placed on the table?

7. Is it impolite to reach for the salt or the bread tray?

8. Ho wis salad eaten?

9. Is it polite to leave a little food on the plate?

10. Where are the knife and fork placed at the end of a meal?

Answers:

1. A luncheon-size napkin is opened completely before placing it on the lap. The larger dinner napkin is left half folded.

2. They should be broken into small, bite-size pieces, buttered then eaten.

3. It's not the very best form, but, if one insists, a small piece of bread may be placed on the plate to absorb some gravy or sauce and then is eaten with the fork. Fingers are not used in this operation.

4. After three or four guests are served it's permissible to start eating, so food won't get cold.

5. Silverware is placed so that one starts from the outside and works in toward the plate. For instance, if soup is the first course, the soup spoon is to the extreme right of the plate. On the other side, the meat fork is to the far left and the salad or dessert fork nearest to the plate.

6. It's permissible between courses if one cannot resist the impulse, but it's better manners to keep elbows at the sides and hands folded in the lap when one is not eating. When dining, the elbows should be comfortably close to the sides. They should not be thrust out like wings when using the knife to cut meat.

7. It's permissible to reach if what you want is close by and you don't have to rise from your seat or reach across your neighbor.

8. Salad is broken with the side of the fork. A knife may be used only if the lettuce is thick and cannot be handled with a fork alone.

9. No. This is an old-fashioned idea which is not observed any more.

10. Across the middle of the plate with handles to the right. They should not be placed close to the edge, since they might fall off when the plate is removed.

MINTO — The October meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held at the parsonage at Ivanhoe on Thursday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Sine, welcomed all members and expressed thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Munroe for opening her home for the meeting.

Mrs. Bert Sine and Mrs. Cecil Carter are to be visiting committee for next month. Mrs. George Sine gave the financial report and Mrs. Harold Holden gave the Parsonage Board report. It was decided to hold a supper in the hall on November 13th. The regional meeting of West Hastings was held in Marmora on October 18.

Mrs. Stanley Thompson had charge of the program. Mrs. Lindsay Tanner read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Albert Twidy gave comments followed by prayer by Mrs. Lorne. Mrs. Lorne Hagerman, Mrs. Murney Johnston and Mrs. Stanley Thompson gave readings. Mrs. Everett Sine gave the topic entitled "Total Mission of the Church." Mrs. Harold Holden and Mrs. Mel Wickens sang. Mrs. Murney Johnston was hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Church Groups

A.O.T.S. MEN'S CLUB

RAWDON — Rawdon A.O.T.S. Men's Club convened last Thursday evening in Wellmans Orange Hall with 19 men in attendance. The new president Robert H. Hoard welcomed the group and the pastor the Rev. W. G. Fletcher gave the invocation. Following the pot-luck supper Ralph Jelfs presented the fellowship and William Heath gave his report. Byron Bosley was sgt.-at-arms. Craig Watson conducted the study-quiz with Ralph Jelfs as pianist. Gerald Chaney was in charge of the devotional.

Two representatives from the Ontario Hydro gave a most informative message and showed a film of interest. The priest that introduced the group and Robert Merrick voiced thanks.

Digestibility and sound nourishment assured by Gerber cereal research

Your baby's cereals must be readily digestible if he (or she) is to get full nutritive benefits from them. Gerber specialists developed an exclusive, controlled cooking method which breaks down grain starches to assure digestibility. In addition, Gerber Cereals are scientifically formulated to meet some of your baby's early nutritional needs . . . all 5 have added iron, calcium and the B-vitamins, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

Important: Gerber Cereals are twice-tested to insure uniform quality and mixability. They stir to smooth perfection in seconds . . . stay that way right down to the last delightful spoonful. Last, but not least, they have the delicate flavours babies prefer.

P.S. The more than 100 Gerber Strained and Junior Foods are now available in new Wide-Top jars with Quick-Twist caps. Easy to spoon out baby's food . . . easy to recap for refrigeration of unused portions. Caps reclose securely to protect contents and help prevent discoloration . . . thus reducing "leftover" waste. Junior Foods now in large-size jars.

Babies are our business... our only business!

Community Gardens Hopes To Finish Year "In Black"

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Community Gardens' Commission are optimistic about ending this year in the "black," considering that the building's greatest revenue-getting months are coming up.

At present time, on a nine-months' operational basis, the gardens' board has a deficit of $3,528. Last year, at the same time, there was a deficit of $2,520.

Explanation of the larger deficit this year is that more heat (and consequently more fuel) is being supplied to the building and more maintenance repairs have been done this year. Heat for new dressing rooms has cost the board $500 this year. With planners the same concession.

"After all," says chairman Senik, "the building is here to serve the community."

On Sundays, the Trenton Recreation Committee rents the gardens' ice to provide free skating for town children. This poses a problem for the board. Some 200 to 300 children, skate-clad, climb up to the seats or use them to put their skates on. In the process, some kick and damage the seats. The board last night considered policing the seats or forbidding their use. In the final analysis, it was decided that since there was no other place for the youngsters to put on their skates and since policing would mean hiring extra help, the use of the seats would be allowed until such time as repair bills became prohibitive.

"We could use the PA system to tell the youngsters to be careful," suggested Councillor Duncan McDonald, council appointee to the board.

The board discovered last night that when the ice surface was installed this year, the bulls' eye at the centre of the facing off circle had been left out. Various designs were suggested, among them the RCAF crest, an eagle, a maple leaf and the gardens' crest, CTG.

A design will be suggested by a committee comprised of Lou Schmidt, (RCAF) Robert Allore and gardens' manager, Ronald Thornton.

The RCAF Globetrotters have asked for the exclusive use of one dressing room where equipment could be stored between games and practice sessions.

While the board would like to oblige the team, the dressing room might be needed by other teams from time to time.

The Globetrotters will be told that they may use the room, but must remove their equipment to a locked drying room if the dressing room is needed for other purposes.

The Globetrotters will also be told that the board reserves the right to sanction admission charges at games. There is a suggestion that last year's charges of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, (75 cents for playoff games) may be upped, but this will be decided by the board after Robert Allore and his committee confers with the team officials.

The Industrial League will be permitted to charge admission to games this year but if admission is charged by teams in the Minor Hockey League, or if a silver collection is taken at games, full rental for the ice time will be charged. The Minor League's Ladies Auxiliary will be given free use of the upstairs auditorium to hold teas etc., to raise money for the league.

All contracts with the various leagues were accepted in principle last night and will be ratified at next month's meeting.

Meanwhile, the board is considering buying a "mechanical monster" manufactured locally, to scrape the ice and flood the surface at the same time. The machine has been at work for a few days and each day has brought new problems and new modifications. Cost of the machine is $1200. Cost of hiring rink attendants to do the same job for the season would be $3000. If the machine proves to be able to do the job, the board will make the purchase.

tallied 4,285,305 votes against 4,227,411 for Yun in the 86-per-cent count.

Park, 46, whose military group seized power in 1961, retired from the army to contest the election, which was called to seek a popular mandate for the new president.

Three other lesser known candidates, including former prime minister Yong Tai Pyun, were reported to have received only 723,000 votes among them.

The voting was almost without incident and was described as the quietest election in the 15-year history of the South Korean republic. More then half of the voters were women.

In pre - election skirmishing the Civil Rule Party charged Park was once an organizer of Communist cells in the country. The retired general rejected the charges as "McCarthyism."

Yun's party charged the government with irregularities in voting procedures. But many veteran observers of Korean politics believed the actual voting was the most honest in Korean history.

Vincent Drouin (L—Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes) urged the government to take over the feed grain distribution business, arguing that feed grain speculators are exploiting eastern farmers.

"Our farmers are at the mercy of a bunch of speculators who are making millions," he charged. "They hold up shipments to drive prices up. We must nationalize them."

He proposed establishment of a Crown corporation to buy feed grain from the wheat board, ship it to eastern elevators at its own expense and sell to farmers at moderate profits.

Adenauer will remain close to politics in his semi-retirement. He will continue as a member of the lower house and promises to make his weight felt behind the scenes.

The Bundestag voted to elect Erhard without debate on a formal proposal from President Heinrich Luebke. The result was a foregone conclusion since the two government coalition parties, Erhard's Christian Democrats and the smaller Free Democrats, were united in their support for Erhard.

President division of parties in the Bundestag is: Christian Democrats 242, Free Democrats 67, Social Democrats (opposition) 190.

ported growing for Reginald Maudling, 46-year-old chancellor of the exchequer. Another compromise candidate still in the field was the Earl of Home, 60-year-old foreign secretary.

One practical difficulty in the way of Home and Hailsham would be getting them out of the lords, the upper house, and into the elected Commons.

In modern Britain it is accepted that the prime minister must be a commoner. Machinery exists for a politician to discard his peerage but it would keep him out of office while he sought Commons membership in a bydelection.

Another solution would be to dissolve Parliament and call a general election. This course is highly improbable because all the signs are that a general election now would produce a bad defeat for the Conservative party.

Ten Basic Lessons on How Ignorant Consumer Becomes Trapped by 'Easy Credit'

QUEBEC (CP)—Andre Laurin has drawn up 10 basic lessons, liberally sprinkled with the names of finance companies and banks, on how the ignorant consumer becomes trapped by "easy credit."

Until two years ago Mr. Laurin was a full-fledged financial shark himself—a director of a large Quebec City department store—and his lessons reflect an insider's savvy.

They analyze, with fascinating clarity, the small loans law, retail credit systems, door-to-door selling practices, credit contracts, family budgets, mortgages, social security, the credit union system and the ethics of credit.

They even take to task doctors and lawyers.

In his office here Mr. Laurin waved an anesthetist's bill for $60 at a reporter.

"It was sent right back," he said. "They were already paid under the Quebec Hospital Insurance Plan and had no right to send this bill."

LIMIT INTEREST RATES

Locked in a Montreal safe are other "props" for a television series Mr. Laurin will deliver to Quebec viewers this winter. They include finance company contracts, retail advertisements and retail contracts.

Though the series is aimed directly at 100,000 troubled Quebec families, many of its axioms and examples might apply anywhere.

Here are a few:

The small loans law: Legal interest over a 30-month period on a loan of $1,000 is $249. The $249 must be added to the $1,000 figure, not subtracted from it to provide $751 in cash. "This is illegal and is practised by most small finance companies."

Second mortgages: He advises families to sell their homes, pay off their debts and buy new homes "rather than take a second mortgage and lose everything within a few months." Though the maximum legal rate of interest is 18 per cent on second mortgages, the law really allows an unlimited sum to be charged through administrative costs and commissions. He gives one horrible detailed example: A second mortgage of $2,070 that cost the borrower $7,140.

Finance companies: Top legal rate of interest is two per cent a month "but remember that finance companies that respect the law are rare and the real rates of these companies are astronomical."

Permanent retail budget plans: "Without doubt the most popular method of credit and also the most disastrous. Under no circumstances should a living wage earner touch such a plan."

Door-to-door salesmen: A person pays two to five times the value of the merchandise; contracts are impossible to break; often, the product demonstrated is not delivered.

ATTACKED LAWYERS

Last winter, Mr. Laurin went to Jonquiere to give a 30-minute television talk on the small loans law after a Saturday night hockey game. The next day, his office was flooded with calls from excited consumers.

Mr. Laurin wound up doing 15 30-minute programs and two of 45 minutes. One dealt with lawyers, whom he described as "the biggest robbers in the region" after giving some juicy examples of double-dealing and fee-fattening.

The next morning, 43 lawyers in the Saguenay Bar Association went to early mass, then gathered in Chicoutimi for a stormy meeting.

Some wanted to take legal action, but their batonnier said that if they did, he would resign and start telling publicly.

On Monday, Mr. Laurin, expecting a summons, got a letter promising the co-operation of the bar association in seeing that workers were given fair deals.

"But they weren't sincere," he says, grinning. "I had to do two more programs before they came around."

He believes stumbling families were the exception on the whole economy. Besides draining taxes in welfare, they are unable to buy because their cash is tied up in paying off debts.

POINT OF NO RETURN

Once debt reaches a certain level, it is practically impossible for a family to get out.

Buying power may be lowered 15 to 60 per cent by credit demands, he says, forcing families to cut spending on clothes, food and other necessities.

By channelling at least 60 per cent of family buying power into the hands of finance and away from production sources, unemployment is increased.

Quebec, where unemployment is the highest in the country, is particularly interested in this angle and another: The fact that $185,000,000 a year goes out of province in interest rates.

Anything that can cut down unemployment, increase spending power and keep more money in the province for its development, he says, is welcome news to the government.

"We are watching this experiment closely," says J. Roger Guay, deputy minister of Quebec's family and social welfare department. His budget is $142,000,000 a year—much of it going to help families Mr. Laurin will try to educate.

MALRAUX EXPLAINS

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Malraux, French cultural affairs minister, would up an eight-day visit to Canada Tuesday with a warning that a Quebec dependent on France would be "ridiculous and even dangerous." He said that remarks he had more earlier about closer links between Quebec and France were meant in an "historic and artistic" sense, not politically.

Hurricane Hazel Struck Metro 9 Years Ago

TORONTO (CP) — A former resident of the street that became known as Calamity Crescent says today: "We have lived almost to forget hurricane Hazel."

Yet, a flood control official said Tuesday, the disastrous floods of that time "can happen again."

Nine years ago today—Oct. 15, 1954—Hurricane Hazel's dying winds swept into southern Ontario, carrying a still terrible burden of rain in their core.

During that Friday night and early the next day 82 people in Metropolitan Toronto died as a result of the storm.

"It's nothing more than a bad memory today," said Mrs. J. Wall, a former resident of Raymore Drive. The little street, which hugs the Humber River as it twists through Toronto's west end, accounted for 37 of the dead.

Today Raymore Drive is shorter by a third. The rest has been converted into a small park. Other residents live on a high ridge well above the Humber, which normally carries only a trickle of water.

Kenneth Higgs, director of operation for the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, believes that while flooding is still possible during a repetition of Hazel, the "chances are much more remote."

"There is a great awareness of flood today, the warning system has been immensely improved, dams and dams and channels are being built to control floods in the future."

USES AS YARDSTICK

Hazel's downpour of about nine inches has become a yardstick by which the conservation authority measures its strategic planning. A realtor map has been introduced to trace storms many people living in the flood plain have been relocated, 11 dams have been or will be constructed at a cost of $38,000,000 in the next 10 years, and a system of channels is being built.

The network amounts to one of the most fully co-ordinated flood control systems in North America, Mr. Higgs said. Little of it would have been done without Hazel's prodding.

Before hitting Ontario, Hazel had left about 100 dead in Haiti and another 39 in the New England states.

Property loss in the Metro area has been estimated at $25,000,000.

CHEWING IS WORSE

NEW DELHI (AP)—An expert group reported Tuesday that smoking is an important factor in mouth cancer but worse still is an habitual chewing of a mixture of tobacco and lime in some parts of Asia. The experts said habitual chewing in India and other South Asian countries is responsible for a high incidence of oral cancer, exceeding cancer in other parts of the body.

Missing Volume of Evidence Into Eastview Inquiry Has Been Found Says Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Mystery mounted upon official mystery Tuesday in the curious case of the missing evidence from the 1960 Ontario government investigation into a financial muddle at Eastview, an Ottawa suburb.

Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner called a press conference and announced that the missing evidence has been resurrected from original shorthand notes taken at the inquiry.

However, he said he had no explanation for the fact that sometime between the fall of 1960 and last Aug. 15 volume 15 of the 19-volume transcript of evidence had disappeared from three separate sets of the transcript—in his office, in the attorney - general's department and in Eastview.

Volume 15 contained the main testimony of Gordon Lavergne, mayor of Eastview from 1946 until 1960 and Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Russell from 1954 until his defeat in last month's provincial election. The Ontario Conservative party dumped Mr. Lavergne as their candidate in Russell but he went on to run away with the support of some local Conservatives.

Mr. Spooner was questioned also about evidence presented by the opposition Liberal party that the province had presented report on Eastview differed from an original draft, partly in deleting unflattering comment about Mr. Lavergne.

CAN'T EXPLAIN

Mr. Spooner said he could not explain that and stood by previous statements that the published document was the only one his office had received bearing signatures of the investigators.

The mystery deepened when reporters questioned officials of the Ontario Police Commission and the attorney-general's department about the fact that volume 15 had disappeared from their copy of the transcript.

Police Commissioner Eric Silk said the transcript had been used by provincial police investigations leading to formal charges. He added: "I received assurance from my staff personnel some three weeks ago that the volume alleged to be missing was given to the attorney-general's office."

Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common said at first that the transcript "never came back to this office" from the police. Later, he added: "If it did it was turned over to the municipal affairs office."

Told that Mr. Spooner had said that attorney - general's transcript was retrieved Aug. 15 —with volume 15 missing—Mr. Common explained that "we would send it (the transcript) back en masse without checking it."

DOESN'T KNOW

"If volume 15 was missing, I don't know what happened to it."

Both Mr. Common and Mr. Spooner said separately that their departments would be conducting no further inquiries into the disappearance of volume 15 from their respective transcripts.

Mr. Spooner was asked if he felt the disappearance of volume 15 from all three sets of transcripts was "a coincidence."

"I'm not attributing anything to anything," he replied.

The disappearance was discovered Aug. 15 when Ottawa lawyer John Nelligan, an investigator for Eastview, applied for permission to look at the transcripts. Mr. Nelligan reported the absence of volume 15 from all three transcripts.

FOUND NOTES

Mr. Spooner said he launched inquiries following the election Sept. 25 and found shorthand notes of Eastview inquiry testimony were available from a team of court reporters in Ottawa.

He obtained two copies of transcript to replace volume 15, one for his own office and one which was mailed to Eastview. The cost was $150 each.

The Eastview inquiry resulted in the prosecution of Mrs. Adrienne Laroche, Eastview treasurer. She was sentenced in February, 1962, to nine months in reformatory for theft by conversion of $10,790 of Eastview funds. She was subsequently granted a retrial and the crown now is appealing that decision. The charges that the government report on the inquiry was "doctored" before being published, Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Lorne Cumming said the alleged original draft published by the Liberals might have been preliminary working papers of the investigators.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, commented Tuesday that Mr. Spooner has failed to answer the charge that the report was "doctored" before being published "and, if so, why and at whose instigation?"

"It is Mr. Spooner's responsibility to find out where the original report is and to what extent it was rewritten," he added.

STOP SCRAPPING

OTTAWA (CP)—The CNR has stopped scrapping old freight cars because of the need for rolling stock to transport the huge Canadian grain purchases by Soviets, S. H. Rideout (L—Westmorland) said Tuesday. He said in a statement that this was the reason given him by Transport Minister McGrath for recent layoffs in the CNR scrap yard at Moncton, N.B.

Chief Justice Orders Convicts To Have Light

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Two convicts charged after a penitentiary riot made a plea Tuesday for light to prepare their defence.

They said they were being treated like trapped rats, with no light in their cells and only a dim light in the hallway outside. They had been kept five months "in the hole."

Chief Justice J. O. Wilson, in Assize Court, instructed that a letter be sent to the warden of the B.C. penitentiary asking that pen and paper and books and light be made available to the men.

Nelson Bernard Wood, 27, and Wayne Carlson, 31, are charged with attempting to break out and with confining and assaulting a prison guard during a riot at the British Columbia Penitentiary last April 19.

Mirror Presses Roll Last Time

NEW YORK (AP)—The financially distressed New York Mirror has ceased publication after 38 years and some of its assets have been sold to the New York Daily News.

"It takes everything I've got to keep from crying," said John Hearst Jr., grandson of the Mirror's founder, the late William Randolph Hearst, when the morning newspaper's demise was announced Tuesday night.

"If we could have economized we would have done it," added Hearst, associate editor of the Mirror. "Most holes have a bottom, but this one did not seem to have any."

The Mirror's last edition rolled off the presses at 2:17 a.m. today.

China Now Has More Strike Power on Tibetan Frontier Than It Did One Year Ago

NEW DELHI (AP)—Military positions in the Himalayas and diplomatic positions in Peking and New Delhi have changed considerably in the year since Communist China attacked India.

China now has more strike power poised on its Tibetan frontier with India than it did Oct. 20, 1962, when its one-month invasion began, Indian intelligence reports say.

But China is no longer able to hope for Russian help in a conflict with India. Conversely, the worsening relations between Peking and Moscow may divert Chinese attention from India, although they could instead anger Peking into striking this way.

India is building up its overall military strength but is still fairly weak in Himalayan border areas. The defences lie in a depth that might check any new Chinese attack only after more losses of territory.

CONTROL AREA

The Chinese already control some 14,000 square miles of bleakly inhospitable terrain that both Peking and New Delhi say is theirs. Most of this was seized by Chinese troops between 1956 and last Oct. 20. Major fighting began then after weak Indian forces tried to halt Chinese encroachments and regain some ground.

The Indian Army was badly beaten before the Chinese voluntarily called a cease-fire. An official post mortem said the army had been poorly led, inadequately trained and improperly equipped.

Now the leadership has changed somewhat, training is reoriented toward fighting in the Himalayas and better equipment is being supplied slowly. The Soviet newspaper Pravda recently told Peking not to expect any Russian help against India. Pravda all but called China the aggressor in this situation.

If China does attack again, and if it uses air power this time, the United States and Britain are committed morally although not on paper to fly air defence for India.

Plane Spotted On Its Back In North Lake

TRENTON — An American light plane carrying two hunters in the Quebec wilderness was spotted overturned Tuesday and an attempt to reach survivors is set for today.

RCAF Search and Rescue headquarters here said Tuesday night some survivors were spotted but it was not known whether all three persons aboard survived.

The pilot has been identified as Arthur B. Daigle of Fort Kent, Me. He was reported to be ferrying four hunters, two of them from one lake to another when the plane went down. The plane was reported missing Monday.

The RCAF said a Saguenay Air Services plane reported sighting the downed light plane about noon Tuesday in bush about 50 miles southeast of Chicoutimi, Que. The Saguenay pilot said the plane was on its back in Lake Patten.

INDUSTRIALISTS VISIT

TORONTO (CP) — Thirteen Japanese industrialists, whose firms and trading companies gross more than $8,000,000,000 annually in sales, arrived here Tuesday for a week of talks. They were invited to Canada by the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

You Are Asking For Canapes	WEDNESDAY Dinner Menu	By Mary Moore
	Baked Beans with Bacon; Boston Brown Bread; Egg-Salad-Stuffed Whole Tomatoes on Lettuce; Compote of Lombard Plums; Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

From Women's Editors of various newspapers I am receiving letters asking for Fall entertaining ideas because their local friendly readers are making inquiries.

This is a valid request for when I spoke to a group last week and made some canapes for them there were nods of approval all over the audience.

You want ideas for your parties but you do not want to spend a fortune on such items as pate de foie gras and caviar.

I have made a corned beef canape spread that is flavorful and goes a long way and costs under $1.00. Another attractive idea is Savory Cheese Canapes which intrigued me because they are shaped like broom-stick-sized refrigerator cookies and go a long way too.

CORNED BEEF PATE:

1 small onion, chopped finely, 5 oz. fresh mushrooms, washed and chopped, 3 tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon catsup, ½ cup dairy sour cream, 1 can (12-oz.) corned beef, unchilled and chopped coarsely, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon rosemary, ½ teaspoon accent, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon tarragon, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon drained horseradish.

Place onion, mushrooms, water and catsup in electric blender or use beater and blend until smooth. Add remaining ingredients and beat again until smooth. (Or, force onions, mushrooms, and corned beef through a food grinder, using fine blade. Mix with remaining ingredients.) Chill for several hours before serving. Spread on thinly sliced party rye bread or dry toast rounds or canape crackers or serve unchilled as a "dip".

SAVORY CHEESE CANAPES:

4 oz. pecans, chopped, 1 clove garlic, finely chopped, 8-oz. package white cream cheese, Roquefort or Philadelphia cream temperature, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 drops Tabasco sauce or 2 drops Angostura bitters.

Cream all these ingredients together thoroughly by hand or in electric beater or in blender. Scrape out of bowl onto heavy wax paper and shape by hand as you would refrigerator cookies or roll by folding the wax paper over the spread into a slim roll 18" long. Chill it thoroughly rolled in wax paper. This takes about 3 hours. To decorate it with 4 different colors as we did, cut the roll into 4 pieces. On 4 separate sheets of wax paper sprinkle liberally, paprika on one, bright green parsley flakes on another, poppy seeds on another, and sesame seeds on the fourth. Quickly roll each quarter in these (leaving the leftover rolls in the refrigerator until you are ready to roll them) With very sharp knife slice each thinly and place immediately on canape crackers.

Another excellent canape spread is my Chicken Liver Pate given here February 8/63. Write to me if you want me to repeat it here.

NOTE:

The Savory Cheese Canapes above, coated red with paprika and green with parsley are particularly appropriate for Christmas entertaining. Please clip.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It isn't official yet nor will it likely be but there's a rumor flying around New York sports circles that a Vietnamese hockey team may, in the not too distant future, apply for entry in the world hockey championships.

As is well known, Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, the Vietnamese beauty, is in the U.S.A. sweet-talking before press clubs, government organizations and any body which will listen to her.

In the event of a Vietnamese entry the official score card containing the Viet lineup will make the famous Notre Dame backfields look like Smith, Jones, Brown and Green.

It is said the Nhu's boys are not Ng Nhus. Nor afoot are they to be compared with the African Guns, type of fleet-footed gazelles of the deer family.

Stars of the Nhus could be Dal's boys. It is reported that Dal's started on the original team but four Dal's were considered to be a little weak so they added Sun Dal and Mun Dal.

The longest Dal on the club is the goalie. He has yet to fall in love with work and is an ardent hunter. He ambles off into the Vietnamese jungles every morning and knocks himself off a tiger or two and a couple of gazelles for breakfast. After each game he disappears for a week. They call him Holly Dal.

The coach of the team is one of the twin Dal brothers. They were born the morning the Commies crashed through and handed the Viets a fancy trimming. They are called Had and Sad.

Mdm Nhu, it is reported, sponsored the league which consists of teams called the Viet Minh, The Vietcong and the Nos Lao Hak-Xat. A rumor has it that Mel Allen got his famous expression from the latter team's fans, "here comes Xat!"

Another coach is Suvanna Phouma who is not the sister of Madame Nhu. He is the half-brother of Souvanouyong and they were not born in the Georgia city.

Actually Madame Nhu is a sister-in-law of Ngo Dinh Diem who became ruler of Vietnam after Ho Chi Minh won the playoff at Dienbenphu and Bal Dai was sold to a team on the Riviera.

The latest report from Vietnam is that the fans are singing "Happy Dais Are Here Again" after they learned Mdm. Nhu had signed a big defenceman from the Ngo Dinh Diem squad. They call him "Thanksgiving Dal."

The first names of the Dal boys are not known but for identification sake they probably call them Mon, Tues, Wed, Thurs and Fri.

So what else is Nhu?

REFEREES' FORUM

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association is holding a referees' and rules forum in Trenton Community Gardens on Wednesday, October 23rd, at eight o'clock, according to OMHA second vice-president Douglas Paterson.

All referees, coaches, managers and players in this area are invited to attend the forum and take part in the informative discussion of the playing rules of hockey.

The aim of the forum is to improve the calibre of refereeing and thereby make hockey an even better game with fewer injuries and brawls which definitely do not belong in the sport.

Gordie Howe Or Rocket?

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP) — When Gordie Howe scores his next National Hockey League goal, it will fan an old argument:

Who is the greatest right-winger the game has known—Howe, or Maurice (Rocket) Richard?

Howe, who leads Detroit Red Wings into New York tonight to face the Rangers, needs one goal to tie Richard's lifetime figure in the NHL, excluding playoffs. The Red Wing great has scored 543 in regular season play as he wheels into his 18th season.

Howe cut his right ankle during practice Tuesday when Terry Sawchuk's skate hit him as the goalie was kicking out a shot. The cut took four stitches but it was not believed the injury would hurt Howe's play tonight.

Richard, who retired four years ago, scored 544 goals—a record once thought to be unbeatable—in 18 seasons with Montreal Canadiens.

Almost everyone concedes that Richard probably was the best from the blueline to the net. He could break faster from a standing start than anyone during his time.

Richard says that Howe has been the best player in the National Hockey League over the last 15 or 16 years.

"I say it's Howe," the Rocket declared Tuesday. "Certainly, for one thing, he gets a lot of time on the ice—and of course gets more points. He is on the ice far more than I used to be. I took only my regular shifts and once in a while was on the power play."

The way the Rocket sees it he still holds a record, no matter what the NHL does about recognizing Howe as record-holder when he passes the 544 mark.

Richard scored his 544 goals in 978 games. Howe has played in 1,122 games to reach his 543 total, 144 more games than the Rocket.

Howe, 35 and a native of Floral, Sask., does everything well. His fans say he is the greatest all-round player to lace on skates.

IS POWERFUL

Howe is easy-going, loose, deceivingly powerful. He's a big fellow—six feet, 201 pounds—and he paces himself, making everything look easy.

Richard — five-ten and 180 pounds—owns a tavern now in Montreal and is still a popular figure on the banquet circuit. He was 38 when he retired from a career that was sometimes plagued by injury. And when he left, the Canadiens retired his familiar No. 9.

Howe also wears No. 9 and it too, will probably be retired when he hangs up his skates at Detroit.

But Howe has no intention of quitting until he has played 20 seasons. Only one man, Dit Clapper of Boston Bruins, played that long in the NHL.

There has been no reason to believe Howe can't last at least two seasons. He won the scoring title last year for the sixth time and also the Hart Trophy, presented annually to the most valuable player in the league. That, too, was his sixth win.

HOLDS RECORDS

Howe holds records for the most games played (1,122), most assists (672) and most points (1,813). Richard 978 games, had 421 assists and 965 points.

The Rocket, however, is still ahead of Howe when playoff goals are considered. He played a record 133 playoff games and scored a record 82 goals. Howe has played in 117 playoff games and has scored 45. In over-all lifetime scoring, Richard has 626 goals and Howe 591.

But, at his current pace, Howe should easily exceed the Rocket's mark.

Junior B's Hold Practice Tonight!

Belleville's entry in the OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League will swing into action at Memorial Arena tonight with an open practice.

The workout will begin at seven o'clock and any city or district players wishing to try out are urged to attend.

One new face is assured with the team, that belonging to coach Eddie Flata. Flata is replacing Don "Turk" Barclay who was unable to return to the post this season because of other personal commitments.

All player positions are said to be wide open. The team, which has lost a number of regulars from last season, will operate on a strictly "home brew" bases.

The team will be playing against Kingston, Peterborough, Picton, Napanee, Trenton and Gananoque. The league schedule is expected to open around the second week in November.

City Hockey Loop Dies Lonely Death

Add another league to the fast-growing hockey graveyard.

The Belleville City Hockey League reached the end of its short trail last night, when only four persons, two of them representing sponsors, showed up at a league meeting.

"As far as I am concerned, this is it," said league president Cliff Belch Jr. "There is no point in pounding our heads against a brick wall if no one is interested," he added.

The loop was formed last year with the idea of providing a place for local players to play hockey once they passed the minor and junior age groups.

Last night marked the second attempt to organize this fall. There were five people at the first meeting and four of the same turned out last night.

Hank Aaron Slug Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves edged San Francisco's Willie Mays in winning his second National League slugging championship and Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota Twins captured his first American League title.

Aaron, the 1959 slugging king, collected 370 total bases in 621 times at bat for a .586 mark, according to figures compiled by The Associated Press. He had 201 hits, including 29 doubles, four triples and 44 homers, the latter total tying him for the NL lead with Willie McCovey of the Giants.

Mays had a .582 slugging mark on 347 total bases in 596 at bats, counting 32 doubles, seven triples and 38 homers among 187 hits. Mays is a three-time slugging champion, in 1954, 1955 and 1957.

Killebrew piled up 286 total bases in 515 times at bat for a .555 average. The Twins' outfielder led the AL with 45 homers.

Bob Allison, another Minnesota outfielder, was the American League runner-up with .537. He was followed by Elston Howard, New York Yankees .539.

METS BUY SHORTSTOP

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Mets purchased shortstop Amado Samuel from Milwaukee Braves Tuesday in a conditional sale. He is expected to fight it out with Al Moran for the shortstop job next season.

Canada Wins Commonwealth Golf

Wins Over N. Z.

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)Reuters)—Canada gained its first victory in the 1963 Commonwealth amateur golf team championship here today, defeating New Zealand five matches to three with one halved. Australia won by a similar margin over Britain.

Britain, Canada, Australia and South Africa each had two points at the end of the second day of the five-day round-robin tournament.

However, Australia and South Africa have had byes while Britain, Canada and New Zealand—which hasn't scored a point—played two matches.

Each country plays every other country in three games of foursomes in the morning and six singles in the afternoon. The winner of the best of nine matches earns two points.

South Africa, defending Commonwealth champion, was invited to play even though no longer a member of the British Commonwealth.

PREDICT FINALISTS

Experts are tipping the tournament could develop into a fight between only the two teams still unbeaten, South Africa and Australia, who meet on the final day Saturday.

Thursday Canada plays Australia and New Zealand meets South Africa, while Britain has a bye.

In its opening match Tuesday, Canada bowed to South Africa the defending champion, five matches to three with one halved.

The Canadian win today was due to fine play in the morning foursomes in which the Canadians made a clean sweep of the three matches.

The New Zealanders won three of the six singles after lunch; the Canadians won two and the other was halved.

Canada lost all three foursomes against South Africa, but today the Canadians gave a superb demonstration of team play.

COWAN STARS

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., showed the gallery at the par-72 Royal Sydney course some of the topnotch golf he produced when he won the individual title at the world amateur championships in Japan last year.

Cowan teamed with Bert Tieburst of Vancouver to defeat New Zealand's Ross Newdick and Brian Boys 4 and 3.

The 24-year-old Cowan gave a fine display of driving and putted well. At the sixth hole he sank a 44-foot putt for a birdie two.

Kitchener Beats Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As import goalie from Western Canada made himself right at home Tuesday night in his Ontario Hockey Association Junior A debut while Oshawa Generals, making a return to the league after an 11-year absence, had the welcome mat pulled from under their feet.

Dave Cox, a native of Flin Flon, Man., weathered a storm of 46 shots as he kept Kitchener Rangers within range until they could come back and defeat St. Catharines Black Hawks 4-3 before a hometown crowd of 1,012.

Yvon Cournoyer provided most of the ammunition for Montreal Junior Canadiens' 6-4 victory over Generals at Bowmanville, triggering four of the goals.

In the only other game, Toronto Marlboros staged a courageous five-goal comeback in Peterborough, only to lose 7-6 in a third-period marker by the Petes' Jim Patterson.

The victory was Peterborough's second and put them two points ahead of Montreal, Kitchener and Toronto. Niagara Falls, which opens its season Thursday at Hamilton, is tied with Oshawa, Hamilton and St. Catherines.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Farms' Chippawa Hill, a four-year-old home-bred filly, upset the odds laid on Hasty House Farms' five-year-old French-bred Carteret in Tuesday's Selene Citizens Purse on Woodbine Race Track turf course.

Before 5,376 fans Chippawa Hill came home three-quarters of a length ahead of S. F. Stephenson's Mark Loft with Carteret a neck behind in third place.

Carteret, which earlier this year had won the $50,000 Laurance Armour Handicap at Arlington Park, is at Woodbine preparing for Saturday's $60,000 Canadian championship. The fans installed the five-year-old a 3-to-4 favorite but, after a slow start, Carteret trailed the field for more than half the journey.

It was Chippawa Hill's first victory of the 1963 season.

Omaha Tops Central PL

DETROIT (CP)—Len Ronson of the undefeated Omaha Knights, leaders in the Central Professional Hockey League, holds first place in the scoring list after the first week of action.

Statistics released Tuesday by league president Jack Adams show that Ronson, a member of Sudbury Wolves in the Eastern Professional League last season, scored four goals and drew three assists as the Knights racked up three wins without a setback.

Sharing second place with five points are Omaha club-mates Doug Senior, with Hull-Ottawa in the PHL last season, and Bob Courcy, with Quebec in the American Hockey League, and also Hull-Ottawa last year. Also with five points are St. Paul players Paul Andrusz, formerly with Sudbury, and ex-amateur Dick Bouchard, as well as Phil Esposito of St. Louis.

NAME SHATTO, FUELL

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have nominated half-back Dick Shatto and quarter-back Don Fuell for the Eastern Football Conference's highest player award, the Jeff Russel Trophy. The award is presented to the player best combining ability with good sportsmanship.

Boxer Dies After Knockout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Ernie Knox died in a Baltimore hospital today, a day and a half after he battled for a $250 purse.

Doctors said a blood clot on the brain killed him, and even had he lived he would have been partly crippled.

He was knocked out in the ninth round of his fight with Wayne Bethea of New York Monday night.

Knox, floored for a nine count earlier in the round, lay stretched out on the ring canvas for nearly 10 minutes after a volley of Bethea punches sent him there at 1:15 of the round.

The 26 - year - old Baltimore boxer was carried from the ring on a stretcher after a preliminary examination by Maryland athletic commission doctors.

Later, in the dressing room, the doctors checked for signs of brain damage and said they found none. But they ordered Knox sent to the hospital as a precaution.

N.H.L. Scoring

Geoffrion, Mikita Tops

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal and Stan Mikita of Chicago are tied for lead in the point-scoring race after the National Hockey League's first week of action but interest is focused on Detroit Red Wings'-Gordie Howe as he assaults the league's all-time scoring record.

Official NHL statistics released today show Geoffrion moved into a first-place tie with six points after scoring two goals and two assists in Montreal's 6-2 lacing of New York.

Geoffrion's points are made up of 3 goals and three assists in two games while Mikita, who signed his 1963-64 contract only a day before Hawks opened their schedule with a 3-1 win over Rangers, scored two goals and four assists in Chicago's three games.

SCORES THREE

Howe fired three goals in Detroit's two games to move within one goal of tying the career record of 544 goals set by Maurice Richard, the former Montreal star, in regular season play.

The 35-year-old Howe, playing in his 18th season, had said he didn't expect to score the goal-breaking Richard's record until late in November.

Third and fourth spots in the individual scoring race are shared by John Ferguson, Canadiens rookie from Vancouver, and Jean Beliveau, the veteran Montreal centre. Ferguson has scored three goals and added two assists in Montreal's first two games and Beliveau's five points are made up of a goal and four assists, the latter boosting his career total to 402.

Howe's three goals and an assist tied him with Bobby Hull and Ken Wharram of Chicago and Detroit's Ron Ellis and Norm Ullman for fifth spot in individual scoring with four points apiece.

ONLY SHUTOUT

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit leads goaltenders, giving up three goals in two games for a 1.50 goals-against average. He also has the lone shutout in the league, a 3-0 win over Boston. The penalty leaders after the first week of play are Dick Duff of Toronto and John Bucyk of Boston, each of whom received a minor and 10-minute misconduct for total of 15 minutes. Howie Young of Chicago Black Hawks, who set a league record of 273 penalty minutes with Detroit last season, did not receive a penalty in Hawks' three games.

In the team ... Detroit's two victories ... two games given Ron ... things the league lead with four points, the same total as Chicago although Black Hawks have suffered a loss against their two victories. Montreal is third with three points on their victory and tie in two games, and Toronto is fourth with two points on a win and a loss in their two starts. Boston has a tie in three starts for one point, one point ahead of the sixth-place Rangers who lost their first two games.

AT THE BELLE — Henry Fonda heads the cast of "Spencer's Mountain" with Maureen O'Hara starring as his wife in the Warner Bros. glowing romantic drama, continuing tonight through Thursday at the Belle Theatre. The Delmer Daves production based on the novel by Earl Hamner Jr., was filmed in Technicolor Panavision, against the magnificent backdrop of the towering Tetons of Wyoming. James MacArthur and Mimsy Farmer are the romantic interest in the popular family drama.

Town Meeting of the World One of TV's Historic Events

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — One of television's historic events took place Tuesday with the Town Meeting of the World.

To accommodate Telstar II it came to us in the morning, which was not particularly accommodating to the public. CBS will rebroadcast the hour-long program tonight—7:30-8:30 p.m.

It was exciting and inspiring to watch as scholars in Rome, London and Princeton, N.J., exchanged ideas.

Four churchmen sat down together, electronically speaking, to discuss The Christian Revolution. Their friendship and mutual respect were as obvious as their differences of opinion.

In Rome there were Laurian Cardinal Rugambwa of Tanganyika and two Roman Catholic writer, Rev. Hans Kung of West Germany. From London came the Rt. Rev. Leslie Newbigin, a Presbyterian who heads his church in South India. From Princeton theological Seminary came Dr. Franklin Clark Fry of the American Lutheran Church.

Telstar was temperamental throughout the program and on several occasions the sound was lost—invariably from Rome.

QUESTIONS EASILY

Moderator Eric Severeid had done his homework and shifted smoothly to Dr. Fry or Dr. Newbigin with intelligent questions. The big questions raised—many involving Christian unity and the population explosion—sounded controversial, but the answers were never heated.

As Severeid noted, the interesting and inspiring thing about the program was that an "artificial star" had formed a bridge between Catholics and Protestants while millions of laymen were privileged to listen in their talk.

Bronco Billy Reminisces About Old Days of Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I made a lot of money with cows and I spent it with the other. I have no regrets. Money is just to have when you're young, but it wouldn't do me any good now."

Speaking was Bronco Billy Anderson, who 60 years ago appeared in the first real movie, The Great Train Robbery.

Bronco Billy is 81, hawk-faced and vigorous-minded despite a leg ailment that confines him most of the time to his apartment. He lives in a single room, heavy with cigar smoke and mementos from his days as western hero and film mogul. Atop the television set rests the oscar he won in 1958 for his contributions to the screen.

He is enjoying one of his periodic reacquaintances with the spotlight. He'll be featured on NBC-television next Monday on Davis Wolper's review of the western film Hollywood And The Stars. The network paired with one of the newest cowboy stars, Gary Clarke of The Virginian.

Bronco Billy reminisces about what he calls the diaper days of movies.

It all started when he convinced Edwin S. Porter to expend a whole nine minutes of film on an old vaudeville sketch called The Great Train Robbery.

"Before that movies had been no more than two minutes long," he said. "Our backers were reluctant. They said audiences wouldn't sit still for a whole reel. I said they would, and they did."

The film was a boon to the spawning industry, and Anderson established a historic studio at Niles, Calif.

"I tried making movies with authentic cowboys and backgrounds, but something was missing. They weren't selling," he said. "I decided it was because there was no central figure for the audience to get interested in."

So he bought a Peter B. Kyne story about Bronco Billy. Unable to get a name actor to take the role, he assumed it himself. For six years he ground out Bronco Billies, retiring in 1916 under the overpowering competition of William S. Hart.

With George Spoor he founded Essanay (from their initials) and they lured Charlie Chaplin from Mack Sennett.

"Mack was paying Charlie $250 a week and he wouldn't go for a raise to $300," Billy recalled. "We paid him $1,250. A short while later he was getting $10,000 a week."

Sports Franchise Record

Offers $6 Million For Lions

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford automobile family's William Clay Ford is laying $6,000,000 on the line to buy Detroit Lions.

Bill Ford, who is president of the National Football League club, created a sensation at the Lions' directors meeting Tuesday with the surprise offer.

The $6,000,000 probably is the largest single offer for any sports franchise.

Ford offered the Lions' directors the cash for full control. The Lions now are governed by a bard of directors responsible to 144 stockholders.

For his money Ford would get a squad of players and the Lions' modest headquarters office, the club's only tangible assets.

Not since a syndicate of Detroit businessmen bought the Detroit Tigers baseball team for $3,500,000 in 1957 has money of that size been on a table in a sports transaction here of this sort.

MAY BE UNIQUE

In fact, it may not have happened anywhere else, either.

A syndicate headed by Dan Reeves reputedly paid $7,100,000 for the NFL's Los Angeles Rams earlier this year. There was doubt whether this was a single piece of money, however. Reeves reportedly gave a price of $4,500,000. Prorated on a stockholders' share basis this was said to work out to $7,100,000.

Baseball's New York Yankees were sold for $3,200,000 but this included a stadium and other property. Milwaukee Braves were sold for $2,000,000 and football's Cleveland Browns for $4,000,000. There has been an offer of $4,500,000 for Philadelphia's Football Eagles.

CLEMENTINE ILL

LONDON (Reuters) — Lady Churchill, 78-year-old wife of Sir Winston Churchill, was admitted to Westminster Hospital here several days ago, it was learned Tuesday night. She was admitted "for a rest," a hospital spokesman said.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bill Fritz of Hanover, Ont., piloted two winners Tuesday night in a fairly quiet 10-race program at Western Fair Raceway.

Fritz clicked in the seventh with skip, owned by Hanover's Alvin Yandt, who teamed up with Spunik for a $30.10 exacta. Fritz's other victory came in the ninth when he steered Superior Lee home first. The 8-1 longshot returned $18.70.

A race of considerable interest among fans was the second in which Stewart Simpson of Alvinston, Ont., piloted Curt Johnson, owned by Ross McNally of Inwood, to victory. Simpson, who was badly injured in a sulky accident two years ago and has gone through a series of illnesses and operations since, showed form disputing any idea that his racing days are through.

Name Houk Top Manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Houk, who guided New York Yankees to the American baseball League pennant in 1963 despite injuries to star outfielder Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, was an overwhelming choice as the league manager of the year today.

In the balloting by 71 baseball writers in the annual Associated Press poll, Houk received 38 votes. Al Lopez, pilot of second-place Chicago White Sox, was runner-up with six votes.

WHAT IS A CREDIT UNION

CREDIT UNIONS ARE FORMED BY GROUPS OF PEOPLE WHO SAVE THEIR MONEY TOGETHER AND MAKE LOW COST PROVIDENT LOANS TO EACH OTHER. EACH CREDIT UNION IS CHARTERED BY THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT AS A NON PROFIT CORPORATION. CREDIT UNIONS OBSERVE NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN RACES, COLORS OR CREEDS. CREDIT UNIONS RANK FOREMOST IN ENCOURAGING GROUPS TO LOOK TO THEMSELVES FOR THEIR ECONOMIC SALVATION.

WHY CREDIT UNIONS

CREDIT UNIONS AROSE OUT OF A NEED, AND BECAUSE THAT NEED STILL EXISTS IN OUR COMPLEX SOCIETY TODAY, NEW CREDIT UNIONS ARE BEING FORMED EVERY DAY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD. THE SYSTEM OF FREE ENTERPRISE IS BASED ON PEOPLE EMPLOYING THEIR RESOURCES TO THEIR BEST ADVANTAGE. THE CREDIT UNION PHILOSOPHY AND ITS DEMOCRATIC PROGRAM OF SELF HELP IS NOT ONLY THE MOST EFFECTIVE MEANS OF STIMULATING DEVELOPMENT BUT IS THE MOST SATISFYING TO THE INDIVIDUAL. CREDIT UNIONS HAVE EARNED THE ENDORSEMENT OF CHURCHES, SOCIAL AGENCIES, AND HAVE GREATLY BENEFITED THE EMPLOYER-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS IN MANY OF OUR COUNTRY'S LEADING INDUSTRIES.

are celebrating

INTERNATIONAL CREDIT UNION DAY

THURSDAY OCT. 17

Each year on the third Thursday of October credit union members around the world give special thought to the many benefits which the credit union provides. On every continent observances are being held to give recognition to the role of the credit union.

In operation, the credit union consists of people saving together, and lending to each other at a low rate of interest for good purposes. Credit unions are chartered by the government and operate under law and government supervision. Any group with a common bond of association (employment, church, club, for example) can form a credit union.

Credit unions serving this area include the following:

PROCLAMATION

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17 IS INTERNATIONAL CREDIT UNION DAY

WHEREAS the credit union members throughout the world will celebrate International Credit Union Day on Thursday, October 17, 1963, and

WHEREAS credit unions provide an invaluable means whereby people may pool their savings, and assist themselves to fill their needs for credit at a low cost, and

WHEREAS these credit unions not only promote the economic security of their members, but also strengthen democracy, encourage individual responsibility and the practice of true brotherhood and thus benefit our entire community, and

WHEREAS the City of Belleville now has NINE credit unions whose combined membership totals 2,138 representing a significant proportion of our citizens

I Do Hereby Proclaim Thursday, October 17, 1963 as to be observed in the CITY OF BELLEVILLE and urge our people to give fitting recognition at this time to the many benefits brought to them through credit unions.

AND ON THIS OCCASION, I extend to the leaders and members of the credit unions of the Quinte and District Chapter my greetings, congratulations, and sincere wishes for continued success in serving their fellowmen.

Given under my hand and the seal of
A. McLEAN HAIG
Mayor

CANADA
PRIME MINISTER

Over 60 years ago, a legislative reporter in Levis, Quebec, helped his friends and neighbors to organize this continent's first Credit Union. Today some three million Canadians follow the self-help principles that Alphonse Desjardins advocated.

On October 17th the members of the Canadian Credit Union join fourteen million fellow-members in the United States and another three-quarters of a million in other parts of the world in celebrating Credit Union Day.

I especially commend those responsible for introducing the ideals of self-help to developing nations around the world.

To Credit Union members I extend my warm good wishes for continued success in their endeavors.

Lester B. Pearson
Prime Minister.

OPPOSES PLAN

TORONTO (CP) — J. D. George, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto public utilities co-ordinating committee, urged city council Tuesday to turn down a proposal by Maple Leaf Gardens to build a $2,000,000 extension over Wood and Carleton streets. He said a new arena for the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs could be designed to meet the needs of an expanding Metro area.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Aces Clip Bears 7-3, Reds Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a cakewalk for Quebec's Charlie Hodge, but Ed Giacomin had to do some twisting in the Providence goal.

The two goalies had completely opposite nights in American Hockey League acts Tuesday. Hodge had to make only 16 saves for Quebec Aces, who walloped Hershey Bears 7-4. Giacomin had to turn away 39 for Providence Reds, who battled Baltimore Clippers to a 3-2 overtime tie.

The Aces controlled play in the first period to such an extent that Hodge was not called on to stop a shot until the middle of the period. Quebec, meanwhile, rapped in five goals in the opening period, by Bob Wall, Cleland (Kebo) Mortson, Terry Gray, Frank Martin and Wayne Hicks.

Hicks also scored for the Aces in the 2nd second period as did John Bucyk. All the Bears' scores came in the middle period, with Mike Nykoluk, Chuck Hamilton, Roger DeJordy and Gene Ubriaco collecting goals.

Willie Marshall's second goal, with 1½ minutes to play in the third period, tied the score for the Reds. The teams then fought to a standstill in overtime. Brian Hextall and Sandy McGregor scored for the Clippers.

Can Be Happy Twice?

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow of 33 with two lovely children. I lost my husband a year and a half ago. It was a terrible loss. Ours was a perfect marriage; we loved each other so. A better husband or father never existed. Now I work a five-day week; and looking after the children and house last summer, I was exhausted. I won't let the house go. We must have a home.

Miss Clark, maybe you think I'm a strange type, but I'm not the type of person to go out with men, drink and enjoy myself. I loved my home and family. I couldn't let another man touch me. To me sex is something sacred.

But I'm getting so crabby with the children. In fact I'm at the point where there's just no more feelings. What can I do?

I know of a bachelor who goes to our church. He reminds me so much of my husband, maybe that is why I'm attracted to him. He's so quiet though.

Please, Miss Clark, tell me where I pick up the pieces. Does one ever be happy again, even though they lose someone as dear as my husband was? — JUST NUMB.

DEAR NUMB — Would it help if I were to tell you that some women never know such a love all their lives? But life moves on. Either you brood over your lost treasure or move on with life. Surely what you've had gives you more to share.

Pick up the pieces and get on with living and giving.

TO NURSIE — It may be golden treasure later to get your standing as a nurse first. Some consider that every woman should have a career at her finger tips — including me. And besides, nurses make wonderful homemakers!

(Etiquette is part of gracious living. Ask Doris your question, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

FOR OCTOBER 17

Aries (Mar. 21 to April 19)—New moon emphasizes ability to deal with public. You are in the spotlight. Your actions, reactions are observed. Act accordingly! Be on best behavior. Display humor, diplomacy.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) —New moon highlights co-operation, service to community. Key is moderation. Avoid extremes. Don't agree to "impossible" proposal, but be alert for coming challenge.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Check details. New moon indicates romance, travel, ability to express yourself. No time for "holding back." Say what you think. By emphasizing sincere approach you attract new friends.

Cancer (July 22 to July 21) —New moon keynotes your willingness to face facts. Means hassle, details which are related to security. Check conditions at home. Be willing to make necessary changes.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Emphasis on travel, change, new ideas. Key is greater awareness. New moon highlights contacts, communications. Avoid trying to be everywhere at once. Be selective, specific.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —Be perceptive. Know what's happening around you. Keep up with current events. Be aware of opinions of others. One you respect may pay you compliment. Try to be observing!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—New moon points up personality, inventiveness, independence, etc., No time to hurry. Right under foot. Speak up, make contacts. Do some personal research and add to knowledge.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Cycle moves up. You receive chances to carry through on ideas. Be ready. Highlight diplomacy and charm. Assistance indicated from one of opposite sex. Be appreciative.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Stand Libra message. Strive for greater balance in expressing yourself. Highlight originality, independence. Throw off timidity. Be seen and heard. Fine time for new friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) —Awareness is important. Like Taurus, you must communicate with fellow workers, neighbors. Stand tall. The more knowledge you gain, the better for all.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —New moon highlights travel, communication, higher education. Put forth best efforts. Halfway measures add up to loss, possible embarrassment. Follow through on ideas.

Pisces (Feb. 2 to Mar. 20) —Find out where you stand. Ask questions. Speak to one in authority. Don't be satisfied with second-guessing. Frank approach is best. New moon heightens self-confidence.

If Today is Your Birthday

You are dynamic, capable of achieving great heights. But you do require romance, love.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Taurus: better to be cautious now than sorry.

Outlook Not Good for Bigger Canadian Mart for U.S. Goods

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. commerce department says that Canada's earnings from its huge wheat sales to the Soviet Union normally might provide a bigger Canadian market for American goods, but the outlook isn't good, partly because of restricted elements in the Canadian economy.

"A number of economic factors are unfavorable to expanding U.S. exports to Canada," says Victor McNabb, chief analyst for the department's office of international regional economics.

"Although economic activity in Canada has been increasing, there are some indications that the advance may have levelled off. Foreign exchange reserves are high but have declined recently. The Canadian securities market has been depressed, possibly influenced by the slackening in the inflow of capital.

"The currency depreciation, beginning in 1961, has damaged the competitive position of many U.S. commodities relative to Canadian products. As reported in U.S. exports has been observed since the remaining tariff surcharges were moved in April. These surcharges had been imposed in June, 1962 to improve the foreign exchange position.

"In addition, there may be a tendency for Canada to restrict imports as a means of reducing its trade deficit with the U.S.," added McNabb in a report on the world trade outlook published in the current issue of the department's international commerce magazine.

In a more detailed analysis of the Canadian - U.S. situation, Winifred Bell, the department's specialist on Canadian trade, estimated that barring labor difficulties, the Canadian economy should regain momentum rapidly but she also expressed concern with indications that U.S. exports to Canada are showing no substantial rise.

HAS TOURIST PLAN

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government's tourist department proposes to distribute abridged English - French dictionaries at border points and include them in its mailed advertising. Lionel Bertrand, Quebec tourism, fish and game minister, said Tuesday the idea originated in his department because of the large number of pocket English-French dictionaries sold at news stands.

St. Ola

ST. OLA—On Tuesday Rev. and Mrs. Van Der Veen and Miss Ann Mills drove to Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips visited their daughter, Mrs. Robert Watson and family in Havelock for the holiday weekend.

New Income Tax Moves Aimed To Control Economy

- - Gordon

Minister Says Something Must Be Done at Once

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon says the political as well as the economic destiny of Canada is at stake in the necessity to do something right away — something more than words—to gain a greater measure of Canadian control over the economy.

With that, he asked for Commons support for the principle of his proposed income tax amendments as well as some other things, would change the rates of withholding tax to apply incentives and "gentle pressures" on American and other foreign concerns to give Canadians a bigger voice in the operation of Canadian subsidiaries.

Applauded by the New Democrats as well as by Liberal backbenchers, Mr. Gordon proposed passage of these two changes in the tax:

1. Effective from the budget date, November 19, withholding tax on dividends paid to shareholders outside Canada would be lowered to 10 per cent from 15 for companies in which a 25-per-cent ownership is available to Canadians on Canadian stock exchanges.

2. Starting Jan. 1, 1965, companies which did not meet this

C. M. Drury To Outline Auto Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — Industry Minister C. M. Drury of Canada scheduled a meeting with senior U.S. officials today to outline in detail his plan of tariff incentives that would increase auto production in Canada and sharply trim the big amount of auto parts Canadians buy from the United States.

Drury planned talks with U.S. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and undersecretary of state George Ball.

Drury's outline likely will be an elaboration of an existing program under which Canadian producers of automotive transmissions and engines get a tariff rebate on imports equal to the amount of exports increased over the previous year.

A Canadian official has said that the plan, likely to be applied to all automobile parts, is designed to reduce automotive imports from the United States by $200,000,000 a year or more. Present imports from the U.S. run about $450,000,000 a year.

DOUBTS CAN ASK

Wednesday, Christian Herter, chief U.S. tariff negotiator, told a press conference that he doubts that the United States would demand tariff compensation from Canada if the Canadians launch their program for more incentive to boost automotive production at home.

Herter said he believes the Canadian plan, and the possibility that it would lead to a reduction of imports from the United States, is not the same as the recent action of the European Common Market in boosting tariffs on American frozen chickens.

The Common Market tariff of almost 14 cents a pound on frozen chickens virtually dried up the European Market for American fowl with the result that the U.S. threatened tariff retaliation.

In Herter's view, the Canadian program is designed to stimulate Canadian automotive exports to the U.S. as much as possible in order that Canada can reduce its adverse trade deficit.

Spirited Battle Shaping

OTTAWA (CP)—The demands of Real Caouette's Creditistes for formal party status will be topic A in the Commons today.

If there is time, topic B will be American domination of the Canadian economy and what Finance Minister Gordon proposes to do about it.

The Senate, meanwhile, was to continue debate on the government bill to place the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and four other Great Lakes unions under three federal trustees for at least three years.

Passed in jig-time last week by the Commons despite protests from United States quarters, the trusteeship bill is expected to get approval of the upper chamber today.

A spirited fight is shaping up in the Commons over Mr. Caouette's insistence that he and his 12 Creditiste followers from Quebec be recognized as the fifth party in the House.

The government has given notice it will move the adoption of a report by the Commons privileges committee that falls short of Mr. Caouette's demand. And the Creditiste have served notice that they will do all they can to block the committee's recommendation.

PROPOSES CHANGE

The 29 - member committee proposed last week that the Commons seating arrangement be changed in light of the split in Social Credit ranks caused when the Creditistes bolted that party.

The committee recommended that the 17 New Democratic MPs, the 21 remaining Social Crediters and the 13 Creditistes be ranked in that order. It proposed that Commons law clerk Dr. Maurice Ollivier prepare a report to Speaker Alan Macnaughton on the privileges to be extended to Mr. Caouette's group.

But the committee made no recommendation on the key issue—do the Creditistes form a party? They say they are. Only just 13 independents who broke away from their party between elections?

The committee report almost came up for debate Tuesday night. Wednesday it did, but each time a single MP refused to give unanimous consent. This was needed because the government had not given 48 hours' written notice of the motion.

Arnold Peters (NDP-Timiskaming) objected to a debate on the report. He felt it would cut into time reserved for an agricultural non-confidence debate.

Gerard Chapdelaine (SC—Sherbrooke) objected Wednesday, saying that Mr. Caouette had issued an ultimatum to the Commons. The debate will be possible today if the government gave the formal 48-hour notice Tuesday.

Border Truce Arranged

(CP from AP (Reuters)
MARRAKECH, Morocco —
The Moroccan minister of interior ministries said today agreement has been reached with an Algerian delegation on an end to hostilities in the frontier dispute. He cautioned that details remain to be worked out.

The minister, Abdelhadi Boutaleb, spoke following a meeting of Moroccan and Algerian officials trying to settle fighting which has claimed hundreds since Monday in the northwest Sahara. He said:

"We should achieve results today. There may be a joint statement. Everyone is in agreement on an end to hostilities, but there are still questions of detail to settle."

Peking's Opponents in UN Air Moscow-China Dispute

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — UN Assembly debate on the annual proposal to admit Communist China had its most embarrassing turn for the Soviet Union. Peking's opponents are concentrating on the dispute between the Communist giants.

With nearly two dozen speakers to be heard before the 113-nation General Assembly votes, delegates looked for more air mixing of the quarrel.

Nationalist China's Liu Chieh set the tone Wednesday, saying Peking's warlike talk in the ideological dispute provided ample proof that the UN should keep the Chinese Reds out.

The Russians, who are giving token support to Peking's bid for admission, sat glumly as Liu quoted from various Soviet publications which he said contained Kremlin admissions that the Red Chinese regime "is aggressive and predatory."

For the first time since the annual Chinese issue came before the UN, the Russians and Soviet-bloc delegates remained in their seats when the National-ist delegate spoke. Only Albania, now a Peking satellite, and Mongolia left the hall. Albania took the Soviet bloc by surprise this year when it proposed that Red China replace Chiang Kai-shek's regime in the UN.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson pinpointed Red China's opposition to Premier Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence policy—one of the main issues in the Moscow-Peking dispute—as evidence that the UN should keep the door closed. He denounced Communist China as the only nation in the world advocating war as the inevitable means of settling disputes.

Philippine Ambassador Jose D. Ingles said "the Soviet government revealed that last year the Communist Chinese leaders tried to prod it into war in Cuba to test their theory that the small nations should sacrifice themselves for the sake of the wonderful future of mankind."

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, the Soviet delegate, in his perfunctory speech supporting China's bid omitted the usual reference to the Chinese Reds as peace loving.

Jobless Lowest In 4 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—The end-of-summer movement of students from jobs to school helped reduce unemployment in Canada to 250,000 at mid - September, down 20,000 from August and 10 000 below the year - earlier level, the labor department and bureau of statistics reported today.

The mid - September jobless rate was 3.2 per cent of the labor force—the lowest in four years—compared with 3.9 per cent a year earlier and 4.7 per cent in September, 1961. In August the rate was 3.8 per cent.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Sept.	Aug.	Sept.
	1963	1963	1962
Labor Force	6,913	7,016	6,645
Employed	6,663	6,746	6,385
Unemployed	250	270	260

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada for the week ended Sept. 21. Since figures are based on a sample cross-section of the population, they are estimates and not precise totals.

The number of employed Canadians showed an above-per-

Twin Sentries Race Into Space To Stand Guard

Will Chart Radiation And Report Changes

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two sentry satellites raced through space today on a secrecy-cloaked mission aimed at perfecting a foolproof means of policing the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

Their assignment: To determine the feasibility of using satellite-borne instruments to detect nuclear explosions as far as 200,000,000 miles from earth. The treaty forbids such blasts in outer space.

Intricate devices in the twin satellites were designed to draw a chart of space radiation so they and later sentinels can immediately spot any sudden surge of energy from a far-out explosion.

Because of a complex flight pattern intended to place the two satellites into widely-separated, 57,000 mile-high orbits, officials will not know until Saturday whether the early phase of the mission is completely successful.

No official announcement is expected on the operation, known by the code name Vela Hotel.

Despite the secrecy, reporters watched from nearby beaches when the Atlas-Agena booster rocket blasted off at 10:32 p.m. EDT Wednesday night with the two satellites aboard.

It was the first time in six years that reporters had been barred from Cape Canaveral for a launching.

Reliable sources reported the satellites had separated and settled into great egg-shaped orbits ranging from 250 to 57,000 miles above the earth. As the space messengers streaked upward, they were about 20 miles apart.

The flight plan called for: Seventeen hours 50 minutes after launching—2:22 p.m. EDT today — a rocket engine aboard satellite No. 1 fires to kick it into a circular orbit where both the high and low points of the orbit are 57,000 miles. No. 2 remains in the original elliptical path for an additional 24 hours until it reaches the 57,000-mile altitude for the second time. Here an identical rocket engine is jockey it into a circular path. By this time, the two vehicles will be separated by about 100,000 miles.

May Switch Half RCAF Strike Force

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to switch half the RCAF strike force of low-level jet bombers in Europe to a non-nuclear role, informed sources say.

This move will be part of the administration's emerging defence policy and will jibe with Prime Minister Pearson's promise to take Canada eventually out of the field of nuclear weapons.

No change is contemplated until 1965 at least in the defensive nuclear role of RCAF strike defence command at home.

Other parts of the new policy are a planned 15-per-cent reduction in the manpower strength of the armed forces, now at about 120,000, defence budgeting on a five-year basis with annual expenditures in the neighborhood of $1,500,000,000 and heavier expenditures on new weapons and equipment.

The defence department's main worry at the moment is finding a satisfactory shelf-filling program to replace the $432,000,000 frigate plan which, informants say, will be cancelled on the grounds that military reasons for proceeding with it are weak. Cost studies of helicopter carriers and nuclear submarines have been initiated.

By January, the eight-squadron RCAF air division in Europe will be equipped with 200 CF104 low-level jet bombers.

In its present form, this plane can be used only to drop nuclear bombs. Its radius of action is some 500 miles and its targets would be railway yards, troop concentrations, missile sites and airfields.

However, four of the squadrons could be trained in France, which does not permit American nuclear warheads on her territory.

The RCAF has made plans whereby the CF104s in France would pick up their nuclear loads at the two Canadian or other bases in West Germany.

Informants say the government feels it would make far more sense to convert the four squadrons to a role in a conventional bombing role or all

Marine Union Trusteeship Bill Studied in Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Senator David Croll said Wednesday that "there is running out for a private trusteeship to clean up the Seafarers' International Union of Canada in place of the government's all-power ful public trusteeship.

The 63-year-old senator, onetime Ontario labor minister, told the Senate he opened debate on the trusteeship legislation already approved by the Commons "I feel sure that the government would be happy to turn over the task of trusteeship to the non-government."

Senator Croll's declaration appeared to be a final warning to organized labor that the government will clamp its three-year trusteeship on Great Lakes maritime unions unless a satisfactory alternative is achieved.

Although labor support is depealed for quick handling of the government bill, the Senate adjourned its debate on second reading of the measure until today—without a vote.

Conservative senators also expressed support for the bill but there was no undue haste to hustle the trusteeship measure through the Senate.

Senator Croll said Mr. Justice T. G. Norris shook Canada with his documented story of "racketeering, violence, intimidation, harassment and sabotage" in the marine industry.

Mr. Justice Norris laid the blame on the SIU and its Canadian president, Hal C. Banks, as American-backed international status in Canada.

"He took the lid off the cesspool of a man building for himself a private echpire on the Great Lakes, and wielding power that out-Mafia-ed the Mafia to consolidate and strengthen his strangle-hold on the vital concept of our economic water transport," said Senator Croll.

He also criticized the role of Canadian shipping companies that lined the pots to defy the criminal element and took the easy way out by making sweetheart deals and carrying on business as usual."

United States intervention in the Great Lakes crisis was also hotly decried in the Senate. U.S. Secretary Willard Wirtz blamed collapse of a private trusteeship plan on the Canadian Labor Congress, while

C. M. Drury To Outline Auto Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — Industry Minister C. M. Drury of Canada scheduled a meeting with senior U.S. officials today to outline in detail his plan of tariff incentives that would increase auto production in Canada and sharply trim the big amount of auto parts Canadians buy from the United States.

Drury planned talks with U.S. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and undersecretary of state George Ball.

Drury's outline likely will be an elaboration of an existing program under which Canadian producers of automotive transmissions and engines get a tariff rebate on imports equal to the amount of exports increased over the previous year.

A Canadian official has said that the plan, likely to be applied to all automobile parts, is designed to reduce automotive imports from the United States by $200,000,000 a year or more. Present imports from the U.S. run about $450,000,000 a year.

DOUBTS CAN ASK

Wednesday, Christian Herter, chief U.S. tariff negotiator, told a press conference that he doubts that the United States would demand tariff compensation from Canada if the Canadians launch their program for more incentive to boost automotive production at home.

Herter said he believes the Canadian plan, and the possibility that it would lead to a reduction of imports from the United States, is not the same as the recent action of the European Common Market in boosting tariffs on American frozen chickens.

The Common Market tariff of almost 14 cents a pound on frozen chickens virtually dried up the European Market for American fowl with the result that the U.S. threatened tariff retaliation.

In Herter's view, the Canadian program is designed to stimulate Canadian automotive exports to the U.S. as much as possible in order that Canada can reduce its adverse trade deficit.

New Approach Said Imperative To Labor-Management Relations

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A Canadian union leader warned that a new approach must be taken to labor-management relations if the country is not to endure more frequent and more bitter strikes in future.

A management representative says strikes are an anachronism in the 1960s because they substitute force for reason and logic.

The clash of views came Wednesday night in a unique debate between William Mahoney, general vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Alan A Page, industrial relations director of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Toronto.

before a capacity crowd of 500 at the University of Waterloo's Arts Theatre.

The two men went on record as disapproving of strikes but all agreement ended there in the 50-minute debate.

Mr. Mahoney, who is also Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, called for formation of a national organization of employers.

"Let them delegate top-flight men to sit down with their opposite numbers in labor. Let these joint sessions draw up an agenda of problems which cannot be solved in individual negotiations and work out recommendations for their solution."

As a first step, he said, both sides could meet and study the Finance Minister Gordon said Canada must move now towards recovering control of its economy from U.S. corporations—but it will take years.

Informally, Minister Drury said the government will not withdraw special job-creating incentives for the Maritimes area.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) had complained the Canada Development Corp. would be injurious to other cities nearby.

The Senate debated the maritime labor trusteeship bill.

Britain's Search for New P.M. Appears in Its Final Stages

LONDON (CP) — Britain's breathless search for a new prime minister appeared in its final stages today.

It could not come too soon for ailing Prime Minister Macmillan, who reported "very tired" after long bedside consultations to pick his successor, before recovering from a prostate operation.

It was widely expected that the name of the Conservative party would be announced from Buckingham Palace within the next two or three days, probably by Friday night.

The consensus among commentators was that the choice would be either Richard Austen Butler, one of Britain's most influenced politicians in the country, or Reginald Maudling, personification of a new Tory tendency to identify the party with middle-class aspirations.

The prime minister, who announced his retirement from office shortly after his operation last week, had broken his silence today. Butler was among them.

ization chief Lord Poole and judiciary chief Lord Dilhorne, who is understood to have made the final report on behalf of the stormy leadership question.

The forecast that 60-year-old Butler will succeed Macmillan would be the final beneficiary of a week-long struggle for the succession as reported by published reports that opinion was hardening against allowing Butler to lead the British politics to fall to someone in the House of Lords.

That would seem to militate against the chances of Viscount Hailsham, who is regarded as his peerage to become plain Quintin Hogg. Hailsham has been a Butler opponent for a long time since the race started a week ago with Macmillan's announcement of his leaving 10 Downing Street after nearly seven years in office.

Hailsham upstaged an obstacle to the 14th Earl of Home, foreign secretary, who commands considerable a lot of support in the party but seems reluctant to accept the premiership unless the

Timber May Be Remains Of Canada's First Steamboat

MONTREAL (CP) — Historians believe they have located the remains of Canada's first steamboat, Accommodation, built in 1809 by John Molson.

A hulk has been found submerged in 15 feet of water near the south shore of the St. Lawrence River opposite the eastern end of Montreal Island.

Marcel Fecteau, a diver for the Ile Jesus Historical Society, has inspected the hulk and removed several lengths of wood from its side. One of the lengths was pierced by hand-cut nails 8¼ inches long. Another nail was longer.

"If it is the Accommodation, and indications certainly point that way, one of Montreal's greatest historical mysteries will be solved," said researcher J. Raymond Darsault.

A history of the Molson family published in 1955 says the steamboat "simply vanished, leaving not the slightest clue as to her final disposition."

Built in three months, the steamboat made berthist trip from Montreal to Quebec City in November, 1809.

A reporter of the Quebec Mercury described her as having a 75-foot keel and 85-foot-long deck. Diver Fecteau says the submerged hulk is about 80 feet long.

The Ile Jesus society's interest in the hulk was aroused by Rev. Laurent Charron whose ancestors owned Charron Island near the spot where it was found.

Father Charron obtained a statement from 73-year-old Theodore Brien Desrochers which said:

"It was 117 years ago that my grandfather, Narcisse Brien Desrochers, bought Molson Island from a Mr. Provost who, two year previously, bought it directly from Mr. Molson.

"My father told me the Molson brewery company wintered its boats in the channel between the island and Molson Islands."

Father Charron said Mr. Desrochers disclosed recently he knew the location of the accommodation's bottom structure was submerged in the channel.

Spearing Fish Cost Accused Fourteen Days

A member of the Tyendinaga Mohawk Indian band today was sentenced to 14 days in jail for taking more pickerel from the Salmon River, than allowed by the Indian Act.

George Baptiste, sought by police since April, pleaded guilty to the charge.

RCMP constable George Lillie said Baptiste was caught by the Indian reserve constable April 12 spearing pickerel in the river. He caught 11 and his licence allowed only three. Total weight of the catch was approximately 45 lbs.

Crown Attorney Pringle asked that Baptiste be jailed instead of fined, calling his poaching infractions as "regular as the migrations of geese and ducks." The seven prisoners a fine, charged the prosecutor. Baptiste would "just go out and spear fish to pay the fine."

Baptiste noted he had already spent a week in jail. However, Magistrate R. E. Wills reminded him he had successfully evaded his court summons for seven months. The seven days already spent in jail would serve as a reminder that such evasions "cost you something."

Public School Teachers Get Flu Vaccine

With the flu season soon to be with us the city health department under Dr. McColl Malcaife has inaugurated an inoculation program to keep school teachers and other workers on the job.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week during the noon hour, the city health department has been giving the vaccine to all public school teachers.

Over 140 teachers have received the vaccine, while arrangements are now being made to inoculate 80 separate school teachers.

This morning 120 students and teaching staff at Albert College received the vaccine.

OTHERS TREATED

Monday morning employees at the Federal Income Tax office in the old post office received while employees at Wilson Concrete have also been treated.

The inoculation program to combat Old Man Flu among school teachers is offered by Dr. Metcalfe and his health department.

For persons who didn't receive the vaccine last year, two doses will be given, while those inoculated last year will receive one dose to continue their immunity.

Public School superintendent L. A. Kells said it was the first time a mass inoculation against flu has been undertaken among teachers.

He said it was hoped the schools would benefit through less absenteeism among the teachers.

Normally the city public school board pays out about $12,000 a year for supply teachers, much of this because of time absenteeism as result of colds or flu.

If the inoculations prove successful, Mr. Kells said, not only the schools, but the taxpayer also would benefit.

Committees Named to Run Centre

Committees for the operation of Prince Edward Centre at the fairgrounds during the coming winter were named at a meeting held Tuesday night.

It was decided that skating would start on October 27. Earlier operation was delayed to permit bolting of the W. H. A. Carousel there on Wednesday.

Newly elected chairman Don Walker asked for co-operation to ensure another successful season and declared that all committees be active.

Although the Curling Club, which had the ice two days a week, will be in its new quarters, it was indicated that the Centre will be busy at all times as there is a great demand for time and the Canadian Guards wish one night as well as afternoon time. Minor hockey also desires ice as well as other time. It was left to the finance committee, also with manager Jack Hicks, to determine, and requests for consideration are to be made at once.

Committees include:

Revision of by-laws—Mike Flanagan, Dr. C. Dockrill and D. Walker. Canteen — Emmerson Mason, Don Stanton and Gordon Graham. Ice and equipment—Mike Flanegan and Roy Scarbrough. Building and maintenance— Hamblin, and Dodds, D. O. Reynolds. Sound — Capt. W. Woods, Chas. Lockyer. Promotions—Dr. L. Dockrill, Phil Dodds and Herb Calliver.

Permission was given the Kiwanis Club to sponsor a carnival in January. The commission meets the second Tuesday of each month.

Accused Ask For Trial by Judge, Jury

Charged with possession in the disappearance of nearly 100 tons of ordinary hearing into the charge against John Norman Mumby, Carrying Place and Colin Ross, R.R. 4, Brighton was adjourned to December 9th, after Bell Telephone Company engineer estimated 26,000 pounds of copper wire was involved. Standard price for scrap wire is about 23 cents a pound.

Edw. Gilroy said he traced a telephone line running from Napanee to an area between Brighton and Colborne — a distance of 47 miles. In all, he estimated 578,000 feet missing.

"That's nearly 100 miles," commented Magistrate Ross T. Wills. The check, made August 20th showed the wire had disappeared from various spans along the line. As "a general rule" the wire was taken from uninhabited areas.

Yesterday, with OPP constable W. Wills he visited the Belleville Metal and Waste scrap yards.

"I saw some wire which was the same size and gauge as the wire that's missing," said Mr. Gilroy.

"I don't suppose there were 100 miles of wire there!" quer-ied defence counsel Rodney Case.

"Oh no. Definitely not."

Mr. Gilroy said he could not identify the wire as the stolen copper line, although it was similar.

F. BARRY ANDERSON
Picton

PICTON — A prominent resident of Picton, F. Barry Anderson died yesterday afternoon in Kingston General Hospital. He had been a patient there for several weeks.

A memorial service is being held Saturday afternoon in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene at four o'clock.

Mr. Anderson, who was formerly in the hotel business came to Picton when he, with Richard Hart purchased the Hadden Hardware. He retired some years ago. An enthusiastic booster of Prince Edward County Waters, Mr. Anderson served as secretary and as committee member of Prince Edward Yacht Club and was active in the promotion of the Marine worth and other powerboat races here.

A member of the Rotary Club, Mr. Anderson served as president, secretary and Bulletin editor. He served as past secretary of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and was a member of Picton Golf and Country Club. He served in various capacities the Anglican Church of St. Mary Magdalene of which he was a member. During the past few years he has been extensively engaged last winter in Spain. Mr. Anderson is survived by his wife.

ANDREW GUNION

TRENTON — On Monday Rev. D. A. Wilson conducted a service at the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, followed R.R. 3, Trenton. Mr. Gunion died at Trenton Memorial Hospital last Friday in his 71st year.

Bearers were: Joseph Miron, Leonard Miron, George Woods, J. D. McCallum, Joseph Hastings and Arthur Ray.

Interment was in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

Born in Scotland, Mr. Gunion was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gunion. He had been a farmer all his life, a farmer since 1908, but had been in failing health for the past eight months. Mr. Gunion was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Trenton and was a member of Trenton First World War (72nd Regiment, artillery, serving in England, France and Flanders) Royal Canadian Legion, Trenton Branch No. 178. A Legion service was held Sunday night.

Mr. Gunion is survived by his wife, Mary Scott Gunion, and a son, Bruce, at home.

Also surviving are three sisters: Mrs. Harold (Mary) Steinburg of Wooler; Mrs. George (Agnes) Ray, R.R. 1, Trenton, and Mrs. Jean Morrison of Hamilton, and two brothers, Thomas of Montreal and Jack, at Hamilton.

HARFORD DANIEL TUFTS

In One Year Pupils Taking French Doubled

The number of elementary school pupils taking Oral French lessons as an "after four" study in Belleville schools has about doubled since last year, according to L. A. Kelly, public schools superintendent, who acts as co-ordinator for the extra-curricular courses.

Sponsored by home and school associations in the various schools, the Oral French lessons are now being offered at nine of the city's 13 public schools. Last year the lessons were offered at only four public schools. Oral French is also taught on an extra-curricular basis at some of the city Separate Schools.

Children taking the lessons are charged a fee which covers instructional costs. Accommodation for the classes is provided by the school board.

Schools at which the Oral French lessons are being offered this year are at Avondale, Bayview, H. J. Clarke, Parkdale, Prince Charles, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria and Sir Winston Churchill.

In charge of the "after four" lessons are four teachers, each of whom takes classes at 8 more than one school on different evenings of the week.

199 Housing Units Started During Year

Housing construction in the city of Belleville during the first nine months of the year saw a start made on 199 housing units as against up over the same period last year — according to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

In the town of Trenton there were starts made on 33 housing units as compared with 51 in the nine-month period last year.

September saw 61 starts made in Belleville and three in Trenton.

In the nine-month period there were 196 completions of housing units in the city while at the end of September there were 129 units under construction.

In Trenton there were 40 completions and 20 units under construction at the end of September.

Three Alarms Answered by Fire Dept.

The Belleville city fire department answered three fire alarms in separate parts of the city.

The first call was at 3:29 p.m. Wednesday afternoon on Collins street opposite the Canada Bread Company, where, a car owned by Herbert O'Shaughnessy, was reported afire. Damage was caused to the front seat of the automobile.

At 9.09 p.m. last evening the department was called to 71 South Herchimer Avenue to attend an overheated stove. No damage was reported.

The third alarm was received at the department at 9:35 a.m. this morning. This was also concerning an overheated stove, at 66 Great St. James Street. No damage was caused.

Says Swimming Pool Can Spread Cold Germs

TRENTON — Reporting to the Trenton Board of Health on a recent medical convention in Toronto, Trenton's MOH, Dr. E. W. Dow, said yesterday that many of the subjects introduced at the convention had local implications.

On the subject of swimming pools, Dr. Dow said that any pool boast locally would have to be closely supervised as to the method of water purification as it had been proven that cold germs and other germs are readily spread in water not adequately purified.

Comparing the increase in population with the scarcity of Canadian dentists, Dr. Dow said that most of the doctors and dentists at the convention were in favor of fluoridation of water.

Also unanimous at the convention was that Salk polio vaccine was doing a good job and would be continued in preference to "pushing" oral vaccine, said Dr. Dow. The feeling was that the public should be urged to be vaccinated against polio and that any course of inoculations should be followed through to get maximum protection. Booster shots are most important, said Dr. Dow.

Dr. Dow said also that the 850 delegates to the convention stressed the importance of emergency measures group compiling lists of trained personnel. Such persons as married nurses who had given up their jobs after marriage, could be called upon in the event of a disaster. A list of public vehicles, such like hydro trucks, should be kept too, he said.

LOTS ALREADY MADE

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry, who acts as board secretary and who is also emergency measures co-ordinator for Trenton, told Dr. Dow and the board members that there has been more work done on emergency measures planning in Trenton than most people realize. Mr. Larry said that lists of available trained personnel had already been made. A list of all public vehicles in Hastings County has been made as has a listing of disaster supplies.

Many persons have been trained to detect radioactivity with special equipment, said Mr. Larry, and Trenton will be supplied with such equipment as geiger counters in the near future. Trenton will also acquire a wireless system hooking up with the fire departments and EMO headquarters in Hastings, Prince Edward, and Belleville, in a short time.

Trenton was the first centre in the Quinte area to "earn" the right to have an overall disaster plan, through public interest in emergency planning.

Mr. Larry yesterday that much of the planning had not been publicized, as it was felt that a little publicity at a time would have more impact than a lot of publicity released all at once.

A meeting of all municipal heads on EMO planning in Trenton will be called within a month or so, Mr. Larry said.

Jury Requests Supervision Of New Drivers

TRENTON — A coroner's jury, sitting in Brighton yesterday, recommended that all new drivers be subject to more rigid supervision and that traffic police be given authority to suspend driving licences when offences against traffic rules and regulations occur.

The jury, presided over by Dr. H. J. Presutti of Brighton, was investigating the Oct. 5 death of a 16-year-old Brighton youth, Robert Samuel Nesbitt.

The youth was a passenger in a station wagon driven by 16-year-old William John McIntosh, also of Brighton, which went out of control on the Bay Shore Road in Presqu'ile Park and struck a tree.

The conclusion reached by the jury as to the cause of death was that Robert Nesbitt died of a broken neck. Contributing factors to the accident were said by the jury to be excessive speed for the type of road (asphalt) and the inexperience of the driver, who had held a licence for two months.

Crown Attorney at yesterday's hearing was G. Bonnycastle, Q.C., and the foreman of the jury was Albert Cook of Brighton.

Gardens Board Cool Towards Girls' Hockey

TRENTON—A plan to put a girls' hockey team into action on Community Gardens' ice, met with very little, if any enthusiasm from members of the gardens' commission at a meeting in Trenton last night. The plan had been proposed by Howard Weese, long-time proponent of Junior C hockey. Mr. Weese suggested that his team be rented the ice on Wednesday nights from 7.30 to 11.30 p.m. and that the girls stage a game before the scheduled C league game.

Consensus of the board was that there was trouble enough about getting ice time for boys' teams without taking girls into consideration.

Some thought, however, will be given to renting the ice to the Junior C from 8.30 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. and time on Monday or Tuesday mornings, from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m., will be offered Mr. Weese.

Teams in the Junior C league this year come from Trenton, Picton, Napanee and the Junior B team from Belleville.

Board of Health Wants Burning of Leaves Stopped

TRENTON—The Trenton Board of Health voted yesterday to ask town council to enforce the existing by-law having to do with the burning of leaves and other refuse in town streets. Smoke from such fires, claims the board, is a menace to health and also threatens fires from the fires are a menace to property.

A few years ago, the board succeeded in having an air pollution by-law passed. Incorporated in the by-law were clauses forbidding the burning of leaves.

Later, the council of the day, faced with paying to have leaves removed, rescinded the terms of the by-law which dealt with the leaf burning to the extent that residents were merely required to check with the fire department before lighting fires.

typewritten order from the fire chief was required to allow the burning of fires. Board of Health chairman, H.S. Pane, now says that the chief hasn't issued a permit since last April.

And still the fires go on all over town, says the board.

At yesterday's meeting of the board, Board member Miss Marjorie Gothard said that the smog produced from bonfires worked a real hardship on persons suffering from asthma and other respiratory ailments. Miss Gothard said further that raffle-active material was "held in suspension" by smoke and that district emergency measures officials were useless if casualties allowed leaf burning.

Board secretary O. W. Larry told the members that council could hardly afford to have the leaves collected, but suggested that the board ask to have the existing by-law enforced. An advertisement will be placed in a newspaper asking residents to first obtain a permit from the fire chief before lighting fires.

LIST TO BE LATE

TRENTON—Trenton's voting lists will not be published until the second week of November. Municipal election date is Monday, December 2. Listing this year is delayed because the assessment rolls will not be available until October 31, due to pressure of work in the assessment department. Last year, there were upwards of 7,000 Trenton residents eligible to vote in the municipal election. Around 2,000 persons exercised their franchise.

"Chicken War" Rests on Nest Of Compromise

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The "chicken war" between the United States and the European Common Market today rested on the nest of compromise.

Agreement was reached to submit the dispute over American imports of frozen poultry into the Community to a panel of the General Agreements for Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Sources close to both parties said that although the panel's findings would not be legally binding "they will have a moral obligation to follow the panel's advisory opinion."

The same sources stressed the compromise did not amount to "arbitration by GATT," a formula which the six member nations had opposed and which the United States demanded.

When the GATT panel announces its findings the U.S. and Market representatives will again get together and decide what can be done in the way of tariff compensations for the U.S. or further cuts in Common Market import duties on poultry—or both.

Travel Notes

Travel is broadening.

One learns so many things one would have known in the first place if one had paid any attention to what the neighbors were saying.

Nothing so increases the quality of service and the price charged as for an area to become popular with tourists.

It follows that the tourist is the natural enemy of the native, who is generally willing to forego at home all those costly little flourishes which he demands as soon as he takes to the road.

To get the best value, patronize those establishments which cater to the home trade and have to depend upon repeat business for their income.

There is only one letter difference between a motel and a hotel. It denotes the same difference as that between the girl who loves you for your money and the girl who loves you because she is your honey.

Ontario is great for appearances. She makes a fine impression at her front door, where she has Headliners, with the provincial governments often seeming to fade so far into the political background as to take on all the national importance of county councils.

Now, practically all that is changed, and it has become politically stylish - - or expedient - - to be critical of provincial governments, and even of remaining silent when some of the provincial strutting speak of "autonomy."

Mackenzie King, the wily old Prime Minister, who dreamed up the device of the "Federal-Provincial Conference" to keep peace in the national political family.

In the war years, of necessity, he had consolidated all the power - - and most of the taxes - - in Ottawa, and when the provinces became restive under this vastly lopsided division of the spoils, he called them into conference.

And gave them nothing. Nothing but fine phrases.

It became one of the tourist sights-to-see, almost, on Parliament Hill in those years, to watch Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis, Ontario Premier George Drew and Nova Scotia Premier Angus L. Macdonald stalk out of these conferences in a huff.

It was former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent who really made the first surrender to the provinces. He agreed that Quebec's Premier Duplessis didn't have to accept Federal university grants. But he didn't actually give them.

BESIEGED

That was left to former Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

An avowed de-centralizer, he shared the Federal spoils with the provinces, increasing their grassi and, more importantly, the percentage of the income and corporation tax take.

He gave them an appetite that won't be satisfied, and found himself suddenly surrounded not by humble and grateful subjects but by greedy and demanding self-proclaimed equals.

Now these provincial strongmen have got to the point not of "asking" but "demanding" and "telling" Ottawa the political score on an increasing number of things from power projects to pensions.

Full circle is being turned with Ottawa accommodating the provinces at a heavy cost in Federal power and prestige.

In all but three of the 10 provinces, the minority Prime Minister is confronted with a hostile-leading majority, and solidly in power for as long as he cares to hold it.

Look at them . . . British Columbia's Bennett, stronger than ever with the increased power of a majority; one of Alberta's Manning, premier so long as to have become an addiction . . . Manitoba's Roblin, safe and snug until he wants to try for the Federal conservative leadership, if he ever does . . . Ontario's Robarts, a new provincial powerhouse, and front-running rival of Roblin in any Federal aspirations . . . Quebec's Lesage, telling Ottawa off and getting away with it . . . Nova Scotia's Stanfield, another bald harder to break than smoking . . . and Newfie's Smallwood, "King Joey," running the island like the personal empire it is.

Ottawa Offbeat

Federal Govt. Surrounded By Provincial Strong-Men

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One of the reasons the Federal Government in the last 18 months has looked so weak and wobbly, could be that not only has it been in an uncertain minority position — but surrounded by a most remarkable collection of provincial political strong-men.

Both former Prime Minister Diefenbaker in his short-lived minority government days, and now Prime Minister Pearson, beset by difficulties, have appeared indecisive and uncertain, bending under pressure, especially of the provinces.

And the comparison with the Diefenbaker administration, backed by sound majorities and led by able and strong-willed premiers, has apparently made the two Federal Prime Ministers appear almost like appeasers in the Federal-provincial struggle that goes on continuously between Ottawa and Toronto, Quebec City, Victoria and the capitals of the other seven provinces.

Was the time, especially in the Depression of the Thirties, when the provinces were happy for the Federal Government to take charge, and turned about the bellicose Bennett era as a sort of National Big Daddy.

THE BIG SWITCH

And during the war years, with Mackenzie King and C. D. Howe in charge, this indeed was Headliners, with the provincial governments often seeming to fade so far into the political background as to take on all the national importance of county councils.

War Produces A Reversal Of Old Values

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: There is a profound difference between the genuine conservatives who want to preserve what was best in the past, and the reactionary who wants to restore what was most profitable in the past; and it is hard for one to distinguish between these two tendencies within himself, because to most of us what is profitable is, ipso facto, the best.

The real evil of war is not the destruction and death it leaves so much as the reversal of values it promotes: it sanctifies force and fraud, and turns brutality and treachery into virtues into virtues; and when it is over, the ordinary man wonders why. If morality can be suspended between nations, it should be resumed or respected between persons.

Those who scrutinize too closely imagine they are getting at the "truth" when they are only distorting nature; after all, when glimpsed through a magnifying glass, the skin of the most beautiful woman in the world seems full of large and ugly pores.

It is good to know when one's limit has been reached, and to keep in mind that fine old Savoyard proverb: "I have so much to do that I am going to bed."

A neurosis is just a prosthetic device of the mind to help us get through life after a psychic limb has been crippled or amputated in early childhood; and it can never be got rid of, but only made to function more or nearly like its natural prototype.

The younger the child, the better the dog understands him: it is only after we acquire words, education, shame, fear, and a rigid system of beliefs and attitudes that we lose the power to communicate with those less intelligent than us.

Man would need at least three lives in order to profit from his faults: the first in which to commit his errors, the second in which to commit exactly the opposite ones, and the third in which to maintain his spiritual balance.

Those who complain that an author is "obscure" or "overrated" are sometimes assuming a superiority they may not have; it is a good exercise of humility to remember Lichtenberg's tart aphorism: "A book is a mirror — if an ape peers into it, you can't expect an apostle to look out."

To scorn small talk in social gatherings is as foolish and superstitious as bringing nothing but a hundred dollar bill to a penny arcade.

Despite Risk Smoke Rises

Hamilton Spectator

Canadians are smoking more furiously than ever.

During the first seven months of this year, 23,540,000,000 cigarettes were distributed on the Canadian market — up 5.6 per cent from the record figure for the same period last year.

Blowing along behind were the cigarette-makers, expelling 6.2 per cent extra output from 204,200,000 glowing ends.

Pipe-smoking, however, did not empty their pouches as often as in 1962. The volume of cut tobacco was down 3.7 per cent.

Medical research authorities contend that the statical connection between lung cancer and pipe smoking is far below that involving cigarette smoking.

Decrease the risk, it seems, and the allure of the forbidden becomes less appealing.

Chiropodists are treating an increasing number of women who complain of swollen ankles and throbbing feet, following long waits in queues. Many used to long hours on their feet while doing their house work are mystified why standing still in a queue should cause their feet 'to go back on them'. One prominent foot specialist said: "Standing stationary for long periods is far more of a strain on the feet than moving about. Walking is a splendid exercise. For the Price Let Them Work

Ottawa Journal

Absenteeism among people paid $18,000 a year who have yet just returned from a two-month holiday demands attention.

On Tuesday the House of Commons, with seats for 265 MPs at $18,000 a year each (including $6,000 tax-free allowance), had the first division of the resumed session.

It had been rung loud and long and eventually brought to the chamber to vote 201 of the 265 members.

Nearly one-quarter of the members thus were absent from the House at a crucial time. What was under discussion involved a great deal of taxpayers' money — the $18,000,000 expected to pay the additional $10 a month old age pension. In another day yesterday on the nuclear arms treaty, nearly one-third of the 63 Conservative members were absent.

MP's are living in a dream world if they think anything but sickness or the most urgent public or private emergencies will excuse their absence from the House.

In the old days the MP who was making only $4,000 or $10,000 a year was easily forgiven if he snitched a few days from the session to earn a little or relax at home. But at $18,000 a year they are expected to put Parliament first.

A man earning $18,000 a year in the Civil Service is a model of punctuality and devotion to duty. Why not the MP?

Dictatorial notices are not given MPs with a month's notice. But if they are inefficient, negligent or lazy it should be remembered on election day. At $18,000 they get a salary not an honorarium.

Declining Blood Pressure Causes Veins to Collapse

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

And today, the last of three columns on questions from Mrs. E. W. H., concerning various aspects of anesthesia that bothered her.

Q. Might a person with a normally overabundant flow of saliva present some difficulties and should the surgeon be informed of this?

A. Yes, the surgeon (and anesthesiologist) should be informed. However, one of the drugs which is commonly used in the preoperative "hypo" tends to dry up secretions from the mouth, so only rarely does this become a serious impediment.

Q. Following surgery, what causes extreme and prolonged rhythmic spasms, or the "dry heaves", as it is called?

A. Relaxation of the colon may permit gaseous distension, and the "dry heaves" are Nature's way of trying to get rid of the gas. The condition is more likely to occur after surgery on the intestinal tract. Giving oxygen at termination of anesthesia tends to lessen the heaves.

Q. What causes the back of the neck to be sore and stiff; the head to be at a sore creak; jaws to be swollen so you can't open them more than a fraction of an inch?

A. Sore throat is very common due to irritation of anesthetic or the intratracheal tube. When the jaws are cramped or have spasm, it is usually the result of keeping the mouth open during the anesthetic period. This is but an occasional annoyance. It passes in a day or two. But I agree that it is unpleasant. Maybe some day somebody can find a way of avoiding this in all cases.

Q. Why is glucose given following surgery?

A. Some patients, either because of the nature of the surgery or because of nausea cannot take anything by mouth at first. Glucose is a means of painless feeding. It flows drop by drop into a vein. Vitamins may also be given this way. In special cases, medications, too.

Q. What causes veins to collapse: what is the result?

A. A drop in blood pressure. It's a problem when we must "find a vein" for intravenous of infusions.

Q. Is temperature usually elevated a degree or two for a day or so after surgery?

A. Usually. Generally this is the result of absorption of blood and tissue juices. It can and does occur when no infection is present. Such a rise in temperature is common for the first 24 or 48 hours, and no cause for alarm.

This concludes Mrs. E. W. H.'s questions on anesthesia, and while my answers have only scratched the surface, I hope they have provided a better understanding of the subject. Anesthesia is much more effective today, much more precise, and a great deal more complicated to administer, than it was only 10 years ago.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are dark or black stools an indication of cancer or intestinal trouble? — S. J.

Often but not always. Some foods, high in iron, for example, may make the stool dark, temporarily. If no such foods have been eaten, take the sign as a serious one. It may not mean cancer, but may mean bleeding from some cause higher up in the intestine.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 17, 1963

A radiant Queen Elizabeth arrived from Paris to Philip at Washington after visiting Canada, six years ago before the start of the Queen told President Eisenhower that she came as the Queen of Canada, and offered "warm greetings of a friendly neighbor and staunch ally." At least 1,000,000 crowd lined drizzly streets to see the royal couple.

1849—Composer Frederic Chopin died.

1777—British General Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga.

Atmosphere Hopeful

Winnipeg Free Press

However difficult the problems now before the United Nations, at least the prevailing atmosphere at the present General Assembly seems to be conducive to the start of the search for the solutions to those problems. If that search is undertaken, if enough representatives in the General Assembly are willing the need and match Mr. Pearson's high ideals and hopes — this could, indeed, in his words, be a memorable achievement and of action for peace.

Of Birds and Baling Wire

Vancouver Sun

A few months back a Russian astronaut looked over a small American space capsule and said something to the effect that he wouldn't send a dog up in a crate like that. "American science and engineering must now one learns the astronaut was as perceptive as he was frank.

The wonder is how Project Mercury got out of the ground at all. Fifty percent of spare parts delivered for the project were faulty. Fifty percent of capsules were delivered with more than 500 faults. Electronic parts were improperly soldered, valves improperly installed. Even the oxygen and water for the astronauts during the six manned space flights sometimes was contaminated.

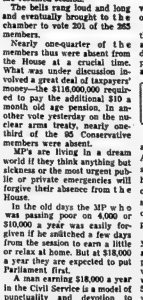
The U. S. space agency's complaint of shoddy workmanship is especially revealing in light of Project Mercury's cost. For $2½ billion a customer has a right to expect quality.

But quality is getting harder and harder to come by at any price.

It was only a few days ago, the American car industry was told that one out of three cars which roll off the assembly line isn't even given a prior vehicle testing inspections.

A traffic safety official we recently received from the factory installed safety belts in his own car and replaced them with his own. The factory belts were improperly anchored.

But then, any student of the slip-shod would see it around his home, that modern castle which looks 50 years old when it's five. The carpenter spills wood with every hammered nail. The plumber installs dripping taps. It's not only the high cost of tradesmen which has driven the householder to the do-it-yourself extremity, the newest amateur concludes this is the one way to get things done right.



What's the cause of this sloppy workmanship? Over security? Union protection? Lack of competition? Vanished pride?

Probably each is a contributing factor. And there is another is the consumer's unprotesting acceptance of second-best. We may indeed be to the manor. But we'd better take along baling wire — just in case.

Two-Way Dialogue

Montreal Star

The fact is that the Canadian parliamentary system and all its rules, procedures and usages are predicated, at bottom, on a two-party structure in which the dialogue is between Government and Opposition. Third parties may exist and they may be useful as gadflies, but they do not alter the basic two-way dialogue. Parliament is not a board of directors.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Strong bank and steel issues pushed industrials ahead with the index gaining 1.31 to a record 658.36 in light morning trading on the stock market today.

Imperial Bank of Commerce rose ½, Montreal ⅛ and Royal, Nova Scotia and Toronto-Dominion ¼ each. In steels, Algoma, Dominion Foundries and Steel and Steel Company of Canada were up ¼ each.

Other major gainers included Canada Packers' A, ahead 2½ to 66¾ on 50 shares, and Ontario Steel, ahead one point to 22¾.

Papers continued to decline, Abitibi down ⅜ and MacMillan-Bloedel ¼.

Falconbridge and Labrador Mining both advanced ¼ in senior base metals.

Merrill led active speculative mines, off seven cents to 78 cents on more than 63,000 shares.

On index, western oils .37 to 121.37, base metals .29 to 210.37 and golds slipped .21 to 87.72. Volume at 11 a.m. was 712,000 shares compared with 748,000 at the same time Wednesday.

The market moved ahead in the final hour of trading Wednesday after meandering on the down side most of the day.

The industrial index closed up 1.59 to a record 657.67. Base metals advanced while golds and western oils declined fractionally.

Steels and banks provided the impetus to push industrials prices over the top. Dominion Foundries and Steel climbed 1¼ to 67 and Algoma ¼; Montreal and Toronto-Dominion advanced ⅛ each and Nova Scotia ¼ among banks.

Automotive stocks were stronger, Chrysler up 2 points to 101, Ford of Canada 1¼ to 185½ and General Motors Corporation ⅝.

Rothmans was the heaviest loser on percentage, down ¼ to 8¾. Canada Steamship Lines fell 1⅛ to 37.

Papers and pipelines were mixed to lower and refineries were down.

Falconbridge advanced ⅜ and International Nickel ⅜ among senior base metals.

CONS MOGUL UP

Consolidated Mogul led active speculative mines, rising 13 cents to $1.46 on more than 170,000 shares. Newconth was close behind, ahead one cent to 26 cents on nearly 165,000 shares. Merrill slipped five cents to 85 cents.

In senior western oils Dome Petroleum dipped ¼. Sarcee was down five cents to $1.30. Tuesday an offer was made by Guaranty Trust Company of Canada on behalf of a Calgary group to purchase 1,400,000 shares of Sarcee at $1.50 a share. Sarcee directors have advised shareholders not to accept the offer.

On a dull foreign market, Dominion Tar gained ⅛ and MacMillan Bloedel ¼. United Keno fell 50 cents to $5.00.

On index, industrials advanced 1.59 to a record 657.67, base metals .54 to 210.08, golds declined .15 to 87.93 and western oils .06 to 120.80. Volume for the day was 2,475,000 shares compared with 2,411,000 Tuesday.

County Home Marks 12th Anniversary by Tea, Bazaar

By MRS. A. HENDERSON

Poets have asked, "What is lovelier than a day in June?" To this the answer might well be: "A day in October," such as yesterday, with its cloudless, blue skies; its warm sunshine, and its vibrating colors of crimson, gold and emerald green outlining the spacious grounds of the Hastings County Home for the Aged. For this special day at the Home a seemingly ceaseless stream of guests poured through the wide open doors, taking advantage of the beautiful weather to enjoy the three-pronged event; the 12th anniversary of the Home's erection; the autumn bazaar with its myriads of lovely handicraft made by the staff members and residents of the Home, under the direction of Mrs. A. Bongard, instructor in theraphy in the Home, and the accompanying birthday tea.

Those who received were: Mrs. C. Holmes, president of the Auxiliary of the Home, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Yorks, superintendent and matron of the Home, with Mrs. H. Abbott and J. Wiggins were in charge of the ticket sale at the door.

The therapy room, which housed the various handicrafts, resembled a treasure house from the "Arabian Nights" with the multitude of lovely articles, which lined the wall on one side; spilled over the mantel and bookcase, and filled the long tables to overflowing, which formed a square "U", leaving a space for the eager purchasers in the centre, into which one entered with ease in the early hours of the afternoon, but once in, the egress was most difficult.

CAPTIVATING HANDKERCHIEFS

Among the articles displayed were Christmas wreaths in white, blue and green, their red satin bows heralding the news that the Yuletide season was but 67 days away, that is, shopping days. Here, too, were various types of Christmas candles, some in the form of white Grecian lamps holding scarlet red candles; some with gilded lattice baskets made from old Christmas cards, a hexagonal form, prettily fashioned by red yarns; paper lanterns; lovely shopping bags in yellow, blue and orange interwoven with foam rubber flowers. There were also round braided rugs in blue and yellow crib quilt with embroidered lambs and playful kittens on white squares.

Pretty woven jardiniers held a strategic point above the bookcase while other jardiniers, fashioned from artistic macaroni, all silvered were most captivating and unusual. There were knitting needle cases made from the core of wax paper rolls and covered, as were knitting bags from Javex containers; pipple banks from detergent bottles had pink ears, pink noses, and pink tails. Leather change purses were also shown; and little green, red, rose and gold tartin eggs caught the eyes, as did the accompanying jingle: "Hi, I'm a little turtle and don't know what to do; so I filled myself with Sweetheart soap and crawled right up to you. Just run me on your tummy and your hands and feet; then around your ears and neck and don't forget your seat. When you are through, my work is done; you've had your bath, I've had my fun."

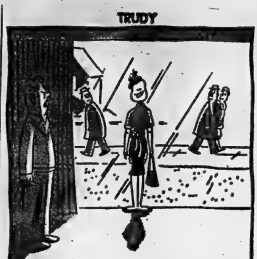
The fancy work table displayed a fine assortment of embroidered pillow slips, doll bed comforters in satin stripes of green, gold and maize and mauve and yellow; dainty doilies, woven in hexagonal design; tea towels and bridge cloths.

The novelties had children's interest, too, as in half-opened tulip design; some in dark plaids with yellow bias binding, and still others in blue and white, cuddly toys and tiny satin cushions; little hats for jollity on Christmas made from Christmas cards; stocking dolls, and funny monkeys, and many others too numerous to mention.

BEAUTIFUL TEA ROOM

The dining room was beautiful in its appointment. Graceful garlands of yellow and pale green leaves and ivory cascaded from the indirect lighting and here and there a lovely Monarch butterfly could be seen gently swaying back and forth. While on the side walls simulated autumn trees and cutouts of pumpkins added their golden hue to the lovely soft green walls. Baskets of gold and white "mums also imitated the autumn theme, while an oak tree in russet shade held sway over the piano, sheltering a flock of brown turkey who had escaped the Thanksgiving hatchet. Beneath the tree were clusters of grapes and rosy red grapes, apples, ears of golden corn squashes, and bright skinned potatoes.

During the tea hours Mrs. Lee Grills presided at the piano, providing soft music.



In the centre of the room was the lovely, long tea table, immaculate in its white damask cloth; and centred by the three-tier birthday cake in white, adorned by pink roses at the corners, and topped by a silver vase with pink roses, and on the two top layers ran the legend: "Happy 12th Birthday." Two tall maroon candles in crystal holders completed the artistic setting.

Mrs. R. Wallbridge and Mrs. F. M. Nobes were the conveners of the tea; with Mrs. Hudson of Belleville convening the tea room; whose hostesses were: Mrs. R. Wallbridge; Mrs. F. M. Nobes, Mrs. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. H. Moorman.

PRESIDING

Those who presided at the silver services included: Mrs. E. Sandercock and Mrs. Robert Temple; Mrs. A. M. Haig and Mrs. S. Griffith; Mrs. Charles Long and Mrs. Carl Bateman. Those who replenished the tea table were: Mrs. Edgar Ray; Mrs. Ida Kempster; Mrs. W. Watson; Mrs. F. Aikens; Mrs. G. Day and Miss M. Kane.

TRUDY

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1963, World rights reserved.

"Trudy, if you want to go out tonight, why don't you come right out and say so!"

Those who served included: Meadames C. Bamber, P. Kilpatrick; O. Chisholm; V. Demorest; B. Harder; J. Best; H. Hancock; W. Johns; W. Parks; A. Gowdridge; E. Urch; L. Gnaedinger; L. Tripp; C. Murphy; H. Carr-Braine; K. McMechan; C. MacDonald; E. Bird; H. Wright; M. Boyd; N. Marie; G. Smith; F. Bennett; A. Daniels; D. MacLean; S. Doe; G. Sills; G. Wilman; L. Hall and Miss B. Thomas.

Those who received the tickets at the tea room door were Miss Pearl Brown; Mr. Juka Bedore; Mr. Loral Clement, and Mr. Michael Palmer. Mr. James Parkey, who had the oversight of the incoming cars, was indeed a busy, and at times, a frustrated man, but he kept things moving.

The cashier at the therapy room was Mr. John Marrigan.

HOME BAKING

There was also a homebaking table convened by Mrs. F. Davidson and her assistants. Here were toothsome angel cakes; homemade bread and buns; apple and pumpkin pies; white layer loaf cakes topped with red cherries; oranges and date breads; relish; pickles; cookies; date squares; and jars of jams and relishes.

At the door, prior to departure, the guests were invited to join in the draws which included a beautiful brown leather handbag and matching purse; a soft yellow scatter rug and a doorstop of a cute knit, grey puppy, standing up. All articles were made by the Home residents. The conveners here were Mrs. C. Green and Mrs. W. D. Saunders.

A most delightful birthday anniversary party, bazaar and tea, with commendation going to the handicraft convener, Mrs. A. Bongard, and her assistants; to the tea conveners and to all those who assisted in making this 12th anniversary a most memorable one.

Every Type of Exotic Fabric, Fur Is Shown

By PEGGY MASSUN

PARIS (Reuters) — Fabrics ran riot in the Paris winter fashion scene.

Their scope and novelty have not been equalled since the occupation years of the Second World War when French designers made frames of upholstery fabrics and trimmed hats with wood shavings.

Today, the same mood returns, but this time purely for fun. Every type of exotic fabric and fur, every species of feather and leather now is available for the creative designer to utilize as he sees fit.

The net result is that off-beat materials and fabulous fabrics overshadow silhouette.

When Paris designers start using costly furs as casually as fabric, however, the "coat of the year" is apt to soar. The all-fur suit or dress is as common in every leading couture collection as fabulous feathered embroideries.

MOSAIC DESIGN

Leavin tops the novelties with mosaic-patterned coats made entirely of turkey feathers and lined with mink. Guy Laroche shows entire dresses made of ponyskin or calfskin. Zabalets, the new Spanish couturier, makes a fetish of antelope suits.

Other designer how "the sports look" in mink and ermine middy blouses, jerkins and sweaters.

Dior has evening gowns with bodices composed of overlaid swan feathers. Both Dior and Zabalets showed tailored gowns trimmed with swans' down. Chapucci makes formal jackets of braided ostrich feathers. Nicol shows monolithe hostess gowns with voluminous pyjama legs fluttering with overlays of uncurled ostrich plumes.

Even the great Chanel occasionally appears with classic braid trimmings to lavish ostrich feathers on coat collars, and Balmain has braided toques.

Capucci and Gres demonstrate a veritable hero-worship for leather. The young Italian designer shows a three-quarter-length coat made of cobra skin. Gres uses brightly colored lizard skin for waistcoats and matching domed, cloth hats. Gres favors suede printed with the markings of leopard skin.

Elder Women Doing Bends, Arm Stretches

VANCOUVER (CP) — With hardly a grunt, 13 women aged 55 or over are doing knee bends, arms stretch and toe-touching at a weekly class.

The oldest member of the group is a spry 78.

The women are members of a YWCA physical fitness class now in its second year. Six women attended last year.

Sally Sarkinen, their instructor, says the exercises are designed to help relaxation, to increase mobility and flexibility of joints and to improve circulation.

"These classes are extremely beneficial to women in this age group," he says, "not only because they improve their health, but because they provide them with an outside interest and an opportunity to make friends."

The women agree, saying they feel on top of the world because of the classes.

Half the hour-long classes are spent in a gymnasium. The other half is spent doing exercises in a pool.

Mr. Sarkinen says the buoyancy of the body makes doing exercises in water easier.

"It makes them feel they are not working so hard."

Rite-Way DUNDAS STREET WEST, BELLEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fox are shown outside Front Road United Church after their wedding. The bride is the former Sheila Ann Waite, R. R. 4, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Waite. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fox of Belleville.

FOX — WAITE

Salmon colored gladioli with cream colored roses in white standards were used to decorate Front Road United Church for the September wedding of Sheila Ann Waite, R.R. 4, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Waite, to Richard Anthony Fox, 25 Lambert Drive, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fox, with Rev. Roy Veasey performing the ceremony.

Home decorations at both the bride and bridegroom's homes had table arrangements of Fiesta roses presented to them by the Concord Florist company.

Lohengrin's wedding march was used for the processional and Mendelssohns march for the recessional as the bridal party entered the church with the bride escorted by her father.

A short two-piece wedding gown of nylon and rayon lace over taffeta was chosen by the bride. The satin bodice had a scoop neckline and the double tiered lace skirt was gathered all around. The lace jacket had long sleeves ending in V points. The front of the jacket was caught up with two self bows.

The bride wore a shoulder length veil of nylon tulle, and her headdress was a bandeau of rayon fabric covered with sequins. Her flowers consisted of a semi-cascade bouquet of two tulle mauve orchids with deep mauve throats surrounded by stephanotis.

Miss Joan Waite was her sister's maid of honor wearing a canary yellow gown of soft flowing satin poit. The bodice was made with a princess line centre panel, and the skirt was bouffant style. She carried a bouquet of yellow feathered commercial mums with a bronze commercial mum in the centre, which was given shape by green pipe stems to form leaves. Her head-piece was of bronze and yellow feathered commercial mums set off by green pipe stems. Her satin pumps matched her dress, and she wore white gloves.

Miss Mary Clapp and Miss Arlene Robinson, both of Belleville, were bridesmaids wearing mint green gowns fashioned in a style similar to the maid of honor, but with head dresses and bouquets in yellow with a bronze mum.

Miss Laura Lee Fox, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl, wearing a canary yellow nylon gown over taffeta. She carried a basket of bronze and yellow mums, and wore a bandeau of pom 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. Howard Fox of Napanee, and the ushers were Ernie Waite, brother of the bride, and Jim Fox, brother of the bridegroom.

A wedding dinner was held at the church hall where the bride's mother received, wearing a dress of lilac brocade over taffeta, with beige accessories and corsage of yellow feathered carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a shantung sheath of willow green with copper tan accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses.

For a wedding trip in New York State the bride wore a three-piece brown double knit suit with white trim on the jacket, beige accessories, and corsage of pink feathered carnations.

Guests attended the wedding from Toronto, Napanee, Fox-boro, Kortyville and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox are residing at 162 Dundas Street East, Belleville.

A community shower was held prior to the wedding at the home of Mrs. Clifford Reid in honor of the bride, where many lovely gifts were received. The staff of Templer Flower Shop presented the bride with a lamp. The bridegroom received a blanket from Woodland Cleaners where he is employed.

The Nurses' Alumnae held their October meeting recently with the president Mrs. Margaret Berry in charge. The main item for discussion on the agenda was in connection with the Alumnae dance which is to be held on October 25, at the Country Club. The general convener for this event will be Margaret Berry with ticket convener, Sheila Sparks.

The speaker at this meeting was Miss Joanne Crocker who spoke on the questionnaire "What is a Nurse?" which is a project of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, and proved to be most stimulating.

Role of Women In Russia Is Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — Russian women sweep the streets in Moscow but they also sweep through space.

This picture of contrasting occupations was given by Mayor Charlotte Whitton Wednesday in an address to the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club on her visit to the U.S.S.R. last April.

Russian women play a much greater role in public life and as career women than do Canadian women, she said. Fifty-three per cent of all professional people in the Soviet Union were women. Seventy-four per cent of all doctors and surgeons in the country were women.

Thousands of Russian women held municipal office.

"They told me in Moscow that the deputy mayor, a woman, could have been the mayor three times over, I guess she had more sense than to take the office."

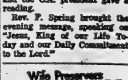
C.A. SERVICE



FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s held their regular meeting on October 11th. C. A. Pres. Keith Helm opened the service. A Bible quiz followed. Miss Joy Perry gave a reading.

The offering was received by ushers C. Wright and M. Stacey.

Miss Lois Kerr sang a solo and the C.A. president gave a reading.

Rev. F. Spring brought the evening message, speaking on "Jesus, King of our Life Today and our Daily Consultant to the Lord."

by Mary Moore

I must Helen carefully — and I do — when my cooking friends call me and tell me they have a dandy recipe they think my readers would enjoy.

The first one today is from my friend Laura who gave us such a splendid recipe for Gumdrop Cake which readers found really supported the gum drops.

LAURA'S OATMEAL CAKE:

Measure 1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal and pour over it 1 1-2 cups boiling water, stir and let cool. Cream together ½ cup butter (or margarine) and 1 cup each white sugar and light brown sugar (lightly packed), until light, then beat in 2 eggs until fluffy. Sift together 1 1-2 cups all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt. Add these dry ingredients alternately with the soaked oatmeal, folding until blended. Turn into buttered wax-paper-lined 9 x 11" pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 minutes.

While cake is baking mix together Topping: Six tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 cup desiccated cocoanut, ½ cup coarsely chopped nuts, ¼ to 1-3 cup evaporated milk or cream, ½ teaspoon vanilla. While cake is hot, carefully spread topping over smoothly. Broil 4" from burner until just melted and bubbly. Watch all the time. Cut into squares in pan as needed.

BARBARA'S ICE CREAM:

NOTE:

My niece Barbara knows she must, and knows how to, supplement the diet of her 4 young children with extra protein at low cost. She uses skim milk powder to optimum advantage. She adds skim milk powder to her cookie dough, ice cream, bread dough, cake batters, cereals, etc., for her husband is doing post-graduate studies and they are on a budget.

This ice cream recipe is her own concoction and I watched little 7-year-old Lynn and 8-year-old Sherry lap it up like ambrosia.

1 one-lb. can evaporated milk (not condensed), ¾ cup skim milk powder, ¾ cup (scant) sugar, 1 teaspoon maple (or vanilla) flavoring, 1 egg yolk (or 1 small whole egg).

Mix together well the evaporated milk, skim milk powder, sugar and flavoring. Freeze in refrigerator tray until crystals form about ½" wide around edges. Scrape out into cold bowl and beat until it stands up in soft peaks — about 4 or 5 minutes. Add egg yolk (or whole egg) and beat again for at least one minute. Freeze until hard.

BIG SEA

The Mediterranean Sea is the world's largest inland sea with an area of about 1,145,000 square miles.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Individual Beef and Kidney Pies; Green Peas; Lettuce and Tomato Salad; Chocolate Fudge Layer Cake; Tea.

SUNDAY: (Guests)

Melon Fruit Cup; Roast Lamb; Mint Relish; Pan-Roasted Parboiled Potato Halves; Broccoli with Cheese Sauce; Spinach and Green Pepper and Lettuce Salad; 1000-Island Dressing, Poached Pear Canape Melba (Ice Cream on Sponge Cake Squares, topped with Pear and Raspberry Syrup); Coffee.

Colored Sheets Make Clever Decorating Ideas

Some of the brightest, perhaps best decorating can be at the same time the least expensive. The trick is to use colorful, patterned sheets and pillowcases! Figuring about seven yards to a double sheet, divide the price of the sheet by the yardage and you'll find it one of the most inexpensive materials around. Measure first and buy the right size to cut down waste. Open hems and wash the sheets before cutting, since there's usually some shrinkage in length. Here are some of the bright ideas suggested for you and your sewing machine:

Mix or match candy-colored sheets for bedroom window curtains and your dressing table skirt. In the bath-on, pillowcases, just as they come, need only curtain rings to become curtains, and a double-sized sheet with plastic liner becomes a shower curtain. And in other rooms, striped sheets can be adapted for use as matching tablecloths, cushion covers shade trims and canopies, says American Home magazine.

Middle-Aged Pen Pal Needs More Than Teen-Age Fans

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two years ago my husband, as a gag, wrote to a teenage girl who was looking for a pen pal. Gerald got her name out of a magazine. I thought it was pretty funny at the time. He let me see the letter before he sent it, and I must say he certainly did invent a believable character.

I stopped laughing about six months later when I discovered Gerald was writing to 12 girls in 9 different states. His hobby has become such an important part of his life he can't wait until he gets home to learn if he has a letter from Yuma or Bakersfield. He telephones during his lunch hour to find out what has arrived.

Gerald is 56 years old and has been a wonderful husband. If we had had children our lives would have been complete.

He says his hobby is a harmless one because he never intends to see any of these girls. I hate to demand that he stop writing letters because he seems to get such a kick out of it. Your advice is needed. — GERALD'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE — A 56-year-old man who gets his kicks by pretending he is a teenager needs more help than I can provide. Tell him to see a head doctor.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What shall I do about a so-called girl friend.? (I will call her Maurine.) We are both 16 and live in a town where the boys are so busy tinkering with their cars they haven't discovered girls yet. There are only about two girls in our whole school who get asked for dates and we are not those two.

Maurine and I had plans for a Friday movie. We were going to have supper at my house then go to the 7:00 o'clock movie.

At 4:30 p.m. Maurine telephoned, practically out of her mind with excitement. Rickey, who is a great big round wheel at school, had just called her and asked if she'd like to go bowling with him. Maurine said, "I just knew you'd be thrilled for me so I said yes." I was plenty burned up at being ditched and I want your opinion of her. — STOOD UP.

DEAR UP — Maurine overestimated you. If you were truly her friend you'd have been happy for her instead of "burned up."

Maurine should have told Rickey, however, that she had a previous date with you and turned him down. He would have been twice as eager to take her out next weekend — and she would have lost nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's sister telephoned us last Sunday from somewhere in Montana. The whole family was heading this way, en route to Springfield, and planned to arrive Tuesday or Wednesday, depending on roads, weather and so on. We said we'd be happy to put them up — all six of them.

Tuesday evening my husband and I decided to go to a band concert. When we got home at about 11:30 we were shocked to find the weary travellers asleep on the porch furniture. When we woke them up my sister-in-law was very uppity. She said, "We telephoned so you'd be expecting us. This is a lovely welcome."

They left the next day and I feel very guilty. Should we have stayed home and waited for them? — G. AND H.

DEAR G. AND H. — No. Guests who cannot be specific about their arrival time should not be unhappy if the red rug isn't out around the clock. Forget it.

D. D. P. Installs 1963-64 Laurel Lodge Officers

STIRLING—At the installation service of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 Stirling held in the IOOF Hall the District Deputy President Sister Mabel Foster, Tweed was in charge of the impressive ceremony. The acting District Deputy Marshal was sister Dorothy Fisher, Tweed and the soloist was Sister Blanche Countryman of Tweed.

The D.D.P. was escorted to the dais by Sister Hilda Rose and presented with a corsage by Sister Hazel Mumby on behalf of Laurel Lodge. The guard of honor was composed of Sisters Beverley St. Pierre, Eileen Wopdcox, Marion Carter, Isobel Good, Pat Merrill and Helen Thompson.

NEW OFFICERS

The officers installed were as follows: P.N.G., Sister Joyce Richardson; Noble Grand, Sister Gladys Sine; Vice-grand, Sister Helen Hulin; treasurer, Sister Gena Spry; recording secretary, Sister Helen Thompson; warden, Sister Ileen Doe, conductor, Sister Marilyn Pollock; chaplain, Sister Lillian Johnson; inside guardian, Sister Marguerite Sine; outside guardian, Sister Eileen Woodcox; R.S.N.G., Sister Isobel Good; L.S.N.G., Sister Doris Sine; R.S.V.G., Sister Marion Carter; L.S.V.G., Sister Hilda Rose; color bearer, Sister Muriel Sharp, and musician, Sister Laura Shortt.

Sisters Isobel Good and Bessie Patterson made the presentation of two corsages of red roses to Sister Gladys Sine on behalf of her family.

The District Deputy president gave a most informative message and stressed the value of visiting the shut-ins. She also made a plea for more subscribers and readers of the Ontario Odd Fellow Tabloid.

She was tendered appreciative thanks and an appropriate gift from Laurel Lodge with Sisters Marion Carter and Hilda Rose doing the honors.

Previous to the installation ceremony Sister Annie Warren contributed a solo with Sister Laura Shortt as accompanist.

At the close refreshments were served in the banquet hall under the convenership of Sisters Vera Bailey and Kathleen Jones.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Think for a moment of how we short-change ourselves and our children by our inability to abide the truth.

In the first place, some children are literally forced into habitual patterns of deception and other assorted forms of spiritual mischief because of the unwillingness of parents to allow truth to be announced and faced — even when it is unpleasant.

There are some fathers and mothers who are just not able to accept the truth from their own children; they reduce the value of honesty in their own homes because they insist on accusing them of things they had never thought themselves to do. A child psychologist explains that if treated naturally children will tend to do the natural and, therefore, the good thing: they will live the truth and tell the truth. But not if they have been wrongly accused or fearfully frightened by the threat of unwarranted or unjust punishment for doing what comes naturally.

DISTRUST

Have you ever talked to a young child whose behavior displayed patterns of cheating and guile? Often the child had no apparent reason to cheat, and yet he refused to tell the truth and to disclose what he really did, for fear that the truth would cause him to be punished. When we encourage the distrust of truth in our children we cause them to do the unnatural thing.

If children are repeatedly frightened by the prospects of being hurt for telling the truth why should they ever want to tell it? Only when parents are more interested in the honest and decent behavior of their young ones than in success in browbeating them into submission can there be a natural and normal home relationship.

We cheat ourselves, too, when we conspicuously shut out the possibilities of getting to know our unknown neighbours. When all we know is ourselves — we cannot even know ourselves: too much of our own life is inevitably a part of the life of others. Discrimination against men of different creeds and colors does not destroy them; often, the oppressed is only strengthened by the wanton attack of others. Ignorant prejudice, however, diminishes the lives of the oppressor; it robs him of the opportunity of growing up to his own fullest human stature. When we are prey to a petty pursuit of prejudice and scapegoats we cheat ourselves.

But what is even worse than the stealing of oneself, is a wilful denial of the opportunity to grow outward, which such attitudes create in our children. Much prejudice is imbibed, as it were, with mothers' milk, or if not that early in life, very little time passes and already we are tatooed with the narrow brandmarks of our petty family tribe. Before we have much chance to be "up" on anything, we find ourselves "down" on too many things.

Parents are often responsible for feeding their children falsehoods which shore up their own sagging defenses against those whom they wrongly dislike.

Instead of opening up their young ones to the world, they close down the minds of their children long before they can even have a mind of their own. Instead of education, from the hands of deceiving parents, children often receive vicious propaganda!

In the end, all of us have more to profit than to lose by allowing truth to be heard without fear or prejudice. And parents, in particular, will earn that most coveted of all titles — the teacher of righteousness — if they will encourage and cultivate truth-speaking and truth-seeking in the lives of their own children.

MAKES HER DEBUT — Janis Orenstein, 15, of Toronto, rehearses the part of Abbie, an emotionally disturbed girl, in Charles Israel's the Labyrinth to be shown on CBC - TV'S Festival series Wednesday, Oct. 16. Janie, a scholarship vocal student at Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music, has been active on the stage since she was nine although she still hopes to make a career in music.

Girl Set for Music Career May Wind up as Actress

TORONTO (CP)—Janis Orenstein is a 15-year-old Toronto girl with her sights set on a career in music. But the way things are going, she may well wind up an actress.

It's not that she lacks musical talent. She's a scholarship vocal student at Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music and has a rather mature soprano volce.

But the fates seem to have conspired to shove her toward the acting stage.

She makes her debut in Charles Israel's new television drama, The Labyrinth, to be shown on CBC-TV's Festival series Wednesday, Oct. 16.

As Abbie, an emotionally disturbed girl, Janis is on camera for most of the 90 minutes.

When producer-director Paul Almond was casting the play, he asked Janis to read for the role of Hester, a much smaller part.

HESTER FORGOTTEN

"I was sitting outside Mr. Almond's office, studying the Hester part and waiting my turn," Janis recalls. "Mr. Almond came out and asked if I'd mind reading the Abbie part opposite one of the boys he was auditioning, so I did. More boys came, and I kept on reading Abbie. I never did get to read Hester."

The result was that although Almond later auditioned many experienced actresses in Canada and New York he telephoned Janis one day last spring to say she had the role.

Almond describes her as "a natural actress who plays a scene just as she feels it."

"She is quite mature intellectually, but she has a wonderful innocent quality that is exactly right for the part."

Janis, who has since continued her acting in a one-episode role for the children's film serial, The Forest Rangers, says she is still set on a musical career.

"The Labyrinth experience in acting is going to be a big help, though, in my operatic studies. Maybe someday I can combine acting and singing."

STILL ABBIE

Her mother, Mrs. Morris Orenstein, says she was concerned about how the highly emotional role would affect her daughter.

"We knew she would live it, because she's like that. But it's taught her something. It's made all of us aware of the very real problems of some young people today."

As for Janis, she says "Abbie is still with me and probably always will be."

A top Grade 11 student, Janis has been active theatrically since she was nine, appearing in Let's Make an Opera at Toronto's Crest Theatre.

She was the youngest vocal student ever to get a Conservatory scholarship, and her four-days-a-week trips to her lessons forced her to drop out of the chorus of the Canadian Opera Company.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Lovelorn and Then Some!

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am a lonely man of 40, unmarried yet; I promised to God to remain so the rest of my life. Everything went fine until I met that lovely girl of 30. Now I am deeply in love with her though she isn't with me. There is another young man in her life and I don't blame her for this at all.

How can I get her out of my mind? I dream of her day and night. I know from the start it is hopeless to think about marrying her, but I am human and I don't know what to do. There has been no woman in my life before and there will probably be no other. I come to the conclusion that some people are born to be miserable and I am one of those unfortunate, lonesome men who could never be happy again. — HOPELESS.

DEAR HOPELESS — Oh come now, get hold of yourself. The City of Happiness is in the State of Mind.

Your Dream Girl is spoken for; and I suspect there is someone nearer your age, someone you know right now, who might actually qualify better as a wife for you. Take off those blinkers.

DEAR DORIS — A neighbor of mine, claiming to be a "true Christian and walking with God" befriended me and took me to her church several times when I enjoyed meeting many fine people. To show my appreciation, I tried to render several small services, including the use of my freezer for a period of over two years.

Imagine my surprise when I discovered some of my meat missing! I mentioned the fact, as tactfully as possible, hoping she had made a mistake. She did not deny it. Her answer was lame and she was ill at ease. I knew then for sure that it was not that kind of mistake.

Previous to this episode she had the run of our house while we were on holidays. I am now wondering what went on then? Several things seem to be missing and I spoke to no one about this. But in any case, I could never hear this woman conduct a prayer meeting. I would feel like a hypocrite just listening to her. How would you act if you were in my place? — NOT SO TRUSTFUL NOW.

DEAR NOT SO TRUSTFUL — It's hard to reconcile the term "true Christian" with a woman who will steal the groceries. She is either an out-and-out thief or a kleptomaniac.

If I were you I'd lock the doors and stay away from her prayer meetings. But remember it's not the religion that's wrong, it's the misguided sinner.

DEAR DORIS — What is to be said and done when wishing the bride and groom every happiness? Does one usually shake hands with both or just with the groom? — WEDDING GUEST.

DEAR GUEST — Shake hands with both. If you and the bride are kissin' cousins, or close friends, you may kiss her. Tell her how lovely she looks, wish her a happy life. Congratulate the groom. And move on.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The October meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Berson Mitts.

Mrs. Albert Carson, president, opened the meeting with a poem. Correspondence incled. a letter of thanks from the Stirling Agricultural Society for the donation from the W.I. A letter was read from Miss E. Spouse, Home Economist for Hastings and Lennox and Addington, regarding a training school to be held in the board room of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Stirling, on October 29th and 30th. The delegate was appointed for the Area Convention to be held in Club Canara, Belleville on October 31st and November 1st.

Mrs. Harry Reid was convener for the program. Poems were read by Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Berson Mitts. The theme for the meeting was historical research and Mrs. E. B. Finkle read several items of interest from a 1945 "Home and Country" magazine, which were written by Miss Ethel Chapman. Several poems were also read by Mrs. Finkle. Mrs. Floyd MacInnes read the current events and Mrs. Gerald Irvine conducted a contest on antiques.

A NEW KIND OF BATHROOM TISSUE!
Facelle Royale is a 2-ply tissue—much softer than leading 1-ply tissues. It's much stronger because it's up to 62.5% thicker. And each sheet is a third longer—the new length preferred by consumers for convenience and economy.

Facelle Royale 2-ply Bathroom Tissue has the same superior quality as Facelle facial tissue. That's why it's so much softer and stronger! These unretouched pictures show why no ordinary tissue can compare with Facelle Royale...

MUCH SOFTER!
Magnified six times, ordinary tissue reveals its hard, "tweedy" texture. Facelle Royale is made a different way —free from any hard, stiff pattern. That's why it's so soft and gentle.

NEW MORE PRACTICAL SIZE!
A single sheet of ordinary tissue is about 4½" long. Facelle Royale has a 6" sheet size—the new length that's preferred by consumers for convenience and economy.

SPOTLESS PROTECTION!
Facelle Royale comes in this exclusive two-roll package. When you take out the first roll . . . the second stays protected in its own inner wrap. Only Facelle gives this convenient extra protection.

AVONDALE

"What are emotions?" and "Why do they sometimes go astray?" were two of the questions discussed by Miss Betty Ann Makar, member of the local Children's Aid Society staff, in an address on "Preventive Aspects of Emotional Disturbances in Children," at the October meeting of the Avondale Home and School Association.

Miss Makar noted that it was "surprisingly difficult to define emotion, since emotion involved feelings and impulses and physical and physiological reactions which might occur in an almost unlimited variety of mixtures. "In a child it is an almost ever-present way of acting," said Miss Makar.

"Most emotional behavior is learned in the first few years of life," explained the guest speaker, "and a child learns new emotional responses as he meets new situations." Preventive measures from overrunning a child's life, rather than adding to his personality, was dependent on three things, the emotional attitude of parents towards each other, the emotional attitude of parents towards the child and the parents' planning of rearing the child, suggested Miss Makar. Parents should realize that "love is not enough to prevent emotional disturbance." They should also "teach and guide" and "learn to say 'no'". "To prevent emotional disturbance in children," concluded the speaker "parents should provide a consistent loving atmosphere."

Miss Makar was introduced by Mr. J. D. Dewars and thanked by Mrs. Sheila Lavings.

During a brief business meeting, which preceded Miss Makar's address, the Home and School president, Mrs. R. Riedel, appealed for volunteers to act as Scout leaders and assistants. In order that Scout meetings at Avondale might be resumed. Mrs. L. McDougall announced that two after-school oral French classes were now in operation at Avondale and that five more children could be admitted to the classes.

Mrs. Hunt suggested that Home and School members make further inquiries about the possibility of including Oral French in the public school curriculum in the near future.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting in the social convenor, Mrs. J. Ellis, and her assistants.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The Avondale Neighbors' Aid held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. F. W. Boulton of Belleville.

Mrs. R. Griffith, the president, welcomed the 13 members and two children present.

The week of October 12th is set aside for this group to visit the residents of the Hastings County Home.

Mrs. C. Twiddy presented a gift to Mrs. C. Holmes, who moved from the Avondale neighborhood earlier in the year.

The program was looked after by Mrs. T. Anger and Mrs. E. Bush.

An article on Thanksgiving was read by Mrs. E. Bush. An Edna Jacques poem was read by Mrs. L. Reid.

Mrs. Griffith told of her recent trip through Northern Ontario, across the prairie provinces and north to the Mackenzie River basin in the Northwest Territories. The famous Peace River area seemed most interesting country. The slippers and moccasins were an example of the Indian handiwork there.

Mrs. C. Holmes thanked Mrs. Griffith for a most interesting insight into Canada's northland.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Wright.

Lunch was served by Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. R. Griffith and Mrs. F. Boulton.

DENSE POPULATION

One-tenth of the land area of Scotland — the Lowlands — contains three-quarters of the population, or most of the indus-

Green hair with a green gown, pink hair with a pink dress. It sounds startling but it looked enchanting when viewed at the "Cocktail Coiffure" presentation sponsored by the ladies of the Quinte Yacht Club at the club rooms on Wednesday evening.

Cocktail coiffures were just what the name implies, colors and styles named for various drinks. Color is one of the most important developments in high fashion, and Mrs. Vivian Jewell designed the colors shown by the models with the styles carried out by her, and by Lenora Jewell, George Hicks and Bill Arbuckle.

First to appear was Miss United Appeal, Gail Walker, as a "Pink Lady." Her dress was a melon pink with her hair subtly pink-toned in what was termed a fantasy line with jewelled headdress provided by Ronald Keel.

Mrs. Bernice Hales was the model with the green hair called "Mint Julep," which was really striking, but probably will wait occasion in mind, as the color could be shampooed out the next day.

Mrs. Kay Smith represented a "Moonlight Cocktail" with blue dress and hair, styled in cockscomb style.

A creme de cocoa shade styled with a side sweep was done by Mrs. Audrene Moorman, who wore a dress of the same color. Mrs. Lois Hicks appeared in a soft mauve shade with matching dress, and Mrs. Betty Cairns of Stirling wearing red velvet had a sharply contrasting shade of hair in silvery blond.

PERFORMS DANCE

Mrs. Bert Ireland as a Gin Fizz wore a light shade in the Mood Aloe; Fireball was worn by Kay Kokesh in a flaming color done in empire silhouette and Hot Toddy was worn by Kathie Kerr. Margaret Fairbairn wore a hair style to demonstrate the use of a postiche; and Diane McCallum gave her version of an Old Fashioned with a dance in old fashioned clothes, later transforming into modern clothes and dance to show a whiskey flip.

Mrs. Marg. Colebourne was a modern Cleopatra with her hair colored Egyptian black, stylish bangs and jewelled headpiece. Wearing a Silver Swirl, Mrs. Myrtle Dickey's hair matched her dress with an attractive effect; and Mrs. Kay Kellar with a silver swirl looked glamorous.

Janet McLean demonstrated an arrangement of tips and swirls and Sharon Muir was an attractive brunette.

Later all the models showed fur styles in jackets, stoles and full length coats by Woodley Furriers, with the most unusual a ski suit in mink. The jacket was violet mink, and the sleeves and collar were knitted.

Mrs. Orland Pinkston greeted the guests and extended a welcome.

Prizes were drawn and distributed and a buffet lunch was served following the style showing.

BIBLE STUDIED

In Israel, study of the Bible takes up 20 to 30 per cent of the school curriculum.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

ARRANGE SCHOOL VISITS IN ADVANCE

During the school year it often becomes necessary or desirable to have a meeting of minds with teacher about how junior is doing in school.

Now that the initial school daze has cleared, you may want to ask your child's teacher about his progress and see if there is any way you can help on the home front.

When dealing with your child's teacher, remember that her time is precious and that there is a time and place for courteously going over your young star's record.

If you think it's imperative to discuss grades and study habits during the day, be sure to make an appointment first. With 30 or more children in a class, imagine what chaos would result if as many mothers showed up at the school at the same time. A teacher will always try to make time to see a parent — if not during the day, then after school hours. By writing a note in advance, asking for an appointment, a teacher may gauge her schedule and be able to fit in a parent at a time when she can devote full attention to the matter without having to be interrupted.

MAKE AN APPOINTMENT

In many schools, teachers make a point of arriving an hour or half-hour before the start of school, so they may meet privately with parents to discuss their youngsters' work. Again, though, time is of the essence. It's often suggested that interviews gain in makes an advance appointment so the teacher may judge how many she'll have time for on a given evening.

During the course of the school year there are other times when parents have an opportunity to meet with teachers and get to know them slightly informally. Often a tea is given early in the term. The class Christmas party is the arrangements and it is advisable for mothers to attend, so they may get to know the teacher as well as some of her problems.

On occasion there are class outings, and mothers often are asked to volunteer as chaperones. This is a courtesy much appreciated by the teacher, who otherwise might have her hands more than full.

In some schools, children in the kindergarten — and sometimes in first grade — are permitted to have birthday parties. These usually consist of cupcakes and candy, supplied by the mother. The teacher arranges the festivity to fit in with her schedule. Again, though, if this is permitted, the teacher should be notified in advance so she can leave a few minutes just before or after lunch for party time.

In all school activities time is the most important factor and often there just isn't enough of it to go round. If you want your child's teacher to save a few minutes for you, she'll be more than considerate about allotting you a share if you remember to courteously apply for it in advance.

NATURALIZING

THE LAZY GARDENERS' FAVORITE . . .

One Planting Effort Sets You Up For Years to Come.

Plant 25 or 50 of our big potato-size Daffodil bulbs in groups of 8 or 10 in ground over evergreen foundation planting. Just stick them in (right side up) about 6 inches deep and 6 inches apart. They'll bloom profusely next April and every April for years to come.

The best part is that they'll multiply rapidly and they require absolutely no care. In a few years you'll have a solid bed of hundreds.

60th Wedding Anniversary To Be Honored

PICTON — Anticipating the observance of their 60th wedding anniversary on Tuesday next, October 22, are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Hyatt of West Lake. A dinner party is planned in their honor at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, after which the family will celebrate the auspicious occasion at the home of their son, Ronald, and Mrs. Hyatt.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt were married at St. Catharines by Rev. J. H. Ratcliff and even at that time Niagara Falls was the mecca for honeymooners. Mrs. Hyatt was formerly Norma V. Mastin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Mastin, and was born on May 18, 1881. Mr. Hyatt was born on July 12, 1894, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hyatt.* Both have spent practically all their lives at West Lake where they are highly esteemed residents.

Mr. Hyatt was one of Prince Edward County's pioneer canners, starting as John W. Hyatt Sons Ltd. in 1908. With his son, Ronald, he started the Hyatt Canning Co. at West Lake in 1941 and though he retired in 1960, continues to take a great interest in operations of not only the West Lake plant but that operated at Cherry Valley by his son.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt are members of the Church of Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt have one son, Ronald, two grandchildren, Glenn Alan and Gena, also three great-grandchildren.

Bank Decides To Construct New Building

PICTON — One of the most handsome buildings on Main Street is now being demolished and its place will be erected a modern new bank building to be occupied by the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. While the building, erected in 1903, constructed of brick with pillars on the front of the second storey, appeared to be an exceptionally fine building, there were defects that led to the decision to build a new block. Another reason was that the bank required more adequate accommodation.

The tender for the new block has been awarded to the McFarland Construction Company and will cost more than one hundred thousand dollars. It will be on the same site adjacent to the post office and will be one-storey, seventy-seven feet in depth and thirty-four feet wide.

Speaker Stresses Need of Bibles In Foreign Lands

PICTON — The need for Christian literature, especially Bibles, in foreign lands to combat the influence of Russian literature, was stressed by Rev. W. J. Platt at the annual meeting of the Picton branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society. "I missed news stands in India with great quantities of propaganda literature offered at a low price but did not see a single piece of Christian literature. The Russians circulate four million attractive pieces of literature in India each year."

Mr. Platt, for twenty years with the British and Foreign Bible Society, with service in Africa, Asia and India, said there is a great spiritual hunger in these lands and there is a great challenge to provide the scriptures in native languages.

Rev. Colin Rudd, Peterborough, district secretary, and local president H. Gray challenged local people to support the forthcoming campaign for funds of the Bible Society.

could be triggered by a cosmic ray shower or a radiation flare on the sun. Scientists consider it unlikely that such phenomena could strike two well separated satellites at the same instant, but that's something project Vela Hotel aims to learn.

A total of 10 research satellites are planned in the program. Eventual goal is a system of six operational satellites to scan space out to 200,000,000 miles or more.

New Income

ownership test would pay an increased rate of 30 per cent.

The tax would be wiped out entirely on bond interest paid to non-taxable foreign institutions, such as United States pension funds.

GIVEN INCENTIVES

Other amendments would close various loopholes in the act, and provide tax incentives —including a three-year tax holiday and faster writeoffs on capital assets—for new manufacturing enterprises in the government-designated 35 labor markets with chronic unemployment.

Referring to the withholding taxes, Mr. Gordon said Canada must give priority in all economic policies to measures that will correct its international payments position. There was no excuse for Canadians refusing to confront this situation.

Somehow, he said, Canada will have to get a larger share of the North American market especially for certain manufactured goods.

Noting that 65 per cent of Canadian manufacturing is foreign-controlled, Mr. Gordon said one source of "real difficulty" in increasing exports lies with subsidiaries of foreign concerns especially those wholly-owned by a single foreign company.

Managers of these Canadian subsidiaries had "no real authority"—decisions were made by the parent company abroad. These foreign parent firms were concerned with increasing the volume and profits of their whole enterprise and it was unreasonable to expect them to give "the special requirements of the Canadian economy under priority."

Significantly, Canadian managers of subsidiaries that are partly Canadian - owned were "more likely to be allowed" to do things "in the best interests of our country," though this was not always true.

WILL BE LONG TIME

Mr. Gordon said there is "nothing very harsh or punitive" in his withholding tax proposal. No one expected the achievement of 25-per-cent Canadian ownership to take place overnight—it would occur over "quite a long period of years."

There had been an increasing upward trend in foreign ownership of Canadian manufacturing and "the time has come when something more than words is needed."

Mr. Gordon said that to do less than he now proposed would mean Canadians didn't take the matter seriously.

"If we don't, Canadians may well wake up someday—and perhaps sooner than they think —to find they have lost control not only of their economic destiny, but of their political destiny as well."

Colin Cameron, NDP financial critic, said Canada is in danger of being "absorbed" by the U.S. unless the government starts investing public funds in private companies, as was done in France.

He said Mr. Gordon's proposals were ineffective in halting the rise of U.S. economic control over Canadian industry. It was "naively optimistic" to imagine that Canadians owning 25 per cent of foreign-controlled firms would have much influence on the companies' managements.

Marvel Lessard (SC—Lac St Jean) said the U.S. dominates Canada not only in the economical sphere, but in the political, labor and military fields as well. It was time to act.

Model Ordered To Stand Trial For Indecency

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters)—A 19-year-old model who created a sensation by appearing nude at the Edinburgh Festival has been ordered to stand trial after a police court hearing here.

Anna Kedslaar was charged Wednesday with acting in a "shameless and indecent" manner for allowing herself to appear nude before the astonished audience at a drama conference.

British publisher John M. Calder, organizer of the conference, also will stand trial on the same day—Dec. 5. He is charged with permitting the shapely Scottish girl's sensational appearance.

balance with the U.S.

He didn't think the U.S. would seek any compensation through the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

DRIVE COLLAPSES

His statement in effect confirmed reports from other U.S. sources that an American drive to charge Canada with breaching GATT rules has collapsed because the Americans could not produce a strong legal case for such action.

Herter called the press conference to announce that the United States had formally requested GATT to determine the damages the U.S. can claim from loss of the European Chicken Market.

The U.S. has proposed to withdraw tariff concessions from the Common Market on about $46,000,000 worth of annual imports. But the U.S. would accept whatever figure GATT sets.

Britain's

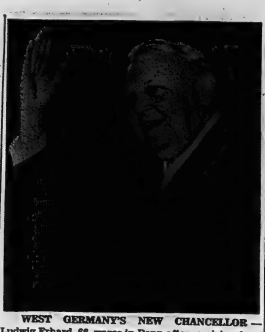
call is overwhelming.

Despite the pattern traced by lobby correspondents, indicating Butler and Maudling as the leading rivals, one firm of bookmakers, Ladbroke's, said its odds are virtually unchanged from Wednesday night.



Ladbroke's latest list in the leadership race at 8 to 4; Lord Hailsham 7 to 4; Maudling 5 to 1; Lord Home 6 to 1; Edward Heath and Ian Macleod 50 to 1.

The key man in making the decision is Macmillan. It was thought he would probably send his "advice" on the leadership by letter to the Queen.

Two ironies emerged in this hectic 10 days of speculation and lobbying.

One is that many Conservatives, having felt for some time that Macmillan's resignation was overdue, were coming round to the belief that it might have been better if he had stayed, after all, in view of the party's difficulty in reaching agreement on a successor.

The second is that only the sudden intervention of an outside force — his illness — prompted Macmillan finally to decide upon retiring.

eight to a dual nuclear-conventional role.

They said there is another strong reason for doing this:

NATO has been reviewing its defence strategy on the basis that even a limited nuclear strike against a conventional Soviet attack in Europe might well lead to all-out nuclear war.

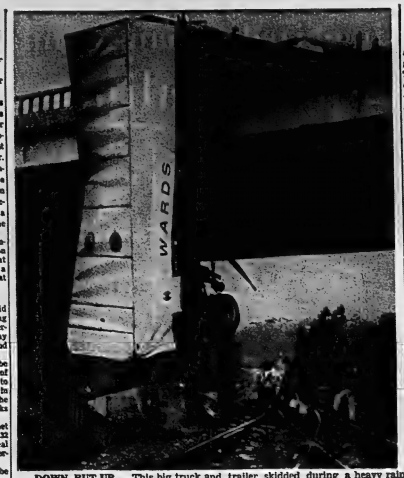
A Western response with conventional weapons would leave the nuclear RCAF air division idle, thus throwing away a defence project on which Canada has spent $468,000,000 for the plane alone.

Informed sources said, contrary to previous statements on the subject by the RCAF, that the CF-104 can be converted to a conventional or dual role at reasonable cost.

TO STRENGTHEN ARMY

Informed sources also said the government in formulating its new defence policy is determined to strengthen the army by giving it more weapons and more mobility.

One of the first things to be done will be the transfer of more tanks from Canada to the infantry brigade group in Europe. Only one-quarter of the army's 176 operational tanks now are with the brigade.



A source close to the cabinet said it is pointless to keep 132 tanks in Canada when the real need for them would be overseas.

The next move likely will be acquisition of the American M-113 armored personnel carrier for the brigade in West Germany. This will mean junking of the Canadian Bobcat carrier after nearly 10 years of research and development and expenditures of some $7,100,000.

Purchase of the M-113 will depend in part on a production-sharing arrangement with the United States.

Still in the planning stage are the means to provide the brigade in Europe with an air and sealift so that reinforcements could be moved overseas quickly in an emergency.

Canada committed an infantry division to the defence of Western Europe 12 years ago but only one-third of it—a brigade — is actually stationed there. The two reserve brigades are in Canada.

age drop of 181,000 from August to 4,585,000 in September. This was 183,000 more than the employment total a year earlier — a 3.8-per-cent gain.

ATTRIBUTED TO STUDENTS

The month's employment decline was attributed to the back-to-school movement. The report said a record number of students had found temporary jobs during the summer months.

The mid - September labor force, at 6,815,000, was 381,000 less than a month earlier. The total was up 170,000—2.6 per cent — from September last year.

The report said that most of the August-to-September drop in unemployment was the result of students leaving the labor market. Virtually all of the 39,000 declins occurred among persons under 25 years of age.

Of the 250,000 unemployed in September, some 179,000 had been seeking work for four to six months and 44,000 for seven months or longer.

The unemployment rate, seasonally adjusted to show underlying trends not related to seasonal factors, was 5.3 per cent September unemployment with 5.6 per cent in August and 5.7 per cent a year earlier. The report carries a cautionary note about the reliability of this figure, which is subject to revision.

The September unemployment rate in Ontario was 2.3 compared with 2.8 in August. The September unemployment total was 57,000 compared with 72,000 in August.

$10 Increase Will Be in October Cheques

OTTAWA (CP)—A health department official said Wednesday night that the $10 increase in old age pensions will be included in this month's cheques.

The spokesman said that the royal assent given the Bill increasing the pension to $75 came "just in time" to include the boost in the October cheques.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau of Canada, acting as deputy to governor-general Vanier, gave the royal assent Wednesday in the Senate.

Story of Hurricane Flora, Most Devastating Storm Ever Recorded in Caribbean

A tropical disturbance is formed and starts splunging westward over the Atlantic on Sept. 16, 1963, 2,000 miles southeast of Florida. It develops into hurricane Flora, the most devastating storm recorded in the Caribbean area. The following article traces its birth, growth and effects.

By BEN PUNK
AP STAFF WRITER

The day: Thursday, Sept. 26, 1963. The exact time: Unknown. The place: The tropical Atlantic, 3,000 miles southeast of the Florida coast.

The day is hot, sultry, oppressive. The wind blows in fitful gusts. The heaving sea is grey and sluggish.

A whiff of warm, damp air rises from the sea. Very, very slowly, an air column grows. Rising, the warm air expands and cools. The water in it condenses and falls.

Affected by the spinning of the earth, the air begins to revolve around a hollow centre. More warm moisture is sucked up the chimney, pumping new fuel into the motion. The air spins faster.

The seed of a monster has been sown. The Carib Indians called it "Hurakan"—evil spirit.

Orbiting over the south Atlantic Sept. 26, the Tiros VII weather satellite photographs a poorly-organized vortex, or circular motion, in a cloud mass.

Forecasters mark this down as an "area of suspicion" and plan to keep an eye on it.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 27

1:30 p.m. Tiros sends another picture of the same cloud mass. It has moved 400 miles westward.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 29

6 p.m. The captain of a ship 350 miles east of Trinidad reports he is encountering light squalls and rising seas. His barometer is falling.

MONDAY, SEPT. 30

10 a.m. A hurricane hunter plane thrusts through the "wall of the eye" of a small but tightly wound and "very dangerous" hurricane. It is moving fast toward the island of Tobago.

Tobago has only two hours to prepare. The eye of the hurricane with the unlikely name of Flora reaches the coast at noon.

Hours of collapse under the 100-mile-an-hour winds. Torrential tropical floods. Towering tides bury the beaches. Seventeen islanders die.

Trinidad lashes south, escape serious damage.

TUESDAY, OCT. 1

In Haiti, the Negro nation on the island of Hispaniola, the sound of the sea is subtly changing. From far out comes a single long, low swell. Slowly, another comes, and another.

The land dies. Palm fronds hang limply in the dead calm.

Flora, still far away, is growing more violent.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 2

1 p.m. The weather remains calm. Wisps of cirrus clouds spread a pale, milky haze over the sky.

As the day goes on, the veil thickens. The sunset is spectacular, red and orange.

Midnight: A swirling breeze intrudes on the stillness and rustles the fronds in Haiti's palms. The air is charged with electricity. Breathing seems difficult.

THURSDAY, OCT. 3

5 a.m. The wind gusts at 50 miles an hour. The sea is wild. A hard burst of rain comes and goes, only to be followed by another.

The moan of the wind changes to a howl. From far out comes the thunder of mounting surf.

Natives cringe. Towns and villages built of mud, straw and tin offer no place to hide.

1 p.m. Two hurricane hunters criss-cross the storm at 10,000 feet. Sustained winds have reached 140 miles an hour, gusts 160.

2 p.m. Hurricane winds reach the south coast of the Tiburon Peninsula in Haiti. Observers at the pitch of the wind rises to a terrifying scream.

8 p.m. The wall of the eye, a solid barrier of water and wind whirling savagely in toward the centre of the hurricane, crosses the coast between Aquin and Cotes de Fer.

Funnelling down the canyons between mountain ranges, gusts reach a awesome 200 miles a hour.

Solid sheets of rain turn rivers and streams into torrents. Crashing down the mountainsides, they push the crops, even the soil, into the sea.

In the raging floods, bodies toss. At the mouths of the rivers, the swarms of sharks gather to feast.

FRIDAY, OCT. 4

1 p.m. Flora slams into Cuba's Oriente province. Now it is the biggest hurricane in history. It torments the seas for a thousand miles, from the Bahamas to Puerto Rico. More than 200 miles to the south, its name is dood Jamaica. Nine persons drown.

Nassau, in the storm's path, boards up.

SATURDAY, OCT. 5

A gigantic high pressure system to the north stops Flora over Cuba.

11 a.m. Flora wanders slim lessly westward, blocked again by high pressure over the Gulf states.

SUNDAY, OCT. 6

The hurricane turns southwest back into the Caribbean and hits just off the Cuba coast, lashing Camagney and Oriente provinces with torrential rain and 100-mile-an-hour winds.

MONDAY, OCT. 7

Again, the storm moves back over Cuba and stalls between two imperial cities, Camagney and Santiago de Cuba.

TUESDAY, OCT. 8

After four days of fantastic rain, floods have risen to treetop level in eastern Cuba. Some areas remain inundated by floodwaters become inland seas.

While villages and towns are destroyed, roads are ruined, cattle wiped out. Highways and railways are washed out. Mines are inundated. Crops are destroyed.

1 a.m. At last, the catastrophic storm moves northeast off the northeast Cuban coast.

It lashes the lower Bahama islands with 80-mile winds, then builds back up to 115 miles an hour.

But Flora is racing toward her death over the cold waters of the North Atlantic.

Now relief workers can pick their way through the mud and debris. Gradually, the awful story unfolds.

Hurricane More than 5,000 dead. But no really accurate count is possible. Nobody had counted these human heads. Many bodies are in the sea or under the mud. With crops gone, the threat of famine is real.

In Cuba: More than 1,000 dead. Fidel Castro's Communist regime suffers an economic disaster.

Flora takes her place in history as the most deadly storm ever to howl out of the tropical Atlantic. The old death record of 6,000, set by the Galveston hurricane of 1900, has been exceeded.

Fourth Twin Birth in Eight Years for Earlton Couple

NEWLISKEARD, Ont. (CP) A bemused Earlton couple have had their hands full with the birth of fourth set of twins, duplicating the feat of neighbors down the highway in Cobalt.

Alice St. George, 30, gave birth to twin boys in hospital here last Friday—her fourth double birth in eight years and her 11th and 12th children in a decade.

"I don't know what I'm going to do with all the children," she said "I have four in diapers now."

Mrs. St. George and her carpenter husband Maurice, 35, cannot even claim local uniqueness. Figures from the federal vital experts here say the odds against four sets of twins in a single family range around 500,000 to one.

Mrs. Simms from here in Haileybury 18 months ago, Mrs. Roland Mercier of Cobalt gave birth to identical twin set of twins in eight years. That gave the Merciers 11 children and prompted a request from citizens North Bay to donate food, furniture and other help.

A Quebec couple, Rosa and Emile Tremblay of Alma, had seven sets of twins and three other children in 20 years up to 1957. Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson of Sheet Harbor, N.S., have four sets of twins who ar-

Cheddar Cheese Production up In September

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of creamery butter, evaporated whole milk and skim milk powder in Canada during September from the same month last year, the bureau of statistics said today.

Production in September with September, 1962, figures in brackets: Creamery butter 26,000,000 pounds (25,110,000), cheddar cheese 16,437,000 pounds (13,136,000), ice cream mix 1,894,000 gallons (1,753,000), evaporated milk 27,486,000 pounds (28,018,000); and skim milk powder 17,951,000 (20,222,000).

Production of process cheese in the January-September period increased 9.2 per cent to 51,795,500 pounds from 47,418,396 in the same 1962 period.

Stocks of creamery butter, cheddar cheese and poultry meat were higher than a year ago than on the same date last year. Stocks of evaporated whole milk and skim milk powder were smaller.

Totals at Oct. 1 with last year's figures in brackets: Creamery butter 165,589,000 pounds (161,417,000), cheddar cheese 68,612,000 pounds (62,420,000), evaporated whole milk powder 29,000 pounds (66,368,000), skim milk powder 33,620,000 pounds (35,332,000) and poultry meat 40,859,000 pounds (30,670,000).

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of domestic refrigerators, home and farm freezers and automatic clothes dryers were larger in August and the first eight months of 1963 as compared with last year, the bureau of statistics reports.

Sales of domestic washing machines were down in the month and up in the eight months. End-of-August stocks were larger than a year earlier for all of these appliances.

Automatic dishwashers last August's figures in brackets: Refrigerators 23,767 units (22,630), freezers 8,411 (11,794), washing machines 30,006 (30,312), and clothes dryers 14,764 (12,823).

Production of carbonated beverages declined 6 per cent in September to 14,621,965 gallons from 15,231,412 in the same month last year. Increases in January, April, July and August more than offset decreases in the other months and output in the January-September period was up 3.5 per cent at 136,381,000 gallons.

Output of pulpwood in Canada rose six per cent in August to 1,633,252 rough cords from 1,535,000 in August, 1962. The January-August period production was up .5 per cent at 8,567,196 rough cords.

2,400 Shift Workers Told To Stay Home

OSHAWA (CP) — About 2,400 of 4,400 General Motors day shift workers were told to stay at home today following a fire that damaged part of the south plant Wednesday night".

A company spokesman said full production would resume by tonight. Production at the plant, which five miles away was in full swing.

Company officials were to meet today to assess damage caused by the hour - long fire. Firemen estimated it at about $200,000.

About 4,000 night workers were sent home after the fire swept through the cushion storage area. Firemen said flames were shooting 100 feet in the air by the time they arrived.

The plant is in the southern area of the city near Highway 401.

Serious Lack Of Laboratories Says Doctor

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. R. F. Farquharson, medical vice-president of the National Research Council, warns that a serious lack of laboratories in Canadian universities is becoming a "critical factor" actively interfering with progress in medical research.

In his annual report as chair man of MRC, Dr. Farquharson said shortage of space for medical research is one of two major problems impeding Canada's medical research program.

Dr. Farquharson, professor emeritus of medicine at the University of Toronto, said the other is the small number of full-time appointments in Canadian medical schools at university medical faculty and clinical departments.

Dr. Farquharson said the serious drain of competent Canadian scientists to the United States is not due to the higher scale of American salaries.

"It is due, rather, to the shortage of research laboratory space in Canada, and to the lack of funds for salaries with which to pay an adequate number of medical scientists and to support their research (at universities)."

Dr. Farquharson said that because of a heavy teaching load and small numbers of full-time staff in Canadian medical schools has inadequate time for research.

Gilead Church in Thurlow Observes 100th Anniversary

St. Andrew's Gilead United Church, on the 5th concession of Thurlow, recently observed its 100th year.

It is not known where service was held prior to 1863, but in that year a young Presbyterian student minister, Mr. James McCaul, was instrumental in securing a lot for a church building and cemetery and work on the church was started.

In 1863 Mr. McCaul was ordained at Kingston, the church was completed and Mr. McCaul was inducted as the first minister. The church was known as St. Andrew's and placed on the Presbyterian circuit with Roslin and Fuller.

According to information received from the committee on Archives of the United Church, Mr. James Croil, who is described as a church agent, made a tour of Presbyterian churches in 1862, and made the following report.

"A very neat brick church was erected in Thurlow in 1863, seated for 250, with tinned spire, cost complete $1,800. The charge is listed as Thurlow and Roslin'; there are 60 families; 70 communicants, and 188 Sunday school scholars. The minister is the Rev. James McCaul Salary $600."

CONGREGATIONS UNITE

The church remained on the Roslin Presbyterian circuit until 1925. In that year the Gilead Methodist Church, one mile west of St. Andrew's, was sold, and the two congregations united unanimously to join the newly formed United Church of Canada, using St. Andrew's as the place of worship.

It was due in no small measure to the untiring efforts of the late Rev. Ernest Farnsworth, then the minister at Gilead Methodist Church, that the two congregations joined together so harmoniously. Since that date the church has been known as the St. Andrew's Gilead United Church, Cannifton appointment.

On Sunday, September 29th, the church filled to over-flowing, heard the Rev. William R. Thornton, B.A., B.D., Grace United Church, Napanee, conduct the service.

The minister of the church, Rev. Paul Packman, B.A., conducted the evening service with Rev. Alastair Haig, B.A. B.D., as guest minister.

Special music by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. H. Howes, was rendered at both services.

On the evening of October 9 a turkey banquet was held in the Gilead Community hall. The credit for the success of this banquet goes to the ladies of the congregation who realized well over $300 from the sale of tickets.

Canada's Quints Said Taught They Could Not Bear Children

NEW YORK (CP)—Canada's four surviving Dionne quintuplets say they were taught from childhood that they could never marry or bear children.

Until they were 20, they said in an exclusive instalment of their story in the current issue of McCall's magazine, they "never thought about sex or babies".

Within a few years, three of them—Cecile, Annette and Marie — married and eventually gave birth to healthy babies, despite doctors' forecasts at their own births that they would never have children. The fourth quintuplet, Yvonne, became a nun.

The 29-year-old sisters also said their father attempted to limit their financial independence by convincing them to sign a trust fund agreement denying them immediate access to the principal. They received the interest on the trust funds but receive the principal only in three instalments—at the ages of 31, 39 and 45.

As they reached young adulthood, they wrote, their area of "greatest ignorance was—men.

"We had been carefully guarded from even the most casual contact with them. Until the only members of the male sex we could talk to without risking dad's displeasure were neighbor children and brothers and, before their marriages, the admirers of our older sisters.

"There was no possibility, we had been taught, of our ever marrying. We were destined to stay at home or go into the church and inevitably as water runs down to the sea."

When they brought home the men they eventually were to marry, they wrote, their parents treated the suitors with distrust and coldness. Detectives hired by their father shadowed one suitor.

The girls softened their criticism of their parents by noting that as their father's "influence fades, he mellows with the years."

Romulo Betancourt Thinks Communism Can Be Licked By Better Deal for Poor

Venezuela is a country where democratic government has come to grips with both communism and right dictatorship. Under Romulo Betancourt's leadership it has staved off the excesses of both extremes. Now, amid bursts of terrorism, it is heading toward a new election. Its problems and progress—and the problems facing Latin America as a whole—are discussed in this exclusive interview with President Betancourt.

CARACAS (AP) — Romulo Betancourt jabbed a brown leather desk cover with his stubby forefinger and spoke in bursts of urgent, forceful, Spanish.

"The Communist threat in Latin America is real, but we cannot believe that only repressive measures against Communists are sufficient," said the Venezuelan president.

"We must combat poverty, poor distribution of wealth and antiquated structures of Latin American economies.

"The effort in this decade to face these problems is decisive."

He stopped, clinched bombscarred hands together and brought for a moment.

"The experience of Venezuela demonstrates it can be done."

At 55 Betancourt has run a democratic government in Venezuela 4½ years. To begin with he has fought Communists and right-wing terrorists alike. He has built schools, roads and hospitals and introduced land reforms. He has started a clean up massive slums and to diversify industry and agriculture.

Today, nearing the end of his elected term, Betancourt is obviously convinced that Venezuela's achievements prove that battles with communism and right-wing dictatorship in the hemisphere can be won. But he is the first to recognize that the struggle is still far from over in Venezuela or elsewhere.

KNOWS DANGERS

Better than most men, Betancourt can appreciate the dangers that lie ahead, for he has been both ruler and revolutionary.

Betancourt discussed Venezuelan and inter - American problems in an interview with the Associated Press in his office in Miraflores Palace.

A stocky, dynamic man who speaks insistently and gestures frequently, he has a reputation for courage, honesty, idealism and a wily sense of politics.

The red scars on his hands came from bombs he suffered in 1960 in a bomb attack that nearly killed him. The attack was the work of right-wing terrorists, backed by the Trujillo dictatorship then ruling the Dominican Republic. Betancourt was an implacable enemy of rightist Trujillo just as he is an enemy of Cuba's leftist Fidel Castro.

In the streets of Caracas a Communist terror campaign that has gripped the nation for three years continues. Troops guard strategic buildings and seal off some old sections of the city. Heavily armed police patrol the business district in pairs.

Betancourt expresses confidence that despite the terrorism national elections will be held on schedule Dec. 1 and a new government will take office in March.

DISFIGURES AID CUTS

Betancourt said he favors greater participation by Latin American countries in the Alliance for Progress aid program for Latin America, He pledged Canada to U.S. foreign aid by Congress. If present cuts in U.S. foreign aid stand, he said, the total U.S. funds for Latin America will be little more "than the almost $600,000,000 annually that the Soviet Union contributes to Cuba."

Broad Kremlin Tactic To Harass Western Powers In Berlin Seen in Action

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

When Soviet guards, backed by armed troops, delayed three U.S. military convoys on the road to West Berlin last week, American diplomats were quick to write the incidents off as merely the product of some bungling Soviet bureaucrat on the Berlin scene.

The Americans refused to agree to Soviet demands that convoy identities be made to be counted and, after some delay, the Russians allowed the convoys to drive on to West Berlin.

Now the Russians have pulled the same stunt on a British convoy and American diplomats are forced to concede finally that there appears to be a broad Kremlin tactic to harass the Western powers in Berlin.

ACTION PUZZLING

But why the Russians should select this particular period of gradual relaxation in East-West tensions to flex their British muscles is something American authorities find hard to understand.

One suggested the Russians simply are unpredictable. Another, however, suggested that is simply another Soviet attempt to obtain a bit more diplomatic leverage in Berlin and West Germany.

It also seems to be a warning to the West that, despite food troubles at home and Soviet willingness to solve some disarmament issues, Soviet military and political designs remain unchanged.

The Soviet strategy of trying to weaken the Western powers and persuade them to move back from Berlin is seen in Russian demands that any Western troops and civilian observers on East-West European frontiers be linked with a Soviet disarmament inspection team and mutual reduction in troop numbers.

DIFFERENCE NOTED

Basically, both sides have not yielded an inch on the Berlin issue but Americans note a difference in Soviet tactics.

In the past, long harassment tended to be brought to the boiling point, leading to an eye-to-eye military confrontation on the border. This time the Russians appear to be milder—just enough to cause Western irritation but not enough to arouse angry flashing.

This also appears to be in line with Western beliefs that the Soviet Union cannot afford and does not want a military showdown with the West at this time. The Western pattern therefore will be to meet the Russians with an equivalent show of determination but not to escalate local incidents.

Erhard Names New Ministers

BONN (Reuters) — Newly elected Chancellor Ludwig Erhard today introduced three new ministers into the West German government.

They are Dr. Erich Mende, minister for all-German affairs and vice chancellor; Kurt Schmeucker, economics minister, and Dr. Hans Krueger, refugees minister.

Erhard, 66, announced his new government 34 hours after Bundestag (lower house) elected him successor to Konrad Adenauer by a bigger margin than the retiring chancellor received, in 1961.

Erhard's cabinet, like the one it replaces, consists of 12 Christian Democrats, four Bavarian Christian Democrats and five ministers of the Free Democrat Party.

Dr. Mende, 49-year-old chairman of the Free Democrats—a minority party in the Erhard government—had refused to accept a cabinet post under Adenauer when the Free Democrats came out with their opposition after the 1961 general elections. It was at the time that the Christian Democrats lost their parliamentary majority.

GETTING READY FOR JAMBOREE—The Boy Scout's jamboree-on-the-air, an annual event in which Scouts around the world greet each other on ham radio sets, will be held Oct. 19-20. Len Jarrett, executive commissioner of administration at the Boy Scouts world bureau in Ottawa and co-ordinator of the event, gets his equipment ready with the help of two Scouts. (CP Photo)

40,000 Scouts, 1,200 Radio Stations Are Prepared for World Air Jamboree

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Huddled in attics, basements, garages and tents, as many as 40,000 Boy Scouts around the world will link themselves together this weekend in the biggest jamboree of its kind ever held.

With a big assist from the world's amateur radio operators, the scouting movement will take over the airwaves for 48 hours Oct. 19-20 in a static-filled spree of brotherhood.

The sixth annual jamboree-on-the-air is expected to exceed last year's smashing success when 1,200 stations around the world tuned in to hear Boy Scouts discuss their troops, badges, families and hobbies.

The jamboree got its start in 1957 when scouts attending a world meeting in England set up their equipment and made a few contacts in other countries. The next year it was done again, this time with a little advance publicity.

By 1959 the movement's world bureau, with headquarters in Ottawa, had to take over the event when it ballooned out of the organizational hands of the few amateurs who started it.

HAMS HELP

Each year since, two days have been set aside in October for the Scouts. And amateur operators have jumped into the fun with the same enthusiasm as the Scouts themselves.

Months before the jamboree goes on the air, national scouting organizations in the 80 member countries are advised of the event and the scouts begin lining up activities with local hams. Amateur radio societies are briefed and by jamboree time the airwaves are unofficially reserved for the youthful broadcasters.

Thirty or so will huddle around each set in Canada—400 stations were broadcasting in the country last year — and they'll take turns exchanging greetings with scouts around the world. In Australia, where it's spring, scouts will be in tents specially set up for the event.

The world bureau will have its two transmitters set up at Connaught Ranges near Ottawa where more powerful equipment is available. Len Jarrett, executive commissioner of administration and a wartime signals officer, will be the chief co-ordinator.

LETTERS FOLLOW

"We expect an even greater response than last year," he says. "More and more scouts have been informed of the jamboree and there is always new equipment becoming available."

Circulars have gone out to scouts telling them to practise talking into microphones in advance, to study geography so they will know something about the countries they make contact with, and to be extra helpful to the operator—perhaps returning at a later date to help him erect an antenna, or something like that.

After greetings and addresses were exchanged last year, says Mr. Jarrett, hundreds of letters were written between scouts and badges were exchanged.

"The beauty of something like this is that so many scouts can so easily greet one another even though they can't actually meet. It would be impossible to bring together this many boys in any other way."

LEGION L.A.

The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Branch of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion No. 626 was held on Thursday evening in the legion hall, presided over by president, Miss Goldie Godfrey. The treasurer gave the financial statement and reported on the card party which was held last week. The next card party will be convened by Mrs. Maude Lutz - euchre, Mrs. Ruth Crawford - bridge, and Mrs. Yvonne Whalen, the lunch.

A donation to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was made during the meeting.

It was decided to buy more dishes for the kitchen and Miss Godfrey is going to look after the purchase of them.

It was decided to once again sell candy to raise funds.

Cards followed the meeting.

Rangers Blank Howe-less Red Wings

By STRUAN MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Rocket's record was safe for another three days.

Gordie Howe, sidelined by a cut right ankle, sat in civilian clothes on the Detroit Red Wings bench.

The wound isn't expected to keep Howe off the ice for long, however. His next shot at former Montreal Canadiens star Maurice (Rocket) Richard's all-time goal-scoring record probably will be Saturday night when Detroit plays Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Howe, trailing Richard's 544-goal record by just one, suffered a four-stitch cut in practice Tuesday.

With Howe out, New York Rangers treated a home-town crowd to a 3-0 win over Detroit goalie Jacques Plante's first shutout since being traded to New York from Montreal after last season.

Plante didn't have Howe to contend with, but still looked brilliant, kicking out 36 Red Wings shots after allowing nine goals in his first two games as a Ranger.

Phil Goyette, also sent by Montreal to Rangers in the big off-season swap involving seven players, put Rangers ahead 58 seconds after the game started while Rod Gilbert and Val Fortoyne scored the other New York goals in the third period.

The loss dropped Detroit to a tie for second place as Chicago Blue Hawks blanked the Hawks to a 3-3 victory over Boston Bruins with three goals, a performance which lifted his team into first place and himself into the lead for individual scoring honors.

The hapless Bruins, last by a wide margin last season, held their own against Chicago in the first period only because Boston goalie Ed Johnston was able to kick out 19 of 20 shots.

SCORE FIRST

Bruins went ahead on a power-play goal by Orland Kurtenbach but Mikita evened the score before the period closed. Bobby Hull put Chicago ahead with the only goal of the second period and Pierre Pilote's marker combined with Mikita's two more goals finished off Boston in the third.

Leo Boivin scored Boston's second goal in the third but it was too late to save Bruins, now winless in four outings and once again in the cellar with a single point for a tie.

Ken Wharram picked up an assist on each of Mikita's goals, leaving him a point behind his teammate in individual scoring honors. Mikita has five goals and four assists, the latter figure tops in the league.

Toronto moved into a second-place tie with Detroit by defeating Montreal 4-3 on Cassidens home ice, giving Toronto two wins against one loss in their three games.

SCORE STARS

The rough game was even until the 6:10 mark of the third when Toronto Tim Horton scored his first goal of the season and assisted on the clincher about three minutes later.

Maple Leafs opened the scoring with a goal by Dave Keon in the first and Montreal came back with a goal by Gilles Tremblay in the second period.

Bob Nevin again put Toronto ahead early in the third but this lead was quickly wiped out by Canadiens' Billy Hicks.

There were 18 penalties in the game, including a major to Dave Balon of Montreal for Charging. Red Kelly into the boards at the end of the first period. Kelly had five stitches taken for a cut over his right eye and did not return to the ice.

The loss, Canadiens' first after picking up a win and a tie in their first two games, dropped Montreal to fourth spot in league standings, one point behind Detroit and New York.

Houk Said Happy With 'New Name'

SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP) Ralph Houk broke into a big smile Wednesday, probably for the first time since the World Series.

Notified he had been voted American League Manager of the year in an Associated Press poll, the New York Yankees skipper commented:

"There sure have been a lot of people calling me anything but that."

Houk admitted that the honor came "as kind of a surprise" because his detractors have been having a field day since Los Angeles Dodgers swept the Series from the Yankees.

"The ball players made this possible," he said.

"We've got a real good ball club, and we're going to take a lot of beating next year before anyone takes the pennant away from us. Much that I have been reading about our club will be disproven next year."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Wanna Buy a Duck?"

Joe Penner, a radio comedian of the No;So-Roaring Thirties, made a million bucks out of that expression.

Charlie Dansberry of this city poses the same question, but at the moment is a long way from making his first million.

"Charlie is a woodcarver of international repute. He is also an artist in oils and an authority on hunting and fishing.

Charlie, the hunter and angler, specialises in ducks and fish of any type. It is a rare occasion when he comes home with an empty game-bag or creel.

When he drops his gun and rod and creel for the artist's brush, palette and canvas and woodcarver's tools, his forte is waterfowl, ducks preferred.

Charlie's wood-carving creations are works of sheer beauty. I saw six of them on display at the Fish and Game Club meeting the other night, and any moment I expected to see any one of these artistic delights move in their feathered glory.

He caught his models in various poses. The color and blending of color is artistic perfection.

He has caught the small drill color with blue head and wing patches and the white crescent on the face of the blue-winged teal. He has captured in entirety the distinctive face pattern and bright colored body plumage of the wood duck. True to life was the green head, white-ringed neck, reddish chest and bright blue wing-patch of the hen mallard.

"This work is the climax of fifty years of painting and carving," he said. "They are my escape. I try to produce both color-wise and body-wise the true physical features of these birds."

While his carving masterpieces are for sale, Charlie is retaining one of each breed. "With the rapid rate of mortality of some breeds of waterfowl," he says, "these might well become museum pieces."

Aiming at perfection, Charlie removes the skin of a model with feathers intact by some ingenious method. To get the proper flying or sitting poses, he puts on canvas three or more birds in flight, painting from memory.

Each carved creation must be letter perfect in color, pose and scale. When in the slightest detail he waits until open season, and shoots the model he wants. As was said everything must be perfect.

The ducks and other fowl are carved in white cedar or pine. It takes at least seventy-five hours of carving to produce a "duck in the rough." Then comes tedious hours of perfecting the physical attributes of the model.

It takes just as long to apply the delicate coloring. Here again Charlie demands perfection. He carefully studies the model. Color blending must be perfect. Ottimes two weeks flit by before he wipes his brushes after completion of awark.

"There is a marked difference in applying color to a wooden model than putting it on canvas," he says. "That is why the carving must be 100 per cent true to life."

The carved creations are valued at $100 each. Charlie has sold some of them but the market could be better.

Since he made his first decoy ("That was a massstrosity"), fifty years ago, Charlie has made a close study of ducks both hunting and artistic-wise. "I have shot more ducks than any man in this district," he says, "but I find carving and producing life-like models more to my taste."

There was an information "goof" in the story of Charlie's tenure as a commercial duck-hunter some fifty years ago. The story should have read "200-300" ducks per bag, not "2,000-2,300."

Epidemic Affects Horses

'Cambridgeshire Cough'

LONDON (CP)—They're calling it the "coughing Cambridgeshire."

With a coughing epidemic afflicting most British racing stables, the field for Saturday's Cambridgeshire, to be run over nine furlongs at Newmarket, is being trimmed rapidly.

Latest casualties of the cough include Ezrly to Rise, Executor, Mandamus and Zalucus. Both Early to Rise and Executor are rated "most unlikely" to run.

A late withdrawal, but not because of coughing, is the outsider Hindu Blewett. Spree, one of the early favorites, will run in a different race.

Hasty Cloud and Fair Astronomer remain the favorites for the Cambridgeshire, second half of the autumn double. The first half, the Cesarewitch, was won Oct. 5 by Utrillo, at 12½ to 1.

An Irish Sweepstakes is held on the Cambridgeshire.

DUBLIN (CP)—A coughing epidemic has cut in half the chances of a Canadian ticket-holder for making a killing on the Irish Sweepstakes.

But the lucky speculator still has one half of an apparently unprecedented double draw going for him in the big Cambridgeshire Handicap at Newmarket, England, Saturday.

Tickets drawn on Early to Rise and Cocky Boy are held by Ubald Bellefeuille of St. Francois de Sales, Que.

Early to Rise was one of 13 horses scratched Wednesday, most of them victims of coughing attacks. But Cocky Boy remained in the running as the field was whittled to 26 horses, smallest since the Second World War.

A total of 363 Canadians held tickets drawn on eligible horses.

First Time Outside Scotland

World Curling Set For Calgary

TORONTO (CP)—The four-country world curling championships will be held at Calgary next March 16-18, it was announced here Wednesday.

This marks the first time in its six-year history that the event will be held outside Scotland. Canada has won the competition each time, with the current champions being the Eric Richardson rink from Regina.

Formation of an international advisory council to be made up of representatives from the curling bodies from each of the competing countries — Canada, the United States, Scotland and Sweden—was also announced.

Canada's representative on the council is Colin Campbell of Toronto, chairman of the Dominion Curling Association's program committee and a past president of the DCA. The U.S. representative is Elmer Freytag of Chicago. Major Allan Cameron of Scotland is the Royal Caledonian Curling Club delegate. The Swedish member will be appointed later by the Swedish Curling Association.

The Richardson rink is a three-time winner of the competition, taking the honors in 1959, '60 and '62. Hec Gervais of Edmonton, the 1961 Canadian champion, also won the world title that year.

G. Chuvalo Buildup Under Way

TORONTO (CP)—Boxing promoter Frank Tunney said Wednesday he is attempting to line up an opponent for Toronto's George Chuvalo for a Nov. 18 or 19 bout at Maple Leaf Gardens here.

The Canadian heavyweight who defeated Mike Delohn in Miami 10 days ago, has indicated he would like a fight with British Empire heavyweight champion Henry Cooper for the title in November.

Ed Trotter, Chuvalo's aide, said this bout is unlikely to come off.

"They don't like to fight for that British Empire title outside of England. The chances of getting Cooper are pretty slim."

Trotter claims Chuvalo has been offered $100,000 to fight world champion Sonny Liston in Philadelphia.

"We turned that down last week," Trotter said. "George isn't ready for him yet."

In addition to Cooper, possible opponents mentioned by Chuvalo's group include Sonny Banks of Detroit and Tom McNeeley of Boston.

Each Dodger Series Loot Was$12,794

NEW YORK (AP) — Each member of Los Angeles Dodgers got a record $12,794 for flattening New York Yankees in four straight games in the 1963 World Series.

Cheques for $7,874.32 will go to each member of the defeated Yankees. Losing payoffs are records. The Dodgers split their melon in 32½ shares while the Yankees cut theirs in 35¾ slices.

Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, announced the sums Wednesday. In addition to the record payoffs, Frick said the series produced the first $1,000,000 pool for players. The gate receipts of $1,965,180.09 set a record for a four-game series.

Of this amount, $222,968.93 went for taxes.

Missed Triple Crown

Fatigue Robbed Big Hank

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Willie Mays, who complained that baseball is a tiring bit of business, has company. Milwaukee Braves' slugging Hank Aaron says he was exhausted at the end of the last season.

Aaron, who was named earlier in the week as baseball's slugging leader, also said Wednesday night he was not satisfied.

"Frankly, I'm disappointed I didn't win that triple crown the last year," said the Braves outfielder.

Aaron, who topped the sluggers with a .586 average on 370 total bases in 631 times at bat, also led the majors in runs batted in with 130. He tied San Francisco Giants' Willie McCovey for home run honors with 44 and finished in a tie with Dick Groat of St. Louis Cardinals for third place in the batting derby on a .319 average. He also stole 31 bases.

The batting crown went to the Los Angeles Dodgers' Willie Davis. But Aaron said that Davis had to win wasn't too impressive but I guess I had too much confidence in the end of the end."

Aaron said he thought that a good last month or even last week might get him the triple crown. "But I just couldn't shake loose. I got my one and two hits a game but never managed to get hot for three or better."

AFTER COLLAPSE

The fatigue factor in baseball was spotlighted when the Giants' Mays collapsed at the plate and had to be rested as the National League pennant race was being resolved. Aaron, who played in all but two of Milwaukee's 162 games, said he was just about exhausted at the end of the year and "my 33-ounce bat felt like 40 in the closing days."

Aaron said too much speed on the base paths could have hurt his bid for the triple crown.

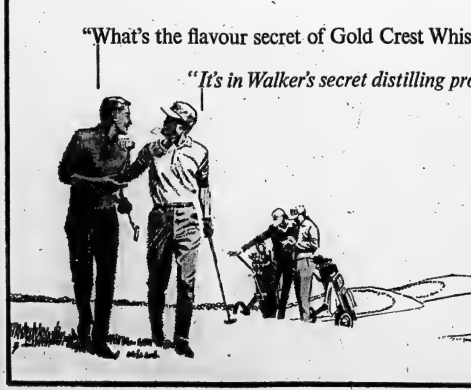
"All that running could have contributed to that tired feeling," Aaron said. "Next year I'm going to pace myself a little better."

Lone Bettor Collects $33,794.20

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—A record payoff for a $2 bet in Maryland was set at Bowie Race Course Wednesday when a lone bettor won $33,794.20 on the twin double.

The winner was not immediately identified, but was said to be from nearby Washington. He was seen in the clubhouse Wednesday wearing a big smile and waving the ticket for all to see.

The winning horses in Wednesday's payoff were Save Up, which paid $9 in the fifth race, Faulkesal, $23 in the sixth, Foolloose, $14.40 in the seventh and Cock of North at $11.80 in the eighth.



The highest return for a twin double payoff at a major thoroughbred track is the $31,225 paid at Atlantic City last Sept. 7.

Canada Ties With Australia

Commonwealth Golf

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) (Reuters)—Canada tied with Australia after a fluctuating struggle on the third day of the five-day Commonwealth team amateur golf tournament at the Royal Sydney Club today.

The two countries shared the three morning foursomes and each won three of the afternoon singles for an over-all tally of 4½ points each.

A missed putt from four feet by Keith Alexander of Calgary on the last green cost Canada victory. Alexander's ally came after he had staged a great recovery against Dennis Bell, who eventually won by one hole to retain Australia's unbeaten record.

Canada's record after three matches in the five - country tournament is: Won one, tied one, lost one.

The Canadians have broken even on points with a total of 13½ points gained, and the same number conceded.

New Zealand upset unbeaten South Africa four matches to three with two halved. Britain had a bye.

WESLOCK WINS

Canada's hero today was 46-year-old Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., who came from behind to defeat Australian star Kevin Donohoe by two holes. It was a brilliant match studded with birdies. Weslock finished with a two-under-par card.

The pair were square at the turn, and fortunes wavered on the homeward run before Weslock notched a birdie putt at the 15th hole to take the lead.

Canadian star Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., made a good start against Kevin Hartley and went 2 up after five holes, but then slumped and lost five of the next six holes in a disappointing sequence. Cowan, disconsolate with his form, eventually lost by 5 and 3.

Bill Wakeham of Victoria scored a good point for Canada by beating the Australian captain Phil Billings by one hole. He described it as "the tightest match I've ever played."

Bert Tieshurst of Vancouver, although 3 down at one stage, came home boldly to beat Australia's John Hood by one hole.

Junior B Turnout Encouraging

The Belleville Junior "B" hockey club held its initial workout of the year at Memorial Arena last night and according to coach Eddie Plata, "it was encouraging."

Approximately 30 hopefuls turned out for the practice, with some light skating and a lengthy scrimmage session the order of the evening.

Plata, who coached a Belleville junior club several years back, was quite pleased with the first turnout.

"They look big and appear to have lots of legs, although it is hard to tell too much at this stage," he said. "I am encouraged with what I see here tonight," he added, "and I expect the club to start shaping up after a couple more practices."

The team will practice again Friday night at nine o'clock and Sunday afternoon at one o'clock.

A number of players from last year's team were out last night, including a surprise, Stu Muirhead. Muirhead left to attend school in Ottawa a month ago, but has returned to a Belleville school and will play with the team. He was the club's leading scorer last season.

Team manager Mel Richards says he hopes to see Gary Duvall, Ted Rowland, Lyle Adams, Don Goodfellow, Gerry Jones, Bobby Ethier, Paul Paquin, Jim Rutherford, Norm Richards, Glen Hagerman and Billy Rushlow returning from last year, along with Muirhead. Most of these players were out last night while most of the others have voiced their intentions to play.

Included among the new faces trying out were: goalies Bob Moon and Doug Boomhower, both appearing sharp; Jerry St. Denis, Carl Boomhower, Gary McMillan, John McKib, Jim Woodcock, Wayne Woods and a number of other local youngsters, as well as a few from neighboring districts.

Richards stressed during the practice that all positions were wide open and extended an open invitation to players wishing to try for a spot.

Won't Block $6,000,000 Team Offer

DETROIT (AP) — Principal stockholders of Detroit Lions Inc. directed Wednesday they "don't see any hitch" that might block William Clay Ford's proposed purchase of the National Football League club for $6,000,000.

Ford's bid for complete ownership of the Lions came in a surprise move Tuesday at the Detroit Football Company's monthly board of directors' meeting. It was believed to be the largest cash bid ever made for a professional sports franchise.

Initial reaction from the Lions' directors indicated Ford—a member of the Ford automobile family and the Lions' president since 1961—would meet little opposition to the sale.

Dr. Lyle Fife, a Lions' director who headed the original seven - man syndicate that bought the club for $165,000 in 1934, greeted Ford's offer warmly.

His reaction appeared to be similar to that of several of the other 13 Lions' directors.

"I don't see any hitch," Fife said. "It would be a great thing for the city and the league."

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Reinsman Fred Goudreau of Dresden, Ont., piloted Our Way C. to victory in the seventh outing Wednesday night at Western Fair Raceway after coming to the virtual rescue just after rounding the first turn.

Rounding the turn, Goudreau's sulky locked wheels with that of Captain Frisco. Captain Frisco was steered off the track but Goudreau, although far back, set out after the leaders. Still in last place at the half-mile mark, Goudreau made his move at the three-quarter pole, moving a winner home for owner Russell Cox of Blenheim, Ont.

The feature race, a $500 dash, went to Superior Mary, owned and driven by Verne Soper of Vienna, Ont.

Combination payoffs were small, with the daily double returning $41.90 on Robert Lee Jr. and Sue Gratian.

Say Reds Back Lyon For Games

BADEN BADEN, West Germany — Lyon made a stout pitch Wednesday for the 1968 Olympic Games and there were rumors that the French city had the Communist bloc on its side.

Detroit, Buenos Aires and Mexico City are other leading candidates for the big international sports spectacle. The 1964 games will be held in Tokyo.

Michigan state Senator Kent Lundgren and Mrs. Mary Cavanagh, wife of Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, flew here to cheer on the Detroit efforts to land the Olympiad.

Lundgren said the Michigan legislature was ready "to put the wheels into action to allocate more than $100,000,000 for the Games" as soon as the Detroit bid was approved.

A check of the delegates disclosed that the powerful Communist group leaned more towards Lyon than any of the other candidates.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Farms' long striding chestnut colt Sound Stage charged up Woodbine's stretch Wednesday for a two-length win in the $11,775 Challenge Handicap, a 6½-furlong dash for specialized sprinters.

Robert Victor's Carroll County was second with Frowde Seagram's Windkin third.

Sound Stage paid $4.30, $2.50 and $2.10, Carroll County $2.90 and $2.50 while Windkin returned $2.60.

State Will Probe Ring Fatality

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Maryland state athletic commission begins its investigation today into the death of 26-year-old boxer Ernie Knox, who died of brain injuries after he was knocked out in the ninth round of a heavyweight bout Monday night.

The Baltimore heavyweight, an unemployed rail carrier, got $345 as his share of the purse for the 10-round event which was staged before a scant crowd of 800 in the Baltimore Coliseum. His death was the eighth boxing fatality of the year, and brought renewed cries from those seeking to outlaw the sport.

Councilman Leon A. Rubenstein, a Democrat from Baltimore's Fifth District, promised he would introduce legislation to ban boxing in Baltimore. He called the sport a throwback to the primitive age.

Even before Knox died, some 24 hours after he was knocked out by Wayne Bethea, a 31-year-old New Yorker, Mayor Theodore McKeldin promised he would "do everything in my power to prevent professional boxing at the Civic Center," Baltimore's new, multi-million-dollar arena for sporting and civic events.

Knox, a 178-pound boxer who was named Ring magazine's "promising fighter of the month" after he won his first five professional fights in 1958, died four hours after emergency brain surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of Canada's big lines exploded for eight points in Wednesday night's National Hockey League action and all three players figure in the big seven scoring leaders.

Centre Stan Mikita whacked three goals past Boston goalie Ed Johnston in Black Hawks 5-2 victory on home ice to take over the individual scoring lead as well as the individual goal-getting honors.

The performance gave Mikita nine points on five goals and four assists, two points ahead of linemate Ken Wharram, who assisted on all three goals, moving from last place in the big seven to second spot with two previous goals and his league-leading five assists.

Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion went pointless in Canadiens' 4-2 loss to Toronto on home ice and slipped from leader to third place with six points.

The other key figure in the big Chicago line, Ab McDonald, assisted on two of Mikita's goals and moved into a tie for fourth slot in the big seven. He shares the position with Chicago's Bobby Hull, who scored another Black Hawk goal Wednesday night as well as Montreal's John Ferguson and Jean Beliveau who were held pointless. Hull and Ferguson's five points are made up of three goals and two assists while Beliveau and McDonald have a goal and four assists.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Mikita, Chicago	5	4	9
Wharram, Chicago	2	5	7
Geoffrion, Montreal	3	3	6
Hull, Chicago	3	2	5
Ferguson, Montreal	3	2	5
Beliveau, Montreal	1	4	5
McDonald, Chicago	1	4	5

WINS EASILY

BOSTON (AP) — Cain Joy Stables' Never Bend scored a four-length triumph in the $50,000 - added Yankee Handicap Wednesday. Dean Carl was runner-up while Quest Link took show over the Kentucky Derby winner, Chateaugay, in a photo. Never Bend sped the 1¼ miles in 1:49 and returned $6.40, $3.00, $2.80.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Dave Steen is a studious, dedicated young man with the laudable ambition to become the world's best shot-putter. If he keeps at it, and there's no reason he shouldn't, he could be a medal winner for Canada in the 1964 Olympic Games at Tokyo.

He has all the attributes.

He has an alert mind. He has meticulously studied the form of the great shot-put men of the world, particularly Parry O'Brien of the United States, and he has the physical characteristics to put him with the best in the world.

A native of Burnaby, B.C. he's a brush-cut 21-year-old and his 220 pounds are well distributed over a six-foot-four-inch frame.

Now, this serious, quiet and well-mannered young man has gone completely out of character with the things he is quoted as saying in the current issue of Maclean's Magazine. Since his return home from the 1962 British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, last December, he apparently has developed a chip on his shoulder.

When he starts throwing, anybody is likely to get hit.

ATTACKS OFFICIALS

Steen's pitch is against the Amateur Athletic Union, Canadian Olympic Association, British Empire Games Association officials and a number of people he doesn't identify who work for amateur sport, specifically track and field, in Canada.

The substance of those "as told to" yarns—has made some good points about track and field in Canada. But, it is off base on some others.

It says that equipment at Canadian track meets has been inadequate, that officiating was "always poor," and that organization of meets has been haphazard. Just about any AAU, Olympic or British Empire Games official will agree there.

"There's a basis for some of the things the article says," admits Ken Twigg of Toronto, national chairman of the AAU track and field committee. "We've been working for years trying to improve things, with little or no money at our disposal, and I think track athletes generally in Canada will agree we have made big strides.

"Sure, we have a way to go. But we are getting there."

CHARGES CHEATING

The article, without mentioning names, quotes Steen as saying he has seen cheating on record forms, judges "witnessing" events they hadn't attended. He is quoted also as saying he once lost a Canadian record because "the head official told me through an alcoholic haze that I had to forfeit my throw because I'd started to move in the throwing circle."

The article does say that track and field is on the move in Canada but adds that "some of the old rot still lingers.

Steen, who finished third in the shot-put at Perth, is quoted as saying the "bigwigs" (team officials) there "had good intentions, I suppose, but no understanding of the athletes or their needs."

The article went on to say that the track team manager (Twigg) "slept while our three pole vaulters competed."

He's wrong there. Twigg was at the stadium.

TWIGG PUZZLED

The article further chastised Twigg, by implication, for permitting sprinter Harry Jerome to compete at Perth, despite an attack of tonsilitis. It says:

"The badgers did not aid his cause. They put pressure on him by statements to the press not to 'let Canada down.' Even the team manager relaxed such quotes as, 'Harry Jerome is the greatest sprinter in history. He will certainly be a Games winner.'"

Not much wrong there, Jerome, who suffered a leg injury and finished last in the final of the 100 yards, was co-holder of both the world 100-yard and 100-metre records.

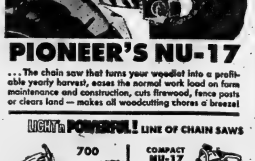
Twigg is puzzled by the whole article.

"I just don't know what could have happened to Steen. Maybe he's been working too hard—developing muscles between his ears."

Reds Stung By Hornets In Opener

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Hornets, sparked by Charlie Laforge's three goals, walloped Providence Reds 8-2 Wednesday night in their home opener of the American Hockey League season.

Laforge, who was out of action most of last season with a dislocated shoulder, rammed home a goal in the first period and scored twice more in the second period.



The Hornets actually got all their goals in the third period but first period when they took a 3-0 lead on Laforge's goal and assists by Bob Dillabough and Louis Marcon.

Marcon scored again in the second while George Ranieri knocked home the first of his two goals for Providence. His other goal came in the third period but Yves Lorais and Henderson scored a goal each in the frame to round out the victory for Pittsburgh.

VAULTER RECOVERING

SEATTLE (AP)—Pole vaulter Brian Sternberg, paralyzed in a trampoline accident July 2, now can move his arms and sit up for brief periods in a wheel chair. Doctors, however, still are reluctant to forecast complete recovery.

"For the Lack of A Team"

Efforts were made to reorganize the Bay of Quinte Basketball League at a meeting held at the Trenton air station last night.

Three clubs have voiced their intentions of entering but right now the loop is seeking a fourth entry to keep the league operating.

The withdrawal of the class Trenton Wilson team and the lack of a Belleville club has put the league on the spot.

Trenton Wilsons are attempting to organize a stronger club from this district to take part in O.B.A. playdowns. Wilsons are seeking top players from the RCAF and Belleville teams. If the plan succeeds, Wilsons will not take part in the Quinte loop but will hold practices and play exhibition games until playdowns.

The RCAF, Cobourg and Picton Army Camp have announced they will have entries if the Bay of Quinte league can secure a fourth entry.

There is a good chance that one team will be organized in Belleville. Anyone wishing to play, coach or manage that team is asked to contact Don Smith.

If a league operates, the teams will be allowed to use two players from the Trenton Wilsons during league play. A four-team loop would play a 12-game schedule, each club seeing action once a week.

Another league meeting has been called for the RCAF Recreation Centre on Tuesday, October 29, at eight o'clock. If a fourth team is not entered at that time, the league will likely be forced to fold.

Here's our 1964 Rambler American— completely re-designed and still the lowest-priced Canadian-built car

Just look at the '64 Rambler American! It's the best thing that's happened to compact cars since we started the trend 13 years ago.

All new from roadway to roofline, the '64 American features Rambler's exclusive Uniside construction. The entire sides of the car have been stamped out of single sheets of steel. It means greater strength, longer life, doors that fit perfectly.

A longer wheel-base is another new feature of the 1964 Rambler American. Now there's plenty of room for six full-grown men, improved suspension for greater riding comfort, minimum exterior dimensions for handling and parking ease.

To top it off, the 1964 American has been re-designed from its extruded aluminum grill to its 22 cubic feet of trunk space. Lower overall height, curved glass windows, new interior fittings, and fresh-from-the-drawing-board styling makes the 1964 American one of the best-looking cars on the road.

And under that smart new hood is a 6-cylinder engine that's the talk of the industry. It's famous for dependability, wins economy runs with ease, has power enough to make highway driving fun. (For extra performance, specify the optional 125 hp overhead valve engine. It's available on all models.)

Add up the many famous Rambler features—the world's best rust-proofing, guaranteed Ceramic-Armoured muffler system, guaranteed battery and coolant, battery-saving alternator, self-adjusting Double-Safety-brakes, reclining seats, 3-year or 30,000-mile lubrication, and 2-year or 24,000-mile warrantee on the entire car. One thing is clear: the 1964 Rambler American continues the well-known Rambler philosophy of "maximum usefulness to the user." Prove it to yourself with a test drive. Tomorrow?

SOMETHING TO DO SATURDAYS—Jerry Lewis, 37-year-old comedian who is already a spectacular success in other entertainment fields, was asked why he agreed to undertake a two-hour live show on television. His reply was that he likes work and likes audiences and that "I go stark raving mad on Saturday nights when I haven't anything to do." (CP Photo)

Jerry Lewis Runs TV Show Because He Likes to Work And Be Busy on Saturday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jerry Lewis is 37, a top comedy star whose motion pictures rate as box office hits; a sellout attraction on the nightclub circuit; a millionaire businessman whose interests include a successful Sunset Strip nightclub, and owner of a Bel Air mansion containing—among other items —17 bathrooms. He's happily married and has five sons.

Lewis, obviously, has no compelling financial reason to expand into television on the basis of a weekly two-hour show. As far as his career is concerned, he stands to lose stature if the programs fail to please. Even if they are a success, there's a question whether audiences will be eager to buy movie tickets to see a performer who is visible for free two hours every Saturday night.

Why, then, is Jerry Lewis tackling the enormous job of putting on a weekly live television program?

"I like to work. I like audiences," says the tall, lanky performer. "And, to tell you the truth, I go stark raving mad on Saturday nights when I haven't anything to do."

TAKES CHARGE

Jerry, whose comedy style and high-pitched whine are indisputably his own, reminds show business veterans of two other comedians in the way he takes over as field marshal of his projects.

In the old, golden days, Milton Berle was not only star of his own television show but moved around taking over the director's chores, writing some of the lines, directing the orchestra and sometimes acting as producer. Jackie Gleason, too, is likely to step in and take over when the spirit moves him.

"I've got to do everything by my own taste," says Lewis earnestly. "I've got to be governed by my own instincts."

Lewis is a complicated mixture of clown and student, of arrogance and humility, of ham and artistry. When success came, he bought the lavish L. B. Mayer estate. But his proudest possessions are the intricate pieces of electronic equipment that snake all through the place. Among his hobbies are making 16-millimetre home movies and flipping switches by which he can talk to almost any room of his house.

APPEARS LIVE

His usual comedy bits, in which he shuffles and looks stupid, have led some to accuse him of imitating the physical and mental disabilities of the less fortunate. He resents the suggestion fiercely. His favorite charity is the muscular dystrophy association, for which he has raised millions of dollars.

In some of his maddest moments of comedy, he rips off his tie, sometimes his coat, and is likely to squirt soda water at a foil, throw food and generally reduce a stage to wreckage.

Lewis's initial program was hardly an unqualified success. There were long aria periods when Lewis himself seemed to be hunting for a spark.

But the two hours were live—the rarest thing in commercial television these days—and that very fact gave the program an air of unpredictability. It is the kind of show, without any noticeable format, that may take several weeks to find itself. After all, it took Jack Paar a year or more to really get his old live, late evening show rolling.

FOLLOWED FATHER

Undoubtedly much of Lewis's drive and ambition goes back to his childhood. He was born Joseph Levitch in Newark, N.J. His father (whose stage name is Danny Lewis) is an entertainer.

Jerry started in his parent's act playing a borsch circuit hotel, at the age of five. From age 11 on, he had part-time jobs but really broke into show business when working as a bellhop at a Catskill Mountain summer hotel. He dressed in crazy clothes and pantomimed songs played on an off-stage phonograph. He was still doing this sort of thing when, in 1946, he teamed with Dean Martin. They were an overnight success.

They broke up in 1956, and Lewis still carries some ill-healed wounds from the parting, but both men have done well as singles.

Wellington Plans to Put Artificial Ice in Arena

WELLINGTON — In 1931 a group of residents of the village of Wellington and the surrounding rural area constructed a covered skating rink. To finance this project they formed the Wellington Arena Company Limited, a non-profit organization whose object was to construct and operate a skating rink to provide winter recreation as cost for the young people of the district.

How well this object has been realized is demonstrated by the fact that after 32 years the operating account shows a debit balance of only $704.08. At the same time the building has not been neglected. A professional engineer who examined it this summer found it in excellent condition.

During the 32 year period no child to has been deprived of skating because he could not afford to pay admission and organized hockey has been provided for all who were interested from the youngest boys up. Wellington hockey teams have made a good showing in the O.M.H.A. playdowns every year since the war and finally in 1962 a Wellington team won the O.M.H.A. Ontario Bantam "D" Championship and last spring our team won the O.M.H.A. Juvenile "D" Championship of Ontario.

This summer a committee of district residents was formed to raise funds and install artificial ice in the arena. Various draws and sales have been conducted and the Arena Company has authorized the committee to sell additional shares to help finance this project. To date well on $8,000.00 has been raised.

Through the good offices of a former Wellington resident the committee purchased used ice making equipment. Mr. Douglas Clark, an engineer experienced in the installation of artificial ice in skating rinks, will supervise the work. Plans have been drawn and a building to house the refrigeration equipment is being constructed.

With the exception of the engineer's fee, all labor to construct the building and install the equipment as well as trucks and machinery to draw gravel and prepare the drainage bed for the freezing pipe will be donated. In this manner it is expected that the plant can be purchased and installed for $15,000.

The sale of stock is proceeding very satisfactorily, but to reach the objective the support of persons, corporations and organizations interested in the promotion of sports and the welfare of young people is needed.

Cheques for donations should be made payable to the Wellington Artificial Ice Committee; applications for shares should be made payable to Wellington Arena Company Limited; both should be addressed to Mr. Thomas Nash, Secretary - Treasurer, Wellington Artificial Ice Committee, Wellington, Ontario.

E. P. Taylor Tabbed By Hoaxer

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—There was a ringer for E. P. Taylor around on Thanksgiving Day, it has been revealed here.

Evan McGugan, manager of Western Fair Raceway, told of the hoax Wednesday.

It started when he received a telegram bearing the name of the Toronto industrialist and horse breeder Monday stating that four chartered buses would be available at Toronto's Woodbine Track at the close of the afternoon program, ready to take fans to London for the night harness racing program.

McGugan decided to check. He called Woodbine and spoke to publicity director Trent Frayne. Frayne checked with the bus company and was told that a caller identifying himself as E. P. Taylor had ordered the buses and they were on the way.

Frayne had the track announcer tell the crowd the buses were available. The buses arrived at Woodbine.

FLIES HIMSELF

McGugan also arrived, by private plane, after deciding he would hustle some London race programs to Toronto for those fans who wanted to make the free trip.

But a check into the situation showed that there had been no authority given the bus company for the charter. The drivers headed back to the garage.

There wasn't any real harm done," McGugan commented. "It was a lovely day and I didn't mind spending the time in the airplane."

Union Official Claims False Advertising

KINGSTON (CP)—The president of the Kingston and District Labor Council (CLC) ordered a special meeting Tuesday night into accusations that Kingston Shipyards Limited misdeeds its workers and uses misleading advertisements.

Council President Daniel Cross said a committee would study the charges and report back to the executive committee before its November meeting.

Kenneth Hulse, secretary-treasurer of the council, accused the firm of advertising for 15 workers when it only needs 10. "Apparently a yeoman is available for three weeks when there is only enough for one week."

The shipyard is owned by Canada Steamship Lines Limited.

AT THE BELLE — Last Day — The night-shirted Spencer family is beaming evidence of why the Warner Bros. glowing romantic drama, "Spencer's Mountain", Father's Day picture of the year. Grouped around their screen parents (Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara), James MacArthur and Mimsy Farmer are the romantic interest in the story. Magnificent in Panavision Technicolor, "Spencer's Mountain" is showing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE PARK — Jerry Lewis is captured by a die-hard Japanese soldier who doesn't know the war is over in "Don't Give Up the Ship" which opens tonight at the Park Theatre. Appearing with it on the same bill is another Jerry Lewis favorite, "Rock-A-Bye Baby" in Technicolor. Co-starring with Jerry in these comedies are Dina Merrill, Connie Stevens, Marilyn Maxwell, Mickey Shaughnessy and Hans Conried.

Oscar Winner, Ed Begley, Can Now Choose His Parts

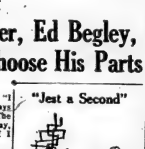
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I never lacked for work," says oscar winner Ed Begley. "The difference now is that I can say, 'Okay, I'll take the part—if I can do it my way.'"

What a difference an oscar makes. And few oscars have won such warm approval in Hollywood as the one given last April to Begley for his role as the sadistic political boss in Sweet Bird Of Youth.

Begley is a self-made professional who can do and has done almost everything. One night on Broadway he played William Jennings Bryan to Paul Muni's Clarence Darrow in I Inherit the Wind. The following matinee he played Darrow and won the applause of critics, who had been invited without his knowledge.

"I would have been scared to death if I had known," said Begley.



Now he's cavorting through a song-and-dance role in The Unsinkable Molly Brown, even though he hasn't done anything musical since the 1930s when he appeared briefly in a vaudeville dance act.

Begley plays Debbie Reynolds' rough-and-ready pa and it's the kind of part he has been plunking for.

"When I played that mean old boss in Sweet Bird, it kind of came easy to me and people seemed to like it," he said. "I started getting more meaty parts, and that worried me. Was I really like that? I don't think so. That's why I want to do comedy for a while. I'm not really a mean guy."

TORCH SONG

Judy Garland credits Sophie Tucker with having taught her how to deliver a torch song.

"Jest a Second"

"If you keep stopping to look at things—we'll NEVER get round this exhibition."

Beverly Hillbillies Still On Top in Nielsen Ratings

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The television network that this year calls itself the new ABC started an ambitious educational project Wednesday night—a history of western civilization.

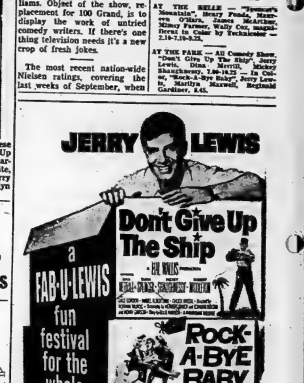
The first show, one of four, was concerned with the discovery of America. To set the scene producer - narrator - writer John Secondari took the first half of the program for a short course on the Italian Renaissance.

It was a laudable effort but the program came on late and proved rather self - consciously cultural, wordy and soporific. The series would do much better in an early evening or Sunday afternoon spot.

The panel of comedians who will kick off ABC's Laughs for Sale next Sunday includes Mickey Rooney and Cara Williams. Object of the show, replacement for 100 Grand, is to display the work of untried comedy writers. If there's one thing television needs it's a new crop of fresh jokes.

The most recent nation-wide Nielsen ratings, covering the last weeks of September, when most new shows were being launched has Beverly Hillbillies still on top, followed by Bonanza, Ed Sullivan, Red Skelton and Petticoat Junction in that order. Of the new shows only Petticoat Junction and Imogene Coca's Grindl made the top 10.

Producers of Route 66 and George Maharis, who quit the show in the middle of last season, have settled their differences out of court. Maharis now can make TV appearances.



Recommended tonight:

Suspense Theatre, NBC, 10-11 EDT—Part II of The Case Against Paul Ryker, court drama with a Korean War background.

His Objective to Wipe Out Financial Ignorance That Causes Family Misery

By GERARD McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Andre Laurin is an intense young man whose undergraduate features may become as familiar to Quebecers this winter as Real Cloutte's.

Mr. Laurin's objective is to wipe out the financial ignorance that causes family misery and acts and a brake on the economy.

He is not only going to tell the buyer to beware but he is going to illustrate in detail what he should beware of.

Yet he is no fiery-eyed crusader.

At heart, he is a gentleman farmer; by heritage, a department store tycoon.

He was raised in the posh suburb of Sillery, son of a wealthy physician. The family owned a large Quebec City department store which still thrives.

Andre made the rounds with his father of poor homes and the contrast between his own life and that of his father's charity patients was etched on his mind.

PREFERS FARMING

As a youth, he worked on his uncle's farm and his chosen vocation was farming.

He took an arts degree at Laval University, then went on to the University of Montreal to study poultry-raising. For eight happy years he operated a plutocrat's farm in the shadow of the Laurentians at nearby Valcartier.

In his spare time, he organized a credit union and advised troubled neighbors on financial problems.

The turning point in his life came in 1954, when tuberculosis forced him to give up the farm. He recuperated at his father's home, married his wife Gabrielle and they honeymooned in Cuba in 1955.

He recalls the hatred of the people for the Batista government and the Americans.

When he returned to Quebec City, he spent the next six years in the family department store, learning the intricacies of the retail trade. He became a director when his father died in 1958.

UNHAPPY IN BUSINESS

The department store and his present employer, the Confederation of National Trade Unions, waged a bitter fight in the early over the compulsory check-off of union dues.

The store won in Quebec Superior Court but the decision was reversed in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Andre was never quite happy in the store.

"The only question in business is to make money. The condition of the employees doesn't count."

In 1961, he sold his share to his uncle and on the advice of J. Edgar Cuoy, deputy minister of Quebec's family and social welfare department, joined the CNTU.

He is paid a modest salary of $6,000 yearly by the union group and the Federation des Caisses-Populaires Desjardins.

He has developed a detailed program to educate families in the use of their funds and will present it on television during the winter. Meanwhile, he is training monitors to carry the program into parish halls throughout Quebec.

LIVES MODESTLY

Making money isn't his object. Showing people how to use it is.

"Somebody had to help them," he says.

He practises what he preaches, living modestly. He is a non-smoker and drinks rarely.

He has just bought a little bungalow for his wife and six-year-old daughter Marie.

Politically he is an ardent socialist. Sweden is his ideal and he feels Canada would benefit from a similar blend of socialism and capitalism.

"I'm a practising socialist and a practising Roman Catholic," he asserts. "They aren't incompatible."

Meanwhile, he has found a way to satisfy his heart's desire. He operates a small red pine tree farm at Valcartier.

When not busy at his office, the spare, energetic Andre Laurin is at Valcartier nursing the trees. The neighbors still come to him for advice.

BUDDING TV STAR—Andre Laurin, who learned the retail trade while working in the family department store in Quebec City, will become familiar to Quebec television viewers this winter. He'll appear weekly on a network of private stations to tell families how to handle their finances and stay out of the clutches of credit sharks. The Confederation of National Trade Unions and Federation des Caisses-Populaires (credit unions) Desjardins will sponsor the series. (CP Photo)

HITS DRINKING DRIVERS

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Police Chief James Mackay says he will recommend to the Ontario Legislature that all drivers charged with drinking lose their licences if they refuse to take a breath test. He said in an interview Wednesday that Saskatchewan is the only province with such a provision to forfeit his licence if he refuses to take a breath test to indicate the amount of alcohol consumed.

Ever Hear of a "DIURETIC"?

Maybe not. But you should know what a "diuretic" does. There may be times when you need one. You likely understand how important the kidneys are in maintaining good health. Also that if the kidneys fail to function properly excess acids and toxic material remain in the system. This may result in backache, rheumatic pains, nervousness and bladder discomfort, often followed by headache, tired feeling and disturbed rest.

This is when the diuretic service of Dodd's Kidney Pills may be helpful. Dodd's act as a diuretic or stimulant to help restore normal kidney action, and so relieve the sykemic condition causing backache and tired feeling. When you are bothered by backache and tired feeling due to lazy kidney action you can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills to work wonders. Thousands have done during the past 70 years. Look for Dodd's at any drug counter. 42

Ordinary Canadians Become Canada's Major Creditors By Purchase of Saving Bonds

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Ordinary Canadians not only elect the federal government; increasingly they're becoming one of its major creditors. Sometimes in the process they even get to be capitalists.

These are two of the changes wrought by a decision made 17 years ago, in the aftermath of war, to give Canadians the opportunity to continue their wartime habit of putting their savings into government securities.

The method, chosen in 1946, was through annual issues of Canada Savings Bonds.

In the first few years the public's holdings of the new bonds grew slowly. By the end of 1952 they amounted to $1,250,000,000 —eight per cent of total federal bond debt.

At the beginning of 1963, Canadians had $4,625,000,000 tucked away in savings bonds. This was nearly 25 per cent of the government's total bond debt. Virtually all of it was owed to individuals—an estimated 2,000,000 Canadians—in contrast to the banks and corporations who hold most of the other forms of government bonds.

1962 WAS RECORD

During the last decade, the annual two - month fall sales campaigns in October-November have attracted an average $600,000,000 in new savings into savings bond investments. Last year this jumped to a record $818,000,000.

How has all this affected individual bond buyers?

Officials in charge of bond sales have many stories of Canadians who began with a couple of hundred dollars worth of bonds and eventually built up a stake of several thousands—enough to launch into a new role as landlords or operators of their own small businesses.

There are stories of new Canadians from central Europe who had been forced in their homelands to buy bonds but who, in their new land, happily seized the chance to invest voluntarily in the effort to establish themselves.

However, officials see an even deeper significance for the economy as a whole in the savings bond program.

KEEP INTEREST DOWN

The savings bonds, they say, have tapped an immense new source of savings that would not otherwise be available on the capital market. If these funds were not mobilized in this way, interest rates would be considerably higher as governments and other bond borrowers sought to raise money in a smaller capital market.

Before the Second World War, the average Canadian rarely got a chance to invest in federal bonds. Government bond issues were quickly snapped up by corporate investors. Even a single bond was in a denomination too large for the ordinary man.

The war changed all this. There was, of course, a vast increase in federal borrowing to finance the war effort. But there was also the economic necessity of freezing much of the disposable income in the hands of consumers in order to dampen upward pressures on prices.

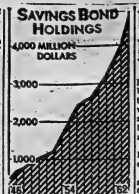
These were the reasons behind the wartime Victory bonds, the compulsory savings linked to income tax collections, and the war savings certificates that could be bought for $4—or up to $400—to yield $5 or $500 in 7½ years.

WANTED BY PUBLIC

The post-war question for the government was whether Canadians wanted to continue this savings habit, and in what form. To get the answers, a survey-in-depth was carried out, with some 10,000 persons questioned in interviews lasting two hours or longer.

The survey found a large public demand for bonds could be tapped. The choice was 15 to 1 in favor of a coupon bond, redeemable at a fixed value, in preference to a discount security similar to the war savings certificates.

That was how Canada Savings Bonds began.



Since then, about four-fifths of the savings bonds have been sold for cash. But the largest sales effort has come into the payroll savings plan under which employees buy bonds through payroll deductions spread over the year.

Nine out of 10 large corporations provide facilities for this payroll plan. One in three of their employees, on the average, signs up for a bond. The average purchase is $350. Last year a record 275,000 individuals bought bonds this way.

Normally, total sales of any one year's savings bond issue greatly exceed the net amount of cash raised by the government. This is because many people cash in older bonds to take advantage of better terms of a new issue.

This turnover of old bonds for new was especially notable in last year's issue, when total sales were a record $1,200,000,000, due in large part to the record high interest yield of 5.11 per cent over the 14-year life of the bonds. This year's issue offers 3.03 per cent over 12 years.

There are no firm figures available on how many bonds are held to maturity and how many are cashed in order to make some purchase or meet some unexpected expense. At the end of August, 90 per cent of last year's bond issue was still in the hands of the savers.

MAJOR CREDITORS — Ordinary Canadians are becoming one of the governments major creditors through Canada Savings Bonds. At the beginning of 1963, Canadians had $4,625,000,000 tucked away in savings bonds, nearly 25 per cent of the government's total bond debt. Nearly all of it was owed to individuals, an estimated 2,000,000 Canadians.

Graph shows savings bond holdings at the end of each year from 1946 to 1962.

U. S. Establishing Wildlife Refuge in Remote Valley

CRAIG, Colo., (AP)—An isolated, remote valley where the United States government is establishing a wildlife refuge once was the stamping ground of some of the west's most celebrated outlaws—Butch Cassidy and the Wild Bunch.

It is Brown's Park — or Brown's Hole, as the old timers call it.

The spot is a green valley, still sparsely settled, along the Green River in extreme northwest Colorado. It is near the junction of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming and is at the upper end of Ladore Canyon, a spectacular but little-known chasm on the river. The park country lies about 25 miles south of the new Flaming Gorge Dam and just north of Dinosaur National Monument.

Surrounding the green valley are rough, rolling hills dotted with sagebrush.

Cassidy and such storied companions as Kid Curry, Blackjack Ketchum, the Sundance Kid and Ben Kilpatrick, known as the Tall Texan, used Brown's Hole as one of their hideouts between train stickups, bank robberies and cattle rustling forays in the late 1890s and early 1900s. The gang's depredations encompassed the west.

The valley was a stop on the so-called Outlaw Trail from Wyoming to Mexico, where stolen cattle were moved beyond reach of the law.

Other rustlers used the valley, too, and often stayed at the isolated ranches.

The U.S. Migratory Bird Conservation Commission has announced it is establishing the refuge on 8,267 acres in the territory.

The area is expected to produce 10,000 ducks and 1,000 geese yearly and to provide nesting grounds for 40,000 ducks and 2,000 geese during migration periods.

The great basin Canada goose, threatened with extinction, already nests in the area.

Hunters long have known the spot as a paradise for shooting not only birds but antelope and small game.

SIU Members Ordered To Start Leaving Ships

Prepare for Protest March on Ottawa

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) have been instructed to start leaving their ships at noon today in preparation for a protest march on Ottawa Monday.

In Ottawa demonstrations will be staged in front of the Parliament Buildings to protest passage of legislation placing Canadian maritime unions under a federal trusteeship for three years. The legislation was approved by the Senate Thursday night and now awaits royal assent.

There was no indication of how long the protest would last. Nothing in the instructions ordered the men to return to their ships after the Ottawa demonstrations.

The instructions to the members were sent by the seamen's rights committee, operating from SIU headquarters in Montreal.

SIU leaders declined to comment on plans for the march. One union source said the men "are simply taking advantage of clause in SIU collective bargaining agreements which entitles seamen to leave their ships to take care of legal problems ashore.

The federal legislation, cause of sharp conflict between the Canadian and United States governments, would place Canadian maritime unions under control of three trustees.

More than 95 per cent of all Canadian-flag shipping, including fishing, pleasure, barges, dredges, tugs and ferries, could be affected by the protest march. The SIU mans practically everything afloat in Canadian waters, with the exception of ships of Upper Lakes Shipping Limited.

FEAR CONTROL

Instructions to the SIU members said that the government's trusteeship legislation will place the trustees "in full control of the union's properties, assets, finances, membership and contracts.

"It will make us virtual slaves under government trusteeship with dictatorial and unlimited powers. It will put us in the same position as workers in Russia, Germany, China and Cuba.

"The crews of the vessels have in meetings on all ships resolved to exercise their rights as Canadian citizens by going to Ottawa at a designated time for the purpose of making their representation to their individual members of Parliament."

The instructions said SIU members are to assemble before Parliament at noon Monday. Crew members were to travel to the capital by whatever transportation was available. If they could not arrange transportation, some would be forced to obtain union halls across the country.

TOLD TO LEAVE

"No SIU ship shall sail from any port or harbor after 12 noon Friday, Oct. 18," said the instructions. "Any member on any ship must leave by 12 noon on Friday, Oct. 18, shall have his name removed from making arrangements to go to Ottawa. This instruction shall apply only to ships due to sail at noon or later on Friday.

"SIU members on ships remaining in port for Friday and Saturday shall leave their ships at 8 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 19, precisely under arrangements for the trip to Ottawa."

The crews were instructed to see that their ships are safely moored before they go ashore.

The instructions said: "This shall be a peaceful and responsible representation to our elected representatives at Ottawa. Absolutely no liquor, noisy or unlawful behavior will be tolerated during the course of this undertaking. Anybody

'Conscript' Advocates Simonds

OTTAWA (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the army general staff in 1951-55, said Thursday he still believes Canada should have compulsory military service.

He told the Commons defence committee he feels a minimum compulsory period of 18 months in the regular forces should be followed by a compulsory period of two to three years in the militia.

He said in reply to questions by J. Chester MacRae (PC—York-Sunbury) that responsibility for the "high feelings" generated by this issue rested more with English - speaking than French-speaking Canadians.

In the past, some English-speaking Canadians had advocated conscription as one means of making French-speaking Canadians "more virile."

French - speaking Canadians were mostly well girdled as to the subject. There was no finer soldier than the French-speaking Canadian soldier.

COULD HELP JOBLESS

Gen. Simonds also said conscription could be used to help alleviate the unemployment situation.

In boom times when demand for manpower was high, the length of service for compulsory service could be lowered. In slack times, it could be extended.

At another point, Gen. Simonds said most of the work of the chiefs of staff committee is a "waste of time."

The chiefs had a tendency to steer away from subjects which might be unpalatable or difficult.

"In my experience," he said, "the difficult and embarrassing problems never get up from the bottom of the basket."

Gen. Simonds said the chairman of the chiefs of staff committee should be chief of staff to the defence minister. The big problem now was to get advice through the chiefs to the minister.

DER CRITICIZED

The Defence Research Board was "too pedestrian." It should be making long-range forecasts of future developments instead of trying to make "minor perfections in items of equipment."

Gen. Simonds advocated a tri-service force of some 15,000 men for peacekeeping as Canada's best military contribution.

Canada should have a military organization similar to the United States Marine Corps—mobile and able to meet "brushfire" situations for NATO or the United Nations.

No consistent, long-term defence policy has ever laid down by government in the post-war years. As a result, each of the services struggled to create a role for itself.

The government should tell the services what their role is to be and how to carry it out.

Gen Simonds said one type of uniform would not be necessary for a tri-service force. Diversity had its advantages, such as in the army's regimental system.

The witness before the committee also met briefly with Gen. Charles Foulkes, former chairman of the chiefs of staff committee.

Nothing Resolved In Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Shoving aside some of the top public business of the session, the Commons spent a full day Thursday in an embittered, acrimonious wrangle over who is to sit where.

Despite extended hours — voted for on the grounds that more time is needed to clean up national affairs — practically nothing was resolved. The debate resumes today.

At the centre was Real Caouette, demanding on the basis of democracy and justice that he and his 12 breakaway Creditistes be seated as a group in a separate and superior position to the remaining 11 members of the Social Credit party under Robert Thompson.

Cries from the majority," he exhorted the House. "Reconcize it. That's all we ask." He was the voluble Caouette of old, with a fire and flourish that gave no hint of a recent illness.

He accused the Liberals of refusing formal recognition of his group because Mr. Thompson had promised unconditional support for the Liberals at the next election. Mr. Thompson, in turn, hurled a desk with his former deputy party leader, denied it.

REPORT AT STAKE

At stake was the report of the House committee on privileges and elections which, on the basis of seniority rather than numerical strength, recommended seating the Creditistes in this order on the Speaker's left.

First, the Conservatives—the official Opposition party. Then the New Democratic Party, followed by the Social Credit "party" led by Mr. Thompson and finally—in the far corner by the Liberals, who would be the 17 New Democrats—the "group" led by Mr. Caouette.

As for privileges in debate and on other procedure for the Caouette group, the committee recommended that this be referred to parliamentary law counsel Dr. Maurice Ollivieres, who in his 40 years as a law clerk has never been asked to rule on a thing.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) moved an amendment that would kill the committee report and instruct the committee to make a second report granting the Creditistes ahead of the Thompson group—and the NDP ahead of both.

Conservative Davie Fulton later added to this a sub-amendment that would wipe out the reference to privileges and Dr. Ollivier.

TIME RUNS OUT

By prolonged wea the argument — despite an extra 1½ hours added to the day's sitting by the government motion earlier Thursday—that time ran out after a roll-call vote on Mr. Fulton-Knowles sub-amendment. It was defeated 108 to 89.

The vote breakdown:

Sixty-four Conservatives voted for the sub-amendment along with the full 13-member slate of Creditistes and the 12 New Democrats then in the House. Thumped against it were 99 Liberals and nine Social Crediters.

Two Liberals and a Conservative were paired and did not vote. Absent were 27 Liberals, five Conservatives, two Social Credit and five NDP.

Today, Mr. Knowles' amend-

Brantford Shopkeeper Slain, Will Charge 3 With Murder

BRANTFORD (CP) — One man was charged with capital murder and two others were being held by provincial police today following the shooting death of a shopkeeper during an attempted robbery Thursday night.

City police charged Ronald Newell, 26, of Brantford soon after the killing of 58-year-old Preston Graham. They said they picked Newell up on a downtown city street.

Later, St. Thomas provincial police arrested two other Brantford men at Aylmer and were holding them for Brantford police.

Southern Ontario Farmers Digging Deeper for Water

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Ontario farmers are digging deeper for water—into the ground and into their pockets.

After two weeks of rainless skies and record heat, rural dwellers are drilling deeper wells, emptying already - low creeks, dipping into ponds and digging into their wallets to pay as much as 10 cents a gallon for previous water. In Northern Ontario similar conditions are reported near Sault Ste. Marie.

In the Barrie area thirsty residents are paying $10 a 1,000 gallons for water dumped into their dry wells.

In Hamilton and suburbs water suppliers are delivering up to 20,000 gallons a day more than normal.

Throughout the southern part of the province a similar situation prevails. Nowhere has the drought become critical, but everywhere it's uncomfortable.

William Montcalm, executive director of the extension branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, warned Thursday: "If the farmers don't get a good rain before the end of the next 10 days, I'm afraid they won't have much of a

CBRT To Go Alone In Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), a Canadian-based union, has separated from 14 international unions, with headquarters in the United States, including the Canada's 100,000 non-operating railway employees.

The CBRT, representing 21,000 CNR employees, joined the non-ops negotiating committee in 1950 but has since had differences with several of the non-ops unions.

The issue that led to the split was the CBRT demand that it be allowed to negotiate a separate contract for 7,000 engineering, dining and parlor car employees whose contract, the union said, was an urgent need of revision.

Frank Hall, chairman of the unions' joint negotiating committee, said in Montreal Thursday night it was impossible to exclude one group of employees from joint national negotiations if national unity is to be maintained by the railway unions.

In Ottawa, CBRT President William J. Smith said the union had been forced out of the joint negotiations by the stand taken by Mr. Hall's committee.

'The Reluctant Premier'

Bird-Watching Peer Tough, Determined

LONDON (CP) — There are elements of humor in the origin of the boom that carried the Earl of Home to the threshold of 10 Downing Street today.

He told the Blackpool Tory conference just one week ago: "I'm offering a prize to any newspaper man who can find a clue in my speech that this is Lord Home's bid to take over the leadership of the Conservative party."

The sally was greeted with laughter, later changing to thunderous applause, and Home, 60-year-old foreign secretary, was on the way—with high - level help.

In the wild leadership scramble, some newspapers dubbed this courteous scion of an ancient Scottish peerage the "reluctant premier" who would accept the job only in the hope of averting a crisis.

There was considerable surprise three years ago when Prime Minister Macmillan appointed the comparatively unknown bird watcher - politician to succeed Selwyn Lloyd in foreign affairs. But it wasn't long before Home's critics made a reassessment of the peer whose frail and almost off-hand appearance concealed toughness and determination.

Home recently became a star in the Conservative constellation by virtue of Britain's role in the East - West test-ban treaty, sharing honors with Macmillan. But there are plenty Britons who are only now learning that his name rhymes with fume.

Alexander (Alec) Frederick Douglas-Home, 14th holder of an earldom created in 1605, a product of Eton and Oxford, is one of Scotland's great landowners. At Eton he met the girl who became his wife, the headmaster's daughter, and they have three daughters and one son.

Thirty-two years in politics. Home does not aspire to crowd-pleasing oratory in the emotional sense but in personal affairs has an unassuming

Post Of Leader Again Eludes Butler's Grasp

Tory Choice Represents Victory for Macmillan

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—The Queen accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Macmillan today and called on a Scottish peer, the Earl of Home, to form a new government.

A Buckingham Palace announcement said:

"The Queen has received the Earl of Home in audience and invited him to form an administration."

This action represented a personal triumph for Macmillan who wanted Lord Home as his successor rather than Deputy Prime Minister Richard A. Butler.

Even though it was a victory for Macmillan, the struggle for the succession caused sharp divisions in the Conservative party.

Desperate 11th-hour efforts by Butler's friends to keep him in the running fell short after a night of manoeuvre and counter-manoeuvre in Britain's ruling Conservative party.

For the second time Butler reached the very threshold of political power in Britain only to have the finger slide from him. He had been expected to succeed Sir Anthony Eden when Lord Avon left office and nine months ago, but that time the job went to Macmillan.

MACMILLAN RESIGNS

The dramatic struggle for power in Britain's ruling Conservative party entered its final act this morning when Macmillan, from a hospital bed, formally announced his resignation after nearly seven years in office.

Then came the call to Lord Home to go to Buckingham Palace. He was with his sovereign 37 minutes.

Lord Home, an aristocrat, is the 14th earl in his line with a family history going back to days of wild raiding on the English-Scottish border. He is 60.

Since July, 1960, he has served Macmillan as "foreign secretary. During that period Lord Home acquired prestige through his efforts to ease East-West tension without surrendering vital Western interests to the Russians.

As prime minister, Home is the first nobleman appointed to the premiership since Britain's highest political office.

Want Share In Growth Says Drury

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada wants a bigger share of the North American automobile market and the Canadian government plans to disclose shortly the details of its program to get it.

Industry Minister C. M. Drury explaining the intentions of the program here Thursday night after what he described as "friendly" discussions with U.S. authorities, said details will be announced in the House of Commons soon, probably by Oct. 31.

He told a press conference the plan is aimed at obtaining for the Canadian automotive industry a larger share of the U.S. market growth—but at reducing Canada's imports from the U.S. of auto parts and components.

It is designed, he said, to increase Canadian production, exports and consumption, and he suggested its effects during the next few years would be widespread.

MAY LOWER PRICES

It would bring new jobs in the automotive industry in Canada; help reduce the current imbalance in the country's automotive trade with the U.S., running at nearly $500,000,000 a year; reduce the price of cars to Canadian consumers; and help make Canadian cars more competitive in export markets.

The Canadian plan follows a concept contained in Professor Vincent Bladen's 1961 royal

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

THURSDAY, Oct. 17, 1963

The Commons accepted, over Conservative protest, a government proposal increasing sitting hours to 30½ hours a week from 25½.

Real Caouette (Creditiste-Villeneuve) said Social Credit Leader Thompson has promised support of the Liberals in the next election.

Mr. Thompson immediately rose to deny the statement.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said a committee report on seating of the Creditiste group would serve to emasculate Parliament.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) argued that the 13 Creditistes should be seated ahead of the 11 Social Creditors.

One phase of the Creditiste issue was settled as the House voted 108 to 89 against a Conservative move to kill a committee proposal.

Two senators voiced opposition as the Senate gave its approval to the government's marine union trusteeship bill.

FRIDAY, Oct. 18

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. to continue debate on the Creditiste issue. Senate stands adjourned until Tuesday.

Robarts Names 5-Man Group On Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts named a five - man group Thursday headed by Lawrence E. Coward, a Toronto actuary, to represent Ontario on the technical committee which will study integration of the province's pension plan with a scheme with the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

No date has been fixed for its first meeting.

Mr. Coward is chairman of the Pension of Ontario, the member group appointed in July to administer the province's plan.

Mr. Robarts received a letter from Prime Minister Pearson that a conference in Ottawa last month.

The question of merging the Ontario and federal plans was an issue in the recent provincial election. Since then, there have been suggestions that the federal government may delay introduction of its pay as-you-go plan, although Mr. Pearson said earlier in the month that his administration intended to proceed with the legislation as soon as possible.

Chilean Ambassador Says Canada Has $10,000,000 Trade Surplus With His Country

Canada has a trade surplus of about $10,000,000 per year with the South American west coast country of Chile, Chilean ambassador Mario Rodriguez Cox said today. In Belleville to address the University Women's Club last night, Sr. Rodriguez spoke to an Ontario Intelligencer reporter this morning, at his suite in the Hotel Quinte.

Chile buys about $12,000,000 worth of Canadian goods — mostly milling and farm machinery, some paper-making machinery, asbestos and a few motor cars — every year, he said. Stephens-Adamson, in Belleville, is a major supplier Canadian though, buy only about $2,000,000 worth of Chilean goods, mostly grapes and onions. Other Chilean sales to Canada include temperate zone fruits, such as pears and peaches, and some nitrates and iodine. Several years ago, the Chilean steel industry sold a large order of structural steel to this country, he said, but the order has not been repeated.

DON'T BUY WINES

But Canadians have ignored opportunities to buy Chilean wines ("among the finest in the world", Sr. Rodrigues says, which are selling well in Germany, France and the U.S. Because of this, most Chilean purchases from Canada must be financed through the Export Credit Insurance Corporation.

Chile's most important export product, copper, brings in more than half of Chile's foreign exchange, but finds no sale in Canada. The British-owned nitrate industry is declining with the rise of artificial fertilizers, and Canadians have shown little interest in one of the country's most promising new products - fish meal.

A BASIC FOOD

The fish meal is one of the most versatile basic foods in the world, and one of the cheapest. Similar to wheat flour, it is much richer and contains more food value.

When first developed about five years ago, it was touted as potential food for the whole of the world. There is no need for it in that capacity yet, but it is fast growing as a profitable export to Europe and the U.S.A. Among its other uses, fish meal is valued as cattle fodder.

It is because of the potential value of the fisheries that Chile, and most other west coast South American nations, claim a 200-mile territorial waters limit, he said. The 200-mile limit brings the Humbolt current under the jurisdiction of the countries past which it flows, he said, but there has been no conflict over the limit because there are no ships with conflicting claims to rights in these waters.

NO DIRECT RETURN TRIP

Two main factors discourage Canadian-Chilean trade, Sr. R. Dodriguez explained. The first is lack of communication between the countries — there is now one scheduled ship line running to Valparaiso from Montreal through the Panama Canal with no direct return trip, and another running up and down the west coast from Valparaiso to Vancouver. The second reason is that Chile is almost a mirror image of the Canadian west coast. Canadian skiers looking for a place to practise during the Canadian winter can find wonderful skiing in Chile and Canadian fishermen looking for fish can find fishing during the Canadian winter often come to Chile for it.

Sr. Rodriguez' visit to Belleville, he said, was arranged by Mrs. Mitchell South, MP, Robert Temple, whom he met in Ottawa. Today, he went on a tour of the city conducted by Hastings County Registrar, Bill Hurst.

Board May Prevent Start On New Arena

A stalemate among Campbellford arena board members may prevent a start on the planned arena this year, the Campbellford District Labor Council was told yesterday. Joe Wilson, a member of the Campbellford arena board, reported the situation to the labor council meeting last night, in Trenton.

The parcel of land originally offered for the project, by the Fair Board was unsatisfactory, he said, but the addition of a small piece of road allowance, offered by Seymour township provides room for the required building. The arena board now has a bank account of about $31,000 collected for the project, but the cost of the land at Bailey's Bay has pledged $100 a year for the next two years, but total requirements are about $80,000.

No progress is likely until plans are agreed to raise the needed $50,000 according to Joe Wilson, and no plans have yet been agreed for raising the money.

RED COLONEL STOPPED

BERLIN (Reuters) — An American military police Friday held up for 20 minutes a Soviet lieutenant-colonel in West Berlin in retaliation for harassment of an American vehicle in East Berlin two days ago, allied officials said. The Soviet officer's limousine with a driver and the lieutenant-colonel was stopped by military police and two cars blocked its path.

Bowling Notes

The start of another town bowling season in the district was launched last evening at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club house when the district meeting was held. Representatives from Kingston, Trenton, Colborne, Campbellford and Belleville were in attendance and the meeting was conducted in complete harmony. Dates for the several tournaments for the district bowling sport were approved and these will be confirmed at the spring meeting of the district next May.

Ralph Tock of the Belleville Club, was elected district chairman, while Claude D. Tice will act as secretary -treasurer. The above named with "Jerry" Hyde, Campbellford, were appointed to attend the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association annual meeting, which will be held in Toronto on Saturday. It is expected that at the meeting Mr. Tice will be elected as first vice-president of the association. This will be a distinct honor to the district as the only one other man, Cliff Argue, has served as president of the Association and Jerry will complete that post in another year's time. The meeting also instructed their delegates at the meeting, which will be to vote on several questions that will be brought before the annual meeting.

A splendid season of bowling has ended at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and many of the members are sorry to see the season close. A last fling was held on Thanksgiving Day and the greens were probably in the best condition than they have been all summer. A large number enjoyed the ideal weather and the friendly competition.

On Saturday night the women's section of the club will hold their annual meeting and elect their officers for the coming year. Later an open house will be held at which all male members of the club have been invited. This should be a gala night as some surprises are in store for those who attend.

On the following Saturday night, October 26th, the annual meeting of the men's Club will be held and every member of the club is invited to be on hand to take part in the discussion on topics that will be brought before the meeting. The officers for the coming year will be elected and it is the opportunity of every member to vote for his choice and then support those officers in their work for the betterment of the club. It is understood that the annual party will be staged after the meeting and some surprises are in store. The business meeting is to be called shortly after the supper hour so that the clubhouse can be transformed for the party to follow. Come on out and make it a big night for the members in the history of the club.

A final note. At the last tournament held in Campbellford a rink of Andy Hoole and Claude Tice won the Wiggins trophy and the accompanying prizes. This winds up the bowling news for the season, which has been a good one. And now for curling.

Drives Car While Licence Is Suspended

A Belleville man was sent to jail for seven days today for driving while his licence was suspended.

Joseph Leo Palmer pleaded guilty to the charge, laid after he was stopped driving his wife's car, by a police officer who remembered Palmer had lost his licence.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills warned that the penalty would be "substantially" increased if the offence was repeated.

"This is one control that there is over the drivers of vehicles — which is a very, very, important matter at the present time," added the magistrate.

Robert Temple To Be Speaker In New York

Mr. Robert Temple, Liberal member for Hastings South, and member of the Commons committee on defence, will speak Sunday October 20th at the annual New York Thanksgiving ceremony known as the Blessing of the Colors.

The colorful ceremony sponsored by the Military Order of the World Wars, is held to be one of the most magnificent in the United States.

The Blessing of the Colors ceremony will take place at St. Thomas' Church in New York City following a parade down 5th Avenue. Mr. Temple as one of the Canadian representatives in the parade will be present on the reviewing stand.

At the luncheon Mr. Temple will speak on defence as it pertains to Canada. The member for Hastings South was named to the defence committee under appointment by Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

United Appeal Asks "Please Be Ready"

The progress of the United Appeal's current campaign for funds has slowed down, as one official puts it, "almost to a drag."

The Appeal's objective this year is $85,000, some $8,000 less than a year ago. This is the absolute minimum needed to give Appeal agencies the assistance they require.

Appeal general chairman Norman Keith said today that it had been hoped the business part of the campaign would have been completed before the start of the residential canvass which starts October 21st through October 30th.

But this is not the case.

To date the amount collected is roughly $6,000 less than the amount donated a year ago at the same phase of the campaign.

Officials believe that part of the reason for the slowness of progress is antipathy on the part of some and procrastination on the part of many would-be donors

Chairman Keith said that canvassers are often greeted with "we are sending a cheque" or "can you call back some time." This, he said, is not only disheartening to committee but entails further effort on the part of hard-working volunteer citizens.

"We urgently appeal to citizens to have their cards completed and ready when the canvasser calls," Mr. Keith said. "We are asking—not telling people—what to do but we must all film in how pledge completed and returned so we know where we stand."

The need is so positive, he said, that people should search their souls.

Belleville, Mr. Keith said, is one of the soundest communities in the province. It has never known all-out disaster. Its people are getting along comfortably, it would seem.

"But," he added, "at the same time it is hard not to realize that many families would suffer if it were not for the United Appeal. We are going to have to help them one way or another."

"We are appealing now to the people to take care of their commitments. Complete the documents so the canvasser can simply pick up where he she calls. We need them now. This is our biggest effort of the moment. We want to complete the campaign without dragging it out until Christmas," the chairman said.

Many people do not realize, Mr. Keith pointed out, that the agencies like Belleve and Hastings have given their efforts voluntarily to help the United Appeal. They are working hard and conscientiously. Procrastination has the past of donors only means more work for them. They give their time and labor free and it should not be forgotten that their time is valuable, too.

Leading business, professional and industrial men of the city are putting their shoulders to the United Appeal wheel. It is a common effort, a community duty that all should share.

Please have your donations or pledges ready when the canvasser calls.

IN MEMORIAM

BERAACH — In loving memory of our dear father, Arthur A. Brooch, who passed away Sunday, October 18, 1959.
Four years since that sad day,
one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was His will
But in our hearts he lives still.
A faithful husband, a father best,
We miss his kindness, his manly ways.
Lovingly remembered by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Brooch.

WAY — In loving memory of my dear brother, Lawrence A. Way who passed away suddenly as the result of an accident Oct. 18th, 1961.
Dear brother, you left us one day,
Without saying a word,
Though on earth you are no more
Still in memory you are with me,
As you left so you remain
Quietly missed by his brother
Lionel, brother Helen and family.

WAY — In loving memory of my dear brother, Lawrence A. Way who passed away, as a result of an accident, October 18th, 1961.
Wonderful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture we tenderly hold.
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To love and to cherish and never forget.
No tear can darken, nor sadness dim
The lovely memories we have of him.
—Lovingly remembered by sister-in-law Carl and families.

WAY — In loving memory of a dear brother, Lawrence A. Way who passed away October 18th, 1961.
Sadly missed by Mary Dafoe, Belleville, John R. Way, Toronto, Mrs. Ethel Way, Toronto, and Mrs. Mabel Way, Toronto.
Please, God forgive a silent tear,
A farewell, dear brother, from here,
There are others, yes I know,
But he was mine, I loved him so,
Dear God, take him tenderly,
To my brother in heaven above,
Tell him how sorely I miss him,
And give him all my love.
—Sadly missed by Mary Dafoe, brother-in-law Chris and family.

MILLER — In loving memory of my dear husband, Richard Miller, of Nelson, B.C. who passed away October 18th, 1962.
The tears in my eyes do not glisten,
Oh,
My face is never sad,
But there is never a night nor morning,
That I think of the dear father I had.
His memories are my treasure,
With which I will never part,
For I have him in my heart.
But I have him in my heart.
—Sadly missed by his wife Mary and never forgotten by daughter Jean.

GREEN — In loving memory of Kenneth Green, who passed away October 18th, 1933.
At the pathway's end is an open door,
Through which our loved ones go,
To a place of far more peace and rest,
Than I could ever know.
Our loving Father was waiting there,
To give them welcome home,
May we then find our comfort,
In the thought that God knows best.
—Ever remembered by wife Vivian and family.

WAY — In loving memory of Lawrence A. Way who passed away October 18th, 1961.
Sometimes I want to understand,
Why God must have to be,
In His wisdom, He has planned,
To call you from me.
He, us, he has not gone away,
For he is with us each day,
Just entered God's Eternal Home,
And left us to mourn.
—Ever remembered by Moran family.

WAY — In loving memory of a dear friend, Lawrence A. Way who passed away October 18th, 1961.
Sometimes I want to understand,
Why God must have to be,
In His wisdom, He has planned,
To call you from me.
To us, he has not gone away,
For he is with us each day,
Just entered God's Eternal Home,
And left us to mourn.

Red Cross Deserves Support Through the United Appeal

This year the Canadian Red Cross Society joins in commemoration of the centenary of the birth of Red Cross.

During 1963 people of all races and creeds will honor the memory of Henri Dunant, the founder of the Society.

During the past one hundred years the Red Cross has served the young and the old, the rich and poor in order to relieve distress and alleviate suffering in peace and war.

The Red Cross is ready in emergencies when victims of disaster in many forms may require assistance. The services rendered may range from a burned-out family to one of national importance.

In our own community during the past year several families have received aid due to the loss of homes by fire.

The Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service is a life service. This means that blood is given free by donors and patients receive it free when they need it.

But before the blood products are administered to the patient there are a variety of expenditures to be met. Only those who have received free blood in a crisis in their lives can fully appreciate this great service.

DONOR CLINICS HELD

Blood donor clinics are held at regular intervals. At the last clinic nearly three hundred donors were present.

The demand on Red Cross for homemakers' service is steadily increasing. This help is given in homes when illness comes and there are children and older people to be cared for. Last year the thirteen homemakers cared for 288 homes caring for 573 children and 82 senior citizens.

The Red Cross Loan Cupboard is a free service in the use of sick-room equipment such as beds, wheel chairs, canes, crutches and many other items. This service is very much appreciated by those who need this type of aid.

There are many forms of emergency aid given by Red Cross. Welfare organizations ask for Red Cross aid. Some eighty-one persons received individual aid last year.

MANY ARTICLES MADE

The Women's Work Committee complete hundreds of articles each year for those in need. Each year headquarters receive more and more calls for women's work. This means our work-rooms are busy nearly all year.

The Red Cross is one of the sponsors of the water safety program. Pamphlets are distributed to school children. Films are shown as well as demonstrations at the swimming pool. Groups of children are given swimming instruction during the summer.

The peacetime purpose of the Canadian Red Cross is to assist in the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world.

You help in this great humanitarian work when you support the Red Cross through the United Appeal.

Stamp Club To Hold Annual 'Interclub'

Members of the Quinte Stamp Club this Saturday, October 19, will be hosts to philatelists and stamp collectors from as far east as Ottawa and from many centres in Western Ontario.

Their sixth annual "Interclub" will provide a full program from opening hour at 2 p.m. to final buffet lunch at 10 p.m. Saturday evening. Both floors of the bright, attractive Kinsmen Centre will be used to provide space for exhibition frames, for served dealers' tables, for light lunches and for just visiting with old philatelic friends.

Visitors may take part in the judging of displays by casting their ballots for "The Most Popular Exhibit". This, with other prizes, will be awarded at the evening portion of the program. There is no admission charge made for any part of the affair.

A stamp auction will commence at 7 p.m. with auctioneer Charles W. Young knocking down lots of stamps, covers, old catalogues, etc. This is open to any visitor, who may submit material for sale up to 5 p.m. or take an active part in bidding for the lots as they are offered.

At eight o'clock, William H. Slate of Belleville will deliver an address entitled "Collecting Postal History" and display items he has used in the 16th to 19th centuries.

Local residents, with a "yen" for collecting, should find much of interest when they visit Kiwanis Centre this Saturday and see organized philately in action. President Ron Olesen of the Quinte Stamp Club and his reception committee extends a warm welcome to visit this annual event.

Four Admit Falsifying Expense Pads

TORONTO (CP)—J. D. Millar, deputy minister of public works, said Thursday four department elevator mechanics who are based in Toronto but travel throughout the province have admitted falsifying expense accounts.

Two have resigned and the other two have asked for hearings under civil service commission grievance procedures, Mr. Millar said.

Dr. H. F. Frank, superintendent of the Smiths Falls Hospital school for the retarded, was the speaker at last night's monthly meeting of the Trenton - Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children. Dr. Frank is shown in the picture, fourth from the left. With him are Mrs. "Bobbie" Reid, who sits on executive bodies for retardation at provincial and national level, Russell Rowe, MLA for Northumberland, Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Frank.

Development Of New Project Is Outlined

The bi-monthly meeting of the Canadian Industrial Management Association was held at Johnny's Restaurant. The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. David Gale, sales representative for Canadian General Electric Company.

Mr. Gale presented a very interesting film on N.P.D. (Nuclear Power Development) showing installation at Rolphton Ontario. The installation, which is an experimental development, was a combined effort by the Ontario Hydro, Canadian General Electric Company and the Canadian Atomic Energy Commission.

This is a new form of developmental hydro-electric power for uses in areas where hydro-electric power by use of water and hydro-electric power by use of coal is not available or too costly to produce.

Mr. Gale was introduced by Mr. Desaulniers and thanked by Mr. L. R. Smith. The educational chairman reported that twenty-six students are now actively participating in the second year of the course, this term's subject, "Industrial Relations."

More Will Be Considered Retarded to Some Degree

TRENTON — The theory that many children in the decade to come will be regarded as "retarded" to some degree in relation to the rest of the group in which they find themselves, because of the increasing complexity of civilization was advanced last night by Dr. H. F. Frank, superintendent of the Smiths Falls Ontario Hospital School.

Dr. Frank said that curriculum demands on today's child ren were much greater than ten years ago, and that some children were incapable of progressing beyond Grade 10.

Retardation, said Dr. Frank, was relative to the cause, the degree and the particular stage of civilization in which we live. It could be described as a "disability of learning."

"Bring it down to our own level," Dr. Frank told the 100-plus persons attending a meeting of the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children in the area school, went to Trenton, "how many of us are capable of making out our own income tax forms or insurance papers? We all need some sort of assistance to live now-a-days and this is due to the thing we call "progress"."

ATTITUDE CHANGED

Dr. Frank said that mental retardation could be compared to diseases as TB and polio.

Not too many years ago, he said, such diseases brought with them a degree of stigma to the suffered and his family. These diseases had been largely overcome through public interest and effort. In the last generation, the fact that the president of the United States, F. D. Roosevelt, had polio, led to greater public interest in conquering the disease. In this generation, President J. F. Kennedy's sister is mentally retarded and this, too, has led to an arousing of public interest.

"One could almost say that it pays to have a Prime Minister or a President with a personal problem," he said, adding with a smile, "not that I wish Prime Minister Pearson any bad luck.

Dr. Frank said that every citizen should ask himself, "Do I really believe in the right of every child to receive from the community facilities to develop to his own level?" If this could be answered positively, he said, each citizen should do something about it and not just pay lip-service to the idea.

Much can be done in the area of research to find the causes of retardation and work out ways of helping the retarded individual to develop to his own particular level, Dr. Frank said, but we must not expect any one agency to solve all the problems. Parents, organizations, communities and governments could not be expected to solve the problem alone. All must work together and correlate their efforts.

The problem won't be solved tomorrow or next Tuesday, said Dr. Frank. A long-term approach must be taken.

Worker Sustains Back Injury

TRENTON — William Mitts, 30, of Trenton, an employee of the Central Bridge Company, was taken to Trenton hospital yesterday afternoon by Rushnell Ambulance, suffering from a back injury, sustained when he fell from a truck on which he was loading material.

At the hospital, Mr. Mitts was examined and x-rayed and then permitted to go home.

The accident occurred shortly after 2 o'clock.

Labour Council Nearly Called Off Course

TRENTON — Trenton Labor Council boiled last night, over a mix-up in plans for a set of two-day courses of instruction to be offered October 26 and 27. The courses were nearly called off, before plans were settled.

Originally, the course had been planned for March, in conjunction with the Belleville Labor Council. Plans were postponed though, and two representatives of Belleville Labor Council met with Ian Reilly and Harold Blakely, of the Trenton Labor Council, to settle on a date in the fall. The date was settled, but apparently never reported to the Belleville Labor Council.

THREE-WEEK DELAY

Meanwhile, programs for the course were being printed out of town and there was a three-week delay, necessary in delivery. They arrived within the past few days, just a week-and-a-half before the course began. It was too late to mail them out of Trenton and Belleville area locals.

And it was about this time the Trenton people discovered the Belleville Labor Council did not know the date of the courses. No delegates had been selected by local unions and no money had been voted to pay the delegates' fees.

Caught between the possibility of poor attendance at the courses if they were held, and the probability of apathy if the courses were postponed again, the Council decided to go ahead anyway. A crash program of letters, telephone calls, personal visits to union locals and advertising is planned to get the delegates out.

The courses, to be held at the Park Motel in Trenton, will cover advanced shop stewards training, workmen's compensation regulations, union building and parliamentary procedure.

Sees Hospital Dispute Threat To Quinte Labor

TRENTON — The labor dispute at Trenton Memorial Hospital could mean the end of organized labor in the Quinte area, Trenton Labor Council was told last night. Howard Tuckaberry, delegate to the council from local 230 of the plumbers' union, described the hospital situation as "way out of hand," and suggested the Labor Council should be backing the hospital employees in their demands. He predicted the hospital board would use the present truce between the union and the board to dismiss or lay off union members, and hire non-union members at the hospital.

Henry Nokes, C.L.C. representative attending the meeting, commented that if the hospital employees had not asked for help, it might be unwise to give any. He said the hospital board could stall the union, but never stop it, and he warned that any unwanted help offered by the Labor Council might interfere with the hospital employees' plans.

READY TO HELP

Harold Blakely, president of the Trenton Labor Council, told the meeting that the hospital employees had contacted him before the threatened strike, and had asked if the Labor Council would support them. He had assured the organizer of the Labor Council's support, he said, and the organizer had promised to ask for it—if it were necessary.

Contacted this morning by a reporter, Mrs. Eileen Lunn, president of Local 183 of the Building Services International Union in Belleville, (which includes the Trenton Memorial Hospital employees), said the local is not a member of either Belleville or Trenton Labor Councils. Plans are afoot, she added, to join the Belleville Labor Council. She said support had been offered by both councils, during the dispute.

Will Comply With Wishes Of Board

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health at a Wednesday meeting voted to have the Rushnell Ambulance Company terms of its contract with the brought to the attention of the company's principal, R. Douglas Rushnell.

Within the terms of the contract, Mr. Rushnell is obligated to provide for each ambulance operated by him, an attendant who holds a First Aid Certificate from the St. John Ambulance Corps.

The board is asking that Mr. Rushnell have personnel who do not hold such a certificate, trained at this fall's St. John classes.

Contacted later, Mr. Rushnell said that he already had one trained operator; that he himself had had 15 years' experience in ambulance procedure and that he would be happy to comply with the board's wishes, by having his drivers and attendants take the suggested course.

Conservatives at Crossroads

Those who reject the basic Marxian conception of history might be pondering these days on the way in which the future of mankind may be shaped by an unfortunate weakness in one man's prostate gland.

The basic Marxian conception, of course, has little or nothing to do with communism, but is the contention that history is shaped by economic pressures, rather than by the genius of a few great men.

Those who hold the Marxist outlook—and not all of them will be communists—will consider the choice of the Earl of Home as leader of the British Conservative Party of little moment in the long run.

For those others to whom the history of the world is the history of the sum of the works of its abler, most energetic leaders, the choice made in secret consultations between a handful of Britain's elite assumes greater importance. It may well determine the role which Britain will play in world affairs for the next couple of decades. Though no longer a great power in the true sense of the word, Britain still wields sufficient influence to sway the course of events, if indeed these are not already determined by some atheistic, materialistic version of the old Presbyterian doctrine of predestination.

The choice for the leadership which went on in the councils of the British Conservative Party is fascinating from another angle, too. It gives the lie, if this were needed, to any childlike convictions that, what we call democracy, bears in fact any slightest resemblance to a system giving equal voice to all in the destiny of a nation.

The whole philosophy of the Conservatives in Britain is such that the man who is leader wields great influence in determining the policies the party will follow—much more so, for example, than any leader of the British Labor Party enjoys. Yet the selection of this leader is not made by any convention, at which the vote of delegates pays some lip service to the principles that the man chosen will be the one with the greatest support amongst the rank and file of the supporters of the party.

When Sir Winston Churchill resigned, Hon. R. A. B. Butler was considered by most to be his heir apparent. But the Queen summoned Harold Macmillan—most believe at Sir Winston's suggestion but almost certainly after obtaining "advice" from others high in the party.

During the past few weeks Butler had again become the favored candidate amongst those supposed to be informed observers of the British political scene. The contest was said to have been narrowed down to a choice between him and Richard Maudling, with Butler considered by most to have the inside track. Possibly he was favored because the new leader will soon face a determined challenge at the polls from Harold Wilson and the Labor Party. Butler, as the more experienced politican of the two, perhaps seemed the Conservatives' best hope. But he has been passed over once more, the coveted post going to the Earl of Home, one of the possible choices mentioned earlier but in recent days considered to have been eliminated.

It is interesting to speculate on what difference it might have made had Macmillan's health enabled him to lead the Conservatives during the approaching election campaign and party to groom his successor, either during a renewed term in power or, as some observers think more likely, in Opposition. This might have enhanced the chances of the young (46), Chancellor of the Exchequer, Richard Maudling.

If great men make history—and not history great men—there surely must be some difference between a Home-made history and Maudling's brand. Macmillan's prostate gland thus takes its place, along with gout and epilepsy, as one of the shapers of mankind's fate.

Chinese Crop Good

Lost in gloom at this time last year, Communist Chinese officials are elated by one good grain harvest, and the prospect of an even better one soon. Prospects are so good, in fact, that Mao Tse-tung is expected to release production figures—for the first time in three years—to the National People's Congress in mid-November.

In addition, plans have been laid to plant an additional 5,000,000 acres of winter grain for the coming year, and for further mechanization of farms.

The Russians will be happy if China can produce a wheat surplus, which Russia can buy without depleting the stock of dollars, but Canadian wheat producers are not likely to cheer the loss of a market. What the U.S. would say if China cut it out of a newly-acquired market would probably not stand quotation in newspapers.

Befuddlement by Percentage

Vancouver Sun

How drunk is a drinking driver?

This has been a stumbling-block in our traffic safety laws for years.

Scientific procedures for measuring the amount of alcohol in the breath or blood of suspects have not settled the controversy. We still argue about how low we should set the tolerance — for the young driver.

There is no reliable method of determining how drunk the individual drinker is.

Our courts wisely accept the drunkometer tests only as a guide. In fact, the State they are acceptable evidence. Under its 1961 so-called two-drink law, a blood alcohol content of .1 per cent is evidence of impairment.

But now New York has a one-drink law. It is based on the theory that youthful drivers get drunker than adult drivers on the same amount of liquor. Since last Tuesday, New York drivers under 21 can be convicted of impairment when a test shows .05 percent.

On his 21st birthday a New York car can drink two and a nach as he did the day before and still be a safe driver in the eyes of the law.

This seems to be reducing the quantitative analysis of befuddlement almost to absurdity.

Perhaps Norway and Sweden have the best system. There, if a driver shows signs of having been drinking at all, he may well land in jail. At social gatherings, it is said, it has become the custom for drivers to abstain completely. Nondrinkers have only one answer to the question we started with — "How drunk is a drinking driver?"

And that is: "Too drunk."

Disguised Censorship

New York Times

A high State Department official has rebuked the United States press, radio and television for making their facilities so readily available to report the views of that sharp-tongued lady from South Vietnam, Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu. Fortunately, the State Department has no power to tell the press, radio and television of this country what they may or may not do, and these media will continue to make their own judgment with regard to Mme. Nhu and other persons and matters in the news.

This implied belief that the State Department has the right to influence what Americans may or may not read, see or hear is a revealing comment, expressed in regard to Mme. Nhu; but it takes on a considerably more sinister aspect in the case of the indictment of four persons accused of promoting the assassination, by a group of 57 Americans, A State Department regulation of Jan. 1, 1962, established a requirement that Americans visiting Cuba have a specially validated passport. This means that the department arrogated to itself the right to determine when Americans, in this sense may or may not visit Cuba. That courts, no doubt, will ultimately rule on the constitutionality of this regulation and the legislation under which it was issued.

But as a matter of public policy, the objection is clear-cut by fact. It is a restriction on the right of Americans to travel freely and to exercise their right to know what their eyes and ears may tell them when part of their world—Cuba, Mme. Nhu and Fidel Castro are very different people. But the Administration's attempt to tax expressed by the State Department) on Americans' rights to know about them is a crude and attempt to censorship.

Is Paid Less, Gets More

New Yorker Magazine

A young friend of ours has taken a job as a management trainee with a strait-laced department store at a survival salary of a hundred dollars a week ($81.50 after withholding tax). A few weeks ago he overstayed his lunch hour by fifteen minutes and on the following day was docked sixty-seven cents for his transgression. But his smaller gross pay check next week ($80.83) lowered his tax bracket, so that his pay after withholdings was actually three cents more ($81.53).

Showing his executive potential, he immediately set out to his boss the advantages of such an arrangement to all concerned, and asked for a reduction in salary until his next promotion. The boss was sympathetic to our friend's request, but said that, according to the store's rules, salary reductions could be made only for disciplinary reasons.

So, ever since, the young man has been dawdling over his lunch one day a week, figuring that he'll eventually get ahead of the game and at the same time serve the cause of economic justice.

Finds West Is Simpler

The Times of London

The west is simpler. There is a Middle West, which is in America, but no Near West. The East, on the other hand, needs definition, and not only by the points of the compass. An argument started at Geneva last week which involves the landing rights of airlines, and which has to determine whether Turkey and Iran can be included in the Near East and of the more ancient Levant. There was, certainly, a time when geographical limits were set by pressed by the State Department) on Americans' rights to know about them is a crude and attempt to censorship.

Two things helped to change the picture. The first was the break-up of the Ottoman Empire. To travellers like King-the East began at Belgrade, and so naturally the Balkans became part of the Near East. When successor states arose in the Balkans asserting their European independence, the frontiers of the East had to be pushed back to the Bosporus. The second push was decided when the last war. The Command with headquarters in Cairo was Middle not Near Eastern, and as its authority spread in all directions, Englishmen grew accustomed to think of a Middle East extending from Tunis to Kabul, and from Aleppo to Addis Ababa.

It may be that all distinctions are unnecessary. Sixty years ago Dr. Hogarth wrote: "The Nearer East is a term of modern fashion for the region which our grandfathers were content to call simply the East." The Victorians' Eastern Question ranged all round the borderlands of Turkey and Russia, Persia to India to Afghanistan; beyond it lay a different world, which romance knew as the Orient, and geographers as Further India or Indo-China. Of course, all these terms depend on a European knowledge of the globe—though Arabia can use Middle East to refer to their own lands, partly as a hangover from wartime practice, and partly to mark the old contrast with North Africa as the West, the Maghreb. New complications set in as Indians call the Arab world Western Asia, and Australians begin to talk of the Far East as the Near-

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 18th, 1943.

Signs of Autumn:

Members of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here have returned to their conventional navy blue uniforms and abandoned their summer attire of light tor air force blue. October 1st. was designated by Provincial Police headquarters at Toronto as the day for the resumption of conventional O.P.P. dress.

The popular Belleville musicians, Bob Stebbings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stebbings of College Street, will perform before the Fall Congress of the Salvation Army at Montreal. Bob has been a well known in the city as a student of music and an accomplished member of the Salvation Army band, playing the euphonium, an instrument which forms a middle part of a brass band with its rich baritones, brings forth a harmony that no other instrument can duplicate.

The Salvation Army claims the first place as far as good bands went congress after congress, like Bob Stebbings, it has in its ranks the best musicians to be found anywhere, and many of the Salvation Army band boys are joining the various bands of the armed forces. The Congress will last for four days and several of the Salvationists from the city will attend.

The Rev. Arthur Strother has been appointed to the incumbency of Ameliasburgh parish, Prince Edward County by the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. He will assume charge of the parish on November 1st.

Bluewater Beach Park pavilion played hosts to a very large number of people from the city and district at their annual autumn supper and dance which was held in the armories on Monday evening. The supper was served in the armories on Monday evening. The supper, which were donated by city merchants, were presented to the ladies present by Mayor Thomas. The affair is an annual one held by firemen as a means of raising funds with which to purchase supplies which are distributed at Christmas time to needy families in the city. Excellent music was furnished by the Commodore orchestra.

Workmen are busily putting concrete foundations at the west entrance to the local armories upon which the heavy guns which grace the armories lawn will be placed. Previously the wheels of the captured trophies had developed deep ruts in the soft ground.

Eggs are selling at 30 cents per dozen, and butter is bringing 25 cents per pound on the Belleville produce market.

50 YEARS AGO

October 18th, 1913.

We don't suppose you know we almost had a union station in Belleville and that it was to be situated at the north end of Coleman Street at the foot of the hill where at that time Brown's foundry was in operation. The Grand Junction Railway Company, which was controlled mostly by Belleville men was formed to run from er the company amalgamated with the Belleville and North Hastings Railways which ran from North Hastings Junction road was called the Grand Junction Station to Marmora, and the Midland Railway. This railway was later absorbed by the Grand Trunk Railway. Some years prior to the Grand Trunk Railway absorbing the Grand Junction Railway the story about the proposed union station appeared in our file copy of October 18, 1873, and reads as follows:

"Yesterday afternoon Messrs. Potter and Brydges, president and managing director, respectively of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, arrived here by special train from the west. The object of their visit was to confer with the directors of the Grand Junction Railway regarding the construction of a union station at some convenient point in town. They were met by Mr. Ross, president; Mayor Thomas Holden and Mr. James Bevin, M.P. The visitors were shown the line of the Grand Junction Railway in the town limits and they were much pleased. The Grand Officials expressed themselves as being in favor of a union station, and it is said that the enmity of Brown's Foundry was considered to be an ideal location. However, nothing definite was done."

Note: The Grand Junction Railway had a track into the centre of the town along Pinnacle Street and the station was below the present market; the dock on the bay was called the Grand Junction dock, and was used for many years after the railway ceased to exist. Brown's Foundry is now (1953) occupied by the Greenleaf Company, the Garage Supply Company and several other business concerns.

Automat On Rails

Chicago Tribune

The food is hot and cheap and it comes on trays that — the new Meal-A-Lite line introduced by the New York Central Railroad for its commuter trains between New York and Buffalo.

Passengers who have been used to paying up to $7 for a dinner will be able to eat for as little as $1.50 with a menu of waffles and coffee costs 50 cents.

The Central has redesigned old bar cars to hold a battery of vending machines. The food is frozen and selections are made through small glass doors. The passenger cooks the meal himself by inserting a coin which activates a "radar-range," a supersonic device which broils food in 60 seconds flat. There is only one attendant in the car. He serves whisky if the customer gets rattled.

Meals range from lobster newburg to beef stew. The cooking takes less than three minutes. There are tables and chairs for 53 persons.

It is constructive to find a railroad which is trying to promote economy travel instead of exerting itself to discourage passenger traffic. We think the New York Central deserves a pat on the back for being hospitable to new ideas when so many roads stick to stodgy habits.

Reader Suggests Pressure Is Not Cause of Corns

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why doesn't the medical profession investigate corns more thoroughly? That they are caused by pressure is totally rejected by me. For the last three years at work I have worn play shoes. They have flat soles and across the front merely a strip of stretchy material that inches wide. My toes are out. At home I usually wear scuffs.

During this period I have acquired (in addition to all the corns I've had all my life) a seed corn on the large joint where bunions usually form and also a corn under a toenail. How can these be caused by pressure when there is none? In three years no corn has vanished. I do not know the answer. But pressure isn't it. — M. W.

Your letter is going to make the rest of us ashamed to complain about just one or two small corns. Actually you have a problem. Here are my suggestions:

Your skin must be unduly sensitive to corn formation — that is, callus areas. The material in your play shoes may rest lightly but if it stretches, it implies some pressure, and perhaps enough to keep irritating a corn already present. And how about bodily fight stocking can exert pressure. Try a half-size larger.

And are you certain that all the painful areas are corns? Your reference to one under a nail makes me wonder if some other type of growth is not involved. The "seed corn" may be a plantar wart, a fairly common problem from ordinary calluses. Consult a foot specialist.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why are thyroid tablets prescribed to help a woman become pregnant? Isn't the thyroid gland in the neck? — Mrs. P. L.

Yes, the thyroid gland is in the neck but the hormones it secretes affect the whole body. The person with low thyroid activity tends to be tired, slow, lacking in lustre of the hair, and the like. There is an interrelationship of the ductless glands which is very complex.

So if a woman is deficient in thyroid, administering it can encourage pregnancy by helping her up generally. It is not a cure-all, and will not achieve pregnancy if, for instance, some physical defect is present. Thyroid may be prescribed for husbands, too, if they need it.

For some people, thyroid tablets may be advisable indefinitely, quite aside from the question of pregnancy. Depending on the degree of deficiency, improvement may be noted within a matter of days.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does a person who is exposed to tuberculosis always get it? — R. S.

If so, how long does it take to show up in a chest X-ray? What are other symptoms in such a case? — Mrs. S. L. B.

An occasional or casual contact would not be expected to cause tuberculosis. The cumulative effect—perhaps over years — does the damage. The most dangerous person is the one who not only has the germ in his sputum, in which the germs are present.

There is no set time at which TB will show up in an X-ray. This depends on the extent of exposure, the natural resistance of a person, and the passage of time.

The first test that shows exposure to TB is the tuberculin skin test; this does not necessarily mean that the person has tuberculosis,' but shows he has been exposed.

There may be no other detectable symptoms before the X-ray finally discloses the disease. Or there may be such ones as loss of weight, night sweats, mild elevation of temperature, cough and sputum.

Goodness Is Enhanced By Distance

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Watching the play, "A Man For All Seasons," not long ago, I was sadly reminded of the baffling mechanism in the human mind that makes it easy to approve and admire goodness in the past, while refusing to exercise it in the present.

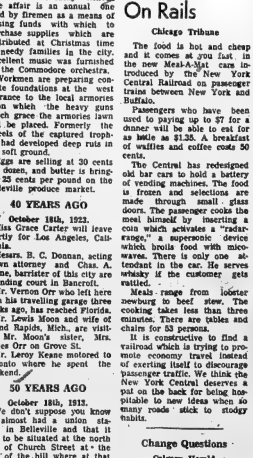
As you must know, "A Man For All Seasons" deals with the life and death of Sir Thomas More, the English lawyer, statesman author and scholar in the reign of King Henry VIII. A devout churchman, More was beheaded by his monarch by refusing to give assent to Henry's break with the Roman church.

Nearly everyone else around him — bishops and lords as well as intellectual leaders — capitulated to Henry's decree, whether or not they agreed with it. More, who believed that a man is nothing but what he believes and acts upon, wanted to be either a hero nor a martyr — and became both.

Hardly anyone today would disagree that More did the right and noble thing. He is an admirable figure, to Protestants as well as to Catholics, to those who deny God as well as to those who affirm Him. The high estimate of his person cuts across all lines of faith and unfaith.

Yet the trouble we pay to such a man is largely historical; it bears little relevance to the modern condition. For if a man like More were to rise today, and to take the same position against the current of the state and society, there are many persons who admire More would condemn him as latter-day emulator.

Not only that. Nearly all of us would behave in such a situation like the fictional character of More, not like the man himself. We would rationalize, we would call it "practical" and "realistic" — we would trim our sails and perjure our convictions.



And, in order to make ourselves feel better about our wholesale abdication of conscience, we would call More a fool or a martyr; rather, in the denigrating jargon of modern psychology we would accuse him of having a "martyr complex."

Goodness can be lived with at too close range; it makes us feel uncomfortable; it shows up the man who utters these prickly truths.

It is easy to admire More from a distance of 400 years. Admiration is the counterfeit coin we pay to relieve us of the obligation of imitating him.

Fine Guardsman For Creating Disturbance

A Canadian Guardsman, who threatened to shoot every police officer in Belleville — if he had a gun — was fined $30 in city magistrate's court this morning for creating a disturbance.

Douglas Patrick Bonang pleaded guilty to the charge, brought before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, after the Camp Picton guardsman followed a companion to the police station and demanded to see Constable Bonang's bl...ded not guilty and was remanded to November 1st.

Defence Harold Reid said Bonang followed Dannter and police officers to the station after an alleged fracas in a Front Street restaurant. He became abusive and was advised to leave the station. Outside, he started swearing against the force in general. He also swore at constables who asked him for the keys to Dannter's car.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were lower on slaughter steers, heifers, yearlings and bulls and steady on cows on a fairly good demand after Monday at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Replacement cattle were in broad demand at firm prices for good quality. Plain replacements were slow.

Choice to high real calves traded actively at strong prices, however grades were steady with heavy heifers slow and hard to sell.

Hog prices were lower and lamb prices were steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 7,700 head, about 1,600 head less than last week and about 2,000 head less than the same week in 1962. Western cattle receipts totalled 544 head an increase over last week of 382 head. Western stock calves numbered 442 head, 125 head more than last week. There were 28 cattle received from Montreal and 17 cattle and 20 calves received from New Brunswick. There were no slaughter cattle shipped East nor exports off the market to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at 34-35 with fancy feeder steers at 36; good 32-34; medium 20-23.50; common 15-19; choice heifers 23-24 with some sales to 25; good 21.50-22.50; medium 19-21; common 16-17; choice fed yearlings sold 34-35 with odd tops to 37; good 32-34; good cows 16.50-17.50 with sales to 18.50; medium 14.50-15.50; canners and cutters 10-14; good heavy bologna bulls 18 - 18.50 with odd sales to 19; common and medium 15-17.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers traded at 30 with sales to 36.75; common and medium stockers and stock calves 18-25 with good steer calves up to 30.

Calves: Choice vealers 30-33 with odd sales to 36; good 26-29; medium 22-25; common 19-22; boners 14-18.

Hogs: Grade A 24.75-28.10; heavy sows 17.25-18.75 with light sows fetching a $2 premium; stags 15-19 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 13-19 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 19 and a few to Peter Phillips, Bellleville. The Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club prize of $25. was awarded to Miss Gail Keity by Mrs. Maris Buckley.

Mr. Arthur S. Hobbs presented to George Bonn the prize of $100. offered by the Amyr Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

Nicholson Catholic College Holds Graduation Exercises

Traditions were followed at Nicholson Catholic College when graduation was held on Thanksgiving week end. The auditorium of St. Michael's Academy, where the graduation exercises were held was attractively decorated with the school colours, terra and autumn leaves.

During the singing of the processional by the Glee Club the senior graduates in caps and gowns and the junior graduates, the girls in charming white gowns, took their places on the stage. The chairman for the evening, Earl Clapp, welcomed the guests and expressed the gratitude of staff and students to those persons and groups who had offered prizes.

The guest speaker Reverend J. J. V. Buckley, P.P., pastor of St. Joseph's Parish, Belleville, pointed out to the graduates the many fields which lie open before them, stressing especially the importance of sociological economics, and the need to have a thorough knowledge of them. In his history, the reverend speaker reminded the graduates as their high school days "a little learning", of their obligation of gratitude to those who have preceded them and finally of being the best of whatever they were going to be.

Selections from the Glee Club provided pleasing musical interludes during the evening. The diplomas were conferred by Right Reverend J. P. Sullivan, D.P., P.P., Miss Lynne Meagher as valedictorian expressed the feelings of the graduate as their high school days ended.

The following awards were made: The Catholic Doctors and Lawyers Scholarship of $300. presented by Mr. Jim Barrett to Miss Lynne Meagher.

Prizes offered by the Civic Advisory Committee of the Catholic Women's League were presented by Mrs. Clifford Murphy to Brenda Rose and Brigitte Koestler.

The Manly Macdonald Scholarship of $300. offered by the University Women's Club was presented by Mrs. T. E. Barrett to Lynne Meagher.

The Ontario Intelligencer Scholarship for highest standing in Grade XIII English was presented by Mr. E. J. Buckley to Peter Phillips.

The Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club prize of $25. was awarded to Gail Keity by Mrs. Maris Buckley.

Mr. Arthur S. Hobbs presented to George Bonn the prize of $100. offered by the Amyr Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

I.O.O.F. Honors Four Members With Decoration

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows will confer the Grand Decoration of Chivalry on four prominent members of the Order, Saturday evening in Quinte Secondary School, College St. West Belleville.

Those to receive the highest Honor to be conferred on an Odd Fellow are: George McDonald, 70 Cedar St. Belleville; Douglas G. Sangan, all Creed view Ave., Belleville; Harold Sickies, 34 Toronto St., Barrie Ont., and Charles A. Anderson, Carrying Place, Ont.

The Grand Decoration of Chivalry is a most impressive and colorful ceremony and is conferred on Odd Fellows for outstanding effort in the I.O.O.F. or to work outside of the Order. Very few Odd Fellows receive this coveted decoration. A semi-military ceremony will take place and will be attended by Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges from all parts of Ontario and from some of the States in the U.S.A. This decoration is bestowed only upon officers and members of the Patriarchs Militant.

The performance of the ceremony is open to the public.

Children's Aid Gives Adoptive Parents Advice

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society was held at the Corby Public Library yesterday evening, October, 1963. The President, Mr. George Wishart, presided.

The local director, Mr. Bruce Kerr, reported that at the end of September there were 173 children in the care of the Society. So far this year there have been 75 children admitted to ward care - about the same number as in 1962. Fifteen were admitted during the month of September. Seven were placed in adoption.

"We plan to continue with the post placement counselling of adoptive parents which we started last spring", Mr. Kerr stated. Parents who have children by adoption in the five to six year group are being invited to participate in group meetings. Five or six couples attend and the discussion is led by Mrs. Janette Thompson, the supervisor of the adopted department. The response has been most encouraging. To date only one couple has failed to respond. In due course it is hoped to include parents of children in older age groups.

The President spoke of the public meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Queen Elizabeth Public School in Trenton on the evening of October 30. He said that the meeting was called to provide the citizens of Trenton with an opportunity to effect the return of children's and family services to the town. If the townspeople so desire, the Society is prepared to assign a professional caseworker to the supervision of the adopted available the full resources of the Agency. The community would be, of course, responsible for the cost of the service.

Air Cadets Tour Bell Phone Office

608 Squadron has now reached its quota of cadets for the 1963-64 training year, with over 80 cadets taking instruction in Small Arms (Range), Navigation, Aircraft Recognition and other subjects as specified by the RCAF and Air Cadet League of Canada.

Sanitary Sewer Construction Well Ahead of Schedule

Construction of the two north end sanitary sewers is proceeding ahead of schedule, with both contracts expected to be completed well before the end of January.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that the Beaver Construction Company of Montreal were making "excellent progress" on the two contracts.

And this was confirmed. A Beaver representatives who said the smaller North Front Street contract with its eight and ten-inch sewer pipe would be completed in another two weeks.

Work on the main Fahey trunk sewer extension, north of College Street to Tracey St. is also progressing ahead of schedule and weather permitting will, it is expected, be completed well ahead of the November completion date.

The Fahey extension sewer is a 24-inch main pipe which will tie into the Front Street sewer at the Fahey trunk extension, which in turn will feed into the city's existing sewer system and empty into the treatment plant on St. Paul Street.

The North Front Street sewer will tie into the Fahey trunk extension, which in turn will feed into the city's existing sewer system and empty into the treatment plant on St. Paul Street.

Fire Hazard Medium, May Rise to High

The forest fire hazard is medium in the Tweed district, now, according to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. One fire was spotted in the district last night, in Grattan township about 30 miles west of Renfrew, the Department reports. The fire covers between five and ten acres, and is now being fought by six Department employees. The hazard may rise to high over the weekend, the Department says, and extreme caution is asked of all hunters and others entering the bush.

COLLECTION OF LEAVES

Leaves will be collected from the streets on the East Side of the River in accordance with the schedule shown below. Homeholders having leaves for pick-up are requested to place them in piles at the edge of the travelled portion of the street before 8.00 a.m. of the date shown for their street. Persons wishing to have the trucks dump leaves on their property while in the area may contact the City Hall WO 8-6461, Extension 48.

Leaves on the West side of the river will be collected during the week of October 28. A schedule for this area will appear later.

Present Prizes and Awards At Rod, Gun Club Dinner

PICTON — Trophies won in trap shooting and rifle shooting competitions during the past season were presented at Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club's annual dinner on Wednesday night. The event was staged at Cherry Valley hall with the ladies of the Bloomfield Class preparing and serving one of their famous chicken dinners with all the trimmings. In all seventy-two sat down to the bountiful repast. Guests included Chief Conservation officer, Hugh Dornan of the Tweed office of the Department of Lands and Forests; local conservation officer, Claude Winters; Cy Gardner, president Quinte Gun Club of Belleville and Mrs. Gardner.

Bert Prior, president of the local club, ably presided and in his opening remarks expressed appreciation at the splendid attendance.

Constable Al Martin, last year's winner, made the presentation of the Dr. A. H. Walton trap shooting trophy to Bert Bonter. Bert's name is on top this year, while the chairman presented Al. with a miniature trophy to mark his win in 1962.

The president also presented the large bore trophy to Russell Mitchell, who has retained the championship of this event for three successive years. A runner-up prize went to Warren Ostrander, who was only one point behind the winner.

Lawrence Elsbury received the club's new small bore trophy which was presented by Ray Young and Bert Sinagra and Les Faulkner who tied for second place were each awarded prizes.

AWARD PRESENTED

A presentation was also made to Ray Cutler for his ingenuity and unselfish effort in devising and operating the moving deer target for the rifle competition.

A lady's door prize was won by Mrs. William Kerr through a draw from the admission tickets by Claude Winters.

President Cy Gardner of the Belleville club, took occasion to present a fine trophy to Constable Earl Martin who held high average for that club for the season. Earl's average was 94.2 which Mr. Gardner declared was a real achievement. He also mentioned that Jack Cole took the doubles trophy from the club, while Duff Folkard received a trophy as a member of a winning team.

DEER SEASON ON MAIN DUCK ISLAND

Announcement was made by Mr. Hugh Dornan that an open season for deer on Main Duck Island had been declared this year. The season is October 14th to November 11th. However, this being a privately-owned island permission would be necessary to hunt there.

The deer and moose season in the Tweed forest district, the speaker stated, was November 4th to 10th, north of No. 7 Highway, and November 4th to 9th south of No. 7 and north of No. 2 Highway.

MUST BUY TWO

One change in the regulations this year was the discontinuance of the combination moose and deer licence. If a hunter wishes to hunt moose he must obtain a moose licence, or for deer he must have a deer licence. To hunt both he must purchase both licences. The dog licence regulation has also been changed and allows as many dogs as you wish providing each is licensed.

Mr. Dornan urged all hunters to exert the utmost care in the woods to avoid accidents and the needless loss from fires caused by carelessness. During the first week of the season there will probably be about 20,000 visitors in the bush, he said, so the necessity to know what you are shooting at should be evident.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Dornan answered many questions asked by his audience.

500 Delegates Expected for Convention

PICTON—Although it is not scheduled to take place until Sept. 9, 9, 10 11 next year plans are already being finalized for the convention of the Ontario Association of Homes for the Aged in Picton. Some five hundred delegates are expected and there will be many non-delegates accompanying them.

Quinte Tourist Association is arranging for necessary accommodation which will be available on these days since the tourist season rush will be over.

Prince Edward County Council is co-operating, seeing many benefits accruing from the large gathering from all parts of the Country. They receive a percentage of revenue from the admission which is charged, sale of display space to exhibitors of space to suppliers of Homes for the Aged. In return, they furnish the meeting place and the entertainment civic banquet. Other meals are paid for by delegates.

A meeting on Wednesday night, W. McWilliam, superintendent of Prince Edward County Home, who is president of the Ontario Association, and Reeve Donald Thompson of Picton, met with representatives of Prince Edward Agricultural Society to arrange for use of the County Centre.

NOMINAL RENTAL

The society representatives, Creighton Lockyer, Phil Dobbs and Chris Lockyer have offered lend every assistance, offering all conveniences without charge, and aid in setting up platform and tables. A nominal-rental fee to cover cost of operating the Centre was set.

"We are very pleased with the co-operation we are receiving from everyone. It is a big event and by planning early we hope to stage one of the best conventions yet. Though Picton is a small centre compared to Windsor where, the convention was held last year, we feel that we can make this annual event one which all delegates and other visitors will always remember. It should make known to hundreds the beauties of our county, stimulate business in the stores and assist the tourist resort operators," Mr. McWilliam said.

Carousel Fine Show by Hospital Aux.

PICTON — The old and the new combined to create an interesting atmosphere at the Autumn Carousel, sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at the Country Centre, on Wednesday night.

The new was reflected in the parade of beautiful fall and winter fashions from Fraser's Grey Room, and the gleaming models of 1964 cars on display.

At the opposite end of the building was the Country Store and here was recreated a scene which was familiar to shoppers forty years ago. There was a pot-bellied stove, a cracker barrel, nail keg seats, old rocking chairs, an old fashioned bench and baskets filled with vegetables. On the counters were many antique items including a hand slicer for cheese, a coffee grinder, old lamps. The background was formed by old calendars, shelves of grain and corn, wagon wheels and antiques.

Counters were laden with all kinds of home baking and candy, fruits and vegetables, with do-nuts and cider also being offered. Clerks were wearing old-fashioned costumes to emphasize the old time theme.

A record crowd attended the event. This year the serving of tea was dispensed with and a buffet supper substituted the event. This year the serving of tea was dispensed with and a buffet supper substituted. This helped attract many men who showed as much interest in the new fashions as they did in the new cars.

Night School Classes Will Open Next Week

PICTON — Approximately 150 people registered on Tuesday evening at the Collegiate for Night School courses. While in some cases the number was below the minimum, classes will commence next week in the expectation that the numbers will grow. Classes in Oil Painting, XIII Mathematics, Women's Physical Education will meet on Thursday at 7:30, all others on Tuesday at 7:30. A more detailed report follows.

Oil Painting — 15. Room for a very few more.

Bookkeeping (Elementary) — 10. Five or six more students needed.

Typewriting — 34. Class almost filled.

Shorthand — 18. Capacity enrolment.

History and/or Geography — 10. XIII History, plus some miscellaneous requests. A class will be organized if enough students are present next Tuesday.

Mathematics — 9 for XIII Algebra. Some of these indicated a preference for XIII biology. The latter course will be substituted if more students appear.

Oral French — 20. Plans are being formulated to enable this class to get under way next Tuesday.

Physical Education — Fewer than 10 registered in each group, but classes will be held for two weeks and will be continued after that time if numbers permit. Men meet on Tuesday, women on Thursday.

English — Several requests have been made for a class in English, mainly from newcomers from other lands who are able to speak and understand English to some degree but wish to become more truly bilingual. Any such people are invited to register at 7:30 on Tuesday.

Many Thrilled With Color, Pageantry at Rehearsal For 'Trooping of Color'

PICTON—More than two thousand were thrilled with the color, pageantry and music at the dress rehearsal of the Trooping of the Colors of 1st Battalion, the Canadian Guards at Camp Picton, Thursday morning. The actual trooping takes place at ten-thirty Saturday morning at Camp Picton. The general public is welcome.

Among two thousand special guests will be the Minister of National Defence, Hon. Paul Hellyer, and distinguished military and civic figures.

Thursday night, Picton Armories presented a gala scene as an all-ranks dance was held in a brilliant setting.

Another highlight yesterday was the arrival at one o'clock in Picton harbor of three launch boats from Camp Petawawa. They had made the trip in ten days, paddling the 350 miles. There were 33 men in the party who they carried their own supplies. There were from 2nd Bn., the Guards at Camp Petawawa and they are joining in the celebration of the 1st Battalion's Anniversary here this week.

It was the first time the trooping of the colors had ever been performed here, but the colorful dress and precision marching of five hundred men on the spectators' hand, received musicians formed the 1st Battalion Pipe Band and the Regimental Band from Petawawa.

In yesterday's ceremony, to be repeated Saturday, the parading saw the Guards formed up in line and divided into four "Guards" of three officers and 72 men each. Three of the "Guards" were from the 1st Battalion in Camp Picton, and one of them had the honor of holding the right of the line and called the "Escort to the Color". The fourth "Guard" was from the 2nd Battalion in Camp Petawaw, Ont.

On the command "Troop" given by the parade commander of the parade, Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Mulherin of the 1st Battalion, the band and bands slow marched across the front of the parade and back in quick time.

A drummer then stepped out from the band to beat the "Drummer's Call", a signal for the Escort to the Color to prepare to receive the Color. The Regimental Sergeant Major fell in behind the Escort and drew his sword on only occasion on which he ever draws it in peacetime.

The Escort followed by the Band marched across the front of the remainder of the parade to where the Color, held by a sergeant was under the guard of two sentries. The tune "British Grenadiers" was played for this movement as the Escort is always furnished by the flank company of the battalion, formerly known as the Grenadier company.

The Sergeant Major moved forward and after saluting with his sword received the Colour from the Sergeant. He handed it over to the Ensign of the Colour to be carried during the Trooping and the Escort to the Colour presented Ensign. The Ensign is the junior second lieutenant of the battalion.

The Colour was then paraded in slow time to the music of the "Grenadiers' Slow March" along the front of the remaining three "Guards" of the battalion, with the Escort to the Colour (Mo. 1 Guard) marching through their ranks.

Following this, the four "Guards" marched past the reviewing officer, first in slow time and then in quick. Each time they passed the saluting base the Ensign let the Colour fly.

The ceremony ended with the parade formed up in line again, presenting arms in a general salute to the reviewing officer, after which they formed into divisions and marched off.

Trooping the Colour is a ceremony that was instituted in the British Army in the seventeenth century. Col Mulherin stated, "Trooping the Colour is a unique point in battle it was necessary to parade or "Troop" it through the ranks periodically so that all would know and recognize it. The original ceremony was known as "Sending for and Lodging The Colours".

Military Colours are the consecrated flags or emblems of regiments of Foot Guards and Infantry. Each battalion of Foot Guards has two main Colours—the Queen's Colour and the Regimental Colour. They represent loyalty to the Crown and to the Regiment respectively.

The Foot Guards the Queen's Colour is crimson, blue and the Regimental Colour in the Union Jack with a company badge in the centre.

Only one Color is trooped at a time except when new Colors are presented to a battalion or regiment. The Colors carried and served as rallying points in battle.

Colors have not been carried into battle by the British Army since around the turn of the nineteenth century although at the Crimea was the last occasion to see Colors carried into action, while another says Colors were last carried in action as a general practice by British troops in the Zulu war.

However the ancient ceremony of Trooping the Color continues to be carried out to this day and that at Camp Picton is a wonderful opportunity for the general public to see it.

commission report on the Canadian auto industry.

Drury also held discussions about the implications of recent congressional decisions to cut off funds for further purchases and development of Canadian-built Caribou military aircraft, and he held out some hope that the U.S. still may find a way to participate further in this project.

Drury flew here Thursday to address a conference for United States corporation executives, discussing Canada - U.S. relations in an off-the-record, private session sponsored by Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies.

Before and after the seminar session, he kept appointments with U.S. Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges and Undersecretary of State George Ball to describe the auto plan, and with Ian Sclater of the de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited plant at Downsview, Ont., as well as adding to Canada's over - all trade imbalance; and to the U.S. because it feared Canada intended to reduce by $200,000,000 a year its purchases in the U.S. of auto parts and components.

Drury indicated his discussions may have eased concern —at least in some measure—on both sides.

On the Caribou subject, he said McNamara advised him that the Ottawa is being reviewed in light of the congressional actions and a final decision is not expected for some time.

The U.S. has purchased about 125 of the aircraft and planned to purchase about 46 more, and had agreed to participate financially in development of an advanced Canadian II model. But the joint House of Representatives - Senate appropriations committee cut from the defence budget the $31,700,000 for the additional purchases and $3,000,000 earmarked for the development program.

SEES MISUNDERSTANDING

On the automotive question, the Canadian minister indicated some misunderstanding of Canada's intention may have contributed to U.S. irritation.

Hodges has been "friendly and charming" when he received the Canadian plan Thursday.

The U.S. first learned of Canada's intention to use tariffs to reduce the automotive trade imbalance during a joint cabinet meeting in Ottawa last week.

U.S. authorities were irritated, saying they believed Canada sought instead its current tariff-incentive program to a point where it would remove imports by $200,000,000. Some said there might be U.S. retaliation and others said attempts would be made to determine whether the plan was a breach of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The one-year tariff-incentive plan, offering tariff rebates on imported automatic transmissions and engines to the extent of the net increase in the Canadian manufacturer's exports, expires Oct. 31. Drury indicated the new program would be announced by then.

He gave no details of how it would work, saying these must first be given to Parliament.

MUST INCREASE

"It is not the proposal of the Canadian government to reduce imports of automobile parts or automobiles at all," he said. "It is our proposal to increase exports of autos and parts."

He said Canada had reached a point where it must increase its exports of manufactured goods to maintain a balance in international trade. The Canadian auto industry had the skills and equipment to compete with anybody, including the U.S., in world markets, but needed increased production to bring down the unit cost.

A bigger share of the U.S. market would help in this regard and the Canadian plan program conceivably "might" displace some current U.S. production, the minister was to displace some of the anticipated growth of U.S. production. The U.S. would buy from Canada to meet some of the increased market demands rather than stepping up its own production.

Canadian purchases would be more rapidly than normal when increased demand brought reduced prices. Lower prices also would make Canadian cars more competitive in export markets.

WOULD EXPAND

With markets in Canada and the U.S. both expanding, trade both ways could expand also.

Asked whether the Canadian plan was designed to persuade U.S. companies with subsidiaries in Canada to use more Canadian - made components in their U.S. cars, Drury said:

"If I answered that I would be disclosing more than I think I should."

He agreed, however, with a suggestion that the Canadian plan would give U.S. manufacturers with Canadian subsidiaries reason to change their habits with regard to supplying component parts from U.S. plants to Canadian assembly plants.

friendly air that in younger days earned him the rag "gentle Alec."

Under the peerage bill passed by the last session of Parliament, House would have no difficulty disclaiming his title to accept the premiership and it later could be taken up by his son, if the younger man wished.

Home's chief service before the foreign ministry was 5½ years as Commonwealth relations secretary, when in a visit to Canada one of his speeches aroused the ire of Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express.

In a 1958 Halifax address, Home declared: "Canada should not fear United States domination through an influx of U.S. development capital. There is so much to be done that I should think there is room for all who have money."

The Express replied: "By what authority does Lord Home presume to advise the Canadians in this fashion? He is not a public relations officer for American business interests."

RAPS UN

With markets in Canada and the U.S. both expanding, trade both ways could expand also.

crop."

Provincial Agriculture Minister Stewart said reports reaching him indicate winter wheat conditions in Middlesex County and parts of Lambton and Kent counties are the worst on record.

"It is causing great concern in this department," said Mr. Stewart, a lifelong farmer in Middlesex. He estimated more than 50 per cent of farmers in southwestern Ontario are facing a water shortage.

He also said the drought is affecting the dairy industry.

"Already milk production has dropped drastically in western Ontario as a result of dried-up pasture lands. The situation is really serious and there has been no period like it since I have been a farmer."

LAKES ARE DOWN

Rocks and sandbars are showing up in streams where there were none before. Lake Huron is two feet lower than normal. Farm land crumbles to dust in front of powdered ponds and lakes become mud pastures.

Although the human population has yet to suffer the pangs of thirst, the livestock problem is becoming serious in many country areas.

Waterloo County farmers are stable - feeding their livestock with water delivered by tanker. Around Stratford, farmers are beginning to range far afield to draw water from creeks, streams and rivers.

The dry spell is shattering records in many parts of the province. In the Sault Ste. Marie district the last time it rained was Sept. 11. Near Niagara Falls it has not rained this month in Hamilton not since Sept. 13. Near Sarnia only 1.5 inches has fallen since Aug. 3. North of London less than one-quarter inches has fallen this month.

Dry conditions have raised the fire hazard index to extreme in many parts of the province.

The Sarnia fire department unvoked a bylaw Thursday that prohibits outdoor fires and provides a $300 fine for violation. For five days a smoldering fire on the 3,300-acre Sarnia Indian Reserve has threatened Indian homes, a hydro substation and the main warehouses of Polymer Corporation and its huge stocks of synthetic rubber.

WORTH IS PARCHED

Northern Ontario, although not so seriously parched, has suffered from an unusually high number of forest and bush fires.

Windsor - two extra men have been hired by the lands and forests department to help battle blazes in the Sudbury district. District Forester George Hamilton said Thursday the fire situation is the worst in the last five years. Twelve minor fires are being patrolled, four have been doused and two are in check.

Some farmers in the Niagara Peninsula, made wise by years of watching their water supplies dry up, prepared for the present situation by digging ponds. During the heavy rainfall season in August the ponds filled.

It isn't lovely weather for ducks.

With the exception of the Lake Ontario region and eastern Ontario, duck hunters and conservationists have the same report: No ducks. In most districts migration hasn't started because the weather has been so warm.

STRIKE ENDS

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—A strike of 1,341 employees at the Dominion Rubber Company ended Thursday when the United Rubber Workers (CLC) voted to accept an 11-cent-an-hour wage increase over three years. The workers walked out Sept. 16 after negotiations on a new contract broke down.

months — the longest unbroken term of office of any premier in this century.

Crowds gathered outside the palace shouted "It's Lord Home! It's Lord Home!" as his car rolled into the palace courtyard.

Shortly after receiving Macmillan's letter of resignation, the 37-year-old Queen drove to King Edward VII Hospital to visit the outgoing government chief. It was obvious that Macmillan's replacement—whom she must formally should be their chief topic of discussion. She conferred with him for a half-hour and then returned to the palace.

Macmillan is recovering from a successful operation last week to remove his prostate gland.

Many Conservatives were incensed at Macmillan's reported decision to name a prime minister from the House of Lords, regarding it as an insult to candidates from the elected House of Commons.

FAIRLOOM PROBABLE

Macmillan will undoubtedly be offered an earldom upon his departure from office, the usual reward for retiring British prime ministers.

The only recent outgoing prime minister who declined the honor was Sir Winston Churchill, who preferred stay ing in the House of Commons to entering the House of Lords.

The bitter Conservative infighting over Macmillan's successor went on unabated.

It was known that Macmillan himself had nominated Lord Home for the appointment. But opponents of reaching into the House for a national leader immediately rallied around Butler, and the issue remained moot.

Stung into belated outrage, cabinet and House of Commons opponents of Home moved when reports of Macmillan's resignation were coupled with "leaks" that he planned to recommend the Scottish peer for the successor. Backers of Butler, the most experienced man in the government, were filled with foreboding because they feared the Conservative party would cripple itself by going to the House of Lords for a prime minister in the modern day.

Efforts were reported to seek an understanding between Butler and the other two main contenders—Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer, and Viscount Hailsham, science minister. Before Macmillan reported his choice to the Queen.

Among sensational newspaper reports of his near resignation bolt in Conservative party ranks, there was one notable exception on the independent Conservative Times—which did not mention Home's name in its story, reporting backbench opinion that Butler would be called.

Highly-placed informants said more than half of Macmillan's 30-man cabinet favored Butler over Home. The dissident ministers caucused into the small hours this morning at the home of Health Minister Enoch Powell.

Political associates said Maudling and Iain Macleod, Conservative floor leader in Commons, were leading the last-ditch fight for Butler.

A high government source said Macmillan felt Home could do a better job than Butler at uniting the Conservative party to face the Laborites in the general election next year.

The Queen's acceptance of Macmillan's resignation signalled the political resignation of the whole of the government in order that the new premier would have a free hand in choosing his team.

It was understood that top leaders of the party opposed to Home attempted to secure a 24-hour delay before the Queen acted to name formally a successor to Macmillan.

tions with the CNR after the non-ops present new contract demands to Canada's railways within the next few weeks.

Mr. Hall said the CBRT is welcome to rejoin the national negotiations but only if it accepted the council's decision against separate negotiations for the sleeping, dining and parlor car employees.

He said he was "very sad" about the split.

Mr. Hall said he wanted the 1,000 CNR employees excluded from the general non-ops negotiations so that "largest twist lost" in contract rules to meet radical changes in railway operations in recent years could be worked out.

The agreement on sleeping, dining and parlor car employees had not been brought up since 1948, he said.

During the last round of non-ops negotiations two years ago, the maintenance of - way employees had also sought to have some of its members excluded from the joint national negotiations to work out special clauses.

REJECT DEMAND

The railways would have nothing to do with the demand that it was reported that this rejection led the 14 international unions to oppose the CBRT's bid for separate negotiations for its sleeping, dining and parlor car employees.

There was no immediate comment from the railways on the union split.

The CBRT's separation from the international unions is seen as the result of increasing opposition within the Canadian-based unions to unions with headquarters in the United States, some sources speculated.

The CBRT's feuds with some of the other non - ops unions came to a head last winter when the Order of Railroad Telegraphers accused the Canadian based union of deliberately raiding its membership.

The CBRT won the dispute when the highest levels of the Canadian Labor Congress ruled in its favor. However, the ORT has said it planned to challenge the decision and carry its fight with the CBRT as far as possible.

ment and the main motion are at stake.

HAVE THEIR RIGHTS

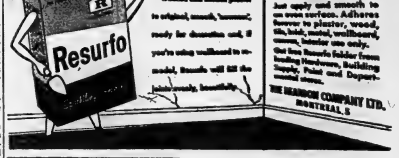
Mr. Knowles said Thursday night the Creditistes—like them or not—"have their rights." The only issue was setting arrangements. No government or committee—not even the whole Parliament—had the right in a free democracy to say what party is official and what one is unofficial.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the way a party is formed isn't Parliament's business. It was concerned only with seating.

The argument that a party can't be formed unless it has gone through the fixing line of an election was not borne out by history.

He suggested the issue wouldn't have come up at all if the House, before the summer recess, hadn't raised MPs' annual pay to $18,000 and at the same time provided an extra $4,000 for leaders of parties with 12 or more members.

NOT ITS JOB



Larry Pennell (L — Brant-Haldimand) said it wasn't the job of the committee to disentangle two factions "warring in the bosom of the Social Credit party."

The committee had applied the principle of 1957 when the House decided to seat 24 CCF members in a pacifism motion to IT Social Creditors because the CCF group had longer service in the Commons and represented more provinces.

This, rather than numerical strength, had been chosen by the committee. The report had some imperfections but could be "justified on the basis of logic, convenience, tradition and custom."

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Hears Talk on Cardiology

Work of the Department of Cardiology at the Belleville General Hospital was explained to members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary at their regular October meeting by Mr. William G. Brown, department head. This department, established only ten years ago, now does three hundred cardiographs each month, an increase of twenty-five per cent in the last year.

Mr. Brown described and displayed some of the most modern equipment available which is being used in the diagnosis and care of cardiac patients in the Belleville hospital. He also told of some amazing developments in this field coming in the near future which will provide even more efficient and speedier service to patients of this district.

SERVICES PROVIDED

Mr. Brown had brought "Annie," a life-size figure especially constructed for the teaching of resuscitation which is carried on in his department. Other services provided are basal metabolism tests to determine the rate of thyroid activity and allergy testing, a service which must be extended to meet the growing need in Belleville and district.

A further item of interest to the group present was the display of cameras used by the photography department in the hospital, now used in the out-patient department, where pictures enable the doctor to check from week-to-week progress of patients.

Mr. Brown was introduced by Mrs. James Bowerman and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Nellie Merry.

SUCCESSFUL FASHION SHOW

A feature of the business meeting, presided over by the president, Mrs. Fred Beeby, was the report of the recent Fashion Fiesta, given by the committee, Mrs. Art Burley, "An Affair to Remember" was not only an outstanding artistic production but also a profitable project with a sum exceeding $1400. being realized. The proceeds will go, in part, to the cost of the hospital laundry folder, now being purchased by the Auxiliary.

MAKE TRAY FAVORS

Honored guests at the meeting, wives of businessmen of the local Girl Guide organization: Mrs. Brennan, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Colden and Mrs. Bannon. These ladies were introduced by Mrs. Owen Clarke, convener of holiday treats, and thanked for their interest and assistance in this auxiliary project. Under supervision, Girl Guides and Rangers of the city have made hundreds of tray favors and favors for hospital patients on various occasions.

Two records in the history of the auxiliary were noted in September and October. The number of paid-up members stands at an all-time high of 226. In September the Thrift and Gift Shop reported sales of $801, the highest monthly gross in history.

A report of the meeting of Region No. 9 of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliaries held recently in Kingston, was presented by Mrs. Charles Campbell.

The president reported that several members of the auxiliary had assisted at the reception following the recent provincial convention for medical laboratory technicians.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting under the direction of Mrs. Stan Kvarda.

WEDDING

LASHLEY — PATTERSON

Northlea United Church, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when Joyce Claire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Patterson, Toronto, became the bride of John David Lashley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lashley, Toronto.

Reverend J. M. Butler performed the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Rae Heard presided at the organ and two anthems were rendered by the choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor length dull white peau de soie gown with fitted bodice, featuring a scoop neckline, trimmed with re-embroidered Swiss lace and long lily-point sleeves. It had a bell shaped skirt with cascade style train. Her silk tulle illusion veil was held by pearls and lace.

Miss Jean Lynn, Leaside, was maid of honor, wearing a pure silk pink organza taffeta ballerina-length gown, topped with Chantilly lace and same color self-cov

Question: Would you kindly print a re e for pickling small green tomatoes?. — Mrs. Lorena, S.

Answer: I could have mailed this recipe to you at once but you did not give your name or address. Please do next time.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Halibut Steaks with Tomato Sauce; Oven French Fries; Vegetable Marrow with Parsley Butter; Celery Hearts and Carrots Sticks; Barb's Ice Cream (see Thursday); Laura's Oatmeal Cake (see Thursday); Coffee.

WHOLE GREEN TOMATO PICKLE

Three and one - quarter qts. small, whole green tomatoes, about 2 tablespoons salt, water to cover, whole cloves, 4 cups vinegar, 3½ cups granulated sugar, 3½ cups brown sugar, 2 or 3 sticks cinnamon. Peel the tomatoes. Put them in a kettle with the water and salt, and boil until barely tender but still whole. Drain. Stick 2 or 3 cloves in each tomato. Combine vinegar, sugar and cinnamon in a saucepan, heat to boiling point, and boil until a thick syrup foams. Pour hot over the tomatoes, and let stand overnight. In the morning reheat to boiling and pack in sterilized jars. Seal immediately. Makes 3 to 4 quarts.

Question: Please send me recipe for 1.) Apple Butter. 2.) Crabapples (in which apples are put in bottles with stems left on). These are sweet-tasting. I have been picking apples and have quite a few varieties. Also, what is the best method of freezing apple pie baked or unbaked? . . . Claire W.

ANSWER: APPLE BUTTER (repeated from April 5/63).

3 Imperial qts. sweet cider, 2 Imperial qts. washed, quartered (but not pared or cored) tart apples, 2 cups sugar, ½ to 1 teaspoon cinnamon (optional) or 1 stick cinnamon, ¼ to ½ teaspoon cloves (optional) or 6 whole cloves.

Boil cider until it is reduced by half (1½ quarts). Add prepared, measured apples and cook until very tender and mushy. Force through colander or coarse sieve — but one that is fine enough to keep out the seeds. Add sugar and spices, if used, and cook until of "butter" consistency, but you must stir it almost constantly to prevent burning. Do not overcook. Remove whole spices, if used. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

PICKLED CRABAPPLES

5 lbs. crabapples, uniform size, 4 cups spirit (white) vinegar, 1 cup water, 4 cups sugar, 4 tablespoons mixed pickling spices tied in cheesecloth bag.

Bring to boiling point the vinegar, water, sugar and spices. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Add washed and prepared apples (stems may be left on but blossom end trimmed out) and then put over low heat and bring slowly to boil. Reduce heat as much as possible to just keep them simmering for 5 minutes.

If you do not cook them slowly the skins will crack. Remove from heat, take out apples bag and let stand in syrup overnight. Pack cold in sterile jars. Pour over cold syrup and seal.

I prefer to freeze pies before baking. They must be well sealed in heavyduty foil and put into hot oven frozen and baked 1½ times as long as room-temperature - unfrozen pies or until juice bubbles through gashes.

Church Groups

October C.W.L. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. A. Walsh with 10 members present. Meeting was opened by Mrs. R. Walsh, president. Discussion and plans were made for the November bake sale and euchre game to be held in the school. Mrs. J. Buckley, spiritual convener and the members said the Rosary in honor of the Five Moons of Our Lord.

Meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Glenda Flesch, after which a few hands of euchre were played. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

U.C.W. Meeting

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

United Church Women of Bridge Street Church met for a pot-luck supper to celebrate their autumn thankoffering service. G.G.I.T. girls' and their leaders were guests.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. B. Leslie. Mrs. A. J. Clare presided and music was provided by Mrs. E. M. Bird.

After a short business session the meeting adjourned to the church auditorium where husbands and friends joined the members to hear the guest speaker who was introduced by Rev. H. M. Davis.

The Rev. C. R. Catto, graduate in Arts and Theology from Toronto University, spent some time at God's Lake, Manitoba, in a ministry to the Cree Indians. Later he worked for five years as a United Church missionary in Northern Rhodesia, and is at present completing a year's furlough before returning to Africa in January.

WORK IS CHANGING

Bringing greetings from the Christian Church of Central Africa, Mr. Catto stated that there has been a tremendous change in the role of the church during recent years. Formerly its work was institutional bounded by buildings, schools, churches, etc. Now its work is a ministry of reconciliation — helping people to understand each other. The work in Rhodesia is not only with the blackskinned people and the colored people (those of mixed blood), but the white people also need this ministry of reconciliation.

Racial troubles in North America are viewed with concern by the people of Africa. In industry the color bar has collapsed where Africans are given training for their jobs and may rise to any job. In the schools, segregated schooling is ending on the high school level and will soon be a thing of the past in the public schools. The Christian church has done much to help in this work of reconciliation.

By means of a film, the audience could see the people in their homes in the rural areas, the children at play and the way of life of a happy people who sing always as they work. In the cities where the copper mining industry has brought prosperity, a different way of life has developed.

Many questions asked of Mr. Catto showed the deep interest of his audience.

A duet by Mrs. V. Barkley and Mrs. K. Bird accompanied by Mrs. J. Demeza was much enjoyed.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Dad Sixty; Daughter Sixteen

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — My parents are on the elderly side. Dad is 60 and he can't seem to understand us teen-agers. (I'm 16). He does't like our clothes, our way of doing things in general, and especially the music and dances. He seems to enjoy knocking us and ridiculing at every opportunity.

Now I love my parents, and this hurts me very much. Still I can't seem to get through to him. It seems as if we were miles apart. Could you please help me to understand him better, or what can I do to make life more agreeable at home? — RED-HEAD.

DEAR RED-HEAD — Sixty does not have to be "elderly" —unless he has let old prejudices hem him in. I'm on your side. No one likes to be ridiculed.

Try turning the tables. Learn about him; what and how he danced and sang, as a boy; what responsible work he is doing now. Give him little services.

You might even get to the point where you could tell him how proud you are of him; that a girl's father should be one of her best friends; that you want him to know your pals. If you change his ridicule to praise, I'll nominate you as Best Natural Social Worker of the Year.

DEAR DORIS — I am the mother of an 18-month-old boy and have been married close to three years.

My husband and his brother are very close — so they see each other frequently. What troubles me is my sister-in-law taking liberties with my husband. She flirts with him constantly. It hurts, and sometimes I am ashamed if it happens before others.

I am not the type to do this, and it would take a bit of courage, but must I pay back and behave the same way to her husband to control this? Perhaps it would make her think — or should I see her less frequently and try to influence my husband in that direction? — CAN'T TAKE IT.

DEAR CAN'T TAKE IT — Let's think about why she does it: My guess is she is less concerned with your husband than with her own: that she flirts to make him jealous.

Follow this further and you'll see that if she were sure of her own love's love, she'd devote herself to flirting with him, perhaps even showing affection in front of you. How about that?

So the answer is to remain poised, sure of your man and of yourself. Perhaps a little amused. Just in private, tell your husband how this troubles you.

SPECIAL TO HOPEFUL — The wintertime home of the National Theatre School of Canada is located in Montreal. Here budding talent is tested, trained and tried out. Write to the school at 1191 Mountain Street, Montreal 25, Quebec, saying what you've done and asking for information and literature about training courses.

(If your question is about a career, ask Doris. She has studied vocational counselling and can help you with this important decision.)

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I'm in a quandry. My husband's parents just wrote that they're coming to visit for a few days next month. Unfortunately, they picked just the few days we had planned to go away on a trip with another couple. I've already arranged with my mother sto stay at our house and look after our two children while we're gone. Mother says she'll also be glad to look after my in-laws, as well, so we won't have to alter plans we've been making for months now. I'd postpone our trip, but my husband can get away from his office only at that time, before the Christmas rush, and our friends are counting on our providing transportation. We have the car. My in-laws are very proper. Would it seem rude to move or less run out on them? I know they're dying to see the children, but I'd hate to give up a trip all four of us have been looking forward to for a long time. — Mrs. C. V. K., Orange, N. J.

Answer: Since your in-laws invited themselves, it's certainly permissible, in fact advisable, that you let them know about your proposed trip and try to head them off. Suggest another time when you'll be free to entertain them. I doubt they'd feel comfortable visiting your home when you're away and, although your mother is agreeable about looking after them, it still would be an imposition. Unless specifically invited, visitors — relatives included — should politely tailor their plans to those of the hosts, instead of vice-versa.

Question: A boy I date — we don't go steady — is going to have his eighteenth birthday soon, and I'd like to give him a present, maybe a nice alligator wallet. My mother says it would be unladylike, and that he might get the impression I'm chasing him. What's your opinion? — C. K. Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Answer: A present would be correct if he were having a birthday party and you were a guest. But, in my opinion, a card would be more appropriate at your age than a gift, especially anything as expensive as a wallet.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH

Mrs. Ken Bush was hostess to Sidney South W.I. on Wednesday evening with Mrs. M. Nobes in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Harold Rosenberg was nominated to represent Sidney South at the Area convention with Mrs. C. Shinkle as assistant. A tape recording was given by Miss Jane Gay reporting the program of the Workshop held at Marsh Hill.

SORE THROAT REMEDY

Mrs. G. Sills was in charge of the program on "Historical Research and Current Events." Mrs. J. Sargent gave her impressions on being called as a juror. Mrs. J. Best showed hand-knit cotton hosiery which were worn during the early 1900's; a purse made of apple seeds which was 75 years old, an ivory fan, string of beads and a lady's petticoat, property of Mrs. D. Holton; Mrs. F. Aikens showed a clove apple which was used to store with clothing. Mrs. Best displayed an 1877 recipe book—such recipes as boiled pork, washing woollen blankets; a remedy for sore throat was salt pork, hot vinegar, borax and alum. Mrs M. Nobes had newspaper clippings of the honor rolls of the two World Wars, these are to be entered with any pictures pertaining to them in the Tweedsmuir Book.

Mrs. Sills presented a scrap book made by Miss Martha Hamilton with the early date of 1858. In this book was an account of the beginning of the Belleville General Hospital, sponsored by the WCTU with its first president in 1879 being Mrs. Hiram Jaques. The sum of $16,000 was raised for this project.

WORK OF WAR YEARS

Mrs. Aikens read the report of the annual meeting in 1941 of the Red Cross and told of the work done by the ladies of Centenary during the war years. A letter written by Harold Sutherland, while he was serving in Italy was read in this letter he thanked the ladies for his Christmas parcel — particularly for the canned chicken. Mrs. Aikens brought her address to a close with the reading of Mother Shipten's Prophesy in 1440 of events and discoveries that have since come to pass.

Mrs. J. Sargent played back to the members a tape recording taken during the opening and business part of the meeting. Mrs. W. Shorrt conducted a contest, won by Mrs. Roy Nobes.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Reid and her assistants. Mrs. G. Sills will be hostess to the Institute on the evening of November 13.

Less-Shoe-More-Foot Trend Will Continue

MONTREAL (CP)—The less-shoe-more-foot trend in fashion for women will continue through next spring, says the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada.

The so-called opened-up look which came to prominence this summer will be available in an ever-widening range of styles.

The bureau promises that every woman will be able to choose shoes suited to her individual likes and dislikes, her ensemble and her comfort.

For casual wear there will be the country look in a variety of new ties, straps, slings and spat effects.

Comfort will be evident in the increasing emphasis on high and lower heels. And shoes will have a broader look with crescents, finger tips and ovals to meet a demand for variety in toe shapes. Open-toed sandals may make an appearance.

The opened-up look will be evident in shoes with open sides, a variety of cutouts, slings and sandals. There will be shell pumps sleekly pared down. And toe clearages will be shown in many styles.

Heels in this group will be mainly in the illusion high and 2¾-inch range and will be fine and straight. Lasts will be finger tip to oval, and most will be patent leather, smooth calf or fine grained kid.

FIT FOR A TEEN — With teen-agers in mind, Canadian manufacturers have fashioned these shoe styles for next spring. They are the casual (lower left) in moccasin pattern outlined with small perforations in soft, grained leather on a little stacked heel; open-sided sling back (upper left) with antiqued perforations across toe and small, flat heel; white patent leather pump with low, neback heel and black and white snakeskin trim. (CP Photo)

Country look shoes will be mostly closed but some effort is being made to provide opened-up effects. Pumps will be the leader in this class but T-straps, slings and ties will also be available in greater volume. Grains and smooth calf will predominate and there will be some country look shoes in patent leather.

In the popular Jackie Kennedy look, related by set-back heels and straight toplines, lasts tend to be more extreme and as a result broader crescents and squares are frequently seen. Heels are from one to two inches in height, either slanted or set back, have no curve and are more substantial. Since set-back heels are usually leather-covered, the proportion of stacked heels may be down slightly from the last few seasons.

Spring colors will again be topped by black. The beige to mid-brown shades will be second, red will be fairly common and there will be a moderate amount of blue.

As the season progresses the pastels will come into their own —perennial blues and pinks in quantity with yellow and orange as fringe colors. Antiquing will continue to be a feature in tailored type shoes.

Problem Woman Causes Agitation in Neighborhood

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What can we do about a woman in our neighborhood who doesn't do all her marbles?

There are several families on this street and we all have young children. Naturally, children fight. This mother is forever rushing out and yelling and becoming involved in the battles of her four-and five year olds. She hits the youngsters sometimes in the face and on the head with a rolled-up magazine, a mixing spoon — or whatever she happens to be holding in her hands at the moment.

Yesterday I just happened to be looking out the window and I saw her take a swipe at my three-year-old. I immediately went over and asked her what she thought she was doing. She replied, "Your child took my Harvey's bottle of ants."

Please don't suggest that I reason with her because it is impossible to reason with a nut. Please suggest something workable. — END OF MY ROPE.

DEAR ROPE — Instruct your children to stay out of the woman's yard. If she puts a foot on your property — either to referee or to take over for her kids — tell her she is trespassing and it is against the law.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last Sunday I was invited to have supper in a restaurant with my boy friend and his parents. I am not quite 13, and I am a boy, too, so don't jump on my head for dating so young.

I was embarrassed when they asked me to order first because I didn't know how much money they wanted to spend on me. I ifloked at the prices and everything seemed pretty high. I didn't know whether to order a whole dinner or a sandwich or what. Really, it was horrible.

I stumbled around for a long time and then said I would have a peanut-butter and jelly sandwich because it was all I could think of. Everyone else ordered a whole dinner and I felt like a fool.

Please tell me what to do next time. Maybe the next family I eat with won't be able to afford whole dinners for everybody.— RED FACE.

DEAR RED — Your best bet is to say you can't decide what you want and ask the others to please go ahead and order so you can get an idea. Then order something similar.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been going steady with this fellow for seven months. He is 26 and I am 24.

He is very sweet to me but there's something fishy about this guy. He has dinner at our home at least twice a week. My folks like him a lot and have offered him the guest room when the weather has been bad and his car was in the shop. (He lives on the other side of town.)

In all the time we've been going together he has never suggested that I meet his folks. He has told me about his mother and father and sister and they sound like fine people.

I have seen his home (from the outside) and it is beautiful He can't possibly be ashamed of it.

Don't you think seven months of chit-chat is enough. He wants to be serious but I don't want to get involved with a fellow who is afraid or ashamed to introduce me to his family. What do you say? — HAD ENUFF.

DEAR ENUFF — You bet there is something fishy about this guy. No girl should tie herself up for seven months just for the halibut. Throw him back in the tank.

* * *

Confidential to DIZZY FROM THIS DAME — Marriage will not "straighten her out," so don't count on the miracle. A girl who has eyes for your brother, your boss and the delivery man doesn't sound like very promising marriage material.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

IVANHOE W.I.

WEST HUNTINGDON — Recently the Ivanhoe Women's Institute entertained three other branch Institutes in the Ivanhoe hall with four ladies from River Valley, five from Eldorado, 15 from Chatterton, who, along with 20 members of the Ivanhoe group enjoyed a social afternoon.

Mrs. Ted Pollock presided and welcomed the guests including North Hastings District president, Mrs. Ed. Holmes of Queensboro. A hearty sing-song led by Mrs. Reg. Heggerty at the piano proved a highlight of the afternoon.

Mrs. Barton Haggerty, 1st vice-president of North Hastings introduced Mrs. Holmes, guest speaker, who gave a most informative talk on Institute work.

Mrs. Harry Benson thanked Mrs. Holmes and presented her with a small memento for her visit.

The visiting groups brought the program for the afternoon which included: a solo in the Dutch language by Mrs. C. Tiel Veld of Eldorado; a reading by Mrs. Percy MacMullen of River Valley; a piano instrumental by Mrs. Floyd MacInnis of Chatterton, other readings by Mrs. Beryl Carmen of Eldorado, Mrs. Vernon Harry of River Valley and by Mrs. Carson of Chatterton.

After the program the ladies were divided into four groups for lunch and the Ivanhoe members served coffee.

When the guests had departed, the president called members together for a short business session. Resolutions for the area convention were discussed with suggestions for voting made for the delegates. A supper at the Sales Barn on November 11 was announced and the food lists distributed.

The secretary was instructed to buy a gift to be sent immediately to the W.I.'s adopted child in Hong Kong, so that he will receive it for Christmas.

Teen-Age Canada

TOGETHERNESS—Teen-Age Canada asks today: how old should a boy or girl be before being allowed to go to dances?

Says 13 Too Young for Children to Go Dancing

By JACK HUTTON

I heard the other day of a Home and School group of parents who almost came to blows over a redhot issue — whether 13-year-olds should go to a school dance.

Parents who had been lifelong friends almost stopped speaking to each other.

"Have you seen them dancing on television?" one mother said later. "I would sooner see my daughter quit school than let her go to a dance like that."

"What do you mean?" a father replied. "I've seen those same TV shows and I think I should protect my son from your daughter."

The group finally voted not to hold a school dance for Grade 7 and 8. But the question still lingers in my mind: at what age do you start going to dances?

When I talked to several students at the school, there was no doubt about the answer. "We take folk dancing as part of our school day," said one attractive girl. "What's so different about going to a supervised dance?"

GOING STEADY

That sounded reasonable to me. So I went back to the committee planning mother. "But they'll start going to dances outside the school," she wailed. "And first thing you know they'll want to go steady. Why can't they wait to grow up?"

That sounded reasonable too. So I went back to the girl. "What kind of reasoning is that?" she asked. "This is a supervised school dance, remember! We're not talking about other dances.

"Isn't the mother saying she can't control her own children if she's worried about them going places without her approval? And who says lots of 13 year-olds aren't going steady now anyway?"

By now I was thoroughly confused. "Do you mean that you might be shopping for a boy-friend at a school dance?" I asked.

"Of course not," she replied. "I'm not crazy enough to do anything like that. When I'm 16 I may think about it but not now, I've just turned 13.

THE REASONS

What are the reasons against encouraging elementary school students from attending dances too early? Here were the reasons given me by the "against" group of parents.

1 — Girls may might otherwise not want to wear make-up until later may feel they have to imitate the few who do. Parents feel this complicates their problems at home.

2 — Some parents feel that forcing students into a social situation "pushes" them too fast. Some are ready, they say, but the situation hurts the ones who aren't.

What are the reasons on the other side? These were the ones I heard most frequently.

1—Attending a dance develops poise and helps one to grow up. If boys and girls will attend dances anyway, why not start in the neighborhood where everyone is friends, some say.

2 — A properly supervised dance is a far better place to start learning about boy-girl relationships than the local dance hall or a local soda-parlor, some parents argued.

I'm staying neutral on this question (maybe because I still have two left feet on the dance floor) but you don't have to be. What do you think?

PAPERBACK BOOKS

Several readers have written to ask where they can find more information about setting up magazine racks of good paperback books in their schools.

I would suggest that your English teacher or principal is the best source of information, and they may have ideas of how to improve the project. Or possibly it's not a project for your school for various reasons.

The second source, after you've talked to someone in your school would be a local news dealer or distributor. This gentleman should have good advise on how to select a full line of books and still show a profit.

ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY — Above is automobile from which two Napanee area youths escaped possible serious injury shortly after midnight Thursday. Car crashed into a tree when the driver, Donald Denison, lost control, after allegedly being forced from the road by a second eastbound vehicle.

Reports Car Forced Off Road

Two Napanee area youths, Donald Denison, age 24, of R.R. 7, Napanee, and John Armstrong, age 22, of 181 East Bridge Street, Napanee, escaped possible serious injury shortly after midnight Thursday, when their car went out of control on Highway 2, and smashed into a tree, three miles east of Shannonville.

Driver the eastbound vehicle, Mr. Denison, was thrown from his car when it struck the tree, receiving facial lacerations. His passenger, Mr. Armstrong, was uninjured.

Mr. Armstrong said he and Denison were proceeding east along Highway No. 2 when they were forced from the road by another vehicle attempting to overtake them.

He said when the car hit the loose gravel on the south shoulder of the road, Mr. Denison lost control of the vehicle. The car then, veered across to the north side of the road where it smashed into a tree, coming to rest about 200 feet east of where the impact took place.

Damage to the late model Thunderbird was extensive. The accident was investigated by Ontario Provincial Police Constable W. "Bill" N. Stevens.

Conservative To Head Public Accounts Com.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—A quiet lawyer-rancher from northern Alberta was selected Thursday to continue the Conservative-set precedent of using an opposition member of Parliament to head the important public accounts committee.

He is Gerald W. Baldwin, 56, a Progressive Conservative who has represented the big constituency of Peace River since 1958.

He succeeds Alan Macnaughton, now the Commons Speaker, whose selection in 1958 by the Diefenbaker government adopted a United Kingdom procedure in having an opposition member as chairman of the committee.

The role of the committee is to scrutinize matters raised by the auditor-general, the man who digs into the government's spending accounts to spot waste and sloppy procedures.

ALL APPROVE

Mr. Baldwin's appointment by committee members was swift and unanimous. First business at the next meeting is expected to be the still-awaited auditor-general's report for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1962. The committee was barely under way when the last Parliament was dissolved last February.

Naming an opposition MP to the chairmanship has been one effort to avoid undue political partisanship in committee work. The selection of Mr. Baldwin is taken as a compliment to his

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — The oral question period in the House of Commons is a unique feature of Canada's Parliament. But it seems headed for stern reappraisal later this session.

Reason: Where once it consumed only 15 or 20 minutes at the start of each day's proceedings, the question period now extends regularly to 60 and often 90 minutes.

This sprawling, sometimes disjointed period has come under fire from MPs themselves who say it gives a picture to the public of aimless time-wasting on the part of the Commons.

During oral question periods, MPs have been in the habit of asking cabinet ministers for information ranging from why the post office department removed a public telephone in the Horse's Neck, Sask., post office to what action the government was taking to end the recent longshoremen's strike.

Lots of an hour, or more daily from the usual 5½-hour sitting cuts sharply into the amount of time available for Parliament's other business.

ASK RESTRAINT

Successive Commons Speakers have appealed to MPs to show restraint in asking questions, to confine themselves to urgent matters of public concern and to prune them of political arguments.

Generally the Speakers have failed to get the full co-operation of MPs who continue asking questions at length with what appears to be little regard for whether they are urgent or of public concern.

The result is that when the Commons establishes a committee to examine the rules under Speaker Alan Macnaughton later this session, one of the prime areas of study will be the question period.

The Commons rules book provides for two Speaker to apply to the oral question public record. He is a Conservative of long standing and a former parliamentary secretary to former Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"I believe in a case built on facts. If you have the facts, hit the government," he said Thursday in an interview. "If you have the facts, you usually get a hearing."

Mr. Baldwin is a serious-looking man whose speech and actions reflect legal training and his work as counsel in some 19 murder trials.

He arrived from his native New Zealand at the age of six with his parents—his father settled in Edmonton to practise law—and went to Peace River, Alta., 34 years ago as a young barrister.

He served with the Royal Canadian Artillery overseas in the Second World War and first ran for Parliament in 1957. He was elected the next year.

period, although it has precise rules governing the asking of written questions.

In fact, the rule book makes no mention of the oral question period. The practice just grew.

MERE ARGUMENT

In deciding whether a question is permissible, the Speaker must first hear it posed. Usually he has no advance notice from the MP who asks a question. The sole purpose of some questions may be mere political argument.

If the Speaker rules it out of order, the Commons time has already been spent in the question being asked. Then an out-of-order ruling may produce a protest from the MP consuming further time.

Past Speakers have turned in desperation to the rule book governing written questions. They have tried to impose on oral questions the limitations that exist in rules for written questions. They haven't always met with success.

Authorities, delving into the origins of the oral question period, say the original aim was to obtain information on which to base a motion calling for the Commons to set aside its scheduled business to debate a matter of urgent importance.

This was the case in the middle of the last century when the written questions in the British Parliament seeking information about Crimean War developments. They based them on telegraphed news dispatches.

RELIED ON POUCHES

But governments of that day continued to rely on diplomatic pouches carried by horse, train or boat from the Crimea across Europe to London.

There was a considerable time lag between receipt of the dispatches outlining military bungling or poor hospital conditions and receipt of diplomatic pouches advising the government of conditions in the Crimea.

This time lag robbed the MP of his chance to move a motion for an emergency debate.

The question was developed as the answer to this problem. But the rules books weren't amended to state that only oral questions must deal with urgent matters.

The British Parliament developed the practice of requiring that the MP submit his oral question to the Speaker outside the House so the speaker could decide whether it met the tests of urgency.

But the makers of Canadian Parliamentary rules never followed Britain's lead.

ISN'T SUSPECT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Deputy Police Chief George Blow said Thursday he has been informed that a man who flew to Winnipeg from London Oct. 10 is not a suspect in Britain's great train robbery. Deputy Blow told a press conference the RCMP had advised Winnipeg police that the air traveller, P. J. Pound, is not James White, the robbery suspect.

Cuban Exiles Said Fighting Among Selves to See Who'll Lead War Against Castro

In there a bulldup in Central America for another attempt to invade Cuba? Robert Berrelles, AP roving correspondent in Latin America, travelled into five countries in an effort to find out. Here is his report.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) The next flareup in Latin America may be among Cuban exiles fighting to see who'll lead the war against Fidel Castro.

The reason: too many chiefs, not enough Indians.

This is an impression gathered by this reporter on a four-week, 1,000-mile inquiry into reports of a new military buildup to bring down the Castro regime.

There is no firm evidence in support of these reports.

A quick, tempting conclusion is that the biggest "buildup" is all vocal—is in Miamp, Fla., among the Flagler Street commandos who've been charting Castro's downfall for more than three years.

Central America, however, is a big and inviting site for anti-Castro training bases. Its 174,000 nearly - unpatrolled miles could provide cover for most of Latin America's armed forces.

And within its five - nation group — Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicargua, and Costa Rica—are four governments which probably would welcome a chance to provide the launching pad for a new offensive against Castro. Costa Rica is the exception.

A curious aspect of this access is sharp, evidence among most people of more resentment, and even hostility, toward their own governments than toward Castro.

Persistent reports have pointed to Nicargua as the staging area for the new anti-Castro guerrillas. The likeliest site mentioned is the Caribbean coast department (state) of Zelaya, which has only 62,000 inhabitants.

A training location mentioned within this area is the tiny seacoast town of Puerto Cabezas, 600 miles south of Savana.

An ironic touch comes in reports of anti-government guerrilla activities in Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua, in all cases, the official table for these guerrillas is "Castrite," which seems to be developing into a synonym for opposition. In some cases the guerrillas seem to be ordinary bandits who've learned the propaganda value of revolutionary slogans, beards and olive green uniforms.

Postmaster Denis Accused Of Misleading Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Denis was accused in the Commons Thursday of misleading the House with a denial of the existence of a document listing defeated Liberal candidates as "consultants."

Eric Winkler, chief opposition whip, leveled the charge at the opening of Thursday's sitting. He added that Mr. Denis also misled State Secretary Pickersgill on the subject with the result that Mr. Pickersgill denied the existence of such a document too.

Mr. Winkler, MP for Grey-Bruce, proposed a motion to have the document tabled in the Commons. He was speaking on a question of privilege.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton, at the suggestion of former speaker Marcel Lambert, (PC—Edmonton West), reserved decision on both Mr. Winkler's charge and on whether Mr. Winkler's motion was in order.

Mr. Winkler identified the document he reading a description of the instructions on it which stated that they were addressed to those named in the list were to be submitted for Mr. Denis' signature.

ORLIKOW STARTED IT

The existence of the document came into question Wednesday when Hamilton Mountain MP (NDP) Winnipeg North) moved that the government be required to supply "a list of consultants and paragons in the office of the postmaster-general for the guidance of cabinet ministers and copies of all correspondence between ministers of the Crown and the consultants in each riding."

Mr. Denis said at that time he sent out no such list for the guidance of cabinet ministers, adding "therefore I do not think you should answer in regard to something that does not exist."

In response to Mr. Orlikow's question, Mr. Denis later filed a written reply saying the same thing: "There is no such list and therefore no such correspondence."

Thursday, Mr. Winkler referred to remarks Wednesday by Mr. Denis and Mr. Pickersgill, and said that "on the benefit of the House I have such a document before me."

To Mr. Winkler's suggestion that he table it, Speaker Macnaughton replied that it was not a public document.

Mr. Winkler said the important point was that the ministers misled the House about the document. He asked unanimous consent of the House to table it.

Mr. Pickersgill said he had no objection personally to the document held by Mr. Winkler. "But I think such a step might lead to a lot of MPs taking a similar course. Mr. Winkler should state the ground on a point of privilege an MP should table the document," Mr. Winkler thereupon moved that the document be tabled.

Mr. Lambert suggested Speaker Macnaughton reserve his decision. Speaker Macnaughton agreed.

New Democratic Leader Douglas suggested Mr. Winkler table the document and Mr. Winkler read out the instructions about addressing letters.

VOLUNTEER PATIENT — Mrs. Don McKinney, member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Quinte Branch of C.A.R.S., volunteers as patient to test paraffin wax bath used to treat arthritic patients. Looking on are Miss M. A. Winter, Toronto, supervisor of physiotherapy for the Society in Ontario, and Mrs. D. C. Brown, therapist for local treatment centre at hospital.

Quinte Branch of C.A.R.S. Uses BGH as Clinic Centre

After several months without a physiotherapist, the Quinte branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is now in a position to resume treatments for patients.

But instead of resuming the former practice of home treatments by a full time therapist, the program will be two nights per week with a part time physiotherapist — using facilities in the therapy department at Belleville General Hospital.

The new program of the Quinte Branch of C.A.R.S. got underway last evening with an official ribbon cutting ceremony. Alderman Enos David, past president of the local branch of the Society, cut the official ribbon as Mayor A. H. Haig's representative.

MANY ON HAND

Also present for the opening were Society president Reuben Freeman, Miss M. A. Winter of Toronto, supervisor of physiotherapy for C.A.R.S. in Ontario, Dr. J. S. Loynes and Dr. Harold F. Williamson, members of the Society Medical Advisory Board.

Mrs. D. C. Brown is the physiotherapist in charge of the Belleville treatment centre.

The new treatment program for C.A.R.S. patients in the Quinte Area is being made possible through the co-operation of hospital board of governors.

Alderman David expressed the appreciation of the local society to the hospital board, Hospital administrator S. J. Johnston said he and hospital board members were happy to co-operate with the Society in their community welfare program.

CAN TREAT MORE PATIENTS

Members of the Quinte branch of C.A.R.S. feel their new program will allow many more patients to receive treatment than under the former treatment policy, as previously much of the time of the physiotherapist was taken up in travelling from home to home.

The Tuesday and Thursday evening clinics at the hospital will be more convenient for patients to be brought to the hospital and will also allow arthritic victims holding regular jobs to take night treatments.

MEMBER OF AGENCY

As a member of the Belleville United Appeal, the Quinte Branch of C.A.R.S. is able to provide treatment for arthritic patients regardless of their ability to pay.

Patients, however, must be referred to the clinic by their family physician.

A shortage of qualified physiotherapists was one of the main reasons for the society to seek hospital co-operation in the operation of their treatment clinic.

Miss Winter said that there are about 1,200 active physiotherapists in Canada, while there are jobs for as many more if they were available.

She said, however, there was a program afoot aimed at encouraging more students to enter the therapy field.

French Hopes for Friendly N.A. Links Suffer Blow

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As blood stains the Saharan sands, French hopes for friendly links in North Africa suffer another blow.

The bloodiest war on the desert frontier between Algeria and Morocco, embroiling two Arab nations once considered by their undying brotherhood, is a sad and pointless affair.

Neither side between the two tattered armies will be received in sour, we-told-you-so fashion by those Western observers who predicted upheaval would follow the end of the colonial era in Algeria.

The fighting is taking place around the Algerian frontier posts of Hassi Beida and Tinjoub, near the formerly French-controlled desert of Colomb Bechar and Tindouf, long claimed by Morocco.

Underlying the struggle are potential mineral wealth and the personal clash between the strident, youthful socialism of Algeria's President Ben Bella and the feudal regime of Morocco's King Hassan.

Ben Bella, who emerged from a French prison to become the head of Algeria's liberation, has gradually ousted all rivals to his absolute many a revolutionary leader, he apparently finds it easier to fix his people's eyes on the discontents than on the intimidating task of internal reconstruction after eight years of war.

So Ben Bella, clad in battledress, called in the Algerian militia from the countryside for the "mobilization of all the energies of the nation." With Algeria counting 14 tanks to 100 hundreds of ragged men lined up in trenches and got their first square meal in a long time.

The struggle defers any further the unity of the Maghreb — an Arabic word meaning the west. Even Tunisia, a much less revolutionary power, feels itself threatened in the new dispute.

President de Gaulle's hopes for fruitful co-operation after "decolonization" seem temporarily in abeyance.

Que. Liberals To Dicuss Many Subjects

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's inoffice Liberals gather this week-end for the party's annual meeting and one of the principal topics for discussion is a proposed break with the federal Liberals.

The occasion is the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation, which starts today and ends Sunday. Between 2,000 and 4,000 of the party faithful are expected to attend, officials say.

While the official theme of the meeting is the "reform of legislative and administrative structures in Quebec," a good deal of attention will be devoted to a resolution which in effect calls for a break with the federal Liberal party.

The motion, from a county organization, calls for a change in the federation's constitution, which would open the way for a provincial Liberal to support another party federally.

The motion apparently stems from the April federal elections campaign when some prominent Quebec Liberals refused to support the federal party. One, Robert Cliche, a Beauce County lawyer, ran as a New Democratic Party candidate because, he said, he couldn't support Liberal Leader Pearson's nuclear policy.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tomorrow afternoon and evening some of the finest "muscles" on the North American continent will be on parade at Station Weston RCAF.

The cream of international weightlifters from Canada, the United States, the Caribbean and other continental spots will be there vieing for tournament honors.

World, United States and Canadian champions will be on hand seeking further honors.

An added attraction will be the selection of "Mr. North America." Many splendid physical types will contest the title.

City and district interest will be centred on Belleville's John Lewis, Canadian 198-pound class champion, holder of many British junior records and a member of the Canadian Weightlifting Team which was scheduled to perform at the world championships at Stockholm.

Lewis has been training hard for the event and reports have it that he has exceeded his championship records and could well win a North American tourney title.

Weightlifting teams from New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Montreal, Porto Rico and other centres will be in competition.

The meet is sanctioned by the Central Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and begins at one o'clock with 123, 132, 148 and 165-pound classes competing. In the evening the 181, 198 and heavyweight classes will have at it.

Among the individual attractions are Norbett Schemansky, past world and Olympic champion in the 198-pound class. He holds the world title in the "snatch" of 360 pounds. Bill Margo, from York, U.S.A., who won the Pan-American Games title in the 198-pound class will be there.

Three Canadian champions from Quebec, Pierre St. Jean, M. Lipare and C. White will be there with three other eastern lifters.

Six contestants will seek the "Mr. North America" title. Those include John Hayek (Mr. Ontario); Andre Labreache (Mr. Quebec), Rodrique Picard (Mr. Ten Provinces) and three others. Two are from Toronto with Jim Down coming from Susquehanna, Pa.

Among the officials will be Maurice Allan, National chairman of the AAU of Canada and Jack Yaralen, chairman of the Tri-Services in weightlifting. He is an ex-champion.

The meet is being sponsored by the Apollo Barbell Club of Belleville. Tickets are on sale at the Thomas tobacco store.

BADMINTON

The bird-chasing biddies and buckaroos of the Garrison Badminton Club are wearing big smiles these days. My favorite director tells me that the drive for new members has met with fine success, so much in fact the club is holding a "New Members' Night" come Saturday evening.

Said she: "We have at least thirty-five new members guivered into the fold and all indications point to the club reaching its seasonal objective of fifty before the Christmas moon sinks over the jungles of Zwick's Island."

"We're putting out the red carpet for the new boys and gals Saturday night," quoth she. "And the purpose of the thing is a shake-hands-with-your-neighbor and generally getting acquainted with one another other than looking at one another from opposite sides of a net."

There will be general play on the courts at eight o'clock and afterwards the members will fraternize in the officers' mess where refreshments will follow games and various contests.

So it seems the ancient game of batledore and shuttlecock is not strictly for the birds but appears to be on the upsurge here, thanks to good administration and hard-working committees.

Furthermore, I'm told some experienced players are making a comeback to the game and this should help the tournament efforts of the club no end. The Garrison Club holds a fine record tourney-wise and officials believe this season's efforts along district lines will exceed those of previous years.

Howe An Uncertain Starter ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Wings, Leafs In Weekend Twin Bill

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Eliciting any kind of admission from a National Hockey League coach is a task of some magnitude.

But pin one down and he is likely to allow he's willing to settle for a 50-50 split in games on the road.

They follow a rule of thumb applicable in any league, no matter what the sport.

Normally a team performing at a .500 clip or better in the ballwick of the other fellow is a contender, granting reasonable consistency in winning at home.

The fledging NHL season has been a lean one, however, for clubs on the road.

In 10 games, only Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens have come away from rival rinks with anything to show beyond a big transportation bill.

HAVE ONE ROAD WIN

The Maple Leafs chalked up the only one-game win, upending the Canadiens 4-2 in Montreal Wednesday night. And the Canadiens took the point for a 4-4 sawoff with the Bruins in Boston Oct. 9 in the opening game of the schedule.

For purposes of comparison, in last year's 210-game schedule, the road team won 71 times, the home club 92 and there were 47 ties.

This season, Detroit Red Wings, Montreal, Toronto and the Bruins all take to the road with five games scheduled.

The Red Wings and Leafs meet in a home-and-home series in Toronto Saturday night and Detroit Sunday night—and it's not certain whether Detroit's Gordie Howe will take the ice to shoot for goal No. 544.

Big Gordie suffered a cut on his right ankle in a practice session Tuesday and sat out Detroit's Wednesday night game against New York, a 3-0 win for the Rangers.

Thursday Detroit called up Billy McNeill from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League.

Said Detroit's general manager-coach Sid Abel:

"We hope he'll have Howe ready this weekend. In case he's not ready we'll have McNeill on hand."

IS SHORT ONE

The 35-year-old Howe is one goal shy of the NHL career mark held by the retired Rocket Richard.

Like the Rocket, Howe has sometimes straightened out the officials after they credited him with goals he didn't score.

It happened to him three times last season alone.

"I figure I've lost at least 15 goals to which I am sure I was entitled," he was saying some time ago. "But I hope nobody will ever be able to say I accepted credit for goals I didn't score."

Coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs has been alternating goalies Johnny Bower and Don Simmons and there was no indication from Toronto how they'll line up this weekend.

For the record, Howe has scored 106 goals against Toronto, Bower 43 times and Simmons 15.

MEET CANADIENS

The Bruins, against the Canadiens in Montreal Saturday night and meet the Rangers in New York Sunday afternoon.

New York's Camille Henry will be bidding for the 200th goal of his career. But teammate Doug Harvey still won't be in the lineup.

Harvey, detained by business pressure in Montreal, started the season with St. Paul Rangers of the rugged Central International Hockey League to work himself into shape and he's expected to join the Rangers until after the weekend.

In the other NHL game, the Canadiens meet Chicago's league-leading Black Hawks in Chicago.

Billy Reay's Hawks head into the weekend with six points and a two-point edge over Detroit and Toronto.

Montreal is fourth with three points followed by the Rangers with two and then Boston with the one point earned in the schedule-opening draw.

Al Geiberger Leads Field

Palmer, Nicklaus Trail Unknown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Golf's overpowering Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus ranked in the also-ran class as a little-known California professional, Al Geiberger, led the way into the second round of the $70,000 Sahara Invitational tournament today.

Palmer, troubled by chronic shoulder aches, trailed by four strokes and Nicklaus by eight as the field swung toward the 36-hole point.

The 26 - year - old Geiberger, whose only official tournament victory was registered just one year ago in the Colonial... Palm... open, shot a 35-32—67 opening round Thursday.

One shot back as play was resumed were Art Wall Jr., Lionel Hebert and Gay Brewer.

Toronto's George Knudson was one of eight players tied at 69. Knudson fired a 37-32—69. Veterans Don January and Ted Kroll and Britain Ryder Cup representative George Will were also in the group. Al Balding of Toronto was definitely in the running with a 70 after a 68 with Palmer, and Al Johnston of Montreal shot a respectable 36-36—72.

Zora Folley Decisions Daniels

MONTREAL (CP) — It took two rounds for Zora Folley to figure out Billy Daniels' fighting pattern before the seasoned boxer moved in to take a unanimous 10-round decision.

Folley, ranked seventh by the World Boxing Association for Sonny Liston's world heavyweight title, weighed in at 202½ pounds, while Daniels, fifth-ranking contender, weighed in at 192.

The bout at the east-end Paul Sauve Sports Centre Thursday night drew little more than 1,000.

Under the five-point must system Judges Tony Bergeron, Jim Reagan and Harry Schulman scored it 49-44, 48-38 and 47-43, respectively, in favor of Folley. The Canadian Press scored it 49-43 Folley.

Folley, from Chandler, Ariz., fighting his 73rd professional bout, skillfully picked Daniels' meagre defence apart, jabbing sharply with both hands.

Swedish Star Cuts Short Ranger Stay

NEW YORK (AP)—Ulf Sterner, star of Sweden's national hockey team, will cut short his stay with New York Rangers and return to his native Gotenburg.

The National Hockey League club said Thursday that the 22-year-old forward, whose hopes of having a brief tryout with the professional Rangers were bodychecked by Olympic regulations, drew down an offer to play for Long Island Ducks of the Eastern Amateur League.

Sterner said he expected to return to the Rangers either after the winter Olympic games in Innsbruck, Austria, next February or at the start of training camp next fall.

SUSPEND BOXERS

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Boxing Commission suspended heavyweight boxers Tom McNeeley of Boston and Hawaiian Koiu Duke Sabedong Thursday for their actions in a fight last Monday. McNeeley was barred from boxing 60 days and the Hawaiian was barred for 30 days. McNeeley was awarded a technical knockout decision after a general brawl that the commission called a near riot.

Juniors Loses 13-6

BCI Blanks Picton 10-0

By ROBERT WILLIAMS

BCI senior Collegians defeated Picton 10-0 in a lacklustered Bay of Quinte COSSA game at Picton while Picton Juniors defeated BCI 13-6 in a tight contest.

Picton seniors had the edge in play in the first quarter as they got down as far as the BCI 3 yard line and 15 yard line before being stopped by the determined BCI defence.

In the second quarter BCI used the second of five fumbles by Picton to score a point as K. Lightfoot kicked the ball into the end zone, where the Picton player was tackled. BCI got the ball again on a fumble and Rob Ridley took the ball 25 yards to the 1 yard line where John Ahlber took it over running with a touchdown. Lyle Adams kicked the convert.

The start of the second half saw little action except when BCI intercepted a pass and Adams kicked for a single point.

In a dull fourth quarter BCI and Picton traded interceptions and 3rd down punts. The winners scored their last point on a kick by L. Adams.

The line senior game N. Fennell and L. McKenzie scored majore for Picton and Beggs kicked a point. Lones put BCI's first touchdown and first points of the season on a pass play with Dan Lones the quarterback Tom Lonis was taken to the hospital with a broken wrist.

Bill Bateman Bowls on TV Sat. at 4.30

Bill Bateman, one of the Quinte district's top five-pin bowlers, will be appearing on the weekly TV bowling show on the Kingston, Peterborough channels Saturday afternoon.

Bateman will be matched against Nick Lonzio, of Toronto, on the video match, at 4.30 p.m.

The winner each week meets a new challenger the following Saturday so there is a good chance that Bateman will be appearing more than once. Lonzio edged the local bowler for top spot by a narrow margin in the qualifying round several weeks ago so tomorrow's meeting should provide keen competition.

S. A. Chances In Games Slim

Favor Lyon For .68 Olympics

CP from AP-Reuters

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany—South Africa's chances of remaining in the Olympic Games are reported "getting dimmer."

The evaluation was made Thursday night by a senior Olympic official as the International Olympic Committee, now flowing East, prepared to debate the issue.

The issue before it a resolution of its Moscow conference in June last year which warned that South Africa would be suspended from participation in the Olympic Games if it was unable to comply with Olympic rules, particularly on racial discrimination.

Meanwhile, Governor George Romney of Michigan arrived Luxembourg to lead the Detroit delegation in its bid for the 1968 Olympic Games against strong competition from Lyon, France, and two lesser rated rivals—Mexico City and Buenos Aires.

Lyon, which treated officials to a lavish reception, became a strong favorite when 13 African-Asian nations called on the International Olympic Committee to stage the huge athletic extravaganza "in a city which will avoid a long and difficult journey."

The vote on the site will be taken tonight after the IOC hears presentations made by the representatives of the four cities in the morning.

Romney said Detroit has unsurpassed facilities for the Games and the solid backing of the citizens.

Representatives of the four cities will have 45 minutes each to explain to the IOC why they think their city is best suited for the Games.

At its meeting Thursday the IOC voted to drop judo, handball, archery and volleyball from the program for the 1968 Games, cutting the number of sports to 19. Of the four, only judo and archery are on the 1964 program at Tokyo and it's the first time for those sports.

The IOC also rejected a proposal that federations representing only true amateurs should be allowed on the Olympics.

REPORTS VOTE

Otto Mayer, chancellor of the IOC, announced the vote was 28 in favor and 23 against, with two abstentions. A two-thirds majority was required to approve the proposal.

Mayer said that if federations representing only true amateurs were permitted in the Olympics then such sports as soccer and cycling would be excluded since in each sport one organization represents both amateurs and professionals.

He said there had been a suggestion by some members that there should be separate federations for amateurs and pros in all sports, but added that such a set-up was "unpractical, in my personal opinon."

Mayer talked to reporters after the official opening session of the International Olympic Committee—closed to the press.

There were 85 IOC members present out of a total of 63. Canada is represented by A. Sydney Dawes of Montreal.

Riders, Als Clash In Big One

Cats Meet Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Rough Riders, blessed with a relatively injury-free season thus far, go into a crucial Eastern Football Conference game against Montreal Alouettes Saturday with the possible absence of leading scorer Moe Racine.

Racine is the second highest scorer in the conference with 57 points on nine field goals, 24 converts and six singles.

The Rough Riders require a victory to assure themselves of at least a tie for first place with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The Ticats are heavy favorites to beat hapless Toronto Argonauts in a Sunday afternoon game in Toronto.

The Rough Riders-Alouettes game is important from another aspect since each team has a victory against the other. If they happen to tie in the final league standings, the team with the best won-lost record against the other will get the advantage.

WHITE MAY KICK

Ottawa coach Frank Clair says if Racine, who damaged his knee in last week's interlocking game with Edmonton Eskimos, is unable to play, versatile Ernie White will handle the place-kicking assignment.

Another question mark for the Rough Riders is halfback Don Derrick who has a bad shoulder. He is expected to play, however.

Clair is reminding his players their worst game of the season was against the Als when they were walloped Labor Day. He says it was Ottawa's sorriest display since he took over as coach in 1956.

Montreal coach Jim Trimble is keeping everyone guessing about who he'll use as quarterback in Ottawa.

The choice is between Warren Rabb and Bubba Marriott. There is a possibility he may dress both.

Bobby Lee Thompson, out of the Montreal lineup for a number of games with torn ligaments in his left foot, will return to action.

HAS WON FOUR

Hamilton takes a four-game winning streak into the Toronto game. If it beats the Argos and Montreal defeats Ottawa, it would leave the Ticats two points ahead of the Rough Riders and Alouettes, who would be tied for second.

Toronto, with only two wins, is far out of the pace.

Halfback Jim Pace, injured in Monday's game against Edmonton, is expected to miss Sunday's game. He'll be replaced by Willie Bethea, who has missed the last few games but still is Hamilton's leading ground gainer.

Middle guard John Barrow, injured Oct. 7 against Winnipeg, is expected to be ready against Toronto.

Meanwhile, Argonauts will be without the services of fullback Ron Hatcher, who required surgery on his knee following last Sunday's game in Montreal.

CANADIAN CHAMPION — John Lewis of this city will take part in the North American Weightlifting Tournament at Trenton RCAF tomorrow. John won third place in the Pan-American Games and was selected a member of Canada's 'Lifting' team.

Hole-in-One Is Now Family Boast

PALMETTO, Fla. (AP) All three members of the John Coyle family now have shot a hole-in-one on the Palm View Country Club golf course.

Coyle's wife, Marie aced the 125-yard second hole on Wednesday. The ball, driven by a five-iron, took one hop and rolled into the cup.

Just three months ago, Coyle scored an ace on the course.

And two years ago, the Cole's only child, Jack, sank a hole-in-one at Palm View. He was nine at the time.

Sues for Prize After Perfect Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — A woman is suing a bowling alley for $5,000 she claims is due her for rolling a perfect game.

Mrs. Doreen Tuck, who says she is holder of a women's temple record, has filed a writ in the British Columbia Supreme Court.

She says Brentwood Lanes Limited refused to pay a $5,000 prize for a perfect game rolled in sanctioned league play offered early last year.

The writ says Mrs. Tuck rolled a perfect 300 at Brentwood last April 25.

The $250 share of the purse boosted Frisco's earnings to date this season to $6,315.

Stamps Tangle With Saskys

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Art Johnson, a two-way halfback, makes his debut in the Western Football Conference Saturday under the most difficult conditions—against the club he refused to join.

Johnson, a 200-pound product of Michigan State and reported to be a speedster, was cut earlier this season by Ted Emmanouelis, already well known for cutting George Fleming.

Obtained now with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and leading point getter in the WFC, has counted almost as many points as the entire Argonaut team.)

Saskatchewan Roughriders claimed Johnson but he would not report to coach Bob Shaw's club. Johnson went back to the United States and Saskatchewan put him on waivers, making him free agent. Calgary Stampeders signed him.

Johnson, a regular for two seasons at Toronto, makes his first WFCF start at Regina Saturday as Stampeders try to shatter the great Roughrider defence.

A win is important for both clubs. Two points would clinch second place for Stampeders and give them a better chance of overtaking the leading British Columbia Lions.

Two points would give third-place Saskatchewan a three-point bulge over Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the last playoff berth with both clubs having two games left.

The all-WFC game Saturday night the feckless Edmonton Eskimos are at Vancouver against Lions. The fifth-place Edmonton Club has won only two of 13 starts and has lost even a mathematical chance of gaining the playoffs.

Opposing Quarters Are Brothers

Redmen, Gaels Meet Sat.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clashes between a couple of high - scoring halfbacks and brothers who are quarterbacks for opposing teams are expected to feature Saturday's action in the Senior Intercollegiate Football League.

The halfback clash is expected at Montreal when the league-leading Queen's University Golden Gaels put their 3-0 record on the line against McGill University Redmen. Art Gill's Willie Lambert is at the top of the scoring race in the loop this season with 25 points. Bill Edwards of Queen's has 22.

The brother - against - brother contest will be at London, Ont., where the University of Toronto Blues tackle University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Jim Israel will likely get the nod for starting QB chores for Toronto and younger brother Bob, who has shown some fine passing form, is to start for Western.

The Blues, ranked behind Queen's in most pre - season picks, will be trying for their first win. McGill edged them 25-24 in a squeaker last weekend and they dropped their opener to Queen's by a 21-14 margin.

WON'T BE EASY

But Blues coach Dalt White isn't expecting an easy time of it on Saturday. Coach of the Mustangs, who won 16-13 over McGill in their first outing and put up quite a struggle last Saturday against Queen's, forcing the league-leaders to turn on a last-quarter outburst to take it 25-18.

'You know how (coach) Johnny Metras' teams are on their home ground," White commented.

The Gaels will take the same lineup into the Montreal game that downed the Mustangs.

Fans Start Riot

Purse Pinched, No Fight

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) Things were getting a little nervous in the 5th seats just before the lights went out.

Because they did, they ensured Sugar Ramos, feather-weight boxing champion, to escape from a little Mexican-town called Sabinas, where they take their sport seriously.

Ramos and Rueben Rodriguez, manager of Dallas boxer Freddie Burris, told about it on their return here Thursday.

Rodriguez, whose fighter was to meet Ramos in a non-title match at Sabinas last Sunday, said a great number of the population—3,200 to be exact—had paid up to $12 each for seats in the bull ring used for the sport.

But the fight never came off.

HAS HOT TEP

"I was taping Burris' hands when some character poked his head into our dressing room with what he called a hot tip," Rodriguez said.

Someone had carried away all the box office cash. The fighters might not get paid.

Rodriguez hastened to the offices of promoter Sebastian Lara.

Lara, distressed beyond description, said it was only too true. But he would give both main event fighters his personal IOU.

Boxing managers look upon IOU's as something akin to tuberculosis. Rodriguez refused to let Burris fight.

Circo Conde, Ramos' manager, reacted the same way.

All this took about an hour. The prelims were over. The fans were stirring in the 81¢ seats.

Lara walked bravely into the arena and said there would be no fight. The money had been snatched, he said. Then he dropped the bomb. There was no money in the till so it would be impossible to give refunds right away.

Lara, still clutching the microphone, was pleading for understanding when the ring erupted.

Rodriguez and Burris decided they would be better off if the dressing room was dark. So they threw water bottles at the light bulb—18 feet above the floor—until it shattered.

"It sure felt better sitting there in the dark," the manager said. Then smoke curled through a window. Someone had set the bull ring on fire. The two Texans left abruptly through the window and joined a milling crowd.

ASKS LEADING QUESTION

"Who are they after?" Burris—who speaks no Spanish—asked.

"Shut up and help them look," Rodriguez countered.

"But who are we looking for?"

"You."

That shook Burris. He quickly started searching—with his still-taped hands in his pants pockets.

Singer Ramos and his manager tried a dash to their car. Fans turned it over and kicked out all the windows. Ramos turned to road work—not slowed a bit by the rock that hit him in the back.

Rodriguez and Burris used this diversion to leave in another direction. They hitched a ride with a friendly man from Uvalde, Tex., back across the border to safety.

AT THE PARK — From Battleships to Babies—Jerry Lewis goes from battleships to babies in the Special Re-Presentation Double Bill of his two great comedies, "Don't Give Up to Ship" and "Rock-A-Bye Baby" in Technicolor and now showing at the Park Theatre today and Saturday. The former co-stars Mickey Shaughnessy, Dina Merrill, Robert Middleton and Diana Spencer — the latter, Marilyn Maxwell, Connie Stevens and Hans Conried. Both comedies are generally conceded to be among the best of Jerry Lewis. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Doors open 12.30 p.m.

SPORT BRIEFS

ROUSSEAU RELEASED

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League announced Thursday that they have turned over the contract of leftwinger Guy Rousseau to Montreal Canadiens who in turn are turning him over to Cleveland Barons of the AHL. Rousseau, 29, has been with the Aces two seasons and formerly played with the now - defunct Montreal Royals.

KOUFAX WINS TITLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Lefthander Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers posting a 1.88 average—the lowest in the National League in 20 years—captured the NL's pitching title for the second straight season with Figures compiled by The Associated Press also showed that rookie Gary Peters of Chicago White Sox, another lefthander, won the American League championship with a 2.33 mark.

CALL FARM PLAYER

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe's injured ankle, which kept him from tying for a scoring record Wednesday night, prompted Detroit Wings to call up a farm system player Thursday. General manager-coach Sid Abel said right winger Billy McNeill was being recalled from the Pittsburgh farm club of the American Hockey League.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cross. Mrs. Demille and Mrs. Cross are daughters of Mrs. John English. Mr. and Mrs. George Cole and family also B. Cooper all of Belleville spent Sunday at the same house.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Macfarlane and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley had supper Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. G. McLaren.

AT THE BELLE — Peter O'Toole stars as "Lawrence of Arabia," in the Sam Spiegel-David Lean production, winner of 7 Academy Awards, including best picture of the year. The Columbia release in Super Panavision & Technicolor, is playing at the Belle for an extended engagement, also stars Alec Guinness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer, Anthony Quayle, Claude Rains, Arthur Kennedy and introduces Omar Sharif as Ali.

Flyers Win Over Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers won their first game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season Thursday night as Dave Armstrong scored to break a third-period tie and give the Flyers a 4-3 win over Hamilton Red Wings.

John Arbour, Dave Woodley and Orest Romashyna were the other Niagara Falls marksmen. Jim Peters led Hamilton with two goals, including the one which tied the score in the third period, and Lorne Knowles had a single.

The Flyers took a 2-0 lead both goals scored in the final minute of the first period. They led 3-2 after the second.

The Flyers' young four of goals five minor penalties, while Hamilton's Peter Mahovlich and Arbour picked up majors for fighting in the third.

Niagara Falls outshot the Wings 36-28.

Negro Actors Being Used More Frequently in Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—An interesting addition to television this season handled without emphasis, is the presence of so many Negro performers.

All network programs have been using Negro actors and actresses in increasing numbers during the past couple of seasons, but usually in minor roles as policemen, judges, members of crowds.

Many have noted the change and compared it with the situation a few seasons back when a series set on the Mississippi River in the Civil War period managed a whole season without showing a single Negro, even in crowd scenes.

But what has happened this season, amounts almost to an explosion.

One of the funniest Dick Van Dyke shows was an episode involving a super-cool baby switch. A pair of attractive young Negroes were prominent in the wedding.

FEATURE NEGROES

The Defenders, which along with Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare has always used Negro actors, will star actor-playwright Ossie Davis, playing an assistant district attorney, in its Nov. 9 episode. East Side, West Side on Nov. 14 will tell a tragic love story about a young married couple, Negroes, who lose their baby. Nurses, of course, always makes frequent, unostentatious use of Negroes.

The Nurses has had Negroes playing feature roles, and next Wednesday's Eleventh Hour stars Diahann Carroll as a nurse.

Negroes also have turned up recently in television commercials.

Recommended viewing: Seven Miles of Bad Road NBC, 8:30-9:30 EDT, Bob Hope Theatre drama.

Y Basketball

Basketball practices are now being held for those interested in playing Junior (12-15) and Senior (15 and up) House League at the Y.M.C.A. Juniors practice on Saturdays from 2-4 p.m. and Seniors on Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:30-10:00 p.m.

Teams will soon be getting organized and league games will be scheduled. If you are interested please leave your name at the "Y" and attend the practices.

SKELTON SCHOLAR

Charles McMurray, 22, is the recipient of the first Red Skelton scholarship to be awarded for study at UCLA's Theatre Arts Department.

CHINA PROTESTS

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China has lodged a strong protest with the Indian embassy in Peking against an alleged Indian intrusion into "indisputable" Chinese territory in the western section of the Sino-Indian boundary. The note was dated Oct. 14 and released Thursday by the New China news agency.

Sunday School Lesson

Christian Responsibility

By ROY L. SMITH

Jesus, on one occasion, warned His followers that they were to serve as "the salt of the world." That is, they were commissioned to serve as moral and spiritual disinfectants for society.

There is a marked disposition on the part of many religious people — and they are usually excellent people, too — to assume that their calling requires them to withdraw from the world in order to save their own souls.

According to all the evidence that has come down to us from the ancient East, the city of Corinth was fast rotting away. The last, rhiabldry, and general viciousness of the Corinthians was eating away at the city's vitals. And it was possible for sensitive and pure minded people to make out a case in behalf of a complete separation from the flabby wickedness of the town.

YOU CANT HOLD ALOOF

It is a common problem even today. "How far can I go in associating with the wicked?" Among young people, with a conscience, it is a very real and delicate issue.

The Apostle Paul, in writing to the Christians at Corinth, faced the issue unafraid, and constructively. He said, in effect, "Do not be trapped up in the question of what is good for you. Test your answers in the hope and for the purpose of being good for the community."

There is a delicate shade of meaning in the word "wealth" as it appears in the King James translation of I Cor. 10:24. Actually, as the word is used in this connection, it means welfare. The New English Bible translated, therefore, "Let no one seek his own advantage, but the welfare of his neighbour."

In a society such as ours, the chances to assist in promoting the welfare of other people are unlimited.

GET IN ANYWHERE

There is an old story that comes out of the Civil War of an officer who overtook a frightened boy who was running as fast as his legs would carry him toward the rear. "Get back to your regiment!" the officer shouted, ordering the boy to halt. "I don't know where my regiment is," the terrified youngster replied. "All right, then, get in anywhere. There's good fighting all along the line!"

I was called upon some months ago to conduct a funeral, the deceased being a man quite unknown to me. When I visited the family, hoping to get some information, one of the sons said, "Dad didn't belong to anything. He was just a stay-at-home kind."

God knows I would not endorse that kind of program which forever takes a husband and father out of his home. Neither can I approve that one who never belongs to anything. There are so many desperate needs in today's life which can only be met by people who are willing to work together that I would feel as if I were a shirker if I let the other people do it all while I "stuck close to home."

The Apostle Paul insisted that the Christians of Corinth mix with the life of the city, in any effort to raise the general level.

THERE IS DIFFERENCE

It is possible for a man to mingle with a crowd, and even be a part of it, without sharing in its immoralities.

The Christians of Corinth could be Corinthians, without participating in Corinth's revels.

It might call for fortitude. Some of them might have to endure ridicule, and some few of them might even have to suffer in their business relationships. But it could be done. They could be good Corinthians, and yet be good husbands, fathers, and Christians.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for October 27: "Christian Responsibility," Matthew 4: 11, 1 Corinthians 8 through 11:1.

I once had a friend who was a genius as a leader of singing. Again and again he was employed to lead the community singing for conventions and dinners at which there was considerable drinking. But he did his work so well, he kept the entire program on such a high level, and he conducted himself so far above reproach, that it was said of him, "To have Hugo lead our singing is like having some honest man preach a great sermon." And he had twice as many engagements as he could handle. But he was never heard to tell a questionable story. His testimony was effective.

LARGE DEER

The American elk is the second largest deer in the world after the moose and a full-grown bull weighs about 1,000 pounds.

Hillier

HILLIER — A shower was held in Wellington town hall for Mr. and Mrs. David Clark (nee Gail Kohler) recently. The Swamp College friends gave a miscellaneous shower of gifts while the friends from Ross Hall community presented a chest of silver. On behalf of the former group Miss Donna Stephenson read the address and the latter group address was given by Mrs. A. Wanamaker. David and Gail thanked their friends for the gifts.

On October 10th Mr. and Mrs. Ray Alexander celebrated their 32nd wedding anniversary. Mr. Alexander is still in Picton Memorial Hospital where he has been a patient for several weeks. Mrs. Alexander joined her husband at the hospital and quietly celebrated this occasion.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 19

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be willing to break away from routine. Larger view is necessary. Don't let friends, associates, upset you. Tune will prove them sincere. Be patient.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good time for romance, entertainment. Exciting contacts can be made now. Be alert . . . interested in others. Be appreciative . . . and you will be appreciated.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Good night to relax. Do your entertaining at home. Avoid too much excitement. It is necessary that you obtain some rest, peace at mind. Aim for domestic harmony.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Battle for principles. But make sure you have complete story. Otherwise, you might be in for rude awakening. Be perceptive. Then evaluate what you hear and read.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): Pressure, responsibility indicated. Don't forget the art of how to say no. Be diplomatic. But also be firm. Avoid extremes, rash promises. Stress realistic approach.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Better for completing projects than for initiating them. Settle down to workable procedure. Indication of new contacts. But earlier today, get details out of the way.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Question of investments may arise. Answer must come from careful analysis. If you feel "right" about it, then proceed. But even then . . . only if you have considered all angles.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your intuition works overtime. You seem able to sense that something of importance will happen. Map program. Stick to principles. Say no to any foolish ventures.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle high. Personality "vibration." Means you attract favorable attention. You are able to instill enthusiasm. You make others see your point. You can win new friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Good time for change from usual routine. Gemini individual could be helpful. Important that you are frank. Speak your piece. Fine for pursuing hobby.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Approval of friends may should. Self-approval is what appear more important than it must, ultimately guide you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Friends may ask you to be the "mediator." Your best course: be diplomatic. Don't stick your neck out. Others may argue today but become allies tomorrow. Stand above pettiness.

If today is your birthday . . . you are dynamic, you have your own way of doing things. You are idealistic, but sometimes stubborn.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word for Taurus: Could be one of your most satisfying times.

SAN'A, Yemen (CP) — Canada's newest peace-keeping contingent is a 50-man RCAF team helping to pacify this troubled Middle Eastern country.

Members of 134 Air Transport Union, flying two Caribou and four Otter aircraft, are patrolling Yemen and its borders and transporting supplies for the United Nations Yemen observer mission.

The mission's job is to oversee the disengagement of the two sides in Yemen's year-long civil war.

The Egyptian-backed republicans led by Col. Abdullah al-Sallal mainly control the flat-lands of this Arab country while the monarchists, led by Imam Mohammed al-Badr and backed by Saudi Arabia, occupy the mountains.

The UN mission, with its military complement chiefly made up of Yugoslav troops, is trying to ensure they stick to their June agreement to disengage during a period of negotiation.

USE OLD PALACE

Headquarters of the eight-nation UN force is the old Imam's summer palace, a building badly in need of repair.

The Caribou aircraft are based at San'a, the Yemeni capital, along with the main body of RCAF personnel. The group lives in the Guest House, a stark stone-and-mud building facing one of the town's major squares.

The Caribou fly air transport and reconnaissance flights from San'a to the outposts of Najran and Quizan in Saudi Arabia and Sada in Yemen.

The Otters, soon to be supplemented by two more planes, operate out of Saudi Arabian bases.

Sqdn. Ldr. Ian Umbach of Edmonton, the unit's commanding officer, says the ground crews "work long hours under the most primitive conditions."

Mid-day temperatures are usually over 100. At Quizan there is the added discomfort of 90-per-cent humidity, and at Najran a noon-day breeze regularly reduces visibility to less than 100 feet.

When the Canadians arrived in San'a, accommodation and feeding were major problems. Food for the first few weeks was all pasted rations prepared by amateur cooks. Sleeping quarters were set up in every convenient spot.

COOK ARRIVED

In mid-July a water purification kit arrived from Canada and about the same time an RCAF cook, LAC H. E. Fletcher of Toronto, was welcomed.

In recent weeks there have been fresh rations. They are flown in on the once-a-week North Star flight from 23 Arish, UN Emergency Force base in Egypt, and are supplemented by camel and some fruit imported from Ethiopia.

Radio broadcasts from the British base in neighboring Aden, an occasional game of horseshoes or baseball help relieve the inevitable boredom in a town where there is virtually no entertainment for the Canadians.

Yemen, a country almost entirely untouched by Western civilization, a land where the principal means of transport is the camel and where modern sanitation methods are virtually unknown, is strange to the Canadians.

Yet they report the people, even those armed to the teeth with knives and long, old-fashioned rifles, are generally friendly.

Boys Used Pin, String to Hook Hundred Trout

SHLEBORG, Denmark (Reuters)—Three small boys who spent Sunday fishing with bent pin and string in a pool where "Hitler-bit like tigers" have practically killed the first attempt to introduce Canadian lake trout to Denmark, a fish breeder declared today.

A spokesman for the Jens Erroe Fish Breeding Farm said the boys in two sessions hauled in nearly 100 pounds of the farm's newest experiment, a cross between the lake trout and local trout variety.

Less than 100 remained and this was not enough to allow the farm to complete its breeding experiment. The fish are not big enough to make a meal yet, he added.

The spokesman did not expect any action would be taken against the boys. That, he said, is up to the parents.

RCAF Busy Helping UN Keep Peace in Tiny Arab Country

NEW TO YEMEN — LAC J. S. L. Gauthier (right) of St. Jerome, Que., and Cpl. J. H. (Joe) Ash of St. John's, Nfld., show baseball equipment to a group of Yemeni children. The Canadians are serving with RCAF 134 Air Transport Unit providing transport and reconnaissance for the UN peace-keeping mission in primitive Middle Eastern country which has been split by civil war for more than a year.

HOME AWAY FROM HOME — The Yemeni food porter stands guard at the gateway to the Guest House, a mud-and-stone building that houses most members of the RCAF air transport unit in Yemen. The Guest House looks out on one of the two main squares in San'a, capital of the Arab country. The 50-man Canadian team is helping a UN mission oversee the disengagement of the two sides in Yemen's civil war.

FOOD FOR AIRMEN — LAC H. E. Fletcher (centre) and LAC G. I. M. (Gil) Young, both of Toronto, unpack canned field rations for the 50-man RCAF air transport unit in Yemen while Cpl. E. T. (Ed) Jeans of Sarnia, Ont., stands by. The unit has been with a UN observer mission in the troubled Middle Eastern country for several months. Food was a problem until LAC Fletcher, a trained cook, arrived.

Home Forms Government Despite Split in Party

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—The Earl of Home, the Scottish peer known to his friends as "gentle Alex," succeeded today in forming a new government and became prime minister of Britain.

The 60-year-old foreign secretary immediately reported to the Queen at Buckingham Palace that he had succeeded in forming a cabinet. He kissed her hand in the traditional act of homage that seals appointment to the highest political office in the country.

Home overcame bitter opposition inside the cabinet to his appointment Friday as prime minister — designate following the resignation of the ailing Harold Macmillan.

Home's trip to the palace followed a final conference with two of the Conservative party leaders who most strongly opposed his elevation from foreign secretary to succeed Macmillan.

The two, Deputy Prime Minister Richard A. Butler and Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling, talked with Home for more than an hour at 10 Downing Street before he left to see the Queen.

Home, the 14th earl of an ancient Scottish line, is the first member of the peerage to become prime minister since the Marquess of Salisbury in 1895.

NO WORD ON CABINET

There was no announcement of the composition of the new cabinet. Reporters were told it probably will be forthcoming by Monday at the latest.

It remained to be seen whether any of the 20 ministers who formed Macmillan's cabinet had expressed their displeasure with Home's appointment by declining to serve under him.

In the meeting with the Queen Home was received in the audience chamber overlooking the small gardens of the palace.

Sir Alec emerged from the palace he waved to a scattering of spectators, climbed into his car and was driven out through the palace gates.

Then ended one of the greatest power struggles in the history of the Conservative party.

It divided the party at a time when its prestige was at a low ebb following a government scandal triggered by the resignation of Defence Minister John Profumo over his affair with Christine Keeler.

Butler, Maudling and Science Minister Lord Hailsham were leading contenders in the leadership race which began when Macmillan announced plans to retire after a prostate operation last winter.

The Queen, who remained at Balmoral Castle overnight to await the next move in the dramatic struggle, received Home in a

Weather Causing Concern Due to Great Fire Danger

TORONTO (CP)—A prolonged period of unseasonal hot, dry weather is causing growing concern among farmers and forestry officials in Ontario.

Temperatures in the high 80s and low 90s in the southwestern region of the province have made plowing difficult, curtailed production of cheese, created a storage problem in sugar beets, threatened the fall wheat crop which will be harvested next spring and forced farmers to purchase water for as much as 10 cents a gallon.

In Northern Ontario, the drought has produced the most serious fire hazard in 10 years and fallen leaves are tinder dry.

Stewart Page, agricultural representative for south Simcoe, said plowing has halted in some areas of the county although work is continuing in areas with sandy and medium soils.

Alex Ellis, president of the Western Ontario Cheese Exhibition, said if the drought continues Ontario will face a dairy products shortage for the first time.

He said his cheese factory has made 6,000 pounds less cheese this year, partly because of a reduction in milk delivered as caused by the dry weather.

The Canada and Dominion Sugar Company Limited, which had refused to accept sugar beets at its Chatham and Wallaceburg plants because of storage problems, said Friday limited deliveries will be accepted Monday.

R. A. Forsyth, agricultural representative for Waterloo, said the drought is threatening the normal crop from the hay and pasture seeded this spring as well as the fall wheat.

Farmers are digging deeper wells, tapping already depleted creeks and dipping into ponds and reservoirs.

But the exclusive fire threat area, however, concerned the lands and forestry department.

A statement by the department said the 30 days of clear, dry autumn weather has created the most extreme forest fire danger in more than 10 years.

In Toronto the temperature hit 77 degrees Friday, tying the all-time record for the day set in 1908. London recorded 79 degrees, shattering the old record of 77 set in 1961.

High reading in Hamilton was also 79 degrees and Windsor's 80 was one degree short of the record established in 1950. Muskoka and Kitchener recorded 77 and 78 degrees, respectively.

Forecast for today in Toronto was 76, Kitchener 78 and Hamilton, Kitchener, Windsor, London, Muskoka, North Bay and Sudbury 75 degrees each.

The lands and forests department statement said 82 fires have occurred during the last week, many of them caused by roadside brushfires.

The department said it has extinguished 1,709 fires since April 1 this year, more than 400 over the annual average for the last five years.

However, the area burned—35,000 acres—is about half the acreage burned each year in Ontario. A department spokesman said fires have been located before they burned over large areas.

All department forces are on

Whole Week Wasted

OTTAWA (CP) — Inter-party bickering about the Commons seating arrangement and rules of procedure took up most of an extended House sitting Friday. The MPs thus completed one week of debate without passing a single piece of legislation.

The Commons performance contrasted with last week when three important bills were passed. These took up most of government trusteeship over five labor unions, a $10 boost in old age pensions and authorization of government spending in October and November.

An acrimonious debate on whether the 13 Creditistes led by Real Caouette should be seated ahead of or after the Liberal man Thompson Social Credit group continued for the second day amid name-calling and a cross-fire of charges and rude interjections.

Finally, State Secretary Pickersgill moved that the debate be adjourned indefinitely. The motion was carried by a vote of 96 to 74.

FOLLOWS PATTERN

The alignment followed the pattern established in earlier votes on the seating issue—Liberals and Social Credit MPs opposing the Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes.

Mr. Pickersgill asked for the adjournment so that MPs would have time to reflect on the picture they were presenting to the public and to "get back to sanity in this matter."

Transport Minister McIlraith, acting government House leader, said later he hopes the debate can be completed "very quickly" Monday.

The Creditiste dispute temporarily cut it the way. Prime Minister Pearson began a speech on a government motion to upgrade the select committee of the House to review parliamentary rules of procedure.

Mr. Pearson said there is urgent need for fundamental changes in the rules to make Parliament more efficient and less wasteful of time in considering legislature.

One key change the government advocates is a streamlining of the committee system, he said. Commons committees should be more active and should have more power to search out all facts.

The legislators now had to wade through complex, important bills almost all year, they were hampered by rules drafted 50 years ago when two-month sessions were considered long.

Mr. Pearson said his government intends to respect parliamentary traditions and the individual rights of MPs in re-

Royal assent was given to legislation clamping a trusteeship on five marine unions when the government so decides.

Prime Minister Pearson said there is hope of a private settlement "in the next day or two" to settle he marine union situation.

A debate on a public service seating was adjourned, State Secretary Pickersgill calling for sanity in the matter.

Works Minister Deschatelets said the cost-sharing program for Trans-Canada highway development is to be extended for four years, to 1967.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) said MPs was stymied in his bid to establish a $1.25 bounty minimum wage in the federal jobs.

MONDAY, Oct. 21

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to begin a two-day supply debate. The Senate stands adjourned until Tuesday night.

Shipping Firms Try to Assess Effects of SIU Protest Plans

MONTREAL (CP) — Ships abandoned by members of the maverick Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) seethed against wharves in Canadian ports today while shipping companies tried to assess the effect of the work stoppage, called to protest the federal governments maritime trusteeship legislation.

The SIU ordered its members to start leaving their ships at noon Friday to prepare for a protest march on Ottawa Monday.

A survey of Canadian ports indicated many members were answering the call to leave their ships, but no one seemed to know how many would participate in the march.

In Vancouver, members were reported to be virtually ignoring the SIU's call.

In Montreal, SIU - manned tugs were still operating, although union sources said Friday the tugs would stop working at 8 a.m. today. One tug firm said that as a result of a special arrangement with the SIU, the tugs will continue to operate until midnight Sunday.

NO DIFFICULTY

Ocean ships were entering and leaving Montreal without difficulty. Foreign ships were still moving up and down the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Crews were reported to have left 23 SIU-contracted freighters in Montreal harbor. Some of the freighters had brought wheat to Montreal elevators for transshipment to Russia as part of Canada's $500,000,000 grain sale to the Soviet Union. The ships were being unloaded by port employees. On the other side of elevators, ocean ships were loading grain for overseas ports.

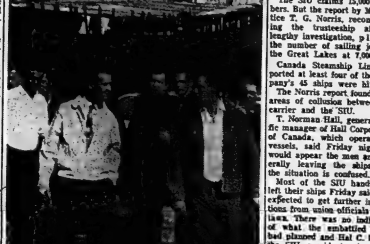
There were 80 ships in Montreal harbor, 60 of them ocean-going vessels.

Shipping companies were reluctant to discuss the over-all situation, although they candidly admitted that men were leaving their ships. They were still trying to assess the full effects of the walkout.

Jean Marchand, general traffic manager of Hall Corporation of Canada, which operates 26 Great Lakes and Atlantic coast vessels, said "the situation is confused, but the men generally are leaving their ships."

THE UP CSL

Union sources said most of the 45 vessels of Canada Steamship Lines, Canada's biggest inland fleet, were expected to be left unmanned by SIU crews by the end of the day.



At Quebec, one ship manned by the SIU docked alongside a ship manned by the rival Canadian Maritime Union and crews worked both.

In Halifax, no change was reported in the situation Friday when men left two SIU-manned ships.

The union's seamen rights committee, established at SIU headquarters in Montreal to manage the walkout, claimed "almost 100 - per - cent" support in the East and on the Great Lakes where most of the union membership is concentrated.

The SIU members plan to gather in front of the Parliament Buildings to protest the government's legislation imposing a trusteeship on maritime unions. The government has said the move is designed to clean up the SIU and to put an end to lawlessness on the Great Lakes.

SIU Honors Pledge, Welland Canal Clear

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — The Welland Canal was clear for traffic today as the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) honored a promise not to tie it up.

SIU - manned ships passed through the canal Friday night and early today officials said no action was expected from their crews until they reached their destinations.

Crews on some ships had been expected to walk off in support of other union members who left ships in major Canadian ports Friday, protesting government trusteeship of five maritime unions, including the SIU.

Meanwhile, 15 crew members of the Canada Steamship Lines vessel Grainmotor walked off the ship at 8 a.m. today in nearby Welland. The ship was unloading at the Union Carbide dock.

No other ships were expected to berth here or in Welland today.

Business agent John McCuaig said in nearby Thorold Friday the SIU has crewmen on board in the canal and doesn't intend to.

Non - union personnel stayed aboard the Grainmotor while Union Carbide employees continued unloading. The crew members left the vessel only in taxis, where they said the union would provide transportation to Ottawa for a protest march.

Commander-in-Chief Wins Six Canadians Get $150,000 Each

NEWMARKET, England (AP) — Commander-in-Chief today won the Cambridgeshire Stakes, the race on which an Irish sweepstakes is based. An American-owned Principal was second and Hasty Cloud third.

Twenty - three runners contested the 1½-mile event.

Commander-in-Chief started at odds of 100 to 7, Principal at 33 to 1 and Hasty Cloud at 13 to 2. The Red Dwarfer, Fair Astronomer, was unplaced.

Deal Falls Through

WASHINGTON (AP) — A deal to ship United States wheat to Hungary has fallen through and plans for huge sales to the Soviet Union may be similarly frustrated, the Washington Post reports.

Hungary has balked at paying high U.S. shipping rates, The Post says it learned.

Formosan Says D-Day Is Near

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters) — Gen. Chiang Chinese Nationalist vice-president and premier, said Friday military operations against the Chinese mainland had begun and "D-Day" was approaching rapidly.

Speaking to 150 overseas Chinese leaders at a meeting here, he said a full-scale counter-attack on the Communist - controlled mainland had not started yet but local guerrilla landings began on the coast some time ago.

All military preparations were complete, he said.

Canada Asks China Sign Pact

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada has directed an appeal to Communist China to join United Nations members in working towards balanced disarmament.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, speaking in the General Assembly's main political committee today, urged all countries to join in the partial nuclear test-ban treaty.

The influential and moderate language, in contrast to a specific call to Peking to sign the treaty, Communist China, France, Albania and Cuba are among the few countries that

Santa Parade In Jeopardy, Turnout Poor

Fire Chief Gerald Vance reported Uesday morning that there was a very poor showing at Monday night's Santa Claus Parade meeting at No. 2 Fire Station.

"Unless more people show up on next Tuesday night and more interest is shown, there will be no Santa Claus parade for the city of Belleville this year," he said.

If this should be the case, then will be quite a number of sad and disappointed children throughout the district who look forward to this big day of the year, when they can see the colorful floats and that jolly old man, St. Nick.

The Chief urges as many able bodied persons as possible to meet at the fire hall on Tuesday night, at 7:30 p.m.

Special Speaker At St. Margaret's

On Sunday, October 20th we will have as our special preacher, the Rev. John C. Savarimuthu, B.D., a priest from the Diocese of Singapore, Mr. Savarimuthu was a delegate from Singapore to the Anglican Congress held in Toronto last August. He was born and raised in Madras, India, and is now serving in a parish in Malaya. Before coming to the Congress he attended two terms of special lectures at St. Augustine's, Canterbury. Mr. Savarimuthu is staying in Canada for three months to observe the Canadian scene and our way of life. You are cordially invited to attend both services on Sunday at 11.00 A.M. & 7.00 P.M. to hear Mr. Savarimuthu

Many Pumpkins On Market For Hallowe'en

An unusually small crowd of purchasers was seen on the farmers' market here this morning. With Hallowe'en just twelve days away, plenty of jack-o-lanterns, (pumpkins), were offered for sale and selling from 15 to 50 cents according to size. Pie pumpkins sold generally at 15 and 20c each.

Plenty of vegetables were available today, carrots, beets, onions, some radishes, selling at 10 cents a bunch and 3 bunches for 25 cents. Cabbage, cauliflower and egg plant sold from 15 cents a head or plant, and up. Carrots were offered at 80 cents per bushel basket, 10 cents a bunch or three bunches for 25 cents. Spanish onions sold at 10 cents a pound.

Snow apples, Talman Sweets, Spies and Mac, sold from 65 to 75 cents a bushel basket. Potatoes sold at 65 cents a basket and small Cobblers 50 cents a basket.

Eggs dropped slightly in price this week, offered for 55, 60 and 65 cents a dozen for small, medium and large.

Flowers, greenhouse mums, sold at 50 cents a bunch.

Workshop Meet Being Planned For Museum

Another workshop meeting is planned for the Hastings County Museum next Monday evening, and interested persons are cordially invited to attend.

It is expected that further cataloguing of the Fenton Papers and the early newspapers of the Museum's Archives will be carried out. Also, the indexing of Mikel's "City of Belleville" History will continue and members are asked to bring their copies with them. A number of people are still needed to help index this book, and even if they could stop by for a few minutes Monday evening after 8 o'clock, they could learn the basic essentials and do part of the indexing at home in their spare time.

As usual, light refreshments will be served and interesting conversation about local history and other matters will highlight the social half-hour at the close of the workshop.

HIGHEST FALLS

Angel Falls on the Caroni River in Venezuela is said to be the highest in the world with a drop of 3,212 feet.

Canadian National Railway employees at Belleville will only be indirectly benefitted by Canada's big wheat sale to Russia and its consequent rail transport to ocean ports.

Mr. R. E. Hunt, Sidings Area manager at Belleville, said the greatest impact of the wheat sale insofar as local railway employees are concerned, would be in the maintenance and servicing departments for rolling stock.

Between 50 and 60 men are employed in this type of work at Belleville, and the extra work expected could mean more overtime for these employees or possibly the rehiring of a few older employees — if they are still in the labor market.

The increased wheat loadings will not mean long trains of wheat cars passing through Belleville, Mr. Hunt said.

The increased loadings mean, however, that all available hikers and vans are being pressed into service with the result that a strain will be put on maintenance crews to up-grade other rolling stock to ensure an adequate supply of the proper type of car for regular customers.

For the most part this will mean re-lining of box car hikers and vans to provide a smooth surface.

"It looks as though there will be some work load increase, although its effect has not yet been felt here," Mr. Hunt said.

Interment was in Woodland Cemetery.

The bearers were John, Werner, and James Arbuckle, brothers, and Wayne, Robert and Jack Arbuckle, nephews of the deceased.

Many floral tributes and contributions to the Heart Fund were testimony to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Lions Club Pledges Support To Santa Parade

The Lions Club of Belleville held its bi-monthly meeting Thursday at the Belleville Skrine Club. President Gerry Brennan was chairman of this meeting.

Speaker for the evening was Mr. A. N. Campbell, President of International Equipment Company at Montreal and President of Napanee Industries of Napanee. Mr. Campbell spoke on his experiences as a small Canadian businessman trying to work up export business in other countries.

His search for markets outside of Canada extended to Great Britain, western Europe, the West Indies, Argentina, Brazil and Mexico. A lot of his travels were as part of Canadian Trade missions abroad.

During the business session the membership heard a report from a committee on the Santa Claus Parade. Each year the people who run the Santa Claus parade find more and more work piled up on them and fewer people. In view of this, the club then pledged its unanimous support to the parade committee.

Huntingdon Council to Hear Report on Dam

A preliminary engineering report on the proposed Moira Lake seasonal dam will be presented to the Huntingdon township council in the near future, according to a recommendation of the executive committee of the Moira Lake Conservation Authority.

At a recent meeting of the Authority executives, it was recommended that 90 percent of the Authority cost of the proposed dam be paid by Hunting don township as the benefitting municipality, with the other 10 percent to be paid by the other municipalities in the watershed.

Mr. Graham Ball of Marmora, chairman of the Authority's water advisory committee, was authorized to present the preliminary engineering report to Huntingdon council.

Two Drivers Go to Hospital After Collision

Fire broke out when two cars collided near Trenton Air Station main gates on Highway 2 last night, sending both drivers to hospital.

James Norman Mansell, an Australian serviceman at Trenton, has been transferred to Kingston Military Hospital with burns received in the accident.

Eric Blakeman, Cobourg, was treated for minor burns to his face and hands at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Police say the accident happened when Mansell's car collided with the rear of Blakeman's, whose vehicle rolled over and burst into flames.

10,275 Large Regular Cheese Are Offered

A total of 10,275 large regular cheese, 11,274 square cheese and 3,384 specials were offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week.

The average price for raw milk white cheese was 38 3/16 cents per lb. Finished colored cheese 38 7/16 cents per lb. Raw milk square cheese sold at the same average price, while heat treated cheese brought 37⅛ for white and 37⅛ for colored.

At the Stratford exchange there were 1,201 white and 3,435 colored cheese offered with a price of 37¼ cents being offered.

Longshoremen Want Pension Fund Probed

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul Asselin, president of the Montreal local of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) said Friday night ILA members will consider last week's strike settlement invalid unless the government immediately orders an inquiry into the Shipping Federation - ILA pension fund.

He said in an interview he has sent a telegram to this effect to Labor Minister Maurice Eachen with copies to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, T. C. Douglas, head of the New Democratic Party, Robert Thompson, leader of the Social Credit party, and Real Caouette, head of Le Ralliement des Creditistes.

Mr. Asselin said an inquiry into the fund was part of the strike settlement negotiated a week ago by Judge Rene Lippe, federal mediator.

"This was accepted by the parties concerned (the ILA and the Shipping Federation of Canada) and if the inquiry is not immediately accorded by the labor department, our members can consider that the strike settlement is annulled," the telegram said.

About 3,800 ILA members in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres, and Quebec City returned to work Monday following the eight-day strike.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charles Patrick Smith, who passed away one year today, Oct. 19, 1962.
I think of him in silence,
His name I not revile,
There is nothing left to measure,
But his patient on the mile.
—Ever remembered by wife and sons, Ronald and Gerald.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Patrick Smith, who passed away a years ago today.
You're not forgotten father dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory last,
We shall remember you.
—Ever remembered by daughter-in-law Florence.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of our dear mother and Grandmother, who passed away October 20th, 1958.
At night the silent stars look down
On a grave not far from here,
Where those she can we can't forget,
The one we loved so dear.
—Sadly missed by son Basil, family.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of our dear mother and Grandmother, (Mrs.) Ellen Rushlow, who passed away October 20th, 1958.
Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one we can't forget,
In memory's frame we shall keep her,
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by Dorothy, Carmen, John and Bonnie.

GILLEN — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ida Gillen, who passed away October 19, 1962.
She hadn no one but God to see,
She said goodbye to none,
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said "Come".
I often sit and think of you,
The things we used to say,
I wonder why you had to die,
Without a moment to say goodbye,
Though out of sight, you're ever,
Still in mind, loved, still missed;
You will live with me in memory,
Until God and time stand still.
—Fondly remembered by husband John, daughter Margaret and son-in-law Gerald and grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

SCALE WATCHING IS AN EXCELLENT HABIT

A scale in every home might be very beneficial to personal health, for weight is an excellent guide to future well-being —and should be watched carefully.

There is no short-cut to weight control. With each person, it is an individual problem, and subject to personal discipline.

Normal living and eating are likely the keys to health. If over-weight or under-weight, see your Doctor. He is the one qualified to determine the necessity and prescribe for such treatment.

Only with his guidance should you engage in any weight control project.

Construction Roundup

Jim Chappelle, boss-man of McFarland's number eight asphalt plant has been set up near Foxboro and producing between 600 and 2,000 tons per day since last Tuesday.

The total has been enough to pave four miles, to Friday night, of the base course on Highway 14. Plans call for at least the base course on all seven miles of the contract to be finished before freeze-up, and as much as possible of the second course. There are a dozen rented trucks hauling the asphalt now, because all McFarland's dump trucks are tied up at a Hydro job near Kapuskasing.

Ray Hedger is his own contractor building a new garage on North Front Street. His Ford dealership on College St. is sold and he plans to open "soon as possible" with Dodge and Chrysler in the showroom. Rex Bridge dug the hole for him last week and Ray is getting the footings ready this week. Only hitch so far is that the ditch for the footings uncovered three or four springs and the work is a bit wet. Ray has three men helping him on the job now.

NEARING COMPLETION

George Sauve, powderman for Beaver on the North Front St. sewer job, says he's been using about six cases of frotite a day blowing holes in the road. All the ten-inch pipe on North Front has been laid now, and the two crews working north and south from Tracey St. are laying eight-inch stuff. Tony Argo is in charge of the northbound crew but George does the blasting for both. The job stretches 2,600 feet north of Tracey St., 1,400 feet south. The Beaver crew have another 1,100 feet of the south section, 900 feet of the north part. They hope to be through the whole works in about a week and a half.

Jack Wickens, at the new C.W.C.O. building on Victoria Ave., for High Murray Construction, is putting the roof on the swimming pool now. Precast concrete columns and pre-stressed beams were put up last week. The roof will be built-up asphalt over steel decking. Archie Parks, meanwhile, is watching the bricklayers as the walls rise about the first floor. The basement is already finished and the first two levels of prestressed concrete flooring are installed. Denny Williams of Toronto is there with a crew from W. P. Bowden and Sons, of Oshawa, putting in the ducting for the combined heating-ventilation system.

COMING ALONG

Lorenz Bazain has taken over the steel erecting contract on the new apartment building going up on Victoria Ave. and George St. for Bellwood Investments. Tom left last week for reasons not stated. The company of Gelmar and Windsor, which started construction of the building has changed, since the start to J. Winsby Ltd. of Toronto, on the building itself is coming along nicely, according to Lorenz. He has six bricklayers and a few helpers putting up the wall along the George St. side of the building. Basement walls of concrete block are finished to ground level, and Lorenz is waiting for someone to come from Toronto to inspect the steelwork before he puts the ground floor in.

And up at the William Mayer property, near where Highway St. becomes Station St., General Contracting of Toronto is putting up a new building. Mario Pascera is foreman on the job, and he has seven men, (three of them from the north), working for him. There is no basement, concrete block is laid to the top of the first floor, Mario plans to start the second floor next week and be through by the end of November. Finished, the building will house three small stores at ground level, and offices on the second floor.

AHEAD OF WEATHER

Orval Tustian and his volunteer crew force have the outside walls and partitions and inside partitions finished at the Trinity United Church on Parmer Road. Over the week-end, they are starting the roof. Open-web steel trusses, purlins and groove wood and asphalt roof will be through in about a week. Plan is to close the building in as soon as possible, so weather can't delay the work.

North Whittle says his Ardro Construction crew is pretty well finished at the new OSD Vocational building, and there are just a few local tradesmen still working on the job. They will be through in a week or so, Norm hopes. At St. Columba's, the painters are still at work, and the main church area has yet to be furnished. The job should be finished in three or four weeks, Norm says.

Hugh Murray says his men working with Robert Pennell on the sidewalks at the east end of town, poured the last of them Thursday, and will be through the cleanup by the middle of next week. Eight or ten men on the job will be through then, but contracts in sight should provide work for them soon.

The Tatham Company Ltd. has no foreman assigned to the new Smiths Transport terminal yet. Jim Colelli, vice-president of the firm, says work so far is being run direct from the office. So far part of the footings for the building have been poured.

START MORE HOUSES

First two houses of West Park Village will be through the framing stage according to Bill McCormick, and the Ivan Park Construction people will be starting six more over the weekend.

Frank Miron of Miron-Wiegers Construction Ltd. was in at the town hall yesterday, getting the building permit for the new Bank of Montreal building on College St. His contract says he will build it for $38,100.

H. Carr-Brait and Sons have five men working on the new building for Bell Telephone, and Ralph Pinnacle, Dodge Construction of Cardinal, Ont., said Carr-Braint can do the whole building, according to George Seames, Carr-Brait's foreman on the job. Friday, there were just five men there, putting up reinforcing and forms for the south wall. Saturday, they poured concrete for the wall, according to plan. The finished building will be three floors high.

Sam Goodman dropped in to the city hall October 15, to get a $175,000 building permit for his new motel on North Front St. Trouble is, the original permit, issued for $163,000 in 1962, would not cover the revised plans.

FREE PUBLICITY

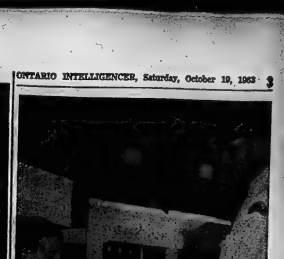
And finally, Wilson Concrete Products are getting a little bit of free publicity in Toronto these days. There are seven photographs, each 16x20 inches, in the windows of the Metro Toronto Roads office, 73 Eglinton Ave. East, of Wilson's special truck, semi-trailer and semi-trailer unit. Total, 30 wheels) carrying the biggest beams ever put into a Metro bridge. Wilson's made the 90-foot, 37-ton beams and shipped them to Toronto, but it took two of the three photos in town to put them in place at the Spadina Expressway-Lawrence Ave. interchange.

Noted Ontario Investigator Has Retired

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Kelly CBE, renowned investigator of murder mysteries for the provincial police, retired from the force Friday after 36 years of service.

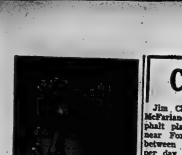
The first and last cases as a criminal investigation branch inspector were sensational beard-and-bikini stories.

Almost 22 years ago, he arrested four youths for the murder of a woman. The youths, three of whom died on the gallows at Fort Frances in the first multiple execution in modern Canada for a single murder, held the woman's hands on a log and until she disclosed the hiding place of a few hundred dollars.



His final case in 1964 was the arrest of Mrs. Mary Bell of Bellerville, charged with killing her husband. She was acquitted.

Inspector Kelly's investigation of the Windsor police department in 1949 brought a shakeup in that administration and charges Detroit bookmakers were using Windsor as a base of operations.



His career began in 1928 in St. Thomas where he served as a corporal until 1944 when he was transferred to headquarters in Toronto.

Trenton streets should be cleaner from now on. Trenton Lions' Club president, Thomas Bedford, (left), yesterday presented 20 street garbage cans to Mayor James MacDonald. The cans will be strapped to concrete hydro poles and the idea is to lose candy wrappers, cigarette butts, etc. into them, instead of littering the streets.

Today is Boy Scout Apple Day in Trenton and Mike Parent, 5th Trenton Troop, picks as his first customer Constable Gary Davis of the Trenton police force.

Aircraftman First Class Jerry Polmanter, 17, of Belleville, who enlisted in the RCAF last July, has been posted to Training Command Headquarters at Winnipeg For the past three months AC1 Polmanter has been stationed at St. Jean, P.Q., where he was selected for training as an administrative clerk. AC1 Polmanter will be employed on clerical duties at TCHQ until he is sent on the clerical course at Camp Borden, Ont., in the near future. His father, Mr. George Polmanter, lives in Belleville.

N. Seagram, Noted Canadian Sportsman, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Private funeral services were held Friday for Norman Seagram, 84, noted Canadian sportsman and former longtime member of the Toronto Stock Exchange, who died Thursday at his home.

Mr. Seagram was born in Waterloo, Ont., the son of Joseph E. Seagram and Stephanie Erb. He was educated at Waterloo College School, Port Hope, and Montreal High School.

He joined Molson's Bank, now part of the Bank of Montreal, in 1897 and left the bank in 1903 to become associated with his father-in-law, the late James O. Buchanan, in the stock brokerage business.

The firm of Buchanan, Seagram and Company was formed in 1906 and Mr. Seagram was elected a member of the Toronto Stock Exchange. At the time of his retirement in 1949 he was the longest standing member of the exchange.

In 1919 he and his brothers formed the Seagram Stable and its silks later became well known in the United States and Canada. They were winners of the King's Plate with Flowerful in 1923, with Haplite in 1926 and Young Kitty in 1928.

Public Meeting Will Hear About Method of Obtaining Ground Water for Drinking

TRENTON — Any citizen interested in a cheap and practical method of obtaining ground water for drinking and other purposes may learn about this new development by attending a meeting of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission in the Lyndo building on Elgin St., Thursday at four o'clock.

The members of the commission voted yesterday to arrange the meeting open to the public, upon the receipt of a letter from the Groundwater Development Corporation, which said that a film would be made available to the commission and an operator provided to run the projector. As this is an entirely new concept of drawing water from land sources, the commission members thought many town citizens might be interested in the subject. In particular, Mayor James MacDonald, members of council and other municipal officials have been asked, to attend.

Utilities manager James Page told the commission chairman, C. A. Baker, Commission Charles Hillier and Mayor MacDonald yesterday that experts from the Ontario Water Resources Commission, who have made exhaustive tests of water from the Trenton River, report that while there may be some small investigations in the taste of the river water, the Trenton water is better than that obtained by many other municipalities. For instance, say the experts, it is far superior to river water supplied to Peterborough users.

The OWRC engineers, H. Manzon, A. Oda, and G. Johnson have explored the possibility of extending the 42-inch water pipe to a natural spring located under the 401 high bridge, but have ruled that it is not likely. The spring is reported as the cost of extending the pipe would be prohibitive and the spring is only four feet from the surface and the river runs dry at this point in the summer.

Deeds, transferring the ownership of property used by the commission for pumping stations, transformer stations and storage tanks from the Town of Trenton to the commission, have been sent to be registered.

In exchange for the town island, the commission has agreed to give the town 11 acres of land west of the Provincial and OMC Boat plants, for possible use in industrial sites.

With a view to keeping interest rates, the commission agreed yesterday to pay Vagn Jensen $6,000 in a lump sum for 23 acres of land at the northeast corner of his property on the York Road. Initially, the commission had meant to pay Mr. Jensen $1,000 this year and the remainder next. On the property, the commission means to develop an artificial lake and this will be a supplementary source of water for the town.

As the town was given official sanction to, the commission to sell Lots 18 and 19 on the west side of Queen St., the long, measuring 66 feet by 132 feet have been advertised for sale by tender. One tender was received and this was from local realtor Stan Klemencic. The offer named $2,250 as the sum Mr. Klemencic was willing to pay. The commission, having ruled that it was not obliged to accept the highest or any tender, turned thumbs down to Mr. Klemencic's offer, and will put the lots in the hands of the co-op realtors for sale.

The commission voted to put a float in the Santa Claus parade . . . if the utilities employees agree to construct the float and keep the cost under $75.

"It's a good medium of advertising," said Mr. Baker.

The commission accepted the low tender for furnace oil from the B. W. Powers Company at 14.2 cents a gallon. The same company was given the contract to supply the commission with diesel oil at 17 cents a gallon and the Allore Company won the contract for stove oil at 16 and three quarter cents a gallon.

Out-Patients' Dept. Treated 773 in Month

TRENTON — The Out-Patients' Department was the busiest department in Trenton hospital last month, according to the report released Friday by the administrator, Miss Hazel Vandet. In all, 773 patients were treated. Emergencies handled numbered 442.

Admitted to the institution were 394 adults and children and 79 babies were born. Deaths numbered 15.

Thirty-six major operations were performed and 67 minor operations.

Average daily population in the 140 bed hospital (adults and children) stood at 103 and for the nursery, 12.

Airmen Still Leading in Dart League

TRENTON — Trenton Airmen are still leading in the Trenton and District Dart League play, but the Bar Flys have taken over second position from Ted's Antennas. Airmen have a total of 25 points, Bar Flys 20.

Tuesday night scoring saw the Antennas collect two points, playing against the Airmen. Greg Miller edged out the Bear Cats, 6 to 5; Bar Flys scored nine; Erie 2; Hasty Pees won out over the Hasty Pees Toppers, 7 to 4; Sgts. Mess, 8, One Half Hundred 5.

Hidden score was taken by Jack Bowers of the Bar Flys.

WILL OPEN WING

Ontario's premier, the Hon. John P. Robarts will officially open the new vocational wing at Trenton High School this Sunday. Ceremonies will start at 2.30 p.m. and the Trenton school board has issued a special invitation to the people of Trenton and district to attend. Tours of the new wing will be set up following the ceremonies.

CLOSE NAVIGATION

Friday marked the closing of navigation on the Trent Canal. From May 15, this year, 963 boats were locked through Lock No. 1. Last year's total for the same period was 886.

Lockmaster at No. 1, James Howard, said yesterday that while a few skippers complained about accommodations on the canal, 90 per cent of boat owners thought the canal was improving and some said that in their opinion, the canal was the No. 1 pleasure canal in Canada.

Sea Cadets Will Start Drive For Membership

TRENTON — The Trenton Sea Cadet Corps, HMCSCC "Trent" is starting a recruiting drive this month, Constabling officer is Lt. H. W. Curtis.

Formed eight years ago, the corps was in full swing at almost the full strength permitted by the provincial organization.

With boys growing up and progressing on to college age or to jobs, the corps now finds openings for a number of cadets.

Courses in seamanship, rifle shooting and bugle band instruction are among the inducements offered to cadets joining the local corps.

Boys from 14 to 18 years may join and if the would-be cadet is 13 and in grade nine, he too may join.

Strict discipline is maintained by Lt. Curtis and his officers when the cadets meet on Tuesday nights in the city. "Trent" at the Community Gardens. Recruits may contact the commanding officer at EX 2-4089 or attend next Tuesday night's meet at the Gardens.

BIGGEST INDUSTRY

Agriculture is Britain's largest single occupation and employs four per cent of the working population.

Citizens' Band To Take Part In Parade

TRENTON — "Trenton" for this year's Santa Claus Parade on Trenton include the Trenton Citizens' Band, under the leadership of Snider, the 58RD Brass and Reed Band under the baton of Sgt. Howard Kelly and 30 majorettes from the K'Wannette group of Peterborough.

Among the 16 entries to date are the Quinte Secondary School Band, the East Northumberland School Band, a trumpet band and a baton corps from Colborne, Quinte Majorettes, Warkworth Majorettes, the St. Wranis Club of Trenton and the Addo Music Academy of Trenton and Belleville.

Individuals who will be taking part include Merle Walt of Trenton, Delta Post of Frankford and Don Gerow of Wellington who will be riding horses or ponies and a single majorette, Anna Richardson of Trenton will also be taking part.

In all, 360 persons have now signed up to appear in the parade which will be held on Saturday, Nov. 23.

The Trenton Chamber of Commerce, which annually sponsors the parade, would welcome additional entries from the Quinte area.

Too Incurious

What happened to volume 15 of the transcript of evidence from the 1960 provincial government investigation into the financial affairs of Eastview? Nobody seems to know, and apparently nobody wants to know.

Both Municipal Affairs Minister J W. Spooner and Deputy Attorney General W. B. Common have said, separately, that their departments will be conducting no further inquiries into the disappearance of the volumes from their respective transcripts. The disappearances were discovered August 15, when Ottawa lawyer John Nelligen applied for, and received, permission to look at the transcripts. Volume 15 was missing from all three sets.

The case is exceptionally serious because the government has been charged with rewriting part of the volume from the original, before it was released to the public.

The fact that the missing volume has been replaced with another copy, taken from the shorthand notes of an Ottawa court reporter, does not change the matter. There is no guarantee that the new copies are identical with the missing copies.

Donald C. MacDonald, provincial N.D.P. leader, said Tuesday that Mr. Spooner has failed to answer the charge that the report was rewritten before it was published. He also said it is Mr. Spooner's responsibility to find out where the original report is, and to what extent it was rewritten.

In the light of Mr. Spooner's announced intention to drop the inquiry into the absence of the report, one is inclined to excuse him of the responsibility for such an inquiry. The inquiry should be conducted though—by others.

If Mr. Spooner does not like the judge's seat in the inquiry, perhaps he belongs in the witness box.

Clever Mr. Drury

Even with a program, you cannot tell the political players these days.

The party which once advocated reciprocity between Canada and the United States has now produced a species of protectionism so subtle that it successfully evades the provisions of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

That, at any rate, is the U.S. appraisal of the proposals of Liberal Industry Minister C. M. Drury, which are designed to foster the growth of Canada's automotive parts industry.

The U.S. was all prepared to throw the GATT book at this scheme, but after thumbing through it frantically discovered that Mr. Drury's adept backfield running enabled him to thread his way through all the rules without even denting one of them.

Whether Canada should be bent on developing its own automotive industry, when it is obvious that the U.S. possesses the plant and personnel to supply our needs without duplication of manufacture, is a question whose answer depends on one's economic philosophy.

Those who once defeated a Liberal Prime Minister with the slogan "No truck or trade with the Yankees" could do no less than applaud Mr. Drury's courage.

His refusal to cling to the principle behind reciprocity, which can perhaps be best expressed as "from each his best," have scant reason to cheer.

The truth of the matter probably is that, though there are theoretically many ways in which Canada might better put to work her resources in material and manpower than by competing with an established and highly efficient U.S. industry, in the prevailing economic system there is no other way in which Canada can escape from an unenviable fate as hired hand on the back fifty of Uncle Sam's prospering estate.

I don't believe that there ever has been, or ever will be a society entirely free from a certain amount of anxiety and stress. This is not simply the price we pay for the development of industrialization, or because we have joined the thrusters and pacemakers. It is the price we pay for being members of a human community; for having learned to subordinate many of our animal desires to the demands of social life. That slight degree of anxiety also serves as the spur towards the further development of our peculiar species.—G. M. Carstairs, Professor of Psychological Medicine at Edinburgh University.

What is a scoop? A headline today, the wrapping for the fish and chips tomorrow. What matters, surely, is a steady reputation for talking sense, and charitably, in season or out.—British author and journalist, Godfrey Winn.

Ottawa Offbeat

Many Items Keep Well-Paid M.P.'s Burning Midnight Oil

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Trouble may have been piling up nationally as it never has since the war years . . . Separatist Marcel Chaput and the FLQ in Quebec . . . turmoil and Real Caouette in Parliament . . . the HUT's Herschel Chamberlain Banks and union war on the Queen . . . the Labor . . . worry about strikes and winter weather . . . delaying delivery of that half billion dollars worth of wheat to the Soviet . . . spats with Washington over wheat sale and prices, taxes, trade deficits and restrictions . . . .

You name it and, it seems it's trouble, then we've got it in Ottawa.

. . . But then, think of it this way . . . after that 80 per cent Parliamentary pay raise . . . we've got Canada's (and perhaps even the world's) first Million Dollar Cabinet.

. . . One prime minister at an annual $75,000 . . . .

. . . Twenty-five other cabinet ministers at $33,000 each . . . .

. . . Sixteen MP parliamentary secretaries at $22,000 each . . . .

. . . That's $45,000 . . . plus $675,000 . . . plus $352,000 . . . totals $1,272,000.

TOP BANANA:

And that is straight salary.

Expenses, the Parliamentary kind, apart altogether from the Cabinet variety, must be added.

So what we have a Million Dollar Cabinet, you shrug?

Well, to put it bluntly, it is probably the highest-priced collection of political talent in the business.

And it is adorned by Canada's highest-salaried woman, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, who draws an annual $35,000 and lives a far-from-extravagant life in a mid-town bachelor apartment.

Highest-priced politicos] talent that is, because now Canada Min'sters are paid $35,000 pay cheque, $6,000 of it tax-free, plus their new open-ended expense allowance are ahead, in terms of take-home spending money, even of the United States Congressmen who gets $22,500, every last dime of it taxable.

Despite the brave show of indifference the embarrassed MPs like to put on, their burdened, end-of-session Treasury Raid of last summer still rankles with some of the taxpayers.

A Mr. J. C. Dublin has been circulating some of the newspapers with a letter-to-the-editor, asking for a rather pertinent question:

How many MPs could we even $10,000 (the old Parliamentary pay rate) before their election?

How many still conduct their private enterprises on the side?

If $10,000 was so inadequate, why the fierce competition for the job?

EVERYBODY IN THE ACT

Mr. Dublin might have added that last year the MP's pay was bumped to $18,000 plus, the fierce competition is likely to become so great that the next election time there could be, with only the slight stretch of the imagination, almost many people running as voting for Parliament.

It could get to the point of "every man his own candidate."

For in what other field could you get a crack at an $18,000-plus . . . expense-allowance-tax-free for the $200 investment required of a candidate in putting up his running-deposit-and-hundreds-no-fooling deposit?

But so nice a financial touch as a cabinet minister's $35,000 plus might appear at first glance few salaries are earned at such cost of blood, sweat and tears.

Especially these seemingly endless days of trouble when crisis follows crisis.

Come evening, as Offbeat did the other late evening so one of the senior members of the Federal Cabinet . . . .

It was nearly 10 p.m. when he and his staff were still frantically busy in the House of Commons office . . . and running a couple of hours behind his tight-knit schedule.

It wasn't inefficiency or industry that caused him to run late, for a 23-year-veteran at the Commons, he above almost all others knows the ropes of Cabinet, would know the score.

IT'S HOT:

It was sheer, brutal overwork.

And at pitiless high pressure.

The same across the office, seven people were waiting, urgently, to talk to him, and three phone calls, two of them long distance, were being held for him.

"I'll talk to you for a moment right here," he grinned, leaning wearily on the top of a filing cabinet.

And he did, turning then to speak to the others.

"Chief," said one, "they want you in the Chamber (the Commons) right away."

"Scat," said the second, "I've got to have a decision on that Montreal dock thing right away, they're waiting on the phone for it."

"The prime minister's office is calling for the latest word from the Quebec City desk," called a third aide.

"Chief," rapped a fourth, "the labor minister is on the phone here."

"Wait, you okay this telegram and I'll shoot it off right away to Three Rivers," pleaded one of his confidential secretaries.

There were other urgent and pressing demands for his immediate and urgent attention. And out in the hall, two jobless MP's contents were waiting' to ambush him, when he emerged, about Government aid problems.

The pressure was on him because he was one of the key members of the Cabinet trusted in straining to find a solution to the Quebec lonesh orem's's births and the disturbing delays in loading the mammoth wheat order to Russia.

Did he find the going tough?

"Crazy," he grinned. "It's crazy."

Then sort of wistfully he added . . . "but you know what the prime minister said . . . if you can't stand the heat, don't come in the kitchen."

"Right!"

Right. And in spades.

Use New Kind Of Light

St. Catherines Standard

One of the most revolutionary electronic devices conceived in recent years, the "laser" was used today in the official opening of the Canadian Electronics Conference in Toronto.

In a demonstration worthy of a science-fiction novel, the laser fired an intense beam of light so powerful that it punched a hole in a sheet of aluminum. The beam was then activated a photo-electric cell to open the curtains to reveal the official opening of the show.

A laser produces a narrow beam of light, which is monochromatic — of a single, sharply defined colour or wave length — and is coherent, with all the light waves marching in regular order, like the waves of a smoothly running sea. Light with these characteristics has never before been available to man. Being available now, it opens the way to major developments in communications, radar surgery, power transmission without lines, etc.

All the possibilities of laser have not yet been explored, but the delicate operation of burning a tumor out of the human eye and sore being already used as an instrument to "weld" detached retinas.

It is also known that a single laser-produced light beam has inherently the ability to carry all the information transmitted by all the television stations, radio stations, teletypewriters, and telephone lines in the world, operating at the same time. Developing the technical means to use this amazing message-carrying ability is a major problem facing scientists; but the first steps have already been taken. Television pictures and voice messages have already been experimentally carried on light beams.

Through this re-stimulation of an old science, the science of light, all aspects of our highly technical civilization are supposed for a forward surge that is at present unimaginable in scope.

Gain Influence

Calgary Albertan

It is beginning to appear that as Parliament becomes more efficient and thus fewer in number they are becoming more influential. Influential it is a heady condition which may be of temporary benefit to farmers but which could work a hardship on non-agricultural sections of society, nationally and internationally.

Actively initiating on the part of many men throughout the province that Hydro Electric power rates across Ontario should be established on a uniform rate, the Sarnia Hydro-Electric Commission early in supporting the move and which September adopted a resolution is being taken up by other commissions.

The Sarnia resolution passed on September 10th, petitioned the H.E.P.C. for a flat rate for the transmission of power to all municipalities, while of the recommendation of Mr. George Reid of the Belleville Utilities Commission a like resolution was passed in Kingston later, at the convention of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Association.

For probably the first time in the history of the canning business a second crop of peas has this week been canned in Trenton by the Stokley-Van Camp Canning Company.

On Monday last this canning company's plant was threshed and canned a considerable quantity of a second growth of peas from the farm of Henry St. Hilaire of the second concession of Sidney Township. The first crop had been cut on July 19th and as is quite usual no doubt a few of the peas dropped to the soil and were thought lost. Apparently, however, these peas lay and dried between the harvesting on July 19th and July 28th when Mr. St. Hilaire again plowed the field and turned the seed under. Last week a passer-by noticed what he thought were peas which the canning company had forgotten to harvest, he notified a representative of the company and upon investigation it was found that there were not the first crop but the second.

The Belleville Collegiate senior football team defeated the Peterborough Collegiate senior team in that city on Saturday, by the score of 13 to 7 game. The local tri-color outplayed their rivals in every respect, never allowing the visiting team field led by captain Jimmie Follwell, excelled themselves both defensively and offensively and the B.C.I. line of scrimmage played errorless football, tackling and blocking with the old grand style all during the contest. The game saw the return of Mason (Tarzan) Rigby to the Belleville line up and the stellar middle winger of last year proved the best alternate used by coach Shiels. One of the features of the game was the deadly tackling of B.C.I. men who also on booted repeatedly the untied efforts of Dopling and March who kicked for the Peles. The Peterborough team was minus the services of their ace kicker, Wesley, who owing to illness witnessed the game from the side lines. Joyling, March, Glover and Beatty proved to be the best players used by coach "Red" Logan. The following composed the Belleville Collegiate team: Cook, Follwell, Reynolds, Hilton, Ostrom, Coe, Ketchison, McKinney, Morgan, Rigby, Temple and McFarlane. Subs: Weaver, Johnson, Saunders, Watson, McElrath, and Andrews. Referee, Richardson of Peterborough; umpire, Townsend of Belleville; head linesman, Hickey of Peterborough.

There Are Several Ways To Treat Gastric Ulcers

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Kindly describe treatment for gastric ulcers. Is it possible to heal them without surgery?

I am 50, and also have gastritis.—A. M.

That's a big order and it can't all be explained in a few sentences. Here's an outline though.

What is causing the gastritis? Your doctor, after learning something of your eating (or drinking?) habits, won't have much trouble in advising you what to do about that. It will be up to you to follow his instructions.

The gastric ulcers are another problem. They are in the stomach proper, and not in the duodenum, which, however, are "peptic ulcers."

What sets gastric ulcers aside as a far greater problem is the frequency with which they prove to be malignant — as high as about one out of five.

When gastric ulcers are malignant, they usually develop so from the start; it isn't a matter of the ulcers forming first and becoming malignant later. Hence some fine doctors remove gastric ulcers as soon as they are found. Others prefer to defer surgery long enough to try other methods, meantime keeping close watch for any sign of malignancy, at which point, of course, they should be removed at once.

There are several ways of watching for the most common characteristic signs; there is little or no acid in the stomach; or direct inspection by biopsy, by means of a gastroscope, may be necessary.

The "wait and see" treatment includes some or all of the above tests for safety's sake. It involves blood, low-calcium, high in protein, and frequent feeding. Drugs are used to suppress stomach secretions, control spasm, and reduce nervous tension.

The patient must give up alcohol and tobacco, in some cases complete bed-rest is desirable.

The doctor must have the strictest co-operation of the patient, but when he gets this, the ulcers may heal in from two to eight weeks.

Then in two or three months X-ray examination should be repeated (perhaps more than once that) If the ulcers have disappeared, good. If they are unsolver, but still there, be cautious and careful.

If the ulcers haven't decreased (and most certainly if they are larger) surgery should be considered.

For more elaborate details of diet and other aspects of treatment, and some explanation of why they help, I suggest you read my booklet "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them healed." Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to have arthritis of the stomach? — S. M. H.

No, but arthritis is a condition that attacks the joints. If you are having persistent stomach pains, the only wise thing is to consult a physician. Don't indulge in guesswork.

Note to G. L. G.: I doubt whether vinegar and honey would do very much for a "heel spur" that is as painful as you describe. If you have any doubts, a short trial will show the answer. For such a spur as yours, a surgical operation is the answer. Cushioning of the heel often helps.

Goldwater Surges Ahead

Montreal Gazette

A year ago, few people in Canada had even heard of Barry Goldwater, the Republican Senator from Arizona. And fewer still can have seen in him a likely candidate for the Republican Party's Presidential nominee in 1964.

But today, Senator Goldwater is the front runner. He is a resurged ahead of his nearest rival, Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Some of Mr. Goldwater's support seems unbelievable, even unbelievable. The Southern states may vote for him, because he promises to leave the Negro problem to the tender mercies of the Southern Governors. Those who are fanatically anti-Communist, and who want not to contain Russia but to destroy it will approve his brand of militarism. And those in the Mid-Western and Western states who cherish the old frontier suspicion of the over-civilized East will vote for him.

But the Goldwater phenomenon is based on more than this, otherwise respectable considerations, including many eastern businessmen, would scarcely be speaking of him in so sympathetic a manner.

The answer seems to be that of all the prospective presidential candidates, Senator Goldwater is the most representative to President Kennedy. Under Mr. Kennedy, as under Eisenhower, Truman and Roosevelt before him, the power, the spending and the deficits of the American federal government have grown tremendously. Every president or candidate competes to offer more. The federal government seems to lower irresponsibly and oppressively over ever.

Senator Goldwater is the only man who is saying sincerity, to bring these increases to a stop. Whether he could succeed without disaster to the American economy might be doubted. But he would clearly be an admirable candidate and power, and this is very attractive to many Americans.

Governor Rockefeller cannot qualify for this position — he is competing with Mr. Kennedy to promise more federal spending. Even Richard Nixon, now in the background, would be relatively different from Mr. Kennedy.

Senator Goldwater has been endowed without question, to occupy this vast political territory. He has become a serious presidential candidate, not because of his more extreme and dangerous ideas, but in spite of them. He has become the only candidate, now or in the foreseeable future, who offers to stop and if possible reverse, the trend towards an ever more powerful federal government.

Protests Judging All by One Clerk

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

The controversy between so-called discourteous sales personnel and customer is one that has no beginning nor an end.

I do not believe that a lady in Wednesday night's paper was trying to purchase. Nor do I care to know. What I do care is that the lady judged wrongly the majority, and I truthfully can say, a large majority of sales personnel because of her experience.

Does the lady in question judge all her days because she has but one clerk? And does she term all her neighbors gossipy because one of them might be inclined to gossip?

Is she also to say that all the personnel in the Plaza are courteous except one? They ar not all with such virtue nor are all the sales people downright rude and discourteous.

I also am not in the habit of writing to a newspaper, but I had to retaliate to the defence

The United States imposed an embargo on Cuba three years ago today—in 1960—in an attempt to tumble the Castro regime. Canada was criticized by some U.S. sources for continuing to trade with Cuba and in reply it was argued that Canada always had traded with all countries regardless of political color.

1946—Russian troops invaded East Prussia.

1945—The United Nations charter was ratified by the Canadian House of Commons.

Expect Performance

Vancouver Sun

Having hired ourselves a houseful of $18,000-a-year MPs, we expect an $18,000-type performance. Schoolboy insults, pettifogging questions, pompous drivel and interminable recitations of matters of no importance whatever are not characteristic of an $18,000-a-year executive at work. Senseless in the views, these things also divert deserved attention from serious debate, agreement or debate on policies and principles of genuine national concern.

Man Can Learn About Growth By Watching Ways of Nature

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

This is the season of seeds. Now Nature lavishly scatters her progeny across autumnal America. Burs, bearing seeds, attach themselves to the feathers of perching birds, to the fur of scampering animals, and to the pant legs and coats of sauntering humans and hitch-hike to areas unknown to the parent plants. Some seeds find other transportation, like that of the tumbleweed plant, which wanders in the company of any playful breeze. The pods of some other plants explode, shooting seeds several feet from the vegetation that nurtured them, thus giving the seeds a chance at an uncrowded existence. Acorns and many other nuts are shaped to roll downhill and away from the tree from which they fall. Milkweed fluff acts like a balloon, carrying the seeds to distant places, sometimes many miles away.

CHANCE TO DEVELOP

All of this sowing of seeds amounts to one thing principally: Nature is providing for the future by wrapping great potentials in little packages and then dispersing them so that they have a chance to develop and grow. Even in autumn, when the growing season comes to an end in much of America, Nature still has her mind on growth. Seeds are capsules of possibilities. Growth will take place as possibilities develop toward actualities. Now Nature is spilling seeds of the future upon October's clear amber air. On this autumn day, while seeds of the tomorrows fall all around my woodland study, I've been thinking random thoughts on the meaning of today's seed-like possibilities and our spiritual growth. Here are a few of those thoughts:

We understand very little about any living thing as long as we see it simply as it is. This is as true of a child, or a seedling as of a walnut or a pheasant's egg: to understand anything we must see it with eyes of faith and in terms of what it is capable of becoming.

A problem that confronts each of us is this: considering one's talents and limitations, abilities and disabilities, how is one to make the most possible of his life? We need not be ashamed if, being an acorn, we do not become a towering pine, or being a grass seed, we do not become a maple. But if, being grass seed, we do not become the best possible grass, or, being an acorn, we do not become an oak, or being a boy we do not become a manly man, we have reason for shame. Life's most rankling regret is to fail to be all we could have been, and life's greatest satisfaction is to know that, having been God's seed sown on earth, we have developed according to God's purpose.

The good social order is a climate in which every individual, regardless of color, class, creed, or political affiliation, can grow intellectually, spiritually, and economically to the fullest extent of his latent potentialities. In such society everyone should be able to operate with maximum effectiveness. Of course, not everyone will actually behave in this fashion, but if not, it should be because of inner defects of the person and not because of a defective society that oppresses him and stunts his growth.

SUPPORT THE BEST

That which is nurtured most, grows best. This is as true of our inner nature as it is of farm produce. Feed and support the best that is in you, and let the worst die of neglect.

A good tree runs every hour for growth. It drinks sunshine. Rain refreshes it. Tempestuous winds force it to fasten its roots deeper into the earth. Even in the darkness it makes use of the stanchion manufactured by its leaves during the daylight. So with a soul. Fruitful hopes and disappointments, successes and failures, joys and griefs add to the spirit's dimensions. Even sin, by demonstrating our weakness and our need of Divine Help, can develop within better people than we were.

Ambassador of Chile Describes His Country To University Women

"Chile is a country of extraordinarily diversified resources, rich in minerals, forests and fisheries products, possessed of a fertile soil and an enterprising and resourceful people, one of the most homogeneous in Latin America." The speaker, His Excellency Mario Rodriguez, Ambassador of Chile, amply proved that his "small, peaceful and progressive" country deserves this glowing introduction, in an address heard by members of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District on Thursday evening.

His Excellency Mario Rodriguez, while Chile ranked eighth in size and sixth in population among the 20 Latin American countries, it was fourth in manufacturing output, railway mileage, installed generating capacity and in the number of telephones and radios; third in literacy, second in fisheries, and first in the production of minerals, other than petroleum.

A Chilean poetess, Gabriela Mistral was the first Latin American ever to win a Nobel Prize; a daily newspaper and a weekly magazine published in Santiago were the oldest of their kind in continuous publication in the Spanish language and Chile was the first country in South America to abolish slavery, and to adopt steam navigation, railroads and take Morse telegraph system.

WOMEN IN UNIVERSITIES

Chilean women, explained his Excellency, were among the first in Latin America to gain admittance to the universities, and now many of the students enrolled at Chile's seven universities were women. Chilean women obtained full political ability in 1949 after a long campaign for them, but already "we have had one woman elected to the Chilean Senate, six elected to the Chamber of Deputies, two in cabinet positions, one career ambassador, several judges and mayors and many in high positions in the civil service," said the Ambassador.

Noting that Chile unlike many Latin American countries had not suffered from revolutions, dictatorships or military takeovers, his Excellency declared "We take pride in our democratic institutions, in the stability of our government, in the independence of our judiciary, in the freedom of our press, in the honesty and generally high level of efficiency of our public administration, and in the vitality of our cultural and artistic life." He noted that it was perhaps in recognition of Chile's advanced position among the Latin American countries that the United Nations was building in Santiago a palace to house the International Labor office and the U.N. Food and Agriculture agencies, as well as the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America, thus making Santiago "the Geneva of the Southern Hemisphere."

VIEW SLIDES

After this general introduction, colored slides were shown to illustrate Chile's main land areas. The Great North, with its immense desert lands, bonanza, dry and barren of vegetation, was shown as an important mining area which made Chile the second producer and largest exporter of copper in the world. Slides of the Small North and the verdant Central Valley, showed beautiful soil were shown—seaside resorts, dotting the coastline and strolling between the coastal range and the seashore; Valparaiso, Chile's most important seaport; the skiing resort of Portillo; Lake Vichuques, a hunting and fishing resort, and Santiago, Chile's modern capital city, were alike in their beauty.

FERTILE LAND

His Excellency noted that the Central Valley supplied Chile with all the products of the temperate climate. Six of its wheat farms was the third largest in the world, and its fruit trees converted into wines which rated among the finest in the world and which were exported to many countries, including France, Germany and the U.S.A. He added that although grapes were one of the largest items of imports in an earthquake of May 1960 and is now rebuilt. Trubute was paid to Canada for her "prompt, effective assistance which will always be remembered with gratitude by the Chilean people."

OIL INDUSTRY

The last third of Chilean territory, the Land of Fire, was pictured as a labyrinth of archipelagoes, channels, inlets, fiords, lochs and bays, which is almost entirly uninhabited, except in some protected areas.

Slides of the cities of this area showed a sheep ranch in Magallanes, one of the best natural sheep areas in the world, and an oil field in Tierra Jel Fuego. His Excellency noted, with pride, that the development of the oil industry, a completely Chilean enterprise, had been such that, while oil was only discovered in 1945, this region now supplies all of Chile's consumption of car and aviation gasoline and most of its diesel fuel oil requirements.

His Excellency, Mario Rodriguez, was introduced by Mrs. L. R. Richardson, and thanked by Mrs. Birchard and by the President, Mrs. J. E. Pugh. Mrs. Birchard also noted that the Club was grateful to Mr. Robert Temple, M.P., for his help in arranging for the visit of the Ambassador.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. E. Huycke are shown after their wedding in Carmel United Church. The bride was formerly Sharon Irene Sheffield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sheffield, R.R. 1, Corbyville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Don Huycke, Toronto, and Mrs. Pearl Whiten of Brockville.

HUYCKE — SHEFFIELD

Pastel colored gladioli and evergreens decorated Carmel United Church for the early autumn wedding of Sharon Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sheffield, R.R. 1 Corbyville, to Harold G. E. Huycke of Montreal, son of Mr. Don Huycke, Toronto, and Mrs. Pearl Whiten, Brockville. Rev. Paul Packman performed the ceremony.

Mr. Jack Clarke was soloist and the organist was Judi Dafoe.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church in a floor length gown of organza over taffeta. The bustle back was caught up with small roses and it had a small chapel train. Her net veil was fashioned with lily-of-the-valley and a rose, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and rosebuds.

Maid of honor was Diane Trumpour of Picton, who wore pale blue chiffon over taffeta with wide panel of pleats. Bridesmaids were Lois Fay of Belleville and Rosemary McKnight of Ottawa, wearing pale pink dresses designed in a style similar to the maid of honor with matching shoes. Headpieces were circlets of flowers and veils. They carried flowers of the colours shaded in colors contrasting with their dresses.

Miss Angela Haynes was flower girl dressed in pale blue with an overdress of white embroidered nylon. She carried a basket filled with white mums and pink roses.

David McKnight of Ottawa was groomsman and the ushers were John Darrah; 2nd, Mrs. E. Sutton; hidden score, Mrs. M. Boyd. The door prize was won by Mrs. S. Kvarda.

A reception was held at Gilead Hall in Corbyville where the bride's mother received wearing a silk dress in two shades of blue, feather hat, black shoes and purse, and a corsage of red roses.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a wool dress with jacket in turquoise with matching hat, black accessories and corsage of red roses.

For a wedding trip around Lake Ontario the bride wore a turquoise three piece suit, white hat and gloves, black patent shoes and purse and corsage of red roses.

Showers in honor of the bride were given by Mrs. Jack Clarke, a miscellaneous shower by Miss Dona Robinson, and a community shower by Gilead Hall where the young couple were presented with a rocker chair.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McKee, Robert and Wayne of Willowdale, Squadron Leader Donald McKee, Mrs. McKee, Faith, Candice and Heather of Ottawa were holiday weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. David McKee as they were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Church Groups

ALPHA GROUP
ST. COLUMBA
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Alpha Group of St. Columba Persbyterian Church, met recently at the home of Mrs. Banks Hamilton. The meeting opened with a short devotional period given by Mrs. M. Hamilton.

Rather than the usual Mission Study program, Mrs. J. Burke gave a short talk on the origin and meaning of Thanksgiving in Canada. Following this, Mrs. D. Taylor led the group of her experiences as director of the CGIT camp at Camp Goforth during the past summer. The chairman, Mrs. N. Hutchinson, thanked both ladies for these interesting talks and then opened the business meeting.

Several items of business were discussed, the forthcoming bazaar, which is to be held on November 30th, being the most important item on the agenda. The convenors of the different booths have been asked to attend this meeting and the details of decorations were discussed.

Following adjournment of the business meeting, Mrs. Blatchford, assisted by the cohostess Mrs. H. Pollard, served refreshments.

NEW IDEAS

Mrs. A. Bannon, convener for Home Economics introduced Dorothy Batchelor (Mrs. D. Mac Kinnon) whose topic was "Food Can be Fun". She then answered many questions from the audience and brought a host of new cooking ideas and household lists to the ladies present.

CARS Auxiliary Presents Art Show by Hyndman

Portraits of local subjects added interest to the exhibition of art by Robert Stewart Hyndman at Ottawa at the Prince Edward suite of the Hotel Quinte on Friday and Saturday. The showing was presented on behalf of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Belleville branch.

In the portraits of the children which included Nancy Walters, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Austin Walters; Janice and Ruthie Cook, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cook, and Mr. Hyndman's own daughter, the artist has captured the charming innocence of youth with a delicate brush. In the portrait of Mrs. C. E. Argue, one could sense the awareness of intellectual discernment that comes with the years. The flesh tones in all the portraits were extremely good.

FAVORITE MEDIUM

Mr. Hyndman works in a number of media including oils, casein, and drawings in charcoal, chalk and pastels, and he considers it a healthy thing to use diversified means of expression. Doing abstracts however, does not appeal to him, he is not happy doing them, although he has tried it on occasion. Oils are perhaps his favorite medium, the artist noted he could say more things with oil.

Hanging directly opposite the door as one entered the room was a portrait of Miss Ann Dafoe of Ottawa, a fine example of Mr. Hyndman's skill in portraiture.

Over the mantel above the fireplace was a large painting done at Hyndman's cottage, where Dr. Blaiklee, Mrs. Hyndman's father, has a summer home. The view is looking southeast from the cottage, and is large in scope and lines. There were many scenes with water, and one suspects the artist has a special feeling for this type of picture. There were landscapes and seascapes, caught in winter moods and summer moods. Some of the work has strong stark lines and some is intimate in detail.

Mr. Hyndman says he likes to paint in the Gothneat hills. His favorite season is autumn because it has everything, rocks, hills, rivers, trees and scenic beauty.

LIFE WORK

Mr. Hyndman intends to make painting his life work. He was commissioned by Canadian magazine to do a portrait of Queen Elizabeth, on the occasion of her last visit to Canada.

His studies include three years at Toronto Central Technical Arts course, a term in London, England, Central School of Arts and Crafts, five years in the airforce, and one year official war art.

Some fortunate person is going to win an oil painting of the old mill at Londale as added tickets have been sold, which Mr. Hyndman has donated to the CARS Auxiliary.

Miss United Appeal, Gail Walker, will make the draw.

President of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Hilda Collier, welcomed the guests. Tickot convener was Mrs. Charles Campbell, assisted by Mrs. Aaron Hume. All members of the Auxiliary took part in the exhibition, serving refreshments and mingling with the guests to make the affair a friendly and informal occasion.

Twin Girls Born to Deaf Parents Are Able to Hear

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—The chatter of baby talk, the squeals and cries of childhood, are breaking a long silence in a now-happy home in North Bay.

Annette and Bonnie Dorschner, twin girls 14 months old, talk and laugh and listen like any other toddler of their age learning about the world by sound as well as sight, touch, taste and smell.

Their parents, Keith and Christina Dorschner, both 25, have a special reason to thrill at the fact that their children use all their senses because Keith and Christina have been deaf all their lives.

The twins are hearing, talking demonstrations of the short, happy end of the odds against the children of congenitally deaf parents escaping the same affliction.

Doctors here say that if one parent was born deaf the odds are 50-50 that offspring will be able to hear. With both parents afflicted, the odds jump to 75-25.

'MOST UNUSUAL'

Senator Joseph A. Sullivan, a prominent Toronto otolaryngologist (deafness specialist), says such cases as that of the Dorschners are "most unusual."

"I have studied this problem of the effect of congenital parental deafness on children and the odds are tremendously against the children not being deaf," he says.

Keith Dorschner has been conditioned to a soundless life. His mother was born deaf and she has a deaf sister. His father has been deaf from infancy and so has Keith. Christina was born deaf, although there is no deafness in her immediate family.

When Keith and Christina were awaiting the birth of the twins they did not consider whether the children might be deaf.

"Deaf parents are always very happy to have children, even if the children are handicapped," Keith said in an exchange of notes. "It is better than not having any."

LEARNING TO TALK

When the twins were born in August, 1962, the doctor pronounced them normal.

The parents were excited, but their big thrill came when the children were about three weeks old. Something dropped to the floor near the twins and both of them started.

Later, Keith and Christina would place their hands on the babies' chests and "hear" the vibrations caused by the first infant coolngs and gurgles.

Now the twins are learning to talk—coached automatically by neighborhood children, by radio and television sounds and sometimes even by their parents.

Keith explains that he and Christina can speak in a limited fashion, particularly when they are relaxed. Christina talks to her children quite freely. Keith tries talking to them only in the privacy of the home, alone with his family.

Women's Institutes

Park Dale Women's Institute celebrated their 10th anniversary with a pot luck supper in the community centre on Wednesday evening. Seated at the head table were the following ladies who have served as president: Mrs. C. Keeble, Mrs. G. Palmer, Mrs. A. Robinson, Mrs. R. Bolston, Mrs. G. Priest, Mrs. N. MacMillan, and Mrs. W. Brown. The table was centred by the anniversary cake flanked by blue and yellow candles in crystal holders and vases of yellow mums.

The guests included Mrs. R. Robson and Mrs. W. Tufts who helped to organize the Park Dale Women's Institute.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

A column of recipes given to me by good cook readers.

Letter: Jeanette is asking for a recipe for Cocoanut Tarts. I think I have the one M.N.H. wants. Mrs. Tillie W.

COCOANUT TARTS (courtesy Mrs. Tillie W.)

Two eggs, 1 cup cocoanut, 1 cup sugar, 1am. Put a little jam in each unbaked tart shell. Mix eggs, cocoanut and sugar, and fill tart shells and bake.

Answer: Thank you, Tillie. Thanks too to Nellie S. who sent in a similar recipe for M.N.H.

Letter: Unsigned but gives recipe for -

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Roast Chicken with Herb Stuffing (see Tuesday); Spinach; Canned Kernel Corn with Carrot Slices; Radish and Cucumber Salad with Italian French Dressing (Tuesday); Fresh Frozen Strawberry and Banana Fruit Cup; Butterscotch Bars or Sponge Cake (if used have some leftover for Sunday's dessert canape); Tea.

CHEF'S PASTRY (courtesy Helen C.S.)

1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt, 4 teaspoon brown sugar.

Mix. Cut in 1 lb. pastry lard. Add: 1 egg, unbeaten mixed with 4 tablespoon vinegar and sufficient cold water to make ¾ cup liquid.

This is rich but I find it easy to roll by using wax paper; flour bottom piece and place dough on this as needed; top with another piece of wax paper and roll out to desired size.

Hope you'll try this, Mary. Many local people here think it is the best pastry they have ever made.

Answer: Thanks to you, Helen. Indeed it is excellent pastry.

Cream together sugar and shortening, add eggs, salt, vanilla, grated orange rind and molasses. Sift together flour, ginger, baking powder, baking soda, and add alternately with sour milk. Pour into greased 9" square pan. Sprinkle with chopped pecans. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 50 minutes. Cut in squares and serve with whipped cream.

Answer: Thanks, too to this reader. Please give your name and address in future.

Letter: I am an avid daily reader of your column and have received your help on a number of occasions. I have a recipe for pastry which is wonderful and a real time-saver. I know my family gets pie far more frequently now that I have the pastry made up ahead of time. I have never seen this recipe in your column and often wondered why.

HOLY ROSARY C.W.L.

The regular monthly meeting of C.W.L. was held October 2 in Holy Rosary school with Mrs. E. Reed presiding.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Lennox Smith, publicity director for the United Appeal accompanied by the United Appeal Gail Walker. Mrs. Smith spoke briefly to the items urging them to support the United Appeal so that this year they may make their objective.

Miss Walker thanked the ladies for inviting her to attend their meeting and urged all to work hard for the success of the Appeal.

A visit will be made to the county home this month. A Christmas party is planned for league members in the form of a pot-luck supper in December.

A membership drive for renewals and new members is in progress. Mrs. William Smith who convened the fall bazaar expressed her thanks for the help and co-operation extended to her.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Some people blithely borrow anything, from a cup of sugar to a friend's good name, without realizing they might cause inconvenience and without considering the obligations involved. Here are some questions worth investigating:

1. Is it impolite to borrow the proverbial cup of sugar from a neighbor when you run out and need it in a hurry?

2. When is it permissible to borrow accessories needed for a party?

3. Is it too much to expect a good friend to lend you a fur when you need it for a special occasion?

4. If a borrowed object is lost or damaged, must the borrower pay for it?

5. Is it impolite to borrow something personal, like a comb or make-up, when one forgets her cosmetic case?

6. What etiquette is involved in using a friend's name as a reference for a job or for joining a club?

7. If it's impossible to return a borrowed object immediately, what does one do?

8. If the object borrowed is damaged in transit, who's responsible for its repair?

9. Is it ever permissible to lend something like a book to a friend before returning it to its original owner?

10. Is it necessary to send a thank-you note when returning a borrowed object?

Answers:

1. It is if one makes a habit of it. Occasional borrowing is not frowned upon. It's annoying, though, when one makes a daily practice of "borrowing" staples that should be in the larder.

2. It's permissible to borrow items not obviously meant for a party if the person lending them is on the guest list. To borrow but not invite is impolite and slighting.

3. Only a very close friend or relative should be asked to lend anything so expensive, but, even so, it shouldn't be borrowed unless it's insured or unless the borrower is ready to pay fully for it if it's lost or damaged.

4. If it's lost the borrower should make full restitution. If damaged, the lender should be asked to specify who should repair it, but the borrower naturally should foot the bill.

5. A very fastidious person often is understandably reluctant to lend her personal grooming aids. If she doesn't seem keen on the idea, it's better manners not to press her about it.

6. The friend's permission should be secured first before borrowing his or her name as a reference for anything, either business or social.

7. Notify the lender to avoid inconvenience on his part, then let him know when he may expect the return of his property.

8. If it's damaged on the way from the lender to the borrower, the latter is not really responsible, although he may properly feel he's partly responsible since it was being sent at his request. He's fully responsible if the borrowed object is lost or damaged while it's under his roof or while it's being returned.

9. A book or some other fairly inexpensive item may be released only if the person who owns it is consulted first and gives approval.

10. Very definitely. If the item was one of worth, a small present may also be sent in appreciation.

Going Places

Prado Museum and Flamenco Highlights of Madrid Visit

BY SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MADRID — As the great European capitals go, Madrid is an anomaly.

A little off the beaten track, it is neither spoiled by tourism nor highly geared to it. It is not half as old as Paris or London, and has been almost completely rebuilt since the civil war into the immaculate and colorful city of tree-shaded boulevards, parks and modern buildings. Even its old quarter is neat, except where it degenerates into slums. There is no colorful waterfront or air of intrigue, and in many ways it is not nearly so Spanish as San Juan or Mexico City.

What Madrid may not be exactly a swingin' town, it does have a number of things going for it. Of these, paramount is the pursuit of tourist joys, the most stylized, precise, masculine, feminine and sensual of all the music and dancing. It is so highly developed an artifice that its meaning often is lost on the casual observer, and even experts disagree on what is good and bad.

IN PUREST FORM

No one knows where the name came from, but flamenco is bewildering melodies and vigorous heel-stomping and grimacing that probably originated with the gypsies of southern Spain. There, in the cave-caberets of Granada, it is still performed in its purest form — wild, spontaneous, flaming with trains of colorful ruffles and dizzying footwork.

Madrid is full of smoky little boîtes where aficionados come to watch their favorites in awed silence. Among the best of these is Zambra, where you can be thrown out if you talk during the performance. Zambra is the headquarters of controversial Rosa Duran, variously adored and abused as the bad-boy-ess Rosa and a vulgar non-conformist. Whatever she may be, her style is compelling and brilliant.

The format of flamenco is exact. The performers position themselves stiffly on wooden chairs (in some places they stand) lined up on a bare wood-en platform. The guitarist, his ear bent to his instrument as if he were listening for mice, tunes up and then wanders into a barely detectable melody. A cascade of thrilling handclapping begins, as specific in form as if it were scored. Then a performer breaks into a wailing chant with unmistakable Moorish overtones. It may be one of the men in black suit and useless ruffled shirt, or one of the women in a dress with a flower pin in her hair. Eyes pop, face flushes, there is a crescendo accompaniment of more clapping, and a sudden end.

RHYTHMIC AND DRIVING

Finally one of the dancers rises. A tight-waisted man in a Zorro suit or a black-eyed senorita. Each has a style similar to, but subtly different from, all the others. . .twirling and feminine or stern and manly, but always violently rhythmic and driving. In some versions, one or more castanets — like square dance callers — exhort the performers with oles and dashing compliments.

There are many types of songs which the dancing expresses. They may be humorous, vicious, profound, tragic or anguished, and those who understand it say it is as beautiful as grand opera. We'll take their word for it.

Many of the flamenco spots are clustered around the magnificent square at Puerta Del Sol City known as the Plaza Mayor. The vast pavement is surrounded by the portioes and arches of some of the city's oldest buildings, behind which hide antique shops and old restaurants buried in cellars. Pigskins blistering with ham hang over their entrances, and late at night roving bands of medieval costumed students known as "tunas" roam the square singing and playing guitars as much for fun as for tossed pesetas.

Spread over the squares and streets of the Old City on Sunday mornings is the Rastro, Madrid's flea market. Like all flea markets, it is an orgy of old dust heaped on antiques, but it is real and fake. Also like all flea markets, you may come away with a rare find if you're an astute shopper (or collector of doorknobs), or you may come away with a headache.

Some experts say history's greatest painters were Rembrandt, Velasquez, Goya and El Greco. Three of these were Spanish (all right, so El Greco was Greek — but he lived in Spain), and most of their best works are displayed in Madrid's Prado Museum, a museum even for people who don't like museums.

GREAT PAINTINGS

Here you will see the living faces, delicate hands and faces of El Greco, that "painter of souls"; Goya's majs, both naked and clothed (he wasn't the Duchess of Alba at all, but the mistress of a prime minister); Velasquez' masterpiece, "The Maids of Honor," a whimsical portrait of the artist and some court youngsters who wandered in..while he was painting the royal couple. Velasquez himself in the picture, Velasquez observed the scene in a mirror and, with the king and queen vague in the background, the master stares at the viewer from the canvas. To see how it was done, there is a mirror in the room, and the three-dimensional effect is startling.

Near the Prado's entrances are two paintings by Hieronymus of Bosch that are worth noting. "The Garden of Delights" depicts, with satirical relish, all the penalties of pleasure. Its surrealistic quality, like that of even better represented in the neighboring portrait of Saint Anthony is said to have greatly influenced Salvador Dali four centuries later.

There are more than 4,000 paintings by artists from the world's masters in the Prado. To see them in alone worth the price of the jet ticket to get here.

DEEP WATER

The Marianas Trench in the Western Pacific, southeast of Guam, is estimated to be 35,800 feet deep.

Women Teachers View Art Work

WELLINGTON — The regular monthly meeting of the Women Teachers' Federation, Wellington Unit, was held at Huff's Island school, October 8th, with 22 teachers present.

Congratulations were extended to Mrs. Edna Welsh, who had been appointed regional convener of educational studies.

Three teachers, Mrs. Bates, Mrs. Welsh and Mrs. Fawcett, were chosen to act if asked to interview students from Grades 12 and 13 who are interested in becoming teachers.

The president, Mrs. Faulkner, and Mrs. Horsbeck gave an interesting account of the annual meeting in Toronto. They reported that Easter holidays will not be given a fixed date and that pension plans are still under revision.

Guest speakers, Miss M. Huff and Mrs. M. Rabbie showed work they had done at the Art courses in Toronto this past summer. The teachers obtained many useful suggestions for the coming year.

The next meeting, November 12th, will be at Salem with Mrs. C. Judd for their assistance in the meeting. Refreshments were served.

U.C.W. Meeting

FRANKFORD U.C.W.

FRANKFORD — Unit 1 of Frankford United Church Women held their meeting on October 10th at the home of Mrs. Walter Morrow.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Sophie Lewis, Mrs. Frank Babel was in charge of the meeting. The secretarial report by Mrs. Harold Abbott and roll call showed 21 present. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Arnold Stickle.

Details of the coming banquet for October 23rd were discussed and approved.

Mrs. J. Beach and Mrs. H. Stickle were appointed to act on the nominating committee.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Walter Morrow, Mrs. Herb Casey and Mrs. Preston Chase. Mrs. W. Morrow gave a reading, Mrs. J. Beach led in prayer, two Scripture readings were given by Mrs. P. Chase and commented on by Mrs. W. Morrow. Mrs. W. Morrow sang a solo, a reading was given by Mrs. George Montgomery and a vocal solo by Mrs. C. Judd. Rev. Lee Bell conducted a Bible study. Mrs. W. Morrow thanked the members and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson for their assistance in the meeting. Refreshments were served.

National President Outlines I.O.D.E. Work at Annual Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — Mrs. D. W. McGibbon, National president of the IODE, was guest speaker at the sixth annual district dinner in St. John's United Church on Wednesday evening, when Bennexyde Chapter was host to nearly 200 members of Picton, Belleville, Stirling, Mermorex, Norwood, Peterborough and Lakefield chapters.

Among the guests were two provincial councillors, Mrs. J. O. Benor, Campbellford, and Mrs. M. E. Clarke of Fyterborough.

They were shown to their places at the head table with sixteen Regents and Miss K. B. Ferris, Hon. Regent of Bennexyde.

The table was tastefully decorated with russet mums and candles and evening ceremonies were begun with the procession of standard bearers, led by Mrs. Murray Locke of Bemersyde.

During dinner, Mrs. George Vice, a regent of Bemersyde, welcomed the guests, head table guests were introduced and provincial councillors each spoke briefly thanking the host chapter.

A singsong was enjoyed, followed by a double trio made up of Bemersyde members: Mrs. D. E. Bennet, Mrs. A. Whitfield, Miss Carole MacArthur, Mrs. R. B. Bennett, Mrs. J. O. Benor and Mrs. W. J. Craighead, accompanied by Mrs. N. B. Bradford.

Mrs. W. A. Kingston, first vice-regent of Bemersyde, introduced Mrs. McGibbon, mentioning her long years of friendship and the many years of service the guest had given to the IODE.

Mrs. McGibbon introduced her subject "What does National Mean To You?" by stressing the communication between National and Primary chapters, by means of reports and suggestions sent in through the year. She went on to explain the activities of some departments on the national level. The ... kees at home and abroad Department sends 60 per cent of its help to families in Canada and the remaining 20 per cent overseas. This 20 per cent is distributed among the British "Save the Children" Fund; S.S.A.F.A. in Britain, the Women's Canadian Club for Canadian ... ans living in Britain on British pensions, and the Koreans, who receive thousands of knitted articles each year.

Mrs. McGibbon and her husband were in England last year and visited London House and William-Goodenough House at the University of London. Both residences are for post-graduate students, some of whom received scholarships through the I.O.D.E. Second War Memorial fund. They also visited the Victoria League in Edinborough and upon their return suggested that the Canada room in the League be re-decorated, which was promptly done through National Headquarters. Further educational news were the reports on two medical students in India and one in Nigeria, also a Nigerian student who is enrolled at Massey College and a Jamaican girl in her second year at T...cher's College. These students have all received assistance from the I.O.D.E.

Mrs. J. O. Benor thanked the speaker for her address and the meeting was brought to a close with the retirement of the Standards.

Favors were placed on the tables for each guest and a four-pound bar of chocolate with a personalized wrapper commemorating her visit was presented to Mrs. McGibbon by Bemersyde Secretary, Mrs. G. Vandewater.

Mrs. W. A. Kingston entertained the executive at a tea on Wednesday afternoon in honor of their guest and the Regent Mrs. George Vice entertained the dinner committee and Mrs. McGibbon at a luncheon on Thursday.

Retired Man With Good Job Claims You Can Get One Too

By THOMAS COLLINS

"If a job is what you want, then any 65-year-old man — if he's not a dope — can get one in retirement.

So says a retired man, Hamilton Beese, who got one.

"But the retired man can't get a job quite the way he thinks he can. In fact he must discard a lot of notions he has been gathering all his life and set out on a fresh course."

Mr. Beese was retired from a corporation job at 65, and he went out with the intention of getting another job — partly because he needed something to do to escape the boredom at home, and partly because he could use more money.

"For 14 months I went down blind alleys," he says. "I made mistakes in judgment. I bloodied my nose. I embarrassed myself. Then I learned . . ."

He learned the four mistakes which he says retired men make most commonly:

1. That you're a bargain, and that you'll work for less pay, or even for free, because your pension is backing you up. "Business managers don't like the smell of that," says Mr. Beese. "They want employees who are hired straight-away at so much per, who can be told when to work, how to work, and what to do. A bargain employee will expect privileges, and bosses know they can't run a railroad that way."

ANNOYS EMPLOYER

2. That you're proud of who you are and what you've done. "An employer resents this," Mr. Beese insists. "He wants to pin down what skills you've got, and make sure you haven't been in jail lately. But the fact that you were Big Shot-N-Plus-One in Podunk annoys him in about the same way as would a native of New Guinea who bragged to him about how many coconuts he picked last Tuesday."

3. That you claim proven talents and experience for a high-level job. Beese says there are cases where a sales manager or other executive can sell his background. But he found it unlikely. "The truth of the matter is," he says, "that most businesses are satisfied with the people they've got — even if they're Zombies — and with the way they do things. They feel comfortable with their situation. You, being a genius, may make them uncomfortable.

4. That you go to a rose garden and try to find eggs. "Don't try to tie up with a university — because of your brilliant background — when you've got only a high school diploma. Everybody there has a Ph.D. Don't go to a manufacturer of glass bottles if you've been in the tin can business. In brief don't venture into anything where who you are and what you have been don't matter. . ."

Here, says Mr. Beese, are the areas when retirement jobs can be had:

1. Selling. These jobs pay well and are numerous, all the way from door-to-door to real estate and autos, and to-travelling for factories. The best of the selling jobs is the "manufacturer's representative", who lives at home, works when he pleases, and has a territory of maybe two states where he sells machinery or, usually some specialized heavy product. Selling is hard work, and the pay is usually by commission — the more you sell the more you make. The field is wide open. Any man or woman who can really sell is in demand almost everywhere.

BUY INTO BUSINESS

2. Ownership in a company. The retired man with a few thousand dollars can buy into any number of small-businesses and thereby secure a job in the place. Things like gift shops, garages, retail stores, and small mills offer such opportunities. The smaller the company the better, provided it has any jobs in it the owner wants.

3. Politics. The retired man can pick the right horse in a political race, work diligently for him, then virtually demand a job after the election.

4. Surveys. The country is now off on a survey binge, and canvassers are moving across the land getting opinions on everything from the sex habits of kittens to the toothpaste people use. Canvassers get salaries. Factories making consumer products, advertising agencies, political parties, and professional survey organizations are a good bet for a job.

5. The menial stuff. The jobs most frequently obtained by the retired men are the small ones most people don't want — watchman, elevator operator, filling station attendant, receptionist, mail sorter, etc. The pay is small, and most retired men get their jollies from the variety they consider such jobs. But jobs they are, and there are a good many of them around.

How has Mr. Hamilton Beese himself done? Not bad. He is a "manufacturer's representative" selling franchises for a consumer dispensing machine. Each sale means about $200 in commissions to him, and he tries to average one a month. He serves a territory of six counties — when he feels like it.

WRITES BOOK

CALGARY (CP) — Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP for Calgary North, has written a book outlining conditions surrounding his resignation last spring as federal defence minister. Money, he has ordered that the volume, written during Parliament's recess, not be published during his lifetime.

room in her private apartments.

It was a dramatic windup for Home. Born to a land - owning aristocratic family in Scotland, holder of an ancient earldom, he has always seemed a little above the political fray, reluctant to dirty his upper - class hands in parliamentary infighting.

His brother, William Douglas-Home, wrote the hit play The Reluctant Debutante and Home had seemed to be "the reluctant premier."

HAS IRON WILL

But personality that's almost delicate appearance conceals an iron will. His brother says he is tough and determined. He has proved himself one of the most able orators in the House of Lords, always well briefed, invariably courteous, but seldom giving way on points of principle.

Home, slim and soft-spoken, comes from one of the oldest family's in Scotland.

He is expected to renounce his peerage in order to move from the House of Lords into the frontline of battle in the House of Commons.

Home has been leader of the House of Lords and served under Sir Winston Churchill, wartime prime minister of Britain.

In 1937-40, Home was Neville Chamberlain's private secretary and flew with him to Germany for the fateful Munich conference.

Home signed the partial nuclear test-ban treaty in Moscow with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

He has shown deep concern with the future of the United Nations.

TALKS LENGTHY

Home held eight hours of almost non - stop talks Friday night with cabinet members and colleagues in an effort to break a deadlock.

During the talks at Downing Street, Home met no less than three times with Butler, Hailsham and Maudling.

Apparently undismayed by the major difficulties facing him, Home was smiling as he arrived at the prime minister's official residence this morning to continue discussions.

His one comment to reporters was that he hoped "everyone is going to forgot politics except me."

Within an hour Butler and Maudling arrived separately at Downing Street. Both were cheerful.

DEAR HENRY — Our grandfather lives with us. He is a real bore and never does anything. All day he plays cards and watches TV. He must be about 100 years old.

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE — A person is like a car. At first it is new and goes real fast. But after twenty years a few bumpers fall off and the engine gets rusty. Some years later after having gone so far the car slows down to a walk.

Understand your grandfather. Don't expect too much and perhaps you can give him some help.

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — Our neighbors have two dogs. Whenever we walk past their house these two pesky poodles come out galloping. Last week they followed me to a football game and bugged it all up.

JUNIOR

P.S.: I love dogs.

DEAR JUNIOR — Since you love dogs, get a German shepherd. I think the pests will keep their distance.

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — My son is a little over 13. Lately he tried four different types of hair dressing and is insisting on wearing a new pair of pants to school every week. Do you think he is in love?

commending any changes. He was interrupted after a few minutes as the Commons switched to the prescheduled private members' hour.

At the evening sitting, a newly - introduced extension of Friday hours, the Commons began detailed study of the $191,507,605 spending program of the public works department for the current fiscal year.

As MPs traded accusations of patronage and "pork - barrel" contracts, Commons attendance hovered between 41 and 32. The quorum in the 265 - member chamber is 20.

Works Minister Deschatelets said his department will boost spending significantly in the 1964-65 fiscal year to combat unemployment. He also disclosed that the government plans to extend the Trans-Canada Highway cost - sharing agreement with the provinces to Dec. 31, 1967, from the end of this year.

Mr. Deschatelets said his department henceforth will give top priority to projects located in areas with above-average unemployment.

Shared Money Says Witness In Fraud Case

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)—A former construction company bookkeeper testified Friday he shared money with the owner of the company and the district municipal engineer for highway work most actually done by the company but charged to the Ontario highway department.

Alfred Edward Harris, 69 former bookkeeper for the O'Hare Construction Company here at Kirkland Lake, was testifying at the trial of Brigdit O'Hare and Tracy C. Swartman, district municipal engineer. They are charged on four counts of conspiracy to defraud the provincial government.

Harris, convicted last year of fraud and sentenced to 12 months in jail, said Jack O'Hare, owner of the company, died in 1955 and he met his widow Bridget, later that year. He also met Swartman then.

He found out then, he testified, that the engineer was getting 40 per cent of money paid to the construction company for work not actually performed. Swartman later asked for and was given 50 per cent of this money.

Harris told the court that at a 1957 meeting in Mrs. O'Hare's house it was decided that he, Mrs. O'Hare and Swartman agreed to take a third each in sharing the money and this later was changed to give Mrs. O'Hare 45 per cent and the other two 27½ per cent each.

DID COTTAGE WORK

Harold Stewart, head of a construction firm, told the court he had done work at Swartman's summer cottage and received a $640 O'Hare cheque in payment.

Highways Department Foreman Gerald Scratch testified that he signed a number of time sheets for Swartman without questioning what work they were for. It "didn't seem right" to check them because the engineer was a department employee, the foreman said.

A shortage of $125,000 in the books of the local department of highways office led to the charge.

The trial is continuing.

Corn Exchange Head Answers Criticism by M.P.

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy de Cotret, president of the Montreal Corn Exchange, said Friday that remarks by a member of Parliament in the House of Commons "showed a complete lack of knowledge of the grain trade and its operations."

Vincent Drouin (L — Argenteuil - deux Montagnes) called Tuesday for the creation of a Crown corporation that would buy feed grain from the wheat board, ship it to eastern elevators at its own expense and sell to farmers at moderate profits.

"Our farmers are at the mercy of a bunch of speculators who are making millions," Mr. Drouin said. "They hold up shipments to drive prices up. We must nationalize them. Why should we tolerate them when we can replace them?"

Mr. de Cotret said in a prepared statement the price of grain, like other commodities, is governed by "the laws of supply and demand" in the world markets.

OPEN PLANT

Olsonite Co. Ltd. of Windsor Friday officially opened its plant which has recently undergone a $250,000 expansion. The plant owned by Oscar L. Olson of Detroit, is the largest Canadian manufacturer of automobile steering wheels and toilet seats.

Shipping

Minister Pearson said he aims to arrange a private trusteeship over the maritime unions within a day or two. Mr. MacEachen said, meanwhile, that until the SIU men started leaving their ships the outlook had been good for a settlement of the transmountain shipping question by private agreement. But it was no help in getting that arranges a private settlement to be faced with "this illegal action."

Halifax—About 300 SIU members from the Atlantic area were expected to take part in the walkout. Another SIU-manned ships were in Halifax. The men aboard one walked off and the other tied up. Another SIU-manned vessel was expected to arrive Sunday from Montreal. All five are normally engaged in carrying coal to Montreal from Sydney. The men were expected to head for Ottawa.

Sept-Iles, Que. — Officials of the United Steelworkers of America said the SIU-manned ships arriving to load ore would receive no sympathy. A spokesman said the SIU action is "not a strike, but just the insanity of the leader of a boodhum empire." The freighter Canadoc meanwhile was reported en route to Baie Comeau, 150 miles upstream.

Quebec City—Some 125 SIU members walked off five ships and two tugs and a union official said more men will leave their ships as they tie up. He estimated the total number of men walking off in eastern Quebec could reach 500. There were 17 deep-sea vessels in port but a port official said they will not be severely affected because they are not manned by SIU crews. Some difficulty could exist if they could not count on tug assistance for arrivals and departures.

Montreal — Five ships were tied up and six more were expected to be laid idle today. Three lakes ships were reported en route and the union said the men would join the walkout. Some 700 SIU members made plans to go to Ottawa. No difficulty along the St. Lawrence Seaway was reported. The Montreal Labor Council (CPC) adopted a resolution supporting trusteeship.

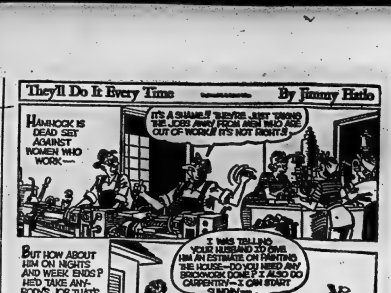
Toronto — More than 100 members of the SIU walked off their ships at the Toronto waterfront. They were aboard the Burlington and Outarde, salt-carrying ships, the tanker Cedarbranch and the 3,000-ton self-unloading coal carrier Orelax. Two or three men were left ers. Unloading of the Outarde ers. Unloading of the Outard was half complete and work had not started on the Burlington's cargo.

Hamilton — 38 members waited aboard two tankers, the Bay Transport and Conn Transport, while they were being unloaded before leaving the ships. Bill Colberg, SIU—Traffic moved smoothly through the Welland Canal but officials of the union declined to say what the men would do when the ships reached ports.

Port Arthur, Ont.—Ten vessels were affected. The SIU said 200 men would leave for Ottawa today. Port agent John Roy said no ship manned by the SIU would leave port after noon, Friday.

Regina—Premier Woodrow S. Lloyd and L. A. Boileau, vice-president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, said the SIU move is a challenge to Parliament's authority and condemned the action.

Calgary—Nelson Malm, vice-president of the Alberta Wheat Pool, said he deplores the SIU action. "It is almost inconceivable that such a small group in terms of the Canadian work force would take action which would affect the welfare of the entire nation," he said.



Vancouver — The union said 300 members left for Ottawa but it was up to each man to decide whether he would join the protest.

Duluth, Minn.—An attempt by 17 members of the SIU to leave the freighter Joseph M. Patterson was blocked by United States immigration officials. Authorities said they took the action because it was not determined whether the men had funds to get out of the U.S. An SIU spokesman criticized the U.S. immigration move may prevent the men from participating in the march.

A work stoppage of any length, meanwhile, might prove a big blow to Montreal's plans for the 1967 world's fair. Some 800 SIU members work aboard tugs and dredging equipment building islands for the fair site. The site is to be completed by next June.

PRODUCTION DROPS

Production of margarine, shortening, refined coconut and salad and cooking oils declined in August, while larger amounts of lard and edible and inedible tallow were produced. The figures, with totals for August, 1962 in brackets, included: margarine 12,- 909,000 pounds (13,628,000); shortening 14,480,000 (14,601,- 000).

Prices Decline On Canadian Bond Markets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prices declined slightly in moderate trading on Canadian bond markets this week.

Day-to-day money continued easy, trading at between 2½ per cent and 2¾ per cent during the week.

The 91-day treasury bills moved to a new low yield of 3.54 per cent in this week's tender compared with 3.56 per cent last week.

In the municipal market the City of Montreal came to the markets with a $35,000,000 issue. Early indications were that the issue would sell quickly.

The corporate market was easier, as was the provincial market. The Province of Prince Edward Island entered the market with a $20,000,000 issue consisting of 20-year 5¼-per-cent debentures offered at $97 to yield 5.50 per cent.

GREEN SCUM

Duckweed is the common name for the plant that forms a green coating on stagnant ponds and ditches.

AWARD BOND ISSUE

The city of Montreal awarded a $35,000,000 bond issue Friday to a syndicate on behalf of a group of investment dealers. Proceeds of the issue will be used for city works, other improvements and the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

LICENCE FORMS READY

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new personalized application forms for drivers' licences—valid for three years and renewed on the holder's birthday—are being prepared for mailing.

High Mountains Blocked SOS

MONTREAL (CP) — The freighter Roonagh Head's wireless operator was unable to get an S O S message to Quebec City airport on the night of last July 20 when the British freighter collided with the ore carrier Titisenia, an inquiry into the disaster was told Friday.

One and a half hours later his calls were picked up in Boston, relayed to the RCAF Station at Trenton, Ont., and from there an S O S message was phoned to Quebec City.

Stanislas Dery, a lawyer representing the Department of Transport told the hearing that, because of high mountains along the St. Lawrence River's north shore, it is nearly impossible to get a wireless message through on the stretch between Tadoussac and Petite Riviere de St. Francois.

Something may have to be done, Mr. Dery said, to prevent impossible that Quebec City 45 miles away, should be notified about a disaster via Boston and Trenton."

Quinte Secondary School Holds Graduation Exercises

Another echelon of the rocket age now . . . out into the spaces of life last night.

They went with the admonition that all they saw on TV, read in newspapers and heard in plays, was not a true picture of life as it is lived.

The message came from J. C. McLeod, Eastern Ontario division secondary school inspector.

Mr. McLeod was guest speaker as the annual commencement exercises of Quinte Secondary School, an event that saw over 370 certificates and diplomas awarded, besides a lengthy list of bursaries, scholarships, prizes and trophies.

Mr. McLeod's address held sobering words for them, however.

He stressed the theme of idealism in life as a certain benefit for all those graduating now, or in the future. Mr. McLeod said it was the kind words to the theme of modern communication. It is difficult to find a modern play that doesn't depict "the unhealthy and seamy side of life," he contended. TV was just as bad while newspapers were equally so.

"Our newspapers relish in accounts of people in difficulty," he charged.

Out of all his, he intimated, it is difficult to find a message of moral uplift.

Yet from all of this, he intimated, it would be wrong to draw final conclusions on humanity.

As he put it: "There are, and have been, many more good people."

"Good people are in abundance."

He added: "The extremes to which they can rise in their emotions are beyond description."

The key to moral courage . . . as the maintenance of youthful ideals.

"I believe therefore, it is innate . . . rant to have ideals," he said. "They are to be developed and redefined as life progresses."

Following are the presentations and awards:

Explosive Labor Situation On Great Lakes Teeters Between Two Possibilities

OTTAWA (CP)—The explosive Great Lakes labor situation teetered today between two possibilities: Stern federal action or speedy assurance of a satisfactory private trusteeship arrangement for five marine unions.

Negotiations that resumed last Saturday "give hope—I can certainly say that far—of an early and successful conclusion" for the private arrangement, Prime Minister Pearson told the House of Commons Friday.

But the government will not delay long with its own trusteeship plan, he added.

Shortly after parliamentary the trustee ship legislation passed the final parliamentary stage—royal assent — and now can be invoked by a pen stroke whenever the government decides.

The alternative to public trusteeship is being sought in negotiations involving the Canadian and U.S. governments, and the Canadian Labor Congress and its American counterpart, the AFL-CIO.

The negotiations are being conducted by telephone between Labor Minister MacEachen and U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, who, in turn, are consulting their respective central labor bodies.

JODOIN LEAVES

CLC President Claude Jodoin conferred with Mr. Pearson and Mr. MacEachen Friday, then left for a weekend union conference at Lac Beauport, Que.

Mr. Pearson said the Ottawa-Washington negotiations are aimed at providing absolute guarantees that Canadians will have final say in any private board of trustees set up to let organized labor handle its own problem with the SIU.

This political-Canadian control of a Canadian matter—was criticized by Mr. Wirtz and AFL-CIO President George Meany in Washington last week.

Mr. Meany has backed the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) in its fight against government trusteeship —a fight that includes a threatened mass march of sailors on Ottawa Monday. The SIU is an outcast among Canadian unions, expelled from the CLC for raiding another union.

Outside the Commons chamber, Labor Minister MacEachen brushed as "clearly illegal" the plans of the Seafarers' Union—chief target of the federal or private trusteeship moves—that members from ships this week-end for the Monday march of protest on Ottawa.

Action against this step is under consideration, the minister said, but he did not indicate when or how government retaliation might be taken.

It remained unclear just how many ships would be tied up by the SIU-sponsored conduct in the Great Lakes labor turbulence attracted the main sting in the federal shipping inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver. His report laid the basis for the federal trustee legislation, approved by all political parties.

The SIU is the only one of the five unions affected to protest the federal trusteeship. There was some speculation here about how many SIU members might march on Ottawa, based on the Norris report findings that the SIU has 15,000 members and only 7,000 employed.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. MacEachen were questioned extensively in the Commons.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked whether the U.S. AFL-CIO insisting that on this (private) trusteeship board there shall be U.S. labor representation."

AT U.S. DIRECTION?

Did the government intend to use its legislation "as a means of pressure" and was the "determination of the personnel on this (private) trusteeship board to be made at the direction of the U.S.?" he asked.

"Is the government of the opinion that a trustee board that will have U.S. representatives on it for the defence unions can be considered as this?"

Liberal Stuart Starr, former Conservative labor minister, asked Mr. MacEachen whether he or U.S. Labor Secretary Wirtz initiated the resumed negotiations and Mr. MacEachen said the most favorable circumstances between the two countries has been continuous.

Mr. Pearson said the government was well aware of "the danger that might be caused by the time putting effect of the government trusteeship legislation. . . ."

The SIU "call to strike, if that is the right expression," seemed to have been answered in a document called Instruction Bulletin No. 1.

This action was begun before the federal trusteeship legislation became law "and is especially directed against this particular time when negotiations for a private settlement—a solution that would be satisfactory to the Canadian government and the Canadian Labor Congress—have been resumed."

The SIU action was deplorable and might indeed harden the government's stand, if it was intended as a pressure movement.

Mr. Pearson said he hopes for a successful conclusion to the Ottawa-Washington negotiations within a day or two, hence the delay in invoking the federal plan.

He told Mr. Douglas that "every possible step that can be taken is being taken" to prevent any impediment by the SIU to the shipment of wheat exports, a record movement to Soviet Russia and other countries already has been delayed by a longshoremen's strike at four St. Lawrence Ports.

Supreme Court Makes Ruling on Lord's Day Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Friday that there is nothing in the Lord's Day Act that abrogates a section of the Canadian Bill of Rights guaranteeing Canadians religious freedom.

The court's decision was contained in a 4 to 1 judgment rejecting an appeal by two Hamilton, Ont., bowling alley operators against their conviction for operating a bowling alley on Sunday contrary to the act.

Walter Robertson, 34, and Fred Rousseaud, 27, former operators of the Hamilton Centre Bowl, were fined $25 and costs in February, 1962, by Hamilton Magistrate W. R. Morrison. They lost an appeal against their convictions in the Ontario Appeal Court.

Toronto lawyer John R. Robinette, counsel for the two men, argued before the court in February that the convictions were invalid on grounds that the Lord's Day Act violates religious freedoms guaranteed in the Bill of Rights.

DEFENCE GIVES VIEW

Mr. Robinette argued that the act imposes a Christian religious observance on all Canadians whether or not they are Christians, contrary to the Bill of Rights. It imposed Sunday observances "as religious value upon the whole Canadian community, including those whose religious values and precepts permit them to engage in activities thus prohibited. . . ."

The court's majority judgment rejected Mr. Robinette's argument.

However, Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright in a dissenting judgment said the act "is clear and unambiguous and does infringe the freedom of religion contemplated by the Canadian Bill of Rights." He would have quashed the conviction.

Three Charged

TORONTO (CP)—Three men appeared in court Friday charged with offering an indignity to a human body following an arrest by RCMP narcotics squad officers who spotted two men carrying a body from a motel they had under surveillance.

Here for a party seminar, Mr. Hamilton predicted the 230,000,000-bushel Russia sale would be repeated next year and in 1965.

Earlier government suggestions that farmers reduce wheat acreage were "immature and unrealistic."

WARNS OF TROUBLE

He also warned of an "uproar" coming in Eastern Canada with a "marked political reaction" because prices of grain would soar. An eastern feed grain board should be set up, he said.

Some feed grain sellers, he predicted, will hike the price to eastern farmers and blame it on the wheat board because it was so busy getting wheat to Russia.

"It'll be a bad time for the eastern feed grain man. He buys 32,000,000 bushels now and will be buying 150,000,000 bushels by 1975. Who protects him? We need the same type of board to protect him that we have for the western farmer."

WANTS WITHDRAWAL

NEW YORK (AP)—Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower said Friday the time has come to start withdrawing some U.S. troops from Europe. In a copyrighted article in the Saturday Evening Post, Eisenhower said that nuclear eight years in the White House he believed U.S. strength in Europe should be reduced as soon as European economies were restored.

Calls 2 Cabinet Ministers 'Babes in Swaddling Clothes'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Alvin Hamilton said Friday two federal cabinet ministers were "babes in swaddling clothes" for saying the Russian wheat sale will give each western farmer an additional $2,000 income.

The Progressive Conservative farm critic told a press conference that both Trade Minister Sharp and Agriculture Minister Harry Hays had made the claims of new income.

Mr. Hamilton, former agriculture minister, said 80 per cent of the wheat was grown by 25 per cent of the farmers. He said 60,000 farmers probably would not earn any more money from the $500,000,000 sale announced last month.

Here for a party seminar, Mr. Hamilton predicted the 230,000,000-bushel Russia sale would be repeated next year and in 1965.

Earlier government suggestions that farmers reduce wheat acreage were "immature and unrealistic."

WARNS OF TROUBLE

Has Plan to End Organized Crime in Canada

HAMILTON (CP)—One of the eight Canadians named this week at a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing as a ringleader in the narcotics racket has a plan to end organized crime in Canada.

Dan Gasbarrini, 43, of Hamilton urges the laws be changed to legalize provision of drugs to addicts under medical supervision, off-track betting and sale of liquor at all hours.

"Do that and 80 per cent of your organized crime would be finished within a month," he said. "Look at Britain where stone are offences. They don't have any problem and neither should we. Remember there are only 3,000 drug addicts in Canada."

Mr. Gasbarrini, who once served a seven-year sentence for conspiracy to traffic in narcotics, denies allegations by Buffalo police testifying in Washington that he is a member of the Canadian chapter of an international drug ring.

"Nothing but haphazard allegations by police, with politics behind it all," he told the Hamilton Spectator in an interview.

"I haven't been interviewed by police since I got out of jail in 1955. Unfortunately I've got a conviction behind me and no matter what I do I don't suppose I'll ever be able to live it down."

Mr. Gasbarrini now is a successful businessman, president of two construction companies, vice-president of another and secretary-treasurer of a fourth.

P. M. Answers NDP Leader On Pensions

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Friday in the Commons it would be "premature" to conclude the government does not plan to go ahead with its Canada Pension Plan legislation at this session of Parliament.

His comment came after Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) threw his attention to reports that Premier Robarts of Ontario had said Ontario will proceed with its own plan if the federal plan was delayed or otherwise changed.

Mr. Knowles also asked Mr. Pearson about reports that the federal government is discussing meshing the two contributory plans.

Mr. Pearson said he already indicated the government intended to proceed with the federal plan "as expeditiously as possible."

Mr. Knowles asked whether Mr. Pearson meant by that this was being interpreted as meaning the government will go ahead at all expeditiously.

Mr. Pearson retorted heatedly that he isn't responsible for other people's interpretations.

New Democratic Leader Douglas asked whether Mr. Pearson was aware that this was the interpretation of Mr. Robarts.

Mr. Pearson said he hadn't seen reports of Mr. Robarts' statements. He would look into them.

However, any such interpretation "would certainly be premature."

Ballet Scores Success in Moscow Show

MOSCOW (Reuters) — An action-packed modern ballet by Montreal choreographer Brian MacDonald scored a magnificent success at its premiere by the Robert Joffrey Ballet Company of New York in Leningrad Friday night.

The ballet, called Capers, opened the program in the packed Palace of Culture. It was recorded a non-stop eight-minute ovation.

UN Delegates Pessimistic Over Chances of Averting Disaster in South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A mood of deep pessimism over the future of the southern part of Africa has spread through moderate-minded delegates at the United Nations.

They see no clear and practicable way of avoiding ultimate disaster in that part of the world. They hesitate to say how soon it will happen but they fear it can only be a matter of time.

And they are frustrated by a feeling that the Western powers, which they think could still act effectively, are lost do so because of the apathy of their people and the reluctance of business and governments to jeopardize good markets and favorable trade balances.

The areas in danger include almost all territories still under white control — South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, and the big Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique.

ARE UNDER THREAT

All of them have been living under the threat of violence for years. The new element this year is the increased unity of the African powers coupled with their growing determination to use force if other means are not effective.

The Portuguese territories are expected to be the first target. Already the Organization of African Unity is funnelling aid, more or less openly, to the Angolan rebels through the Portuguese government. A rebel government-in-exile has been set up in the Congo.

Portugal's position is seen as weaker than that of Southern Rhodesia or South Africa. This is partly because of the distance separating the vast territories from the centres of strength in Portugal, and partly because of the different pattern of white settlement.

Although controlled by Portugal for centuries, Angola because of its climate has traditionally been a place where whites stayed only temporarily before returning home.

In Southern Rhodesia and South Africa the white community is permanent, established, entrenched. The "European" feels he is somewhere else for them to go.

What disturbs moderates at the UN is that there seems to be no room left for manoeuvre and awarded the Croix de Guerre from France and he was appointed an Officer of the Legion of Merit of the United States.

Between the two World Wars, General Graham practiced his profession of law, was active in political affairs and maintained a keen interest in military matters, being an active member of the Canadian Militia. As a leader in the profession of law, he was created a King's Counsel in 1933. He served as Mayor of the Town of Trenton, Ont., and for some years was a member of the town council.

When Canada entered the Second World War in September 1939, General Graham went on active service. For the next six years he served continuously in the United Kingdom, Sicily, Italy and Northwest Germany. After the war, he continued in the Army and from 1953 to 1958, was the Chief of the Canadian General Staff.

Following retirement from the Army in 1958, he undertook some special duties for the Canadian Government, including a study of the country's Civil Defence organization and the organization of the extensive tour of Canada by the Queen in 1959.

Following completion of these assignments, he served for a year as president of the Great Lakes Waterways Development Association. He resumed for a short time to the profession of law and was associated with the well-known Toronto firm of McCarthy and McCarthy until his appointment as president of the Toronto Stock Exchange at the beginning of 1961.

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—A foreign oil company, sensitive to Libya's Islamic opposition to alcohol, has notified its employees: "In the future there will be no more shipping of cases of whisky that were obviously cases of whisky company aircraft."

Gen. H. Graham Will Address Canadian Club

Lieutenant-General Howard D. Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange will be guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Belleville and District Canadian Club to be held in Club Caravan Monday evening at 7 p.m.

General Graham is widely known throughout Canada for his achievements in military life, in the legal profession and now in the financial community, where he serves as the president of Canada's largest Stock Exchange.

HOWARD D. GRAHAM

His military service began as a private soldier serving in France during the First World War and culminated with the rank of Lieutenant-General and Chief of the General Staff in 1958. U.S. Presidential Election Always Casts Big Shadow

By BARRIE MARTLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Presidential elections in the United States probably cast a longer shadow than elections for a similar post anywhere in the democratic world.

The U.S. election is still more than a year away but already there are vigorous stirrings from possible Republican candidates and the press.

One of the reasons for this early activity is the complicated and lengthy job of picking a candidate.

The Democratic Party's choice for November, 1964, is almost assuredly President Kennedy; the choice of the Republicans is not so definite and will not be until the nominating convention next summer.

The Republicans, as are the Democrats when they don't have a man in the White House, are leaderless. The structure of U.S. political parties makes this so. Lacking White House leadership, U.S. parties out of power are historically formless, fragmented and undisciplined, with their power scattered among each of the 50 states.

Only when the states' delegates meet on the nominating convention floor and focus their scattered organizations — and their noisy enthusiasm—on the job of picking a presidential candidate do they resemble a national party in the Canadian sense.

With this structure a prospective candidate must contend. And he must contend early.

It has been said that President Kennedy spent four years before his election building an organization that would successfully unite the Democratic party long enough to take him to the White House.

Nelson Rockefeller for the Republican nomination at the moment is Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Although he says he has not yet decided whether to run for the nomination, he is thundering around the $100-a-plate political dinner circuit, speaking at rallies and just about any other group that is willing to listen.

New York's Governor Rockefeller, another "non-candidate," also has stepped up his national political activity. He got a later start and, according to popular opinion polls, has less chance of gaining the nomination than Goldwater. But he, too, has been combing the political wood and this weekend will invade New Hampshire, a testing ground with its first-in-the-nation presidential primary—an election to decide which candidate the state party will support at the convention.

Union Trying To Re-open N. Y. Mirror

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board said Friday the New York Newspaper Printing Pressmen Union No. 2 is attempting to force a reopening of the New York Mirror.

Such a reopening would be "extraordinary," said NLRB lawyer Samuel K. Hayward. He added that it could come within possible relief measures for the union if the board found that the paper had violated the law by failing to negotiate with the unions involved before taking a step that would deprive union members of work.

The Printing Pressmen's Union filed a complaint Wednesday with the regional office of the NLRB here, charging unfair labor practices against The Mirror, the Hearst Corp. and the Publishers Association of New York City.

The Tabloid Mirror went out of business with Wednesday's edition. The Hearst Corp. sold the name, goodwill and certain assets of the Mirror to The Daily News, its tabloid rival.

John A. Harold, counsel to the pressmen's union, said that other cases in the courts had decided that employers must negotiate with unions before shutting down.

CONVOCATION IS LAST

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The last milestone in the life of Assumption University of Windsor was reached last night when the university—which merged Wednesday with the new, non-denominational University of Windsor—held its 20th and final official convocation.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARYER, Sports Editor

It was back in 1945 that a Detroit Red Wings scout spotted a tall, gangling kid playing hockey with the Galt Red Wings of the junior OHA. He promptly informed Jack (Jolly Jawn) Adams, bossman of the Wings.

Adams, who can spot hockey potential like a cherico does a millionaire, tabbed the youngster on the spot. "That kid just eeeed hockey," Jack told me last year. "I knew I had a ten-strike."

GORDIE HOWE

The jeemker was Gordie Howe from Floral, Sask., who is destined to become the greatest hockey player of all time. I know. Jack Adams told me so.

Howe was just 17 when he jumped from the Galt juniors to sign a pro contract with the Red Wings. After the training program at the Detroit Olympia he was assigned to the Omaha club of the old USHL. With him were Tommy Ivan, now Chicago general manager, and Jimmy Skinner, a chief scout.

With Omaha, Howe scored 22 goals and 26 assists in 51 games and that was his yearning with the amateurs. Since then he has been as much a part of the Red Wings as the Penobscot Building and the Brass Rail are parts of the Motor City.

Now at 35 Howe is climaxing one of the most remarkable chapters in a pro-hockey career that was launched that day back in 1945.

Today he stands just one goal short of tying Maurice Richard's remarkable lifetime record of 544 goals during his eighteen seasons.

He may or may not equal or best that record tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens where the Wings play the Leafs the first game of weekend "back-to-back" series.

A skate-incised ankle may prevent him from playing in these games. At this writing his appearance was indefinite.

Richard reached his mark in 978 league games but he played throughout the war years when the calibre of play was said to be not as high as in Wayne's career, which started in the 1946-47 season.

Howe is far ahead of the Rocket in points. Richard's career mark reads 544 goals and 421 assists for 965 points.

The playoff totals, however, show any story with Richard leading the edge usually because of his superior scoring. His playoffs record reads 82 goals and 44 assists for 126 points in 133 playoff games.

Howe says: "I've always maintained that to be successful in any sports you have to work at it. Far beyond what some players regard as practice torture. For years I've stayed on a rink long after the boys retired, working on my shooting. I think it has paid off.

"For a long time I had a habit of stickhandling, trying to beat checks and outfoxing a goalie, when I might have been shooting for the whites of his eyes," says Howe.

"One thing I have learned," he says, "is that I've become a more consistent scorer since I started shooting more. But there's not much legge shooting if you can't break a pound of butter with it also."

Howe will be 36 come March 31st next year. But he doesn't feel his age. "Some people seem to think 35 is old and I'm getting to be an old man," he says. "But I don't feel it. Sure I get tired. But I've tired many times before. Even in my early days in the NHL. But I know enough to head for the bench when I run out of steam."

Told that his old idol, the famous Bill Cook of the Rangers, had scored 33 goals when he was 35, 28 when he was 36 and 21 when he was 38, Howe said, "That's what I like to hear. I'd like to hang in there and score 30 goals when I'm 38."

Wanna bet that he won't?

The greatest player of them all has spoken.

TV Cuts Habs-Leafs Crowd In Four

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League is getting wider exposure than ever on Canadian television this season and it's something that warrants analysis.

Uppermost in many minds is whether the effects will be as far-reaching as those that television had on baseball in the United States.

As in the past, the Crown-operated CBC is carrying the Saturday night home games of Toronto and Montreal, preferring them on alternate weeks for network consumption.

Making allowances for the loyalties in Ontario and Quebec, the CBC gives Ontario viewers the Maple Leafs every Saturday night and in the same way those in Quebec their cherished Canadiens.

Now the privately-owned CTV network has stepped in. Each Wednesday night Toronto-Montreal meeting is being televised by CTV. There are seven in each city.

HAS FIRST GAME

The CTV carried its first Toronto-Montreal game last Wednesday night from Montreal.

Normally the 13,729 - seat forum is jammed with standees for a clash between the two old rivals.

But attendance was reported as 12,766. You have to go back a long way to find a lower mark for a game in Montreal.

Most seats at the Forum are held by longtime season-ticket subscribers. But the Canadiens place a number of cheaper seats on sale before every game and they are snapped up presumably stemmed from.

Why the CTV switch and pay to see a game when you can stay home and watch it for nothing?

DISBAND TEAM

Another development—this before the season started—was a decision by officials of Shaughan Councils of the Quebec Junior Hockey League to disband.

A spokesman said the club drew poor crowds on Wednesday nights last year and it would be pointless to try to put a team this season, bucking the additional obstacle of televised NHL games.

The minor leagues of baseball in the U.S. were hardest hit by big league TV. Those concerned about the additional NHL TV coverage are fearful it will also hit minor league hockey teams in Canada.

Ultimately, of course, the adverse effects fall back on the big league. Decimation of the minors dries up player production—the big league lifeline.

Les Barton Re-elected Umps. Head

The Belleville and District Umpires' Association has named its slate of officers for next season following a meeting this week.

Les Barton was returned as president for a second term and Al Kelleher is the new vice-president. Herb Pointer was once again named secretary-treasurer.

Jim Tebworth, vice-president this past season, is the new umpire-in-chief, succeeding Tom Hulme.

Harold Bawden was named as an executive member on the association.

"Y" Plans Industrial Hoop League

The YMCA here is organizing an inter-company basketball league for young men working in industry and other vocational endeavors in the city and district.

Letters have gone out to industrial firms requesting representatives to attend an organizational meeting of the proposed Industrial League slated for the Y Tuesday, October 22nd.

It is felt there are a number of companies in the city that can field a team of five players and spares.

A Y physical committee member will contact company personnel officers on Monday with regard to the matter.

It is suggested that young men who work in banks, offices, stores, etc, could field a team or teams which can compete in such a league.

The Y hopes the proposed league will provide activities for young men between 17 and 30 who are now out of high school.

The YMCA will provide space, time, equipment and also the organizing action for such a league.

Practice sessions will be held Tuesday evenings from 7-10 o'clock. Games will be scheduled for Friday evenings but played in a rented gymnasium.

A nominal fee will be charged which may be applied to a full Y membership.

Minneapolis Defeats St. Paul 4-1

ST. PAUL (AP)—Minneapolis Bruins scored three goals in the second period and overcame St. Paul Rangers 4-1 Friday night in a Central Professional Hockey League game.

The victory moved Minneapolis into a tie for first place in the league with Omaha Knights.

Jeannot Gilbert, Terry Crisp and playing-coach Harry Sheden scored before Billy Taylor connected for St. Paul late in the period.

The only goal of the last period was a Bruin counter—Gilbert's second of the game, scored at 19:01.

Don't Have To 'Puck-Feed' Howe

By PAUL RINSTRAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Gordie Howe slipped into his shoes this morning with comfort, there's a good chance he'll play tonight against Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Red Wings rightwinger, on the verge of setting a National Hockey League scoring record, didn't arrive in Toronto Friday night with his teammates. He is taking treatments at Detroit for a four-stitch ankle cut which made him miss a Wednesday night game against New York Rangers.

Howe needs only one goal to tie former Montreal Canadien star Maurice Richard's lifetime scoring record (excluding playoffs) of 544 goals. Howe, in his 18th season, has 543. Three were scored in two starts this year.

The Leafs and Wings, Stanley Cup finalists last season, meet again Sunday night at Detroit. In other weekend games, Boston Bruins travel to Montreal tonight and the Canadiens are on the road Sunday against Chicago Black Hawks. In a third Sunday clash, Boston plays at New York.

The Hawks enjoy a two-point edge on Toronto and Detroit, who are tied, and Montreal is one point off their pace.

EXPECTS GORDIE THERE

Detroit defencemen Bill Gadsby, who shares assistant coaching role with Howe, thinks Gordie will show up.

Gadsby is one of the foremost authorities on the Howe-Richard argument. Also is his 18th NHL season. Gadsby played against both as a Chicago and New York player. And he has been Howe's teammate the last two years.

"Richard was just as powerful as Gord, especially cutting in on goal," says Gadsby. "But Gordie is better in the corners."

Are they feeding Howe the puck more often as he nears the record?

"Naw—he's always got the puck anyway," said Gadsby.

Gadsby says the Detroit players aren't worrying about when Howe will catch Richard.

"We all know he's going to do it sometime," he said. "We don't even talk about it—neither does Gordie."

Western Hockey League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

High scoring by Seattle's Bob Barlow and Ray Cyr of San Francisco helped to lead both clubs to victory in the Western Hockey League Friday.

Each scored three goals as Seattle Totems Seals defeated Vancouver Canucks 8-7 and Seattle gained a shutout over Los Angeles Blades.

Other Seals' scorers were Cliff Pennington with two goals and Len Haley, Charlie Burns and Nick Mickoski with singles.

Only Bonnie Soford two goals for the Canucks followed by Dave Duke, Bob Kabel, Jimmy Baird, Ron Matthews and Lee Hunt.

Barlow scored two in the second period and another in the third to sew things up for Seattle. Larry Hale added a goal.

The San Francisco win put them in a tie with Denver for first place and the Seattle victory boosted them into the second spot. Portland, Vancouver, and Los Angeles have won only one game apiece.

Meet Tiger-Cats Sunday

Argos Could Upset Applecart

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts, whose inept performances have drawn little respect from the opposition and mostly ridicule from their own fan, can gain a measure of self-respect Sunday.

They can do this and throw the Eastern Football Conference standings into a three-way scramble for first place by defeating Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium in Toronto.

If Montreal Alouettes defeat Ottawa Rough Riders at Lansdowne Park this afternoon and Argonauts beat Hamilton there will be a three-way tie.

Although Toronto has won only two games this year, one against the Ti-Cats, they are bitter rivals of Montreal in their last meeting 15-7 after losing a narrow 6-5 decision earlier in the season.

Toronto will dress newly-acquired fullback George Hughley, who came north for a tryout after being declared ineligible at Oklahoma State Teachers' College. He is reputed to be a 200-pound speedster, 215-pounder.

STAMPS FAVORED

In the west, Calgary is a good bet for victory tonight at Regina against Saskatchewan Roughriders in a game highly-charged with playoff hopes.

Edmonton Eskimos' go to Vancouver for a game expected to have more than 30,000 fans watching.

A win for the Lions would move them to within one victory of a first-place finish and a trip into the WFC final playoff series.

'Rich Cousins" of NFL Lions Worried Over Pool

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions are taking up the cudgel again about gate equalization.

The rich cousins of the Western Football Conference say they don't mind filling other money bags, but they should be allowed to have strings for their own.

Equalization has kept the five-team league alive.

Figures on gate receipts are pooled at season's end, a mean established, and clubs above the mean contribute to the fund one-third of money left over. Clubs below the mean draw one-third of the difference between the mean and their income.

In practice, it means B.C. Lions have contributed heavily to Saskatchewan Roughriders and lesser amounts to other clubs.

The Lions support equalization in theory and in practice—to a point. But they want reforms, including a ceiling of $50,000 on their contribution to the pool and a place in calculations for money spent on promotion.

Last year B.C. paid $47,000 in equalization and wound up with a net profit of $7,000.

Rodriguez Decisions The Skeeter

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuban Luis Rodriguez, former world welterweight champion, decisively whipped previously undefeated Wilbert (Skeeter) McClure of Toledo in a televised 10 round fight at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The smaller and lighter Rodriguez, who dominated the lively affair all the way, floored the fighting schoolteacher with a solid right to the jaw early in the third round.

McClure got up at the count of four and was given the mandatory eight-count by referee Teddy Martin. He managed to evade the Cuban for the remainder of the round and in final moments traded blow for blow with Rodriguez. That was the only knockdown.

ATHLETE DIES

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An 18-year-old athlete died Friday of a brain injury suffered in a high school football game a week ago. The boy, Ronald Creel Jr. of the Mid-City Baptist High team, had been unconscious since he was hurt last Friday while trying to make a tackle. His death is the 11th in the U.S. resulting from football reported this year.

Britons, Aussies Share Golf Title

Canada Third

SYDNEY, Australia (CP-AP) Britain and Australia finished in a deadlock today in match points and final total after won and lost and wound up as co - champions in the British Commonwealth amateur golf team tournament. Canada finished in third place.

Britain defeated Canada five matches to four and Australia tied with defending champion South Africa, each winning four matches and having another, in today's final match of the five-country round - robin competition.

These scores brought about a long-odds-against equality in the countries' final figures:

Britain and Australia had six points each at the end of the tournament in which New Zealand also competed. Two points were awarded for a victory and one point for a tie. These were called match points.

Britain won three of its four team matches and lost one. Australia had two team wins and two ties.

CALL DEAD HEAT

Each country will hold the trophy, called the Commonwealth Cup, for six months each year until the next team championship is played, probably in Canada in 1967.

Canada learned an invitation Friday to stage the next tournament in August, 1967, in Montreal. It is held every four years. The first tournament was held at St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1924 and in South Africa in 1959.

In this competition each country plays every other once in three foursomes and six singles. Canada finished third with three match points and an individual match record of 17½ points against 18½. South Africa also had three match points but a poor individual mark. New Zealand was last with two points.

COWAN LOSES

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., who lost 7 and 1 to Ronnie Shade, was submerged in a tremendous finish by the British player.

Cowan was 2 up at the turn, but Shade produced precision golf which the Canadian could not match to win five holes in a row—the 10th, 11th, 12th, 14th and 15th holes.

Nick Weiskopf of Burlington, Ont., playing No. 1 for Canada beat Michael Lunt by one hole after a great recovery at the 18th hole. Lunt had his second through the green and the ball lodged under a tree. Recovering with a fine chip shot, he got down in one putt for a par score and victory.

The result of the morning foursomes, shared one each with three holes halved, hung on a great battle between the No. 1 pairs, Weiskoi and Cowan for Canada and Randy Saddler and Shade for Britain.

The British pair, out in 34, were 2 up at the turn and were one up at the turn and square until the 17th. At the last hole Canada's chances seemed gone when Cowan drove into deep trouble but Weiskoi recovered brilliantly, hooking the ball through a narrow gap on to the green.

The pressure suddenly shifted on to the British pair, but Shade sank a 12-foot putt to save the match.

S. Africans Face Suspension

CP from Reuters-AP

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany—South Africa today faced suspension from the Olympic Games on the grounds it has failed to eliminate racial discrimination from sport.

Today, Communist and Afro-Asian delegates to the International Olympic Committee will press for South Africa's suspension from the Olympic movement, because of the influence of its apartheid (race discrimination) policy on sport.

This sanction was threatened in a resolution passed at the committee's Moscow meeting in June last year.

On paper, from a breakdown of the 56 committee members there seems to be a good chance that South Africa will be suspended outright.

A more moderate alternative is likely to be brought into discussion. It is a plan to allow South Africa to be given until the next IOC meeting at Innsbruck, Austria, in January to stage interracial trials for the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

OPTION JOHNS

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers announced Friday that veteran defenceman Don Johns has been optioned to the club by the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, and will join the Clippers on Monday.

Brewer Trying 'Squeeze Play'

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs manager - coach Punch Imlach said Friday night his all-star defenceman Carl Brewer is trying a squeeze play.

Brewer, still disabled by an ankle injury received in the last game of last spring's Stanley Cup series, has not signed a contract this year and recently applied to become a full-time university student.

The leak of information that he has applied for enrolment at the University of Toronto came as a surprise to Brewer.

"This is a tremendous surprise to me," he said. "I've no idea what to say. I applied for enrolment as a means of protecting myself.

"I don't know what my position is, and I won't know until I talk to them (at Maple Leaf Gardens). I'd rather not say anything more until I have that talk."

The young veteran of five years in the National Hockey League played in Pembroke, Ont., in January to stage interracial trials for the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

IT'S NOTHING

"This to me is nothing," said Imlach. "Brewer's going to play, win or lose a hockey game for me until Christmas. If he wants to go to school that's his business. I'm not going to lose my sleep over it.

"He did that to me two years ago, when he enrolled at McMaster (in Hamilton). Looks to me he's trying to put the pressure-cooker treatment. Well, we'll do our share of winning with or without him. I've made up my mind Thursday—he can take this to Campbell (NHL president Campbell for arbitration)".

According to reports from Maple Leaf Gardens, the pact that Brewer broke has sealed perfectly. However, form tendon injury elsewhere has not responded well and this lack of mobility is what is delaying his return to play.

Brewer, who will be 25 Monday, earned $11 daily lectures at the University of Toronto with Leafs' NHL schedule.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Frisco Van R., a five-year-old gelding owned and driven by Clarence Lockhart of Collingwood, won a $1,000 trot at Western Fair Raceway by two lengths over Champ Mon Friday night.

A crowd of 3,004 watched Frisco Van complete the two miles in 2:07.8. Byhalia Dean was third, and Fanny Symbol was fourth in the six-horse field.

Quinte COSSA Cross-Country

One hundred and ten boys, representing nine Quinte District high schools, competed in the annual cross-country championships held yesterday at Norwood High School. Competition was divided into four age groups each having some spirited finishes.

Norwood High School and Albert College tied for senior team honors with 35 points even though neither school had a runner in the first three places; Stan Woodcock of Moira was the senior race in 13.52.

In the Juvenile class, Don Curnoe lead Moira to a team championship as he won over a hilly course in the time of 12.28. Second place Don Stewart of Madoc was some 33 seconds behind.

The Trojans from Moira also came up with a team victory in the junior race although Dave Clark from Belleville Collegiate fought off a last minute surge by Alex McLaurin for individual honors. Clark ran a fine race to finish with a time of 14.06.

Theo Van Wilk, from Norwood led the large group of intermediate boys home with a time of 14.06. Right on his heels came Fred Singleton from O.S.D. in 14.07.

The COSSA championships will be held on Monday, Oct. 28th at Albert Collegiate in Oshawa. Members of the first and second place teams in the junior, intermediate and senior age groups and other individuals finishing in the first ten will represent their schools and the Quinte COSSA section at the meet.

LOOK TO CANADIAN

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City Athletics are looking to a Canadian to bolster their pitching staff next season. He is Vern Handrahan, a 25-year-old righthander from Charlottetown, P.E.I., who will play much baseball until he got out of high school. The Athletics drafted him from the Boyce, Idaho, club in 1962.

G. Knudson Runner-Up To Leaders

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Guy Brewer and Bob Harrison took over the leadership at the 36-hole point of the $70,000 Sahara International golf tournament Friday.

The 25-year-old Harrison set a course record with a 64, seven strokes under par, and Brewer had a 69 as both reached the midway mark with a total score of 137.

George Knudson of Toronto shot his second straight 69 to emerge as runner-up to the leaders with a total of 138. Also at 138 was Al Geiberger who shot a 71 in Friday's play. Al Johnston of Montreal shot a 67 and a 139 total.

Al Balding of Toronto shot a 74 Friday, for a 145 total which enabled him to survive the cut.

Says Knox Fight Was "Mismatch"

HAGERSTOWN, Ind. (AP)—The executive secretary of the World Boxing Association has labelled the Sonny Liston-Knox match" the fight which claimed the life of boxer Ernie Knox.

"We need better supervision of boxing," Arch Hindman said Friday. "If it isn't available, then we should do without the sport."

The WBA official added: "With proper supervision, the obvious mismatch that claimed the life of Ernie Knox wouldn't have happened in the first place."

Knox died Wednesday of injuries suffered Monday night in a bout with Wayne Bethea in Baltimore. Knox was listed at the weigh-in at 178 pounds, but an autopsy showed his weight to be only 153—20 pounds less than Bethea's announced weight.

OPERATE ON MANTLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees' celebrated centrefielder, underwent a successful operation for removal of a cartilage in his left knee Friday. Mantle played only 65 games in the 1963 American League season. He is expected to be out of the hospital in about a week.

ORDER EXTRADITION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Frank Larry Rosenthal was ordered extradited to North Carolina Friday for trial on charges that he tried to fix a United States college basketball game. Judge John L. Kehoe ordered Rosenthal turned over to the sherriff for 10 days until North Carolina authorities take custody.

Boston Pats Threaten Jets Lead

BOSTON (AP)—A rejuvenate Gino Cappelletti and a changed Denver defence are two reasons Boston Patriots are threatening New York Jets' Eastern Division lead in the American Football League.

The Patriots defeated the Broncos 40-21 Friday night, sent their record to 4-3 and edged to within 29 per centage points of the Jets. Cappelletti, who once played in the Ontario Rugby Football Union accounted for 22 points with a touchdown, four field goals and four conversions as his scoring lead soared to 69.

The rest of the AFL swings into action Sunday afternoon as San Diego Chargers visiting Kansas City Chiefs in the key game. The Chargers currently lead the Western Division with a 4-1 mark and the defending champion Chiefs, 3-3-1, must win to stay in contention.

Buffalo Bills, 3-3-1, visit Houston Oilers, 2-3, and New York, 3-2, visits Oakland Raiders, 3-4.

Talk persisted before this season that Cappelletti might be traded. Coach Mike Holovak denied the rumors but admitted he had been disappointed in Gino last fall after the halfback-turned-split end tallied a record 197 points in 1961.

"Two years ago I was on top," Cappelletti said. "Last year the defensive backs in the league improved and I didn't. A lot of times my timing was way off. Sometimes I was just a lot of work at getting quicker."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Destree's Prince, a four-year-old gelding which has been seeking his first victory of the season at tracks from Calgary to Toronto, finally found the winner's enclosure Friday at Woodbine Race Track.

The bay horse had raced 19 times prior to Friday at Regina, Exhibition and Calgary without coming home on top.

With Gordon Lannaway handling the reins, Destree's Prince drove to a length and a half victory over Char Fool and Shasta Road. The win gave his trainer, Andy Smithers his 16th winner of the season and moved him into a tie with Frank Merrill Jr., for leading trainer here. Destree's Prince paid $9.10, $3.60 and $3.

Flyers, Marlies Win, Habs Tie

Traffic-Jam In Junior A Loop

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Friday night action in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop left a three-way traffic jam at the top of the standings.

But Niagara Falls Flyers maintained a slight edge at the top of the heap with a 5-1 home victory over Hamilton Red Wings. The victory for the defending champs was their second in two starts.

It was the third straight loss for the winless Wings, put second in as many nights to the Flyers.

Toronto Marlboros handed Peterborough Petes a 5-1 thumping at London, Ont., the first setback of the season for the Petes, and both clubs wound up with 2-1 records and a tie with the Flyers.

Montreal Junior Canadiens and Oshawa Generals battled to a 4-4 deadlock in Montreal, holding the Canadiens in fourth place. The Montrealers have a win in addition to the tie.

Hamilton Wings spotted Hamilton a goal in the first period but dominated its home opener the rest of the way. Defenceman John Arbour collected two goals, Brad Debrusky, Brian Bradley and Gilles Maheu getting the others. Lorne Knowles got the Hamilton goal.

MARLIES SCORE

A crowd of more than 2,700 turned out in London for the first Junior A league game ever played in the city and saw Marlboros shade the locals with three goals within five minutes in the third period.

The first period was scoreless and Grant Moore's goal for Toronto midway in the second was matched in the same period by Peterborough defenceman John Waterbury. But Barry Watson clicked in the last minute of the period for the go-ahead goal.

Brit Selby, Ron Ellis and Paul Laurent scored in the third-period.

It was a seesaw battle at Montreal where Don Buchanan scoring for Oshawa with only 50 seconds left to knot it up. The Canadiens led a 4-2 early in the period but the Generals, who had bounced back from a 4-0 deficit, broke through again.

Bill Durocher, Bob Lemieux, Mike Hyndman and Yvon Courtoyer scored for Montreal. Rod Zaine got two for the Generals and Mike Debeau got the other.

SIGN EX-ARGO

REGINA — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference announced the signing of Doug Campbell, a 250-pound tackle who played with Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference last year. Campbell has been in the camps of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos so far this year since dropped by Toronto.

Detroit Was Second Choice

Amerd Mexico City 1968 Olympic Games

By JOHN FARROW

BADEN - BADEN, Germany (AP)—Mexico City, a darkhorse candidate, was awarded the 1968 Olympic Games Friday by a solid vote over favored Detroit.

Mexico City and Detroit, along with Buenos Aires and Lyon, France, had put in bids for the sports extravaganza, and many thought the United States city had swung the vote its way with an impressive presentation of its case.

Mexico City got 30 votes, Detroit 14, Lyon 12 and Buenos Aires two.

 Old Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, said the 1968 summer games will be held in the first two weeks in October. The 1964 Olympics will be in Tokyo Oct. 10 to 24.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, IOC president, told the Detroit delegation the vote went against it because many IOC delegates thought it was time for the games to go to a country that had not had the honor.

Los Angeles had the Olympics in 1932 and St. Louis in 1904.

Jerry Cavanagh, mayor of Detroit and a member of the city's delegation said:

"Naturally we are disappointed at the decision. However, we know it was a difficult one for the IOC. Detroit accepts the vote in the true sporting tradition and Olympic spirit."

Governor George Romney of Michigan, who flew here to head Detroit's bid for the games, said:

"My only real feeling at the moment is one of terrible disappointment. But we'll have another go to get the 1972 games if I live and remain active."

It was unlucky seven for Detroit.

The big industrial city has tried seven times to land the Olympics. Seven times it has failed.

Ann Landers

Doormat Mother Evokes Opinion From Teen-Ager

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I would like to comment on the letter from the mother who complained that her children had the upper hand. Good grief! I'm only 14 and I know that any mother who lets her kids step all over her is plain stupid.

My mother works all day and my brothers and I do plenty for ourselves. (My brothers are 15 and 16.) We get our own breakfast, take care of our own rooms and arrange for our own transportation.

ANN LANDERS

Please don't think we are underprivileged. We are a normal family with a nice home and plenty of advantages. The mother who wrote that letter should quit chauffering her kids around. She is making semi-individuals out of them. They'd have more respect for her if she stopped being a doormat.

If her kids are so helpless with her around I'd hate to think what they will be without her. — CLAYTON, MISSOURI TEEN.

DEAR CLAYTON, TEEN — Your letter is an eloquent expression of what I've been trying to get across to parents for years. Thank you for saying it — and saying it so well.

I hope all mothers whose kids are running them ragged will see your letter and recognize themselves.

DEAR ANN — My husband is having an affair with the woman next door. We have three children, 16, 18, and 20. She has two pre-school children.

This is not his first romance since we were married and it won't be his last. Divorce is out of the question so I have resigned myself to his monkeyshines. He will quit running around when he is worn out and that will be in about 10 years.

My husband has asked our 15-year-old daughter to baby sit (without pay) for this woman when he takes her to union meetings (they work together) and other supposedly business-connected affairs. Our daughter doesn't see why she should turn down paying customers and sit without pay for this woman. I'm afraid the girl may catch on there is something between them. Please tell me what to do. — Q. T.

DEAR Q. T. — Tell your husband — right now — that he'd better never again ask his daughter to sit for the neighbor woman. Make it clear that if he does, you will step in and inform her that she is under no obligation to do so.

You have the right, as a mother, to protect your daughter against this hurtful thing. Be plenty emphatic and don't back down an inch.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was married for twelve years to a happy drinker. The last three years of his life I supported him because he was too sick to work. He died in 1961.

Six months ago I married a very nice man who had never been married before. Warren is a fine person and he is very good to me. He is also wonderful to my nine-year-old daughter but he can't seem to warm up to my six-year-old son. My son is the image of his father and everybody remarks on it. I'm sure this is the reason Warren doesn't like the little fellow. His indifference to the boy is bound to create a problem between Warren and me unless something is done soon. Shall I discuss it with him? Please let me know what is best. — J. L. R.

DEAR J. L. R. — Urge your husband to have a talk with your clergyman. If he hasn't from an unbiased third party that his feelings toward the boy are unjust and irrational, and that his marriage may be ruined because of these feelings, he'll listen.

• • •

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help for the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Producer With Twin Aims Makes Unique African Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ivan Tors is a bearded, bespectacled producer with two missions: To make movies for the whole family and to make movies that no one else can produce.

He accomplished both purposes in the first MGM film, Flipper, about a boy and his dolphin. It appears headed for a gross of between $5,000,000 and 8,000,000. A sequel is in the works, as well as a Flipper television series.

Tors' latest adventure into the unique was Rhino, which he shot this summer in Africa.

"It is different from any picture ever made about Africa," he says. "I had read every book I could find about Africa, and I thought I knew it. But after I traveled all over the continent, I had to sit down in Johannesburg and rewrite the entire script."

Rhino, which stars Harry Guardino and Robert Culp, concerns efforts to save African animals from extinction.

"We got shots that have never before been possible," says Tors. "How? By inventing new equipment for the particular project.

SAME ON TELEVISION

"I've done the same thing with my television series. Underwater photography had to be a difficult matter involving diving suits and sea bells. We developed a camera for Sea Hunt that could be operated by one swimmer. For Ripcord we devised a camera that fits into the helmet of a parachutist."

His fascination for Rhino were five lightweight cameras and reflectors that were highly mobile.

"I had walkie-talkies everywhere," he said. "If a game warden reported a rhino stalking in mud we could be there to photograph it in 20 minutes."

The producer also made use of new techniques in shooting wild animals with tranquillizers.

The result: "Our actors could play right in the scenes with the animals. It's not like Hatari, in which they cut back and forth between the actors and the animals—except for a scene with John Wayne next to a rhino, which was held by eight ropers!"

AT THE BELLE — Artist's concept of Peter O'Toole as "Lawrence of Arabia" in Technirama, Super Panavision and Technicolor. Winner of 7 Academy Awards including best picture, it also starred are Alec Guinness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer, Anthony Quayle, Claude Rains and Arthur Kennedy. Filmed in super-Panavision and Technicolor, "Lawrence of Arabia" is now playing at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Esky Boss Denies Charges

EDMONTON (CP)—Hastings (Red) McMahon, president of Edmonton Eskimos, has denied charges "by a minority segment" of the Eskimos' board and manager Joe Ryan run the Western Football Conference club as a two-man operation.

That is ridiculous and any Eskimo director who sincerely believes it to be the truth should resign and not sulk around threatening it behind the shield of anonymity," he said Thursday.

National Parks Being Ruined By Bottles, Wrappers

JIM FOLEY

TORONTO (CP) — "The human being is the dirtiest animal there is!"

With these words, Canada's newest watchdog jumped into the conservation fray.

Gavin Henderson, secretary of the newly formed National-Provincial Parks Association, said Canadians are ruining their parks with empty beer bottles and candy wrappers.

"People head for the parks to get away from the dirt and noise of the city but when they get there they want the conveniences of apartment living.

"Don't they see that the comforts of civilization destroy the very peace and quiet they are seeking?

"Our society will attempt to keep the restaurants, motels and drive-in theatres out of the parks."

He said the society will use films, press releases and "every possible means" to teach Canadians to respect their national heritage.

The society will also be a watchdog on provincial and federal parks acts to ensure they are being administered as intended.

INDEPENDENT GROUP

This is in line with a recommendation from the Resources for Tomorrow conference held in Montreal in October, 1961, which said:

"There is a need for an informed, organized, non-government association to promote the interests of park development and perform a watchdog role over those areas now reserved for park purposes."

Mr. Henderson, executive director of the Conservation Council of Ontario, is interim secretary of a board of trustees for the new organization.

"We hope to have about 20 or 30 trustees representing regions across Canada but right now we have only six from Ontario and Quebec. We intend to approach the other provinces soon, however, and get the show more fully on the road.

"I must emphasize, though, that as a matter of principle we don't want government members. That would compromise our position in any running battle we might have with the government."

society will be "a voice for Canadians" and will attempt to be heard over the bellow of commercial interests who want to exploit the parks for personal profit.

CRITICIZED QUEBEC

"I don't think the politicians know how much the people resent losing their parks to mining and logging companies."

Commenting on last month's announcement by Quebec's Resources Minister Rene Levesque that prospectors would be allowed to investigate provincial park property, Mr. Henderson said "we are very disappointed in Mr. Levesque's recent actions."

Ontario has the right attitude toward its parks, he said, recalling that last year "Premier John Roberts said miners would never be allowed on park property as long as he was in power."

Mr. Henderson said the national society will support provincial organizations and take action only where there is no one else to do it.

"If a province has no conservation organization we will either step in ourselves or else organize a society for the province."

While trying to help protect the parks now in existence, the society will also lobby for more national and provincial parks.

"Only one-half of one per cent problem of getting it back. . . . He's going to be a fine football player and i was looking to next year."

That may be okay, particularly at this time when Argos are out of the Eastern Conference playoff picture and with three games to go to fill out the schedule. But, how about next year?

Toronto fans aren't enchanted with the club that hasn't been in the Grey Cup final since Wirkowski's quarterbacking did it in 1952. They've shown their displeasure with Stephens at games in Toronto and they'll be out for blood next year if the club doesn't produce.

COMMON PRACTICE

And the quarterback is bound to be their prime target. Wirkowski might not be able to afford to be so charitable. And, after all, professional athletes can expect booing and razzing.

Jackie Robinson, the first Negro player to make it in organized baseball, took a pretty good razzing in the U.S. but he wasn't yanked. Roger Maris of New York Yankees is by no means a favorite with fans but he takes his regular turn at right field.

There have been cases in pro sport where fan behavior has caused club officials to get rid of players subjected to razzing. Defenceman Tom Johnson and goalkeeper Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League are examples. But they were in Montreal uniform for years.

Another is Allan Stanley, defenceman with New York Rangers for five full seasons, who was traded to Chicago Black Hawks and eventually to Toronto Maple Leafs. Madison Square Garden fans had been down on Stanley for years and the club management thought a change was due.

Nine years ago Nobby Wirkowski was booed right off the Toronto Argonaut football club.

He had been trying for four years to make Argo fans forget about dead-armed Al Dekdebrun, who had quarterbacked the club — then coached by Frank Clair — to a 1950 Grey Cup title.

Clair said that Dekdebrun "shot-put the ball instead of throwing it." Dekdebrun denied this and the people in the stands went along with him.

Wirkowski, who had played with Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, was brought in as the team's 1951 quarterback. He played a big role in Argonauts' 21-11 Grey Cup victory over Edmonton Eskimos in 1952, but the customers weren't satisfied.

"Go home, you bum," was a favorite taunt and, in December, 1954, Nobby got the gate.

At the time Nobby admitted the boos occasionally got him down. But he added: "The privilege of razzing goes with the price of a ticket."

YANKED SANDY

Now, as coach of Argonauts, Nobby probably recalls his own experiences and doesn't wish to subject his athletes to the same abuse. This was evident last Sunday when Argos played the Alouettes at Montreal and Wirkowski yanked quarterback Sandy Stephens early.

Why?

"I wouldn't subject him to that," he said, referring to the lusty boos that greeted Stephens when he went in to start the game. "I have to look beyond one game. . . . I didn't want the game messed up because he went in at quarterback and tried too hard because of the way the fans treated him.

"Then, if he hadn't played well it would have affected his confidence and I'd have the

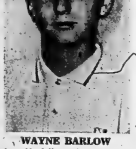
NEWSPAPERBOYS



TODAY WE PAY TRIBUTE TO OUR NEWSPAPER BOYS

These young businessmen are a very important link in the chain that reaches round the world to gather stories and pictures and transform them into the omnibus of modern history, information and entertainment which you find on your doorstep rain or shine, in balmy weather or snow 6 days a week. They are the link between you, the reader and all the time, expense, thought and effort that goes into your daily newspaper.

What they do is important in another way, too. As young merchants, conducting their own businesses, buying papers wholesale and selling them retail, they are learning the system of free enterprise by becoming part of it. They are getting a head start in practicing business management, salesmanship and public relations technique. They are learning the real values of responsibility, dependability and integrity.

For these and many other good reasons we are proud of our newspaper boys and invite our readers on National Newspaper Boy Day to share that pride.

Arm Injured, Wants New Job

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am 58 years old, single, and not in very good health. In 1957 I had a bad heart attack, in 1958 a left radical mastectomy, going back to work seven weeks after. In January this year, I was discharged from a knitting company. The work was very bad on my left arm, which had not troubled me until the work had to have more pressure used on it. It gave me a kind of writer's cramp.

I have used up my unemployment benefits, and I wondered if a person could draw a government welfare or something of that sort. When I am finished with the hospital I would like to try and find some other work to do, but I am afraid the arm will start up again. Could you please advise me something to do?

I cannot claim any compensation because the arm was impaired with surgery previous to the job with the knitting company. — KNITTER.

DEAR KNITTER — There's help for you. If a placement officer can't find you a job that fits your handicap, you can qualify for either a Canadian disability pension or public assistance. Go to your National Employment Service office for help or steering.

DEAR DORIS — Is there any source of information concerning arthritis, its cause and what may help? There must be an emotional factor in this. — WORRIED SISTER.

• • •

DEAR WORRIED — Arthritis is so widespread, and comes in so many varieties, that a national organization has taken up arms about it. This is the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society (familiarly known as CARS). Sufferers are helped by working with physicians, receiving therapy, literature and medications.

Illness usually has an emotional factor, and arthritis is no exception. The address of the branch of CARS near you is the Rehabilitation Centre, 169 Union Street, Kingston.

DEAR DORIS — I've never been very popular with the boys. Could the fact that I'm short be the reason? I'm only about four feet ten inches tall and not too bad looking. I'm 17 years old. — SHORTY.

• • •

DEAR SHORTY — To bring yourself into the boys' line of vision, I'd say study the styles which add stature: one-piece dresses with long lines; hairdoes that are high on top; high heels.

Finish the job with an engaging alertness about what's going on, a happy smile and a skill at dancing, singing, or playing an instrument, which will mean you are in demand at every party — in spite of your nickname!

TO OLDER SISTER — Your sister is caught in the squeeze, and is too young to pull out. Parents who quarrel "at least once a day" should be put in the same padded cell to fight it out — not allowed to deliver their verbal blows in front of a tearful offspring. Right now your best role is to let her run to you to let off steam.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I'm writing to you and hope you can help me better myself. I'm 24 years of age. I only have grade seven and I took the early years in China. But I want to learn a trade.

Please tell me what is better for a person who is grade seven. I'm very worried about the future and when I get old if I don't know how to make a living. — CHINESE CANADIAN.

DEAR CANADIAN — You're right to try for a special skill. It's the unskilled worker nowadays who finds the going tough. Trades training in Canada has come a long way and there should be a special spot for you. Talk to the Special Placements Officer at your nearest National Employment Service about this.

DEAR DORIS — I have been going with a boy for almost three months and, although we like each other very much, we still have not yet "broken the ice." We still talk formally and stiffly as if we had just met.

Most of the other boys I've gone with on a date or two made me feel at ease. Is there something I can do, something I can say? I can horse around or be serious, have fun or talk with others. Why not him? — WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

DEAR WHAT'S — Perhaps you both care too much about keeping things hunkey-dorey. Don't want to put your foot in it.

"Don't Be Shy" says Sally Hamilton. I'm sending you her ideas about how to handle this. You'll see that the article, plus the reading list, can start a whole new trend. I suggest you and your B.F. read it together, work on it together. There's nothing to be ashamed of in being bashful — as long as you do something about it!

DEAR DORIS — I am a girl of 16 who is going out of her mind. For the last few years I have spent every spare moment riding or working with my horse.

A month ago, I went to a party where some of the boys brought beer. Neither my girl friends nor I had anything to drink. However, my parents had told me that if I ever attended a party where people were drinking, they would sell my horse. Therefore, I denied I had been there. Now I am being severely punished.

My parents are going to sell my horse, and I may never ride again. Furthermore I am confined to my room for a month, and I can't go out with my boy friend ever again, nor the girls who were there.

I have been "grounded" for only four days so far, but it seems like a century. I am not allowed to use the T.V. or the phone. I spend all my time thinking of my horse and my friends. I feel so cooped up I could scream. If I don't get out of this house soon, I am afraid I will do something desperate. — STERLING.

DEAR STERLING — Beer-drinking parties are bad medicine for 16-year-old ladies. And I doubt whether the punishment would have been quite so severe if you hadn't tried to lie your way out of it. To lose your horse would be like losing a good friend.

Aside from whether the punishment fits the crime — and I have my doubts — the way you take this is important. Don't moan and mourn. Catch up on your reading, your letter writing, get ahead with studies. It's not forever.

AERIAL SATIRE — FIt.-Lt. Moe Campbell climbs into the cockpit of his Harvard trainer as other members of the Goldilocks, Moose Jaw, Sask., RCAF acrobatics team, straggle across the airfield in their "crazy formation." The Goldilocks (a takeoff on the Golden Hawks jet aerobatic team) have developed their own patterns, including this satire of student pilots attempting to fly formation. (CF Photo)

Veteran Air Force Pilots Put on Show With Harvards

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—It started as a joke, but seven veteran air force instructors were an instant success in performing aerobatics in piston-driven Harvard training planes.

The joke began last year when Moose Jaw Exhibition officials asked the RCAF to send a Harvard formation over the exhibition during a performance of one of the air force's Red Knight aerial aces.

"Okay," said an enterprising officer, "let's do an imitation of the Golden Hawks" (the RCAF's jet aerobatic team).

They practised the routines and thrilled 29,000 spectators at the exhibition. A reporter dubbed them the Goldilocks.

The name and their success stuck with the group during a tour of air force shows this year which included the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

No longer was the group satisfied to imitate the Golden Hawks, however. They worked out their own routines and now have shows of six and 14 minutes.

BECAME OFFICIAL

Air force headquarters noticed their success, too. It ordered the group to drop the name Goldilocks in favor of Moose Jaw RCAF Harvard Aerobatic Team. Headquarters also restricted performances to accredited air force shows.

The act has drawn rave notices from professional pilots and spectators, and the reasons aren't hard to find.

The pilots, with 34,600 flying hours among them, execute their manoeuvres with precision. The team is the only known aerobatic group using piston-driven aircraft and the Second World War-vintage planes are a familiar and nostalgic sight to many.

Also the slow flying speed enables the pilots to give spectators a less frantic view of the show in contrast to the screaming pace of the jets.

All the pilots are instructors at the Moose Jaw base. They are Flt. Lt. Murray Neilson, 35, Toronto; Flt. Lt. Bernie Mc-Comiskey, 30, and Flt. Lt. Al Kacinskas, 30, both of Calgary; Flt. Lt. Denis Lambert, 27, Montreal; Flt. Lt. Mike Mathews, 29, Sussex, England; Flt. Lt. Bob Dobson, 27, Moose Jaw, and Flt. Lt. Moe Campbell, 34 St. George, Ont.

MAY DISBAND

Flt. Lt. Barney Hopkins, 29, of Tobermory, Ont., himself a veteran of 4,300 hours flying, is team manager and air show commentator. Ten technicians keep the seven Harvards in top shape.

Whether the team will operate in 1964 is a question. The noisy Harvards are scheduled to go out of service at the end of next year. The team has no permission to fly aerobatics next summer but has applied to Ottawa to do a "swan song" tour during the 1964 air show season.

"After all, we're not in competition with the Golden Hawks," said Flt. Lt. Neilson. "We just fly pre-quarter as fast and four times as well."

Among highlights of their act is a manoeuvre by the two-formation segment. The two pilots bring their planes out of a loop and throw open the throttle, approaching each other at a closing speed of 500 m.p.h. They pass at a distance ranging from two to 15 feet.

"We don't consider it a good pass unless we can hear the 'schoonk' of the other plane as it goes by," said Flt. Lt. Dobson.

Another stunt is the crazy formation. A four-plane group hobbles over the audience with wings sprouting in all directions and in ragged formation. Some have one wheel down, some both. They're actually flying parallel but appear to be on a collision course at times. The idea is to give the impression of student pilots attempting to fly in formation.

Viet Nam Reds Give Diem's Men 'Bloodiest Nose'

13 American Advisers Among 120 Casualties

CP from AP-Reuters .

SAIGON, South Viet Nam—Government forces licked their wounds today after suffering a setback in a major weekend air-borne operation against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Government casualties were listed at 40 dead and 80 wounded, including 13 American military advisers wounded.

The government estimated enemy casualties at 30 dead as prisoners were taken and only four Viet Cong bodies were found.

The battle, termed by U.S. advisers "the bloodiest nose" given President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces since a similar defeat Jan. 2, took place in a region of rice paddies and palm groves near Loc Ninh 140 miles southeast of Saigon.

Entrenched in fortified positions, Viet Cong heavy machine-guns cut up two waves of South Vietnamese troops carried in by U.S. helicopters.

Another government battalion brought in on foot also failed to dislodge the Viet Cong's well-trained and well-equipped battalion. A second helicopter force was halted too.

By Sunday morning, the Viet Cong had melted away in sampans along the many canals in the area.

About 900 South Vietnamese troops fought against a force of no more than 400 to 500 guerillas, U.S. advisers said.

Diana Churchill Dies Suddenly In London

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill's eldest daughter, Diana, 54, died during the weekend of "natural causes."

Mrs. Churchill — as she preferred to be called after her divorce from Duncan Sandys, was colonial and commonwealth secretary in Prime Minister Earl of Home's new cabinet — was found dead in her apartment in London's west end.

It was understood she died there Saturday night. The death was not made public until Sunday night.

Police said a doctor recorded death by natural causes.

The coroner for the Westminster district of London called an inquest for Thursday after receiving post-mortem reports.

At Sir Winston's London home today one of his secretaries confirmed the 80-year-old wartime prime minister has been told of his daughter's death.

The secretary added Sir Winston is "well."

DEATH IS SUDDEN

The Daily Mail says a spokesman at Sir Winston's home reported the death "was very sudden," that "Mrs. Churchill had not been ill."

Mrs. Churchill was married to Sandys in 1935. They had three children.

The marriage ended in divorce in 1960, when Sandys was minister of aviation.

Her first marriage, in 1932, was to John Milner Bailey, eldest son of Sir Abe Bailey, South African millionaire. They were divorced in 1935.

Mrs. Churchill is survived by her parents, her brother, Randolph, and two sisters, Mary and Sarah.

Scores of Fires Now Burning

LONDON: Ont. (CP) — Thousands of acres of bush and timberland were burned over during the weekend as scores of fires blazed through drought-stricken southwestern Ontario.

At least 24 fires had been burning for several days in these lands and forests department's nine-county Lake Erie district, Charles Hiscox of Aylmer, the district's timber supervisor, said Sunday night.

Whites and Asians Are Welcome But Black Men Must Rule--Banda

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland (Reuters) — Premier Hastings Banda says whites and Asians are welcome to stay in Nyasaland after the British protectorate gets independence on July 6 as long as they accept the fact it is a black man's country and that blacks must rule.

Speaking to a crowd of 20,000 persons who welcomed his return Sunday from independence talks in London, Banda said any white man "who likes (South African Premier) Verwoerd's ideas in Africa, just because they have a white skin and long hair, must be master—that kind of white man should pack up and go now."

Banda said warned journalists not to try to build up opposition to him.

He added: "By July, if certain newspapers and certain news agency reporters in this country are still here, they will hear from me. I want them to know that I have an appointment with them."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A large high pressure area over Southern Ontario has pushed cooler air over all but extreme southern sections of the province. A disturbance over the mid-western United States will restore relaxed and milder temperatures to Ontario Tuesday. Rain and showers in advance of this system will likely spread over the western half of Ontario Tuesday and the remainder of the province Tuesday night.

Pays Debt To Butler

FIRST BATTALION of the Canadian Guards trooped the color Saturday at Camp Picton — the first time the ceremony has been performed in the country by regular army troops wearing full dress uniforms. In the picture, the Escort to the Color, presents arms to the Color as it is handed over for the trooping, to the Ensign of the Color.

LONDON (CP) — Three names, especially that of Richard Austen Butler, stand out in the cabinet appointments announced by the Earl of Home Sunday.

It is generally agreed that Home's task of forming a government—difficult, as it was — would have been rendered almost impossible had Butler refused to serve and openly encouraged a simmering revolt.

The two other cabinet names attracting most attention were Edward Heath, 47, and Selwyn Lloyd, 59, resurrected by Home from the backbench limbo to which he had been relegated by Prime Minister Macmillan after serving as chancellor of the exchequer and foreign secretary. Heath, former Lord Privy Seal and deputy foreign secretary, takes on a powerful new post as overlord of a drive to modernize industry and help hard-hit areas.

Heath seems a direct reply to Labor Leader Harold Wilson's plan for a Socialist super-ministry of industrial planning. In Wilson's formula, the portfolio would take over some responsibilities that now come under the chancellor of the exchequer.

HAS BIG JOB

Heath's job now is secretary of state for industry, trade and regional development and president of the Board of Trade, his duties include some of those involving help for distressed areas—formerly handled by Viscount Hailsham, 56, one of Home's rivals for the leadership. Hailsham continues as science minister.

Lloyd becomes Lord Privy Seal — a title rather than a job — and also takes over from Macleod, who declined to serve under Home, the leadership of the House of Commons.

In the departure of Macleod and former health minister Enoch Powell, Home has lost two of the chief "modernizers" of the former government.

Macleod recently described himself as one who took his first faltering steps in politics and policy under the guidance of Butler. Ultra - traditionalist Conservatives in the party regarded Butler and Macleod as left-wingers because of their guidance of domestic policy in the independence and also because of their attitude toward social questions.

Mother, Two Daughters Die In Explosion

MONTREAL (CP) — Roland Hamont, 41, and his wife Hazel, 40, and two daughters and severely injuring Mr. Hamont and his son.

Dead are Mrs. Hazel Hamont, 44, Nicole, 16, a University of Montreal student, and Leslie, 10, a student at a Roman Catholic convent.

Mr. Hamont, 41, assistant professor of French at Harpur College, Binghampton, N.Y., is being treated for multiple lacerations, shock and a possible skull fracture.

Jean Marie, 13, a high school student, is in the Montreal Neurological Institute with undetermined head injuries.

"It was the worst sight I've ever seen in my life," said Fire Capt. Bernard Tobin, who arrived on the scene shortly after the explosion.

"The whole house was down," he said. "Only the boy's head was sticking out of the rubble. Everyone else was underneath.

"I immediately got another fireman to pull the second alarm. We desperately needed men."

If Home to Be Successful He Must Establish Contacts

LONDON (AP)—To be successful as prime minister, the Earl of Home must descend from the rarified atmosphere of British aristocracy and diplomacy to the hurly-burly of the House of Commons. He must establish quick contact with the country-man.

Only by doing this can the former foreign secretary stand a chance of leading the Conservative party to victory over the opposition Labor party led by middle-class Harold Wilson in the election that must come before November, 1964.

The Daily Herald, staunch Labor party supporter, reported that Wilson was "beside himself with joy" over the Conservatives' choice for prime minister.

Lord Home will not achieve the new image simply by taking off the ermine robe of a lord and earl's coronet.

To the man in the street, Home often appears as a remote and antiquated figure living on borrowed time. Many are against a prime minister from the House of Lords on principle.

In fact, Home probably got the top because few were against him rather than because many wanted him.

But those who applied him were those who counted—other ancient families such as the Devonshires (in-laws of Harold Macmillan) and the Churchills, whose backing still counts for a great deal in even a modernized Tory party.

Yet the resentment of many party members smoulders on.

The big question in many minds is: Can he talk tough enough against Labor attacks in the commons? Or is he too much of a gentleman?

Despite all the attacks from his critics, everyone agrees Home is basically a nice fellow.

"A nice chap and a polite peer," sneered the Labor Daily Mirror. "A man without a face has been smuggled into No. 10 Downing St. Brand X is now in.

Canada and Britain Sign New Nuclear Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and Britain today signed a new nuclear agreement which reflects growing international acceptance of the Canadian concept for construction of atomic power plants able to produce electricity, economically.

Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority announced the agreement in brief statements here and in London. It is designed to extend and regulate collaboration between the two countries on the development of power reactors which employ the use of heavy water and natural or slightly enriched uranium fuel.

Officials of crown - owned Atomic Energy of Canada said the agreement is clear recognition by the British of the merits of the Canadian - pioneered system.

A number of other countries, including India and Pakistan, now are negotiating to buy Canadian power plants. Others, including the United States and Japan, are expressing growing interest in the Canadian concept.

Under the agreement, the British nuclear agency will pay the Canadian agency $750,000 in consideration of the intensive program already carried out by Canada in the development of heavy-water reactors. This represents payment by the British for information to be made available to them.

The British agency also will pay a royalty of three per cent on every unit it supplies from the Canadian type to any reactor operator whose plant has been designed or licensed by Atomic Energy of Canada or Canadian industry.

Under the agreement the two agencies will exchange information which has already been obtained or may be obtained over the next five years to aid each other in development of their

Multi-Lateral Force Plans Alarm Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — A formal statement carried by the Soviet news agency Tass declared to-day steps taken toward development of a multi-lateral atomic force in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "are in complete contradiction to the spirit of the Moscow treaty banning nuclear tests."

The statement said:

"Soviet leading circles cannot but take account of the dangerous consequences of the provision of nuclear weapons to the Federal Republic of Germany lie and take into consideration the need to insure the safety of the Soviet Union and its allies in this event.

"The dangerous steps being undertaken by NATO cannot but have an adverse effect on the cause of the strengthening of mutual understandings and trust between states."

Home Faces Repair Job On Tories

LONDON (CP)—The Earl of Home, Britain's new prime minister, today faced an urgent repair job on the Conservative party's election machinery, disrupted by defections at the top.

Lord Home's quickly - constructed cabinet—largely a reshuffle of Harold Macmillan's—won general approval from Conservative newspapers and criticism from pro-Labor commentators.

But editorial writers of both sides suggested the government must be handicapped by the refusal of "progressives" Iain Macleod and Enoch Powell, health minister under Macmillan, to serve under Home.

Macleod, one of the Tory progressives who backed Richard A. Butler in last week's struggle for the premiership, was expected to resign as joint chairman of the Conservative party.

Informed sources said his co-chairman, finance minister Lord Poole, would resign with him. Poole had backed Science Minister Lord Hailsham to succeed Macmillan, who had decided to resign as premier after undergoing surgery for a prostate gland condition.

Macleod and Poole formed a formidable team in planning platform and finances for the general elections next year. Their joint chairmanship probably will be turned into a one-man job and given to Hohn Hare, 52-year-old former labor minister who took the sinecure post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the new cabinet.

OPINIONS DIFFER

Editorial reaction to the 60-year - old Home's cabinet ranged from "a good start" in the Conservative Daily Telegraph to "grotesque" in the pro-Labor Daily Mirror.

Most political commentators believe Macleod, by refusing office after winning an ovation at the recent Conservative party in Blackpool, staked an unspoken claim to the leadership if Home should falter.

Home's major innovation was to create a secretary for industry, trade and regional develop-

Labor Minister Demands Seamen End Walkout

Banks Leads Union In Protest Rally

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of seamen protesting government trusteeship over maritime unions began gathering on the green, multi lawns of Parliament Hill shortly before noon today.

The Liberal party was called into caucus at 12:45 p.m. EDT and the cabinet was scheduled to meet earlier.

Prime Minister Pearson and Labor Minister MacEachen conferred earlier.

Mr. MacEachen demanded that the Seafarers' International Union link and its "illegal" walkoff from ships.

The demand had no apparent effect. Union Leader Hal C. Banks was reported en route to Ottawa from Montreal in his white Cadillac to lead the protest marchers and to try to see Mr. MacEachen.

Banks' Critic Is Threatened

TORONTO (CP)—Murray Tate, a member of the Toronto and District Labor Council who called Hal Banks "a cancer in the body of labor," was threatened with death Sunday if he did not keep his mouth shut. Mrs. Tate answered the telephone and heard a voice say: "If you don't want to be a widow you better get your husband to shut up."

Union members arrived in the capital by train, bus and car but not in the numbers—7,000 to 9,000—predicted by the union. Some were tired and broke after long trips from Vancouver and The Lakehead.

WERE NO DISTURBANCES

There was no indication of any disturbance.

The SIU said the Canadian Labor Congress, which Sunday ruled out a private trusteeship plan after union officials met with the AFL-CIO, and Upper Lakes Shipping Company had "conspired to picture the SIU a "gangster-type" union.

The union declared that now it is clear that neither it was an orderly organization. Members were instructed to be "polite and respectful" and "not to co-operate with the RCMP on Parliament Hill.

Rumors swept among SIU members that the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC), chief rival of the SIU, planned a counter-demonstration. This was denied by the CLC.

Char es Collier of the freighter Glenely, tied up at Kingston, said that if trouble started it would be the CMU's fault.

SIU members were continuing to arrive at Union Station as the march to Parliament Hill moved through the Wellington Street gates in front of the Parliament Buildings.

TABULATE IMPACT

Meanwhile, an unofficial tabulation of the impact of the SIU

OTTAWA (CP)—Hal C. Banks stood on the steps of Parliament Hill today and told a roaring, cheering crowd of seamen that he wants them to impress on members of Parliament their demands for justice.

The burly boss of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada got an overwhelming welcome from the mass of demonstrating seamen who descended on Ottawa today in response to Banks' call for a protest march against the government proposal to clamp a trusteeship on the SIU and four other maritime unions.

As he made his way through the throng, a chant of "we want Banks, we want Banks" erupted.

Labor Minister MacEachen has called illegal the SIU walkout of walking off ships to March on Ottawa.

STAND ON STEPS

Banks walked slowly up the steps leading from the Parliament Hill lawn, turned and held up his hands to quiet the demonstrators.

"You look real good," he called. "Real good."

When asked by reporters whether he was going to see Prime Minister Pearson, the SIU chief replied:

"I'm not here to see anyone except my people."

Asked whether he had received a telegram from Labor Lakes Shipping Company asking the SIU to end "illegal strike action," he said he had received no telegram.

He told the crowd:

"Now, go to the signs which

Macmillan Will Retain Commons Seat

LONDON (Reuters) — Former prime minister Harold Macmillan said today he intends to remain a member of the House of Commons during the next Parliament and would make a decision about his future in the new year.

The 69-year-old statesman, in hospital recovering from a prostate operation, told this to Aldermen Ralph Allen, chairman of Bromley, Kent, Conservative Association. Macmillan represents Bromley in Parliament.

U.S. and Mexican Customs Agents Foil Smugglers of Ammunition

ROMA, Tex. (AP) — An apparently carefully - planned effort to smuggle arms into Mexico failed during the weekend as American and Mexican customs agents seized 125,000 rounds of ammunition, several guns, six persons and nine cars.

Officials on both sides of the Rio Grande were still piecing together the international story.

U.S. customs poct investigator Norman Busseimer pulled his car onto the International Bridge between Hidalgo, Tex., and Reynosa, Mexico, Saturday to block the path of a heavily loaded sedan.

Agents found 45,036 rounds of .22- to .38-calibre ammunition, a .38-calibre revolver and a .300 semi-automatic rifle in the vehicle. Three persons were charged with violating the U.S. National Munitions Control Act.

Ninety minutes later, Mexican customs agents halted a sedan in Cerralvo, Mexico, about 50 miles south of the Rio Grande. They held two men for questioning and found about 45,000 rounds of ammunition hidden in the car.

About six hours after the first seizure, another car — exactly like that halted at Hidalgo was searched as it headed for Ciudad Miguel Aleman, Mexico, through this border village. Officers arrested a man and seized 97,850 rounds of .22- to .38-calibre ammunition, two .38 special automatic pistols, a 410-gauge shotgun, a 12-gauge shotgun and four rifle scopes.

Integration of Armed Forces In Canada May Be in Cards Robert Temple Tells Meeting

(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer)

NEW YORK — High-ranking United States generals and admirals praised a former army private from Hastings County after they heard his message from in a Canadian government here Sunday.

The tradition of ties of friendship between Canada and the U.S. were reaffirmed by Mr. Robert Temple, Liberal member of Parliament for Hastings South speaking to the Military Order of the World Wars.

Mr. Temple, in his address to the New York Chapter of the distinguished Order at a luncheon in the Plaza Hotel on the occasion of the 43rd annual blessing of the Colors ceremony deplored the dissension that has arisen in certain quarters of both Canada and the U.S.

"This dissension," he said, "can only aid and comfort our communist antagonists and if left unchecked can do irreparable harm to the cause of western democracy."

Mr. Temple, as a member of the defence committee of the Canadian Parliament mentioned in his remarks that his country was undergoing a reappraisal of its defence policy. He assured his audience that this did not mean that Canada meant in no way to change or alter its policy of its fullest support of NATO and NORAD. "Only by associating ourselves in a community of free men could Canada pursue its ideas of peace and freedom in a safe and proper manner," he said.

MOBILE FORCE URGED

Mr. Temple told the gathering that in his view, Canada would best be served by having a highly mobile, highly trained, heavily armoured force based such as the U.S. Marine Corps.

"This force", he stated," would be available to NATO and also the United Nations in its operations."

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Temple spoke of the necessity of a complete co-operation of the armed forces of Canada. (Informed sources here took this remark to mean that the integration of the Canadian Armed Forces might be in the cards.) When questioned on this point, Mr. Temple stated that it was "a difficult course to follow in respect of integration of the armed forces", but that the economic factors involved together with the increased efficiency of such a move would be well-justified.

In closing Mr. Temple stated that it was a great pleasure for him to address such a distinguished company of high-ranking American generals and admirals not only as a member of the Canadian Parliament and in his defence committee but also as an ex-Private of the Canadian Infantry Corps (Western Sea Frontier, vice chairman of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations military staff committee; Rear Admiral Robert M. Barnum, U.S. Naval Reserve, commander of the New York Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars; Lieut. General Harrison E. Davidson, U.S. Army Commanding General First United States Army).

MANY DIGNATORIES

Honorable Paul S. Screvane, president of the council representing Mayor Wagner of New York; Col. Walter F. Layer, United States Marine Corps, Commanding Officer Marine Barracks, U.S. Naval Base, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Rev. William Frances Gibbs, president Gibbs and Cox, leading U.S. shipbuilding engineering designers; admiral Joseph J. Clark, U.S. Navy retired, "Commander of the Fleet in World War"; Lieut. General Leslie R. Groves, U.S. Army retired, "father of the Atomic bomb"; Lieut. General William E. Hall, U.S. Air Force, retired; rear admiral Gordon McIntosh, Superintendent U.S. Merchant Marine Academy Kings Point, Long Island, N.Y.; rear admiral Schuyler N. Pyne, U.S. Navy; vice admiral Charles Wellborne, U.S. Navy retired.

During the parade of the Massing of the Colors of all U.S. Armed Forces and many patriotic societies Mr. Temple was seated on the reviewing stand in front of the Plaza hotel with the distinguished military men. He standed with them down Fifth Avenue to St. Thomas' Church where they participated in the traditional ceremony.

Leaves Set Afire, Left Unattended

The city's fire department was called to the corner of Foster Ave. and Bridge St. this morning to extinguish a pile of leaves that had been set afire and left unattended.

Chief Gerald Vance said this morning, "we are getting several calls a day on people who are burning leaves on the street and there is nothing we can do about it, unless it constitutes a fire hazard, and if it does we will extinguish it. There just isn't anything we can do about burning of leaves.

Ald. Jack Ellis To Be Candidate For Mayoralty

City elections are still more than a month away but already there is a candidate for the office of mayor. A school trustee from Toronto said here Saturday.

William Ross, speaking to the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association, criticized trustees for making a perpetuation in office a major goal, rather than action to benefit children.

"It is an anachronism that in the main, the school trustee is one of the stumbling blocks to educational progress," said Mr. Ross.

Too often we find our colleagues ready, nay eager, to accept the bromides and the truisms of the day as the basis of rational policy-making."

59 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 59 persons died in accidents throughout Canada during the weekend. Forty-one were traffic victims.

Seven persons drowned and seven died in unclassified accidents.

There were also two fire victims and two hunting deaths.

Quebec reported the highest toll with 22 mishaps. Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday local time to midnight EDT Sunday showed. Thirteen were killed in traffic accidents, three in an explosion, two in a plane crash, two drowned, one in a fire and another in a train accident.

Ontario followed closely with 21 deaths, 15 of them on the highways. Four persons drowned, one died in a lake and a man died from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The survey does not include known slayings or suicides, industrial and natural deaths.

School Trustees Said Roadblocks To Education

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — School trustees are one of the roadblocks to educational progress in Ontario, a school trustee from Toronto said here Saturday.

Since his election to council in the fall of 1958, Alderman Ellis has served on most council committees, including the two years chairman of the special sewer committee, which did much of the spade work and planning for the city's new sewage disposal system.

Alderman Ellis said, if elected, he would work for aggressive leadership and implementation of the city's resources.

He believes the city has a definite need for low cost housing, for more roads and bridges and for new industry.

A native of Campbellford, he came to Belleville in 1948 and has been with Wilson Concrete for the past eight years.

Woman Driver Rolls Car Over On Cloverleaf

A 39-year-old woman driver suffered back injuries today when her automobile rolled over on the Highway 401 Cloverleaf at Highway 14.

Police say Mrs. I. Cormack of Toronto, lost control of the car as it rounded the south ramp of the cloverleaf.

Her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. Gendron, also of Toronto, were treated for minor injuries.

Damage to the vehicle was extensive. The accident occurred about 10 a.m.

United Appeal Residential Canvass Starts

Isn't it time for residents of this city to take stock of themselves and their blessings?

And in the taking to remember there are many others not so fortunate; who need help through no fault of their own.

It is reported that the response thus far to the United Appeal is well below that anticipated by the general committee.

Starting tonight through to Friday, October 25th, the residential phase of the campaign gets under way.

Hard-working canvassers will call at your home. Please greet them courteously — and with as large a donation as you can afford.

The success of the campaign depends a lot on what you—and you — give when the canvasser calls.

Do not greet them with promises. Remember they can not call again. Please have your donations ready.

The objective for the various United Appeal agencies is $85,000. The present rate of response indicates that this objective will be reached.

The organizations which derive assistance from Appeal funds are all worthy ones, which is appreciated and needed by many less fortunate residents of the city.

If any of these agencies were forced to suspend operations or curtail, even for certain operations, many people in the city would suffer as a result.

The United Appeal is an organized primarility to reduce the number of financial campaigns. It was believed that one organization raising a large sum, would do it more efficiently and successfully than many organizations running their own individual campaigns.

The Belleville United Appeal has lumped many campaigns into one. It does not include all city charities in its campaign, but it does eliminate its member agencies which would in total involve a lot more time and money than is spent on the one United Appeal Drive.

Belleville needs the United Appeal. When the canvasser, calls on you at work or at home, please remember that your one donation will be divided among many organizations, or given to the one you prefer.

J. C. LANCASTER
(Brockville)

Funeral services for James Carter Lancaster, formerly of this city, who died at Brockville on Thursday afternoon with Rev. L. B. Colquhoun of the First Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment was in the family plot in Oakland Cemetary at Brockville.

Mr. Lancaster, retired railway conductor died Monday evening at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital following a brief illness. He was 70.

He was born in Lancaster, England, Oct. 30, 1893, a son of the late William Lancaster and his wife, the former Elizabeth Carrick. He came to Canada in 1913 and had resided in the Belleville district, coming to Brockville 14 years ago. He worked with the CNR for over 45 years, retiring Oct. 30, 1956.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Brockville, the Loyal Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Belleville Lodge 1000 and the Royal Canadian Legion No. 96, and of the Sergeants' Mess of Brockville Armouries. He served overseas during World War I with the 21st Battalion and Signal Corps, Canadian Engineers, and was wounded and returned home after four years overseas.

He is survived by his wife, the former Evelyn Empey, and by a daughter and son from his former marriage, Mrs. Reginald Lay of Toronto and George E. Lancaster, of Belleville. He was predeceased by a brother some years ago. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

JOHN HILLIER

The funeral of John Hillier was held from the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien to St. Michael's Church on Saturday morning. Rev. F. Cardy celebrated the Mass and Rev. A. J. P. Sullivan officiated at the graveside in St. James cemetery.

The bearers, all nephews were: Joseph and Gerald Conserveaux, Raymond Ryan, Douglas Kingsman, Jack and Leon and Hillier.

MRS. EDWARD ETHIER

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Ethier was held from the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien, to St. Michael's Church on Saturday morning. Rev. T. Boyle celebrated the Mass, also the graveside prayers at the St. James' cemetery.

There was a large attendance and floral and spiritual offerings were many and varied.

The bearers, all grandsons, were: Terry Ethier and Jerry Ethier, Ted Hurst, Doug Morgan and Jack Wardhaugh.

JAMES CULLODEN

The funeral of James Culloden was held Saturday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home, where service was conducted by Rev. E. F. Smith. Interment was in the Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were: Jerry Farra, Larry Lagoutte, C. Lagoutte, Ted Warwick and Ron and Kenneth Culloden.

MRS. EDWARD A. NORMAN
Millbridge

In failing health for several months and seriously ill for the past month, Mrs. Mary Hazel Norman, general store operator at the village of Millbridge for the past 21 years, died at her residence on Sunday. She was in her 67th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis O'Rourke, she was born in Madoc township, and attended school there and in Millbridge. She was a member of the United Church and also belonged to the L.O.B.A. No. 409 at Millbridge. She was well known and highly respected in the district.

Pre-deceased by her husband, Edward A. Norman, she is survived by two sons, John Arthur Norman and William E. Norman, both of Millbridge, six grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Also surviving are four brothers, John O'Rourke of Hepworth, Francis O'Rourke of Queensboro; William Evans of Fayetteville, N.Y., and Clifford Evans of Queensboro, and one sister, Mrs. Sarah O'Rourke of Brighton. One sister and one brother pre-deceased her.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the Mac. Kenzie Funeral Home at Madoc

Interment was in Thomasburg Cemetery.

Bearers were: Ed Sherwin, Stanley Norman, Neal Wilson, Pat Buckley, Will Buckley and Bill Scott.

Following a lengthy illness Mr. Davidson died at his residence at R.R. 1 Roslin on Sunday, October 13th. He was in his 90th year.

Born in Rockwood, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Davidson. When health permitted he was employed as a farmer being the husband of the former Ruth Brown.

He had lived in that locality for the past 35 years residing before in Wallbridge Corners. He was a member of Roslin United Church.

Surviving in his wife, six daughters, Mrs. Clayton (Thelma) LaFontaine of Wilkesdale; Mrs. Clarence (Evelyn) Chambers of Corbyville; Mrs. Murney (Fern) Gibson of Belleville; Mrs. Charlie (Edna) Edgar of Belleville; Mrs. Allan (Mary) Gibson of Plainfield; Mrs. Angus (Lorraine) Haight of Wallbridge and two sons, Carman at home and Corporal Perry Davidson of Edgar, Ont.

Also surviving are two sisters, and two brothers, Mrs. William (Jane) Allan of Thomasburg; Mrs. Edward (Mary) Harkness of Orono; William of Millbrook and Thomas of Cavan.

CMU Members Also Moving On Ottawa

TORONTO, (CP) — William Dodge, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Sunday several members of the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC) plan to converge on Ottawa today.

However, he denied that any demonstration was considered to counter the march to Ottawa by the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.).

Mr. Dodge made his comments in a telephone interview from Beauport, Que., with The Globe and Mail.

"We would have preferred no publicity on this," he said.

"We certainly will not permit any clash with the SIU demonstration. We do know what the CMU men will do when they get to Ottawa. They may just talk to us and go home."

The CMU and SIU, bitter union enemies, will both be affected by the government's trusteeship over maritime unions.

No Lessening In Demand For Wheat

OTTAWA (CP) — Returning from a week in Europe, Trade Minister Sharp said Sunday night there has been no lessening in demand there for Canadian wheat.

He said he made the trip in view of concern among traditional Canadian customers over the record Russian wheat sale.

"We assured them that we are doing everything possible to see that they get their regular supplies this year," he said.

But would they? asked a reporter.

"I hope so," said the minister. He said he found the European grain interests were relieved at the settlement of the St. Lawrence longshoremen's strike, which threatened to halt grain exports.

However, he said he had just left the confinement when word came of the walkout by the dockfarers' International Union of Canada.

Talking with grain traders, Mr. Sharp said, he learned that the demand for wheat in the Soviet Union is likely to continue beyond the end of the current crop year expiring July 31.

The record sale of 227,500,000 bushels of wheat and flour to the Soviet Union covered only up to July 31 although Mr. Sharp has said more might be sold before then if Canada's supply lines could lay it down at dockside.

Peterborough Man, Winner Of $150,000 in Sweeps, Nearly Threw Receipt Away

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nineteen Canadians from Dartmouth, N.S., to Victoria, B.C., won more than $2,400,000 Saturday when their tickets in the last Irish Sweepstakes of the year paid off on the first three horses in the Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, England.

Six Canadians won top prizes of about $150,000 each on Commander-in-Chief, winner of the English racing classic. Two of them were from Vancouver.

Sixty-year-old Arnold Hewitt of Peterborough rushed home from work when told that he had won $150,000. Then he quietly sat down when he remembered he had almost threw the ticket stub away.

He said that when he received his official receipt for his ticket, number NAK 33742 and named Zetta, he threw his temporary receipt away.

"Something made me pick up the paper," Mr. Hewitt said. "When I opened it I found the ticket stub inside."

LIKED NAME

An employee for 19 years in a factory that produces a chocolate drink, Mr. Hewitt said there was "something about the name of the horse" that made him think he'd be a money-winner.

He said he hasn't decided how to spend the money, but is happy living in his comfortable two-storey duplex home with his wife.

Five Canadian tickets were drawn on Principal, the horse which placed second to provide prizes of about $60,000 each, but one ticket was in the name of Mrs. Victoria residents under the joint nom-de-plume of Winifred Hasty Cloud, Cambridgeshire favorite who finished third.

In all, 364 Canadian tickets were drawn on the 86 horses eligible for the race. Only 22 started, and holders of tickets on the 20 who ran out will collect prizes of $1,000 each. Holders of tickets on the non-starters will get smaller consolation awards, bringing the total Canadian earnings to more than $1,500,000.

MILKMAN MISSES

Milkman Ubald Bellefeuille of St. Francois de Lotbiniere, Que., who had two tickets drawn in an unprecedented freak at luck, ended up as one of the consolation winners. One of his horses, Cocky Boy, was not among the acceptors, and the other, Early to Rise, suffered a coughing fit and was scratched on Wednesday.

Most of the top winners who were available for comment during the day stressed the security aspect of their windfalls. A number ran for cover, including a 33-year-old Ottawa bachelor, army Sergeant W. J. McCormick, a $150,000 winner. His neighbors commented that they hoped he would be able now to buy a new battery for his red sports car, which they have been helping to push for recent days.

$150,000 winner Frank G. Leck of Dartmouth, N.S., said he plans to quit his job and live life easy.

"I never thought much about winning it," said Mr. Leck, an aircraft fitter at Fairey Aviation Limited. "I'm going to take it easy for a while."

Among the more nonchalant reactions was that of Montreal printing shop foreman Tom Hunt, a $30,000 winner, who said "it was better than winning golf games."

H. A. Edgar, Weston, Ont., accountant who was the only big winner in the Metropolitan Toronto area, also took the news calmly. Mrs. Edgar said her 19-year-old daughter, Ann, had asked her parents to buy an automatic dishwasher with their winnings and "I think I'll go along with that."

SECURITY IMPORTANT

The two Vancouver first-place winners were Mrs. Olga Bushby, whose husband, father of two and grandfather of one, is a $350-a-month orchid salesman, and William Lewis, an electrical company employee. Mr. Bushby, who had been buying sweepstakes tickets for 20 years, said generosity means a great deal, especially at my age," and added that he plans to continue working.

Mr. Lewis, who earns $120 a week, said: "I'm taking off with my wife and two kids right away. I don't know where we'll go but we're going . . . and I don't know when we'll be back."

Another 30-year-old buyer of sweepstakes tickets, was Mrs. Agnes Gauthier of Brunaby, B.C., who won $60,000. Her only immediate plan was to pay off the mortgage on the Gauthier home.

In Calgary, $30,000 winner Mrs. George Cannon said the first thing she and her automobile mechanic husband plan is to become "debt-free."

Premier Robarts Officially Opens Vocational Wing At Trenton High School

TRENTON. — Premier John P. Robarts of Ontario wishes someone would "dream up" some other name for his electrical equipment than "vocational education plan than "The Robarts Plan."

"It doesn't please him very much" to have the plan referred to as exclusively his, and he said so at the officials opening ceremonies for the new vocational wing at Trenton High School Sunday afternoon.

"This plan was the product of a great many other men's minds," said the premier, "I just happened to be there to give the plan a push."

Upwards of 800 Trenton citizens met in the auditorium at the school yesterday to hear Rev. J. G. Clancy of St. Peter's Church and Canon K. F. Blachford dedicate the new part of the building and to take part in the ceremonies. Program chairman was T. S. Ketcheson, 1963 chairman of the Trenton School Board and building chairman with the board, when the million and a - quarter dollar wing was first conceived.

Premier Robarts told the assembly that the federal government's offer to pay back 75 per cent of construction and equipment costs to the Ontario government for vocational schools, had prompted the provincial education heads to go ahead with plans for some $41 new technical schools and additions to existing schools. Beginning next year the cost has been borne by the provincial government and these schools have, in effect, cost the municipalities nothing at all.

The new wing has added more than 20 rooms to the school and has increased the student capacity from 1,000 to 1,500.

NOT ENOUGH VARIETY

Premier Robarts said that the recession of four years ago and an alarming rise in school drop outs had brought the provincial educators to the realization that not enough variety was being offered to students at high school level . . . hence the crash program for vocational schools.

Ontario Scholarships, (Trenton students collected three this year) had taken away the student feeling that "it wasn't smart to be smart," the Premier said.

"The whole field of student aid has become big business," said Mr. Robarts, "Last year, we helped 11,000 students to the tune of $4,000,000."

Going past the high school level, the Premier said that during the period from 1960 to 1970 his government would have done three times as much for the building field as had been done in the entire history of the province up to 1960. He said that 35,000 Ontario students were now attending university and by 1970, three times this number would be enrolled.

To get the staff for these universities, the province has instituted a program, which is "unique" in Canada and possibly in North America, (to quote Mr. Robarts,) whereby the government provides would-be university teachers with a $1,500 a year living allowance, ($2,000, if the student continues his studies throughout the summer.) This program attracted 900 young people last year.

The future?

Mr. Robarts said that the government is now trying to assess the effect automation will have on future generations. Some experts say that workers may have to change their occupation two or three times during their lifetime and training programs must be provided.

DREW PLAUDITS

At yesterday's meeting, the high school glee club drew plaudits from Premier Robarts. One member, "You've got to be a football hero," reminded him, he said, of, Western Mustangs' 52 to 19 Saturday win over the Toronto U team. Mr. Robarts once played for the Mustangs.

Mayor MacDonald tendered a civic welcome, and assured the Premier that he had personally "fixed" the weather for the school opening.

King Street United Church Project Success

TRENTON — Once a year, all able - bodied members and children at King Street United Church pitch in to raise money to swell the building fund. This year's Saturday, all - day effort, was dubbed Project '63, and with the cheerful sale, run by the young people's group, turkey dinner for upwards of 200, and an all-day visit to the various booths, made the church parlors and grounds surrounding the building the busiest place in town.

This year's convener was Mrs. Douglas Steinberg. All the United Church Women units got in on the dinner preparations. Men from the AOTS club ran the fruit and vegetable market and the girls, the "Explorers," and the "Messengers," tended booths. Mrs. Walter Wrightman was in charge of the home baking table; Mrs. Ralph Weaver arranged the rummage sale.

Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Perry ran a very successful sale of beauty aids and draws were won by Mrs. R. W. Wilkins and Miss Ruth Little.

CAMPAIGN CLOSED

Robert Ransom and Elmer Bonter, 1963 chairman of the Canadian Cancer drive for funds in Trenton, report that $3,636.90 has been raised. With the campaign definitely ending the end of this month, this is 73.9 per cent of the objective . . . $6,000.

Believed Man Drowned Near Barcovan Beach

TRENTON—Provincial police at Brighton today resumed dragging operations for the body of James Childs of Toronto, presumed drowned in the waters off Barcovan Beach, south east of Brighton.

Dragging was instigated Sunday afternoon on the heels of a report from a commercial fisherman, Roland Cooper of Brighton, that he had found an unmanned 40-horse powered motor boat travelling in wide circles a mile off the shores of the beach. Mr. Childs, a 40-45-year-old cottager, had been seen to start off in the boat Sunday morning. An RCAF helicopter was called in to assist the search.

STEW BUENS DRY

A pot of stew on the stove and a telephone visit to a neighbor added up to a headache for Mrs. Maurice Waters of Victoria Ave. Sunday afternoon. The stew burned dry and fire spread to the wall behind the stove. Firemen report damage to the wall and ceiling and smoke damage amounting to an estimated $300. A cash collection was used to clear the building of the smell of burning meat.

Two Stolen Cars Recovered Over Weekend

TRENTON — Two cars stolen in the Trenton area Saturday night were recovered before the weekend was out. Ontario Provincial Police from Brighton Sunday found abandoned on Highway 401 a car stolen during the night from Colin Crews of R.R. 1 Trenton.

A car owned by Hugh James St. Hilaire, of R.R. 2 Trenton was stolen between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. Saturday, from its parking spot on Dundas St. E., Trenton. Shortly after the theft was reported, Provincial Police from Belleville reported to Trenton police that the car had been involved in an accident at Gilmour. One man, thought to have been the driver of the car, was taken to Bancroft hospital, and Trenton police now hold a warrant for his arrest. Another person ran off from the stolen car after the accident and has not yet been located.

KILLS BABY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 22-year-old babysitter has been charged with murder after police said she drowned an eight-month-old baby in the toilet of a downtown bar. Officers said Mrs. Glenda Mae Yarber of Roseville, Ark., admitted holding the baby's head under the water Friday until the little girl was moving and then going to a movie.

Two Private Cars and Taxi In Collision

TRENTON — A collision between two private cars and a taxi, Saturday afternoon, on Dundas St. East, sent a 17-year-old Belleville area girl to Trenton Memorial hospital, suffering from an injury to her left knee. Patricia Evans of R.R. 1, Belleville, was treated in the emergency ward and allowed to go home. Her young brother, Christopher, nine, was treated for a sprained neck. Both were passengers in a car driven by 19-year-old Ronald Rushnell of 169 College St., Belleville. Driver of the other car involved was Victor McMurray of 9 Johnson Rd., Trenton and the Graham's taxi was driven by Donald Haviland of 11 Ramsay St., Trenton. Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $300.

Douglas Rushnell, the operator of Rushnell Ambulance, and a driver on the scene, was aware of the fact that his younger brother was one of the persons involved in the accident, until he arrived on the scene.

Austrian Jews Protest Low Compensation

TORONTO (CP)—A meeting of 120 Austrian Jews now living here formed a committee Sunday to protest to the Austrian government compensation Austria is offering victims of Nazi persecution.

"It's ridiculous, an insult," said Jack Kurlandski, 46, a garment manufacturer.

He received $236 as compensation for the death of his father and mother, the loss of his home and business, and two years in an internment camp.

Speakers at the meeting charged that the varying cash amounts are hopelessly inadequate and far lower than compensation being paid German Jews by West Germany.

They claimed also that the Austrian government is hampering claims by requiring detailed information and proof of ownership that it almost impossible to obtain.

Guidance Needed

Hon. Paul Martin, Canada's suave minister of external affairs, has described South Africa's racial policies as "abhorrent and degrading and offensive to human dignity," but has opposed expelling South Africa from the United Nations.

Some may regard these views as contradictory. However, we consider Mr. Martin right on both counts. South Africa should not be expelled from the United Nations, for the very good reason that the more deplorable a country's policies may be the greater is the necessity that it be kept in close contact with other members of the family of nations so that it can be kept constantly aware of their disapproval. Nations ought not to be excluded from the U.N.—they ought to be compelled to join it.

The reasons which can be arrayed in support of Mr. Martin's stand against expulsion of South Africa from the U.N. do not provide equally powerful support for his added opposition to the imposition of sanctions against that nation. It is possible to make an impressive case for the application of such economic pressure. It is, however, one thing to say that sanctions are against expulsion—"it would make it even more difficult to persuade the white population of South Africa to seek a way out of their present untenable position and could conceivably intensify the difficulties of the non-white population"—and to recommend against sanctions.

Most Canadians, we suggest, will be willing to accept the Government's judgment that official sanctions are not advisable. But many of these same citizens will dislike the thought that they may be supporting apartheid through their purchase of South African products and will impose their own private sanctions, passing by South African products when they are shopping. Some of the more thoughtful, though, would appreciate knowing the effect of their boycott, and that of like-minded people in Canada and in other countries throughout the world. Is it hitting the pocket-books of white South Africans—or is it merely making it even more difficult for the black and colored South Africans to obtain work under decent conditions and at reasonable wages? Amongst all the vocal opponents of apartheid, surely there must be some possessed of a sufficiently intimate knowledge of the South African economy to provide needed information. At present would-be boycotters can only be guided by the fact that Bantu organizations have urged a boycott, even though it may hurt the natives. This appeal is understandable, but in their desperation the blacks may be pleading for a medicine which is more deadly than the disease.

Another Defeat

Gen. Chung Hee Park has been elected president of South Korea. The U.S. pressed for this election. The net result has been to place on the rightist General the stamp of approval of an election (probably rigged.)

The West has not been fortunate in its allies in South Korea. Old Syngman Rhee was difficult for a democrat to defend. General Park is even less amiable.

The same holds true in South Vietnam, with Madame Nhu and her male colleagues being hardly less appealing with the veteran Communist Ho Minh.

In fact, wherever the West has successfully resisted communist penetration her native allies have left much to be desired.

One wonders whether this can be wholly explained as a series of unhappy coincidences or whether, as in Bruening's Germany, the rising power of the radical left inevitably vomits up into the seats of power the most hideous representatives of the reactionary right.

Shared language serves not to minimize the differences between two countries, but to accentuate and exaggerate them. We go to a foreign country expecting that the manners of its people will be as different from ours as their language is. We go to a country that speaks our own tongue and are thrown into a far more immediate contact with its citizens. On one level we understand them too easily and too well, on another we hardly begin to understand the limits we have imposed upon them for a considerable time.—Australian writer Charles Osborne.

We teach young people that historical analogies are misleading. This is a pity because they can be useful. Of course a historical analogy can be dangerous if it is handled wrongly, but then so can an element or an electric eye.—Peter Calvocoressi, writer on international affairs.

Calls Logic Fine Servant, Poor Master

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A college student in Wisconsin writes to suggest hat I should stress the great need for "logic" in all areas of thinking. He feels a formal logic course last semester, and was dismayed at the confusion by the precision and economy of this intellectual tool.

I recalled my own similar introduction to the elegant simplicities of formal logic more than a quarter-century ago. After learning about the "undistributed middle term," the various fallacies, the real differences between "contraries" and "contradictories," I wanted to make logic a compulsory course for all students everywhere.

My instructor, however, was wiser than I. He knew all too well the limitations of formal thought. "A logic course is ill-suited to the young," he said sadly. "It's in their basic assumptions that most people go wrong, not in their reasoning processes."

It took me a long time to appreciate the truth in this modest disclaimer of his subject. I was infatuated with the idea that if only people could be made to understand the syllogism and the principles of legitimate deduction, most of the world's emotional thinking would disappear.

He was perfectly right, of course. Logic is to thought as Euclid is to A to B to C; but it cannot by itself explain the Pythagorean or the truth of A. And most of the basic controversies of mankind begin from different starting points that cannot be verified in logic.

The writers of the Declaration of Independence, for instance, held certain truths to be "self-evident"—that all men are created equal and endowed by their Creator with inalienable rights, such as life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Now, "self-evident" means incapable of proof. You either see it, or you don't. If you don't, no "proof" can ever make it evident to you. There is no logic in the world that can convince you, no argument on a strictly rational basis that can demonstrate the "truth" of this belief.

Such convictions are "supra-rational." They lie beyond reason in the inner core of us, or they strike no response whatever. If two disputants have diametric-opposite views about the nature of man, both may proceed with utter logic and reach out to life completely different conclusions. Like a mathematical equation, there is no room in the end than you start with in the beginning.

Logic makes a fine servant, but a poor master. It can be used to "prove" almost any view, so long as its basic premise is accepted. What must be about one another is, ultimately, more important than how they think.

Erasmus Last To Know All

Windsor Star

If memory serves us correctly, the last man in the world Erasmus was the last man in the world to know everything that there was to be known. After his time, knowledge increased at such a pace that no one person could encompass it all.

Nowadays, of course, Erasmus would be regarded as a very ignorant man. He lacked even the virtue of specialization, which presumes that unless the ability to learn more and more about less and less. His knowledge was all-round, general. Even if he knew everything there was to be known, he really didn't know much.

For modern man to imitate Erasmus is hopeless. There's just too much to know. But there is some hope. We can all try to find out where to find the facts. The educated man can't know all the facts, but he can know where to find them. So back to the reference book.

Oh, yes. Erasmus, if our reference books serve us correctly, lived from about 1466 to 1536. He travelled in England, wrote a book, and was a close neighbor, alphabetically if not chronologically, of Erastratus, a physician of ancient Greece, and Erastus, a Zwinglian theologian. Which should show our office almanac as a sort of superior 20th century Erasmus.

"For Pete's sake, Sid — She's only asking you to smile for a twenty-fifth of a second."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 21st, 1913.

With practically the entire personnel from No. 5 I.T.S. base of the R.C.A.F. in competition a cross country run of two and one-half miles was completed with Sergt. Connors romping home to top the remarkable time of 15 minutes flat. The course included natural barriers north and west of No. 5 I.T.S. base and 800 took part in the competition.

Business colleges students, saleshelp in local stores and personnel of the R.C.A.F. at No. 5 R.D. combined their energies here Wednesday to alleviate acute shortage of labor at the Stokely VanCamp canning factory, where hundreds of tons of corn would have spoiled but for the volunteering to assist in canning operations.

Lifting of the quarantine at the Trenton Air Station, where airmen had been retained in the district because of the threat of infantile paralysis, was responsible for the shortage of labor at the canning factory. "I cannot express too fully my appreciation to the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and to those who assisted at the plant in the emergency," stated Mr. Maxwell, canning plant superintendent, to a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer."

30 YEARS AGO

Picton lost the Ontario Intermediate B. baseball championship when defeated at Guelph by the Southampton Fishermen by a score of 8 to 2. The game was played in wretched weather. In referring to the game Ken Colling, Sports Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer says: "Defeated but in no sense disgraced is the lot of the Yarmouth managed crowd. They were from nowhere and forced the champions into a three game series for the championship title and as Andrew H. Brown would say, "Ain't that sumpin'"? To show their appreciation of the season's showing of their team, the citizens of Picton will tender the ball team a banquet on the evening of October 27, at which many baseball notables will be present. Mayor of the business and professional men of Prince Edward County, the baseball fans in Ontario were able to listen to a running radio account of the first half of the game given impartially by Wes McKnight of radio station CKCL, Toronto. The second half which was well described by Geo. H. Carver. In this connection Ken Colling says, "in a previous column we forgot to congratulate George Carver, sports editor of the Picton Gazette on his broadcasting efforts. George is an excellent sports columnist, or

Acrid View Of Acronyms

The Portland Oregonian

We are as much opposed to litter as anybody. But we do wish a new organization, supported by industry and the governors of Oregon and Washington, had chosen a different name.

The organization, formed to halt the growing menace of litter in the northwest, is called: CLEAN. A state committee for Litter Elimination Around the Northwest.

Next to litter and some other menaces, such as the growing use of numbers instead of names and addresses, cute acronyms disturb us most. An acronym is a word formed of the initial letters of the major parts of a compound term — "snafu" for instance.

One of the earliest examples of the building of words to survive at a clever acronym is WAVES. The army was satisfied with WAC, a feminine Regular Army of World War. But the navy had to go all out to arrive at WAVES. An objection anyone will agree that Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service is an extremely awkward title for a defence organization.

Since the war a growing tendency toward cute alphabetical contractions has been obvious. Some work pretty well, such as CARE. But it's time to draw the line. So far as we can proceed, CLEAN is the final straw.

Unless there is a reversal of this trend, we shall have to organize a People's League to Eliminate Acronyms and Similar Exorcrescences. We'll call it PLEASE!

Gives Pupils More to Do

Christian Science Monitor

The chancellor of a new division of the University of California — at Santa Cruz — has some pungent ideas about college life and college education. He thinks students should be given enough to do to assure that they will put education first.

Dr. Dean E. McHenry, the chancellor, says plan is ban either student-owned automobiles or undergraduate marriages at the institution now to be opened. But neither does he plan to encourage them. "We don't plan to provide parking spaces," he says, and there will not be any university housing for married undergraduates.

Both these topics can be subjects of endless argument. There are students who have a car as transportation is the means of going to college while living at home and working at a job without which college would be impossible. There are students, many, to whom a car is a plaything, a prestige item, a distraction from classes, and an invitation to tragedy on the highway.

The growing length of university courses, for example, graduate studies or professional schools to the baccalaureate has a real effect on the retirement in many occupations, has postponed marriage in many instances far beyond the period when it can be a normal age. In addition there is the factor of military service. Some of the young people have found that a settled companionship gave stability to their college years.

Indeed, some institutions have conferred mock degrees of "Pa." on those who combine work and wed to "put hubby through." But Dr. McHenry cites numerous cases where such arrangements have ended in divorce, with attendant feelings of injustice or disappointment as partners grew apart in interests.

Even with schedules designed to keep students studying and writing an extra five hours a day," the University of California at Santa Cruz chancellor will find that it does not have all the answers, but it may help supply some of them.

Subsidy for King

Antwerp Gazette

King Baudouin of Belgium received a $5 "encouragement subsidy" from Ostend when he put to sea in a fishing boat there. The city gives it to all fishermen who leave port during the week following the king's birthday. The king spent the weekend tossing his line into the water. Even if he didn't catch any fish, he's $5 to the good.

To Your Good Health

Aspect of Pain Important In Case of Cancer Patient

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes the threshold of pain to vary with individuals? What can a person do to increase it? — G. A.

Pain involves many factors — psychological, physical, and as well as physical. Only to a moderate degree can we tell why it varies from person to person.

The emotional response, however, is extremely important. A football player or a boxer often notices his bumps and bruises more afterward than when he is getting them. An old man has doesn't notice the harshness of the seat, but watch him squirm in church or when he has to study his lessons.

Pain in the middle of the night especially if we don't know what causes it, can be frightening and can seem to be twice as bad.

Watching a show, we may not notice irritation from our glasses, but sitting quietly, doing nothing, we may feel them pressing unnoticingly on the nose. And a host of other examples.

The aspect of pain becomes extremely important in the care of some cancer patients. Frequently when they learn the full truth, and become resigned to it, they bear the pain with little difficulty, yet it had seemed far worse when they were fighting it, and were worried and suspicious. Many such patients feel better when taking small doses of opium which relax their nerves and help them to relax mentally.

All surfaces of the body have pain fibres: eyes, nose, mouth, skin (although not the hair and hair). Internally some areas do and some don't have pain receptors. The lining of the stomach and of the chest (pleura), do, and so do blood vessels.

The type of stimulation alters the reaction. You can pull on your skin (such as your cheek) without pain, but the same pulling at the intestine would be painful. Yet cutting the skin hurts, but cutting into the wall of the intestine does not.

Pressure from within causes pain. An infection of the skin, and accompanying swelling may not hurt much. But a boil, or some infection below the surface can be very painful. Hits an abscessed tooth — because the pressure is confined and there is no "breathing room" for it. Even a pimple in tender areas where the tissues cannot expand can be excruciating.

I doubt that anything can be done to change the physiological sensitivity to pain, but understanding the cause, and knowing that the more you can put your mind on something else the more thereby suffer less, are very important ways to "raise your threshold."

The Indians used to bear all sorts of torture, bearing by their pride. But they can bowl as well as anyone if they bang a thumb or step on a thorn.

Vietnamese Buddhist priests, sitting in silence while letting themselves be burned, bring, in one more example, terrible as it is, of the immense ability of concentration and mind to withstand pain. Or take the pain of childbirth which terrifies a woman who is frightened, and is borne without a whimper by a woman who isn't afraid.

Pain is a complex experience, not wholly physical by any means.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does the pain from a blood test hurt the baby's eyes, especially if he is looking right at the camera? — M. R. T.

No. Light from the flash bulb does not contain harmfully short rays, and it is of very brief duration.

• • •

Note to H. T.: Yes, elastic stockings are generally helpful for varicose veins, but there are other recognized and effective treatment, such as ligation (tying of the vein) or stripping (removal of the vein).

Pioneer Poor Judge of Land

Windsor Star

Travellers through other parts of Ontario must wonder why so much of the land, now bare and virtually abandoned, ever was cleared in the first place. It never was designed to be fine farm land, and should never be covered by trees as it originally was.

Fact is, many of the first pioneers in Ontario were poor judges of land. They came from the hills of Ireland, the rocky lands of Scotland — and any land here looked good to them. There were others, with no rural background, who didn't know anything about soil at all.

It was something of a difficult, however, even for those with a knowledge of land to select suitable soil. It was usually a tree-covered. Some might be able to deduce, from the type of trees on the land, what kind of soil it was, but few had this knowledge.

Also, there was a tendency to settle 100-acre farm by 100-acre farm, back from the Lawrence and the Great Lakes. One settler might be lucky to draw a lot with good soil, but for a man a mile away got an inferior one.

Most of the original settlers were people who landed here with little, if any, money. They could not afford to go further and seek out the best soil. They had to take what was immediately available and accessible, and try to carve out a clearing to grow the first crop.

Some of the most intelligent got the poorest land. There was one group, which had money, which moved up to the Fenelon Falls area and settled on land that could scarcely support man or beast. They cleared it only to find by bitter experience it just couldn't make a decent livelihood off it.

The problem now is to get all such land back into forests. It will take a mighty great deal of land. As farm land it is a liability.

Young Face Temptations

Owen Sound Sun-Times

A woman doctor in Britain has suggested lowering the legal age for marriage to 14 as a means of reducing teenage promiscuity. Few will agree with the doctor that marriage at such an early age should be encouraged in any way. At the same time there is need for more than a casual dismissal of later teen-age marriages as certain to be beset by trouble and, ultimately, doomed. Though it must be admitted that, generally speaking, early marriages create serious problems, it is also possible they offer a solution to other social problems which are steadily increasing.

Life today offers the grim irony of, on one hand, frustrating natural biological reactions, and on the other, encouraging those instincts to a very high level in the spirit world. It is all very well for the moralist to coldly condemn a youthful disregard for the rules which society has placed on the relationships of the two sexes. But there is a much greater need for curbs on those public portrayals which are designed to stimulate and television screen which portray sexual freedom as the ultimate in personal happiness than the young people of past generations. No generation has been subjected to as great temptation. Yet, at the same time, in no generation has early marriage been discouraged to such an extent. Unfortunately the British woman doctor's concern at easy inter-sex relations at the early age of 14 is probably not a realistic than many believe.

'Buy Canadian' Is Difficult

Ottawa Journal

A housewife of our acquaintance says she would buy Canadian if she could.

"But it isn't always easy. The other day I was looking for a little girl's tweed coat, the kind with the velvet collar children wear here wearing as long as I can remember. The stores said they didn't have them any more because they were made in England, and the surtax made them too expensive. I asked why somebody in Canada didn't make them and the store people said that was a good idea because there is a big demand for them. Well why aren't they made in Canada? They could import the tweed if they have to but still cut the costs down. It's the same story when I go to buy a pair of shoes for myself. The good-looking ones always turn out to have been made in Italy or France. Maybe the best way for Canadian manufacturers to stop us buying imported things would be to import some good designers themselves."

Suggestion Que. Liberals Could Support Another Party In Federal Politics Defeated

By JOHN TORSTON

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage, speaking at the end of a Liberal party meeting which saw considerable sparks generated by English-French friction, promised Sunday the Quebec government will continue to treat the province's minorities well.

And to solid applause, he condemned acts of terrorists and extremists in the province.

Mr. Lesage was speaking at the close of the three-day annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation which approved a string of recommendations aimed at changing the functions of legislature members and civil servants.

The meeting also rejected, after 90 minutes of closely watched debate, a suggestion that would have allowed Quebec Liberals to support another party in federal politics.

The rejection was immediately followed by the public resignations from the party of a former Liberal candidate and his wife.

HANDS IN CARD

Pierre Leger, who run for the Commons in 1962 but refused to run in 1963 because he couldn't support the federal Liberals' nuclear policy, handed in his membership card to Francois Aquin, federation president.

Mr. Leger was among those who supported a constitutional change which would have opened the way for a Quebec Liberal to support another party in federal politics.

But the move was voted down, 332 to 155, though it had the support of Rene Levesque, Quebec's outspoken natural resources minister. A number of federal members were on hand, but did not speak.

Mr. Levesque said it is "artificial and unhealthy" to require a Quebec Liberal to support the party federally. There was more danger in rejecting the motion than in accepting it because it was blocking "normal evolution."

REPRESENTS ALL

Mr. Lesage, making his second speech of the meeting, said the Quebec government represents all the people of Quebec, whatever their language or religion. The government would not "give in to blackmail" from anyone.

"We will not permit provocations, especially if they come from some activist faction which believes that violence is the only way to change the course of events.

"These attitudes show a defeatism and a lack of confidence in democracy. Let those who say they speak for the people do so as we do—let them get themselves elected."

Some friction between English- and French-speaking delegates at the convention developed Saturday during debate on a demand that civil servants be allowed to join labor unions and have the right to strike.

Anthony Malcolm, an English-speaking delegate, said civil servants should have to go to compulsory arbitration and the right to strike should not be given "to some damn union leader."

A French-speaking member asked that Mr. Malcolm's remarks be translated, "not because I'm uneducated but because I'm proud first of all."

Mr. Malcolm rephrased his remarks in French for "M. Le Separatiste."

At the end of the sitting, when the suggestion had been adopted by a comfortable majority, a French-speaking delegate strode out saying:

"I'm not a separatist but I say that if any delegates can't speak French, let them shut their mouths."

The meeting adopted a series of resolutions, drafted by the political commission of the Liberal federation, demanding improvement and changes in the status of civil servants and legislature members.

In addition to recommending union membership, the federation said the civil service commission should be overhauled, that government employees should have the right to express themselves on political questions under certain conditions, that a special department be created to look after the growing requirements of the civil service.

Gulf and Guffaws

Hard Chewing

AZUSA, Calif. (AP)—Coming of age in Azusa is highlighted nowadaays by a newteen-age ritual that should bring joy to the hearts of anthropologists everywhere.

In this fast-spreading mystic rite, a girl who wants to show her love for a boy does so by weaving a garland that is as long as her beloved is tall.

She then offers the fruit of her labors to the boy, who warns the garland to signify his acceptance of the love token.

Observers and participants feel it is a touching, beautiful ceremony.

But one is most touched when one notes that the garlands are woven of old gum wrappers, that the girl has to chew all that gum by herself —144 pieces for a six-foot boyfriend, for instance.

If, by accident, the token, all that wear and tear on the mouth was for naught and the girl must wait for love to bloom anew. If the new boy is shorter than the last, she can lop a few links off the garland. If he's taller? Another chew or two.

Unwanted Tow

CLEVELAND (AP)—Fisherman Freeman A. Earl of East Cleveland hitched an unwanted ride in a 14-foot outboard motor boat alongside a fast-moving 350-foot foreign freighter in Lake Erie Sunday.

The big freighter towed Earl's small boat for a mile before the 32-year-old fisherman leaped into the water. He was rescued by other fishermen.

Recovered number of the freighter cut Earl's boat free. It was recovered 1½ miles away.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the freighter, the Norwegian ship Fernford of the Oslo Line, was going through an area a mile off Wildwood Park where about 75 small boats filled with fishermen were anchored.

Vaiont Dam Out of Service For Electricity

ROME (AP)—The ministry of public works has ruled that the Vaiont Dam, scene of the Oct. 9 north Italian flood disaster, will not be put back into service for the production of hydro-electric power.

The ministry says its decision assures that any future landslides from Mount Toc into the man-made reservoir will not imperil villages which are to be rebuilt on the site of flood-destroyed communities below the dam.

Belleville Chapter O.E.S. Holds Delightful Bazaar

A delightful fall tea and bazaar was held recently by the Belleville Chapter of the O.E.S. 55, in the Masonic Temple, Bridge Ave., under the convenorship of Mrs. Pearl Johnston, Past Matron, with Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, as co-convener.

The tea room was a bower of autumn colors, which rioted over the white picket fence and open gateway, while the long tea tables with its turkey pobbies in his riotous reds and golds, was a happy innovation. Even the little quartet guest tables bore out the autumn theme with their little golden dollies surrounded by a circlet of gaily colored maple leafs, centred by a tiny turkey.

Those who received were Mrs. Myrtle Cross; W.M. Mrs. Merle Simpson, wife of the worthy patron. The tea room hostesses were Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, P.M., Mrs. Muriel Smith, P.M. and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis.

PRESIDING

Those presiding at the silver service tables were Mesdames A. McMullen P.M.; P. Johnston, P.M.; A. Elliott, P.G.M.; I. Sine, Minerva Chapter; R. Brickman, D.D.G.M.; L. Pitt, P.M., and J. Adams, P.M.

Mrs. Nora MacDonald and Mrs. Margaret Bush convened the tea room; while the refreshment conveners were Mrs. Emily Stevens and Mrs. Annie Coombe.

In charge of the home cooking, which included delightful pastries, cakes, buns, pies, and cookies, were Mrs. Phyllis Berry and Mrs. Olive Whitehead, and assistants.

Those who convened the aprons, which were of many styles, materials, and colors, were Mrs. Jean Bell and Glenna Black and their assistants.

A grocery basket, filled to overflowing with good things, was in charge of Mrs. Bobbie Locke. Mrs. Irene McMartin and Mrs. Betty Yome.

The business girls also had a booth convened by Mrs. W. Tomlinson, assisted by Miss Mary Carmichael, Mrs. Emily Reid and Mrs. Florence Moon.

TEMPTING CANDIES

A candy booth, in charge of Mrs. Margaret Finnerty, Mrs. Clare Rushton, Mrs. C. Faulkner and Mrs. Bob Gill, drew many purchasers with its tempting sweets.

A men's booth was also in evidence, under the convenership of Mr. D. Simpson, Mr. D. Ellis, Mr. Percy Kerr and Mr. Bruce Simpson.

Miss Jennie Moon and Mrs. Nellie Armstrong received the tickets at the door.

A colorful and delightful bazaar and tea.

Canadian Women Overlook Career in Biological Work

By BRENDA-LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Many Canadian women are overlooking the opportunities and rewards of a career in the biological sciences.

This is the conclusion reached in a study of women in the field of biology by the federal labor department women's bureau.

The census listed only 260 women employed in occupations relating to biology. This includes both professional scientists and technicians, but not women in the teaching field.

The biological sciences include such varied studies as medicine, pharmacy, agriculture, forestry, pest control, wildlife management, food and nutrition and space travel.

One reason given for the comparatively small number of women in biological study is that for many the long period of preparation required for scientific work is likely to be interrupted by marriage and family responsibilities.

Also, many women tend to avoid honors courses in favor of three - year pass degree courses and are not sufficiently prepared for specialized biological work. Further, the labor department report suggests there is a lack of general information about careers in the field.

Among the many careers open to women are science editing of specialized periodicals, technical in-service work, teaching at the high school and university levels, and science library positions. But many are thinking of entering any of these professions would have to be prepared for thorough and sometimes lengthy academic work.

Marion V. Royce, director of the women's bureau, stresses that initial difficulties in a career in biology are outweighed by the girl's later challenges and rewards.

"We must present a well-rounded picture showing all the advantages and disadvantages of a career in biology, or we'd be unfair to our young people," says Miss Royce.

PATIENCE IS ASSET

"But the negative attitude that women just aren't capable of the lengthy study and sustained interest biology demands is the story of thinking which robs society of women's brains."

Women biologists can often be more successful than men, says the report. Skill with their hands and careful attention to detail make them well suited for intricate study of insects and plant research.

Male biologists interviewed by the department admitted women possess a goodly amount of patience" which helps them carry out involved research projects.

The report says that although it is often difficult for a woman to reconcile research work with family responsibilities, some aspects of biological research lend themselves well to part-time work, work at home or short-term employment.

It stresses the importance of interesting more students in the study of biology and cites the rapid growth of science fairs across the country as useful in encouraging more young women to enter the field.

Typical Look

By VERA WINSTON

The "Look" which is so typically American is beautifully illustrated here in a black and white herringbone wool tweed suit.

The jacket has a small collar faced in black wool jersey and a lining of the same.

The middy overblouse, shown with it, features set-in elbow-length sleeves. The outfit is also available in brown with red.

Surprise Party For Bride-to-Be

RAWDON — Mrs. Gerald Russell of Wellman's and Mrs. Wayne Clement of Deseronto, sponsored a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McMahren in honor of their daughter, Miss Shirley McMullen, on October 10th. Approximately 25 ladies were present from Deseronto, Batawa, Belleville, Stirling, Harold, Wellman's and Bonarlaw.

A special corner of the living room was decorated which included a wishing well, filled with miscellaneous gifts.

As Shirley arrived home from choir practice she was surprised with a bursting balloon full of confetti and Mrs. Russell made the presentation of a corsage. The evening was spent in a variety of games, and Mrs. W. Clement read an appropriate address.

Shirley voiced her thanks for the large array of gifts. Light refreshments were served which included a special decorated cake in Shirley's honor.

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Robert Barber opened her home for the October meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute with 27 ladies in attendance. The meeting was opened with Mrs. A. Wallbridge presiding. Mrs. C. Barber and Mrs. W. Barber were appointed leaders of the extension course. Mrs. Frank Robin was appointed delegate to the area convention. Plans for the bake sale were discussed.

The topic for this meeting was Citizenship and Education and owing to the absence of Mrs. Kingston, the convener, Mrs. Clifford Barber acted as convener. Mrs. Barber gave a paper on Citizenship and also on Education. Mrs. Peter Kolkmen told how she became a Canadian citizen.

Mrs. Wilfred Motley conducted a Geography Quiz.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the lunch committee. Mrs. Ross Snider and Mrs. Seymour Hamilton and a social time was enjoyed

BOSTON (AP) — President Kennedy made a brief flight into Canada Saturday inspecting from the air the site of the proposed multi - million dollar Passamaquoddy tidal power project. Kennedy also had an aerial look at the easternmost tip of the United States—Quoddy Head, Me.—and the New Brunswick island where the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt took the fateful swim that triggered his polio attack.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

"Mountains have a reputation of being immovable. Actually, they are a shifty lot. They change with the time of day, the weather, the season of the year and with every move the viewer makes." — Louise Ward Arps.

Less than three weeks after our motor trip, lo! we unexpectedly found ourselves (my husband and I) taking a two-day weeks' journey by car as far south as Las Vegas, as far west as the Pacific coast and as far north as Seattle, Washington. It was unplanned, delightful and a pleasant. Laggard dee, perhaps because cities and main highways were avoided as much as possible, in favor of, sought-for, little out-of-the-way places. These brought us in touch with the countryside, the prairie, the desert, the mountains, the sea and forests.

After three days of good steady driving we reached Colorado — a state dear to our heart having lived here as a very young child. Memories of it, however, were dim, and much of it unseen by us.

But it was upon spending the night in Colorado Springs, which was in the midst of a heat wave, we eagerly sought the interior's cool refreshing mountains.

Starting early the very next morning, by lunch time, we'd reached Salida, "the heart of the Rockies." Here, too, are winter sports, hot springs, fishing and hunting. At a gas station, where the entrance was lined with elks' horns, the manager said: "I used to hunt for them when my family was small and we were in need of food. But now, I just enjoy going into the mountains."

To reach this town, we'd driven through the beautiful mountains that revealed slowly, yet gracefully their secrets of serenity. Layers of green clouds that crest the mountains' brow" passing what is called the Collegiate Range. Well named, you'll agree: Mt. Oxford, Mt. Harvard, Mt. Columbia, Mt. Yale, and last but not least — Mt. Shavano, which graces "the continental divide with its 14,239 feet, just west of Salida.

In the spring the winter's snow takes the form of a maiden, with arms uplifted as if wings, there on the mountainside: "Perfect from wing to garment's hem — wrought not in marble but in snow", and there has risen a legend, which we'd like to share with you, since legends like a touch of nature makes the whole world kin. . . "From a leaflet freely given, amongst many others, a lively, alert chamber of commerce, written by Corrine Harpending, we quote in part:

"As you perhaps know, seens and scenes ago this land was not inhabited by people as it is now, but by numerous gods and goddesses. Some of these minor godesses was a mischievous girl who could move Jupiter to anger at her pranks.

"One day in a rush of anger, Jupiter changed her into an aspen of white bark and said, "Until some mishap or tragedy of other people moves you to tears, you will remain on Mount Shavano," and thus he left her.

"The Angel of Shavano has lived for centuries on Shavano's ragged crevices and looked upon the beauty of her people with pride for her people were kind and industrious. Their farm houses were prosperous and their land was neat and fertile. Yes, the Angel of Shavano was contented with her lot.

"Then there came a time when the land was dry and the crops shriveled up. The Angel watched her people in sorrow. The healthiest of them all faded away into mere ships of humanity. She pondered over some way to help her people, but all in vain.

"In dire helplessness she started to weep and lo! her tears started down her body and loosed her massive ice limbs. She began to weep and crumble, parts of her began to run down the sides of the mountain, catching up other pieces of ice. The Angel had broken the spell. She heard a voice say "Angel of Shavano, you have served your people well. In cold months of the year you will stand there as before but when the warm winds come you will send your icy body down to aid your people." Such is the legend of the Angel of Shavano, how she lives for people so well that each summer she gives her life to them that they may live."

It seems strange to say, but the legend brought us under its spell, and we continued through the magnificent rockies, they seemed like huge protect ive friends! May we tell you more next week?

Mrs. B. E. Burley, past-president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary in Belleville, will be attending in an official capacity as a member of the provincial public relations committee. President of the Auxiliary is Mrs. W. G. Harvey are also delegates from this city.

Madame Vanier, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, will be present at the annual dinner on the 29th. It is anticipated Her Excellency will present the Association Life Membership on this occasion. The dinner is part of the annual convention at which president Mrs. C. W. Sheridan of Ottawa will preside.

The convention chairman, Mrs. William Smolkin of Perth, has arranged a program which includes counselling and round table sessions as well as expositions for French speaking delegates.

Church Groups

HOLY TRINITY WOMEN'S GUILD

SHANNONVILLE—A special meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald on Oct. 17 to make plans for the bazaar.

The president opened the meeting with ten ladies answering roll call.

Next meeting will be at Mrs. Anita Warren's home on Nov. 4 instead of the regular day of Nov. 7. Mary Mercredi's donation is to meet with the Bishop at Point Anne parish hall.

Mrs. Mary Mercredi closed the meeting and all enjoyed lunch served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Williams.

UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

CENTENARY — The regular meeting of the Centenary U.C.W. was held on October 9th in the church hall with 16 members and 12 visitors present.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Byron Harder, with Mrs. Elwin Hart taking the topic. Mrs. Lloyd-Pearson rendered a solo.

Mrs. Harold Hancock introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Vroomen, chairman of co-operation in Christian and Missionary Education. Mrs. Albert Carmichopher thanked the speaker for her interesting talk.

A number of matters of business were discussed and a lunch was served.

P.C. Women To Entertain Officers Here

Mrs. Rhoda Gray, president of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association announced today that Mrs. Harrison Smith of Kelowna, British Columbia, Dominion President of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association, will visit Belleville on Wednesday.

Mrs. Smith is a graduate of the University of California and practices law in partnership with her husband in Kelowna. One of the most active women in British Columbia, she is past-president of the Kelowna and District Progressive Conservative Women's Association and was twice elected president of the British Columbia Provincial Conservative Women's Association. She is president of the Kelowna P.T.A. Association, secretary of the Kelowna Bar Association and an executive member of the Kelowna Art Association. She has just returned from a tour of Nova Scotia and Quebec.

Mrs. Smith will be accompanied on her tour of this district by Mrs. Dorothy Downing, provincial organizer of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association and by Miss E. McFarland, member of the Provincial Advisory Board who is also president of the Eastern Provincial District Association No. 2.

Ladies Elect Officers for Curling Club

The first meeting of the fall season of the Ladies' Curling Club was held in the club house on October 10th. President Mrs. A. Bannon opened the meeting by welcoming many new members and the former curlers also.

Trenton Country Club will be host to the Tankard competition for the district on February 4th.

The draw committee headed by Mrs. D. McNevin reported that all curlers had been contacted. The draws would start about November 11 and the point system would be used as of last year.

The executive for the 1963-64 season will be: President, Mrs. A. Bannon; vice-president, Mrs. H. Mott; secretary, Mrs. E. Sutton; treasurer, Mrs. G. Livingston; draw committee, Mrs. D. McNevin; co-convener, Mrs. R. Graham; bonspiel committee, Mrs. A. Walker; social convener, Mrs. D. Duffy; co-convener, Mrs. C. Lovett; bonspiel catering, Mrs. W. Page; co-convener, Mrs. G. Baker; publicity, Mrs. D. Stanton; house committee, Mrs. W. Cook.

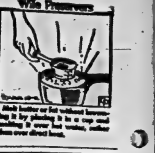
A social hour with coffee closed the meeting.

Club Activities

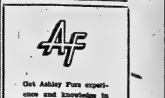
KUM DOUBLE CLUB

HALLOWAY — On Wednesday evening, October 9th, the Kum Double Club of Halloway was host to members of the formed "Friendship group" of Zion-Bethel Church.

A get acquainted contest, with some quite personal and amusing questions, was conducted by Marie Emerson.Pat Robson was the quiz master. President Ron Kelly welcomed the visitors.



A worship service on the theme "Thanksgiving", was presented by conveners Beatrice and Earl Snider, with opening quiet music being played by the organist, Verna Townsend.



A duet, was rendered by Irene Wellman and Pat Robson. Rev. R. Reid closed with prayer this portion of the meeting.

Verne Hanney introduced her sister, Mrs. Jeffs, who spends a good portion of her time in Arizona and showed many beautiful slides taken there as well as other parts of the U.S.A. The grand canyon, Mormon temple in Utah, the famous cactus gardens, Hollywood, California and Florida were just a few of the places shown.

Eileen Bowers thanked Mrs. Jeffs, on behalf of the group, and made a small presentation in appreciation of her kindness.

A mystery contest was enjoyed, after which lunch was served, and a social time enjoyed. The hostess for the evening caused much amusement.

Three Upside Down Puddings For Busy Mothers

by Mary Moore

A request for pudding mixes that could be adapted for a variety of upside down puddings arrived. I gave it some thought but decided the answer was not as simplified as the question. However, I have two variations for one batter and am adding Pineapple Cake Pudding for ¼ is similar to the popular Lemon Cake Pudding which combines the sauce with the batter in a one-dish baked dessert.

These baked self-saucing puddings are designed and are ideal, for oven meals. They are quickly mixed, baked, and ready without any more steps, to take to the table and serve.

Dinner Menu

MONDAY

Hamburg and Onion Hash (Collops); Mashed Potatoes; Green Beans; Celery and Green Pepper Strips; Compote of Pears and Plums; Oatmeal Date Cookies; Coffee.

UPSIDE DOWN PUDDINGS (3 variations)

2 tablespoons butter, melted. 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Topping: ½ cup white sugar, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 cup water or orange juice.

Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt 3 times. Stir in milk, vanilla and melted butter. Pour into unbuttered 6 x 8" pan. For Topping mix together the ½ cup each white and brown sugar and sprinkle evenly over top of uncooked batter. Then evenly pour water or orange juice over top. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes or until batter (when rises to top) is baked. Test with toothpick. Serve from pan, spooning syrup, which is on bottom, over each portion of batter. Both variations make excellent speedy desserts for busy mothers with hungry families.

PINEAPPLE CAKE PUDDING:

1 tablespoon shortening, 1 cup white sugar, ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons pineapple juice, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 eggs, separated.

Cream together shortening and sugar. Add pineapple juice, flour and egg yolks and beat. Add milk slowly, beating in. Beat egg whites stiffly and fold into mixture. Mixture will be lumpy. Pour into 9" deep pie plate and place pie plate in larger pan with hot water in it to depth of ½". Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes.

U.C.W. Meetings

EGGLETON U.C.W.

Mrs. H. Ashley was hostess for the October meeting of the Eggleton U.C.W. on Thursday afternoon when 13 adults and one child were present.

Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. W. Harlow, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Bruce Stapley. Mrs. Clarence Pitchett had prepared the program on the theme, "Praise and Thanksgiving" and read an opening poem.

The special Thank-Offering envelopes and the regular offering was gathered and dedicated with prayer by Mrs. R. Stapley.

The November meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Frost with Mrs. Maurice Clancy to prepare the program.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. McMullen reported on bills to be paid and Mrs. Bruce Stapley on cards sent out and visits made.

The secretary read several letters including one from Mrs. Keith Bray, Presbyterial Secretary on stewardship and pre-cruiting; from Mrs. Clarence Holmes, chairman of the Presbyterial committee of nominations, and from Mrs. Maurice Clancy, Presbyterial secretary for periodicals.

Two invitations to bazaars and teas were received from Marsh Hill U.C.W. on October 22nd, from Holloway Street U.C.W. of Belleville, on October 30th. Members were reminded of the fall rally for Hastings East being held at Foxboro Church on October 17th.

Members were also asked to bring gift parcels for children at Curve Lake, to the November meeting.

A poem on Thanksgiving was read by Mrs. Maurice Clancy who also contributed a solo with guitar accompaniment.

Mrs. Fred Smith gave a reading and two poems were read by Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Charles Stapley.

All took part in a Bible missing word contest sent by Mrs. Harlow.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ashley and a social half-hour enjoyed.

ment and hand it to his former deputy foreign minister, 47-year-old Edward Heath.

This apparently was partly intended to counter Home's admitted inexperience in economic affairs. It was a counter, too, to the Labor party's intention to appoint an economic high command if it wins power.

The new prime minister succeeded in getting his three major challengers for the party leadership to stick with him.

Butler, his chief rival and former deputy prime minister, took Home's old job of foreign secretary. Lord Hailsham continues as science minister. Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling stays in his old post.

To replace Macleod as floor leader in the House of Commons, Home called on Selwyn Lloyd and made him lord privy seal, giving him a seat in the cabinet. Lloyd, foreign secretary for five years under Sir Anthony Eden (now Lord Avon) and Macmillan, was fired as chancellor of the exchequer in July, 1962, because his wage-freeze policy had been unpopular.

Heath, a dedicated Common Market champion, thus was hoisted to a cabinet post that made him virtual economic czar of Britain. He will be boss over the nation's industry, regional and foreign commerce. Heath was the youthful chief spokesman for Britain at the Brussels Common Market talks.

IN THE RUNNING

Heath had been an outsider in the running for the prime ministership. The influential London Times had backed him as the best man for the job. In his 13 years in Parliament his rise has been swift and unchecked. His performance at the Brussels talks won him the nation's praise, despite Britain's failure to win membership in the European community.

To Butler went the prize job of foreign secretary — his reward for agreeing to serve under Home, who beat him for the greatest prize of all, that of prime minister.

Thus Butler was assured of a continuing strong voice in the government. He is one of the most versatile and experienced men in the Commons, a 61-year-old egghead with one of the most incisive intellects in Parliament.

VEHICLE PRODUCTION

Canadian production of passenger cars and commercial vehicles totalled 508,780 units in 1962, an increase of 117,883 over 1961.

Four men Saturday night were awarded the Grand Decoration of Chivalry by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in a pseudo military ceremony at Quinte Secondary School auditorium. Two of the men honored were from Belleville, one was from Carrying Place, and one was from Barrie.

Brigadier General George McDonald, of Belleville, was the senior officer receiving the award, being a member of the I.O.O.F. since 1945. Also from Belleville was Lt.-Col. Douglas Simpson, a member of the organization since 1949, and Major Charles Anderson, of Carrying Place, who joined the Brighton lodge in 1950. Major Harold Eccles, of Barrie, joined in 1952.

Bug in Eye Blamed for Train Crash

WILLOW SPRINGS, Ill. (AP) An object that blew into the engineer's eye was blamed for collision Saturday of a freight train and the Santa Fe Chief passenger train that injured 4 persons.

"Something flew into my eye. I think maybe it was a bug," George Breese, 60, of Port Madison, Iowa, said. "When I took off my glasses and took it out, I missed the caution sign."

Breese was at the controls of the Chief when the California-bound passenger train slammed Springs, a suburb west of Chicago.

The mishap occurred as the freight which was being switched off the main line to allow the Chief to pass.

The Chief was travelling 72 miles an hour when Breese saw a red stop signal and hit the emergency brake. It was too late to bring the train to a halt.

Over $10,000 Lost in Holdup At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — A bandit escaped with slightly less than $7,000 in cash and $3,200 in non-negotiable cheques here Saturday after holding up an employee of a Brewers' Retail Store.

John Cable, 28, a bookkeeper, was delivering the cash in two money bags to a night depository of a local bank when the man jumped into his car in a quiet suburban district as he stopped his car at an intersection. He forced Cable at gunpoint to drive to a nearby parking lot.

At the lot, Mr. Cable was told to leave the car. The holdup man fled on foot.

If Home

the boss and you can like it or lump it until the next election."

Home's success is forming a government within 24 hours, although many thought he would not, was probably due to Tory fears of the Labor threat.

Obviously the surest way in the Conservative ranks could not be allowed to go on much longer if disaster was to be avoided.

Time should soon show whether the deep cleavages in the party have really been repaired or just lightly plastered over to meet the emergency. If it's only a plastering job, Tory chances at the next election—never rated high—would slump still more. It takes a united party and strong leadership to win.

The new prime minister's task between now and next year's elections is seen as a temporary holding action followed by a vigorous pre-election assault when the party wounds are healed.

On international affairs, Home will plug for continued attempts to ease East-West tension, close co-operation with the United States and a watchful attitude in Europe. At home, he will seek to outbid the socialists with every vote-catching device his welfare state planners can dream up.

But the measure of success may depend in the end, as it does now, on how far the 14th Earl of Home can establish popular contact with the masses of modern, industrial Britain.

walkout was being compiled here.

The preliminary total for ports operated by the National Harbors Board showed that 32 ships and 27 tugs had been brought to a standstill by the walkout. An estimated 960 seamen and engineers had left their vessels under the SIU's order to walk out.

The report said there were 26 ships tied up at Montreal, two at Quebec City, one at Chicoutimi and one at Halifax. There were 30 tugs, barges and dredges lit at Montreal, four at Saint John, N.B., and three at Quebec City.

There were no immediate reports here on the effect of the walkout at Toronto, The Lakehead and other ports not operated by the Harbors Board.

When the cabinet went into session at noon, it was made known there would be no announcement until the Commons began its afternoon sitting at 2:30 p.m.

It would require a cabinet meeting to pass an order-in-council to bring the trusteeship legislation into effect.

It was thought the cabinet might also consider what legal action it might take to force the seamen back to work.

The Liberal caucus was apparently called to hear what action the government planned or had taken.

WANT ORDERLY MARCH

Union officials emphasized the march must be orderly. A union statement said:

"The CLC and Upper Lakes Shipping Company have sold the MP's a bill of goods that we are a gangster-type union and that the membership is simple, brainwashed and not intelligent. This is a chance to set the record straight."

Union officials said any ineligible member would be "persuaded" to go home.

"The government demands that you and other members of the executive board obey the law of Canada," said a telegram Sunday from Labor Minister MacEachen to SIU President Hal C. Banks of Montreal.

Earlier, in a bitter anti-Banks blast, the Canadian Labor Congress washed its hands of any further effort to negotiate a private settlement of the Great Lakes labor war. Its statement seemed to rule out reasonable hope that the federal government's trusteeship legislation—to affect the SIU and four other marine unions—can be avoided.

Both the CLC and Mr. MacEachen blamed the SIU walkout for the last-ditch failure to get private settlement.

CONVERGE HERE

Seamen began arriving Sunday night by bus, plane and train for today's march on Parliament Hill. No special police arrangements were being lined up, spokesmen said.

There was no sign from any source that the government demand had had any effect on the march to protest the federal trusteeship, or on SIU plans to return to their idle ships as sooner than they might have done otherwise.

At SIU headquarters in Montreal, members of the union executive were not available for comment on the federal demand and organizers said they knew of no orders to call off the march.

Mr. MacEachen said Sunday night he had no plan to meet the marchers although he was prepared to consider meeting a delegation.

First known arrivals Sunday night came by bus from the Lakehead and they said they expected about 100 or more. Another 600 were reported to have left Toronto by train in special rail coaches.

Another big movement was scheduled from SIU headquarters in Montreal with delegations also anticipated from Vancouver, Various Quebec and Ontario Great Lakes points, St. Lawrence ports and from the Maritimes.

The federal shipping inquiry into the Great Lakes labor situation listed SIU membership at 17,000 with 7,000 actually holding jobs.

RAISES QUESTIONS

Two main questions arose from Sunday's developments.

What other action may the government take to enforce its return-to-work order?

What action—if any—remains before it will implement the federal trusteeship plan, approved by Parliament last week and ready to impose anytime—or as Prime Minister Pearson said last week, no later than a day or two?

"We will have to wait and see," Mr. MacEachen said when questioned by reporters about just what the government will do if Mr. Banks fails to heed the federal demand. Implementing the federal legislation can be done whenever the cabinet decided.

"There are a number of sanctions that may be taken by employers and by the government," he said. "I don't intend to go into them." He did say that he has no indication that the shipping companies intend to take action.

CAN FINE DAILY

On the government's part, the law permits prosecutions against unions, union officers and members who violate no-strike provisions of their collective agreements with companies. Convictions may bring fines of a maximum $500 daily for unions, $200 for officers and $100 for workers.

Mr. Banks was chief target of the stinging federal shipping inquiry report on which the federal legislation is based.

The Canadian Labor Congress statement said President Claude Jodoin reviewed recent discussions on a private trusteeship settlement at Mr. Pearson's request.

"But these had led to nothing constructive in the shape of guarantees "of compliance or co-operation" by the SIU—Canadian and international branches.

"The irresponsible, illegal and dictatorial acton of Banks and the SIU of Canada in the current lieup of Canadian shipping makes it utterly impossible for the CLC to pursue the matter any farther with either the AFL-CIO (of the United States) or the Canadian government," said the CLC.

"Any further attempts to reach an agreement on this matter would only be interpreted now as a surrender of the rights of Canadians to make their own decisions regarding national affairs. Any thought of a private trusteeship or private settlement is therefore rejected by the CLC."

STRESSES FAILURE

The bitter statement underlined failure to obtain appropriate guarantees that Canadians would be in the majority on a proposed three - man private trusteeship board. The SIU of Canada launched the Great Lakes labor war to attack the new CLC - affiliated Canadian Maritime Union and harassed the CMU in American ports with SIU American allies.

The CLC part in prolonged private - settlement negotiations was explained in a five-page statement to all the 1,050,000-member's chartered and affiliated organizations.

Throughout, from first meetings in Washington last May 21 and 22, the CLC has insisted that two of the three trustees must be Canadian. It had had Canadian government support in this stand.

At Boston Sept. 23, more negotiations occurred in the presence of Mr. MacEachen and Labor Secretary Wirtz of the U.S. as well as CLC and AFL-CIO representatives.

The Canadians presented a draft agreement for three trustees including two Canadians and with "very broad powers for a specified period subject to extension," under the auspices of the two main labor groups of Canada and the U.S., the CLC and the AFL-CIO.

NO ANSWER

But counter-suggestions and proposals by the AFL-CIO were not acceptable to the CLC and later efforts were equally fruitless including those conducted at the request of the prime minister.

Under the circumstances, the CLC would support the federal trusteeship plan although it continued to dislike the necessity of this step.

Mr. MacEachen commented on the CLC step that the federal government disliked having to use its federal powers to clean up a union situation and blamed the SIU's illegal strike for precipitating the final CLC step. There had been in August "serious and sustained effort" to avoid federal legislation, in co-operation with the CLC and the U.S. government and the AFL-CIO.

As to the prospect now of any private settlement, "I would think that in the first instance that the CLC would have to consider what its situation would be if . . . a quick return to work by the SIU) took place."

He was, he confessed, "private-solution shy" right now.

have the name of your constituency. Elect a delegate there, quietly and in good order.

"Send that delegate in to see your MP. Ask the MP to come out and meet with his constituents.

"If for some reason he doesn't want to come out, ask the MP if he will receive in his office a small, select, orderly and intelligent small group."

WANTS PEACEFUL SHOW

Fedora propped on the back of his head, Banks assured reporters who pressed around him that the union intends its demonstration to be peaceful in every way.

"When will the demonstrators go back to their ships?" His was asked.

"I haven't the slightest idea," he replied. Then, pointing to the crowd, he added: "Ask them. They'll decide."

DE GAULLES RETURN

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle and his wife Yvonne returned Sunday night by plane after a five-day state visit to Iran. The visit was viewed as heralding a renaissance of French influence and culture in Iran and the Middle East. France was expected to extend considerable technical assistance to Iran for development projects.

Guards Placed On Shipping Locks at Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Guards with orders to let only authorized personnel pass have been placed on the St. Lawrence Seaway Great Lakes shipping lock here.

The round-the-clock security arrangements were ordered Friday as Seaway Authority officials awaited the outcome of the Seafarers' International Union's plans to fight government trusteeship over five maritime unions.

"We're playing the whole situation by ear," said Lock Superintendent John Bouchard. "We don't know if there is going to be any trouble."

He said seaway authority men wearing department of transport police armbands, have orders "not to let anyone through unless they have a special pass."

Delivery trucks and sightseers were turned away by the guard today when they reached a specially-erected barrier blocking the only approach to the island on which the lock is situated.

Mr. Bouchard said orders for tighter security came from a "higher up."

CRASH KILLS TWO

UPTON, Que. (CP)—Two men were killed Saturday when a small plane crashed and burned near this community 40 miles east of Montreal.

New low fares enable everyone to see Canada from a scenic dome.

2881 miles of train travel for $43

Read how Canadian Pacific's FARESAVER PLAN makes train travel incredibly inexpensive 7 days a week—even on The Canadian Starting Oct. 27th you can travel nearly 3000 miles on one of the world's great trains for $43. And you can do it any day of the week. This is just an example of the economy of the FARESAVER PLAN. And it applies across Canada on Canadian Pacific.

How the plan works:

If you travel over 520 miles you enjoy low fares 7 days a week. (We show some sample fares below).

If you travel under 520 miles the lower fares are in effect 5 days a week (fares are slightly higher Fridays and Sundays for travel under 520 miles).

That's the plan. Now look at what it gives you on The Canadian.

- The Canadian, one of the world's great trains. The Canadian is a destination itself. It's the only train in Canada with Scenic Domes, soft music to travel by, and reclining coach seats with full-length leg rests.

Seats in Coaches are reserved without charge, and porter service is provided. The Canadian also features refreshment lounges, coffee shops and dining rooms as well as a wide choice of accommodation.

*One way coach—Montreal—Vancouver.

Distressed Over Bowed Legs

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am heartbroken about my bowlegs. I saw an orthopedist and he said he wouldn't think of operating to straighten them. He would not be the one to risk having me paralyzed for the rest of my days.

After that I cried and cried. I refused food for nearly ten days in the hope that death would arise. Unfortunately it didn't. Since then I am so discouraged that I hardly ever go out.

Now I've thought of another idea. Do you think I could sell my eyes, in order to get artificial legs? I want to have nice straight legs so much! — FIFTEEN.

DEAR FIFTEEN — Now look, Honeybunch, I grant you it is a disappointment to have legs which are not straight, but this is not worth committing suicide over. I know a girl who is so crippled with arthritis that she walks from one chair to another as if she had telephone posts for legs. They won't bend at all. Her friends adore her cheery disposition.

I know a man who was born with little stumps for legs and who only got his first full size artificial ones at 27. The legs are painful and hard to manage. Yet he is a source of great inspiration and practical help for hundreds of handicapped people.

Imagine going around with two glass eyes and two artificial legs by your own design!

Healthy, strong legs are a blessing from heaven whether they are crooked or straight. Do what I told you before about making them less noticeable and then forget the whole subject. Look around you for somebody to befriend.

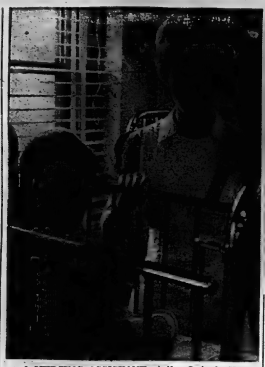
DEAR DORIS — I am 16, and going with a wonderful guy. Last week I found out he drinks. I happened to see him when he was drunk. I think he will stop with my help, and he promised me he would. Should I forget about him or give him one more chance and try to help him. — D. K.

* * *

DEAR D. K. — If he is in the habit of drinking until he gets drunk, there may be no half-measures. I'd say one more chance — but no long, patient, martyr's role for you. It's not worth it!



* * *

Confidential to DAUGHTER — When father imposes he has to be stopped — just as a child has to be stopped. He has never had the slightest concern about how you will manage; just sulks when you draw the line on his useless expenditures involving your money.

Since he now threatens to move to an old folks' home — why not call his bluff and discuss this? Somehow he must be brought up short. You know he has two pensions and won't be in want!

A NURSING ASSISTANT at the Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants Inc., Miss Rennie Wever of Belleville tends a patient in the new building opened Saturday.

Realize 12-Year-Old Dream In Opening of New Wing

A 12-year-old dream was realized Saturday, when Leonard Velleman and his wife, Leonora, watched the opening of the new building of Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants Inc., at Plainfield. The new building provides fireproof space for 54 patients on 3,500 square feet of floor. Cost of the new hospital, more than $100,000 according to building committee chairman, Ralph Sullivan of Peterborough was raised through an appeal to the public. Construction began last April.

Oriel Griffiths, president of the Board of Governors, was master of ceremonies for the opening, which included prayers by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan of St. Michael's Church, a speech by Dr. J. N. Hart and a short comment by Clarke Rollins, M.L.A. for Hastings East. James Craig, representing Craig, Zeidler and Strong, the architects, turned the keys to the new building over to Mr. Sullivan, and Sullivan cut the ribbon to open the building. Inside the building, Lyman Ferris of Toronto and Fred Cole of Peterborough both vice-presidents of the organization unveiled a plaque dedicating the new buildings to Mr. and Mrs. Velleman. The plaque recognized Mrs. Velleman's humanity in starting the original Babies' Convalescent Home in 1951, and the expansion of the Home into the present Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants Inc., in 1956. Rev. R.G. Nichols of Plainfield United Church delivered a prayer after the unveiling.

EXPRESSING HIS GRATITUDE to supporters of Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Infants Inc., Leonard Velleman spoke after the unveiling of a plaque in the hospital lobby. Beside him is his wife, Mrs. Leonora Velleman, and in the background is a vice president of the organization, Fred Cole, Peterborough.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

WOOLER — On Sunday, Wooler United Church celebrated their 60th anniversary with Rev. Alfred Poulter of Bridge St. United Church, Belleville as guest speaker. He is a former pastor having served from 1930 to 1938. He and Mrs. Poulter were highly esteemed by the church and community.

Rev. John MacCallum, the pastor introduced Mr. Poulter and assisted in the service.

After the evening service a reception was held in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Poulter. Lunch was served by the ladies which included a cake in honor of the 60th anniversary. This was cut by the president of the U.C.W., Mrs. Wilbur McColl.

The choir furnished music at both services. In the morning Mrs. David Stephens of Toronto rendered a solo.

CAR ACCIDENT

The community was shocked by the tragic car accident which killed Mr. Lyle Leavitt who had been a farmer in the community for several years. He leaves his widow, the former Grace Austin, three sons, Austin of Peterborough, Homer on the farm at Wooler and Dr. Ronald, Trenton and six grandchildren.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Harold Steenburg in the sudden death of her brother, Mr. Andy Gunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carmon of Madoc were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hubbie, also Mrs. Harry Gerow and Cecil of Brighton.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill entertained Rev. and Mrs. Poulter on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ruttan with Robert Ruttan of St. Catharines spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. N. N. Haggarty.

Dr. Frank Brown, his mother and two sons of Toronto were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Putnam.

Mr. ad Mrs. Vic Smith of Burlington were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Jarvis.

Mr. and Mr. W. Wiley and Walter Elliott Were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Dorland.

Moira Secondary School Holds Graduation Exercises

By A. HENDERSON

Saturday night was graduation time at Moira Secondary School. While the long progression of teachers, board members, and graduating class, slowly wended its dignified way, two by two, to the measured tempo of recorded music, the teachers and members of the Board to the platform, and the graduating students to their reserved seats at the front of the gymnasium, the capacity audience stood in silent tribute.

Following the "School Song" and the singing of "O Canada," the Reverend E. Quirk gave the invocation, and the principal, Mr. W. J. Musgrove, gave a brief resume of the completion of the school which included the drafting and occupational rooms, mentioning that at the present time, there were 1125 students enrolled, and that one year of the Robaris plan was working out well, offering greater zeal. Mr. Musgrove also pointed out that there was also a potential for a University in Belleville, in perhaps two years and that there were 280 students in grade 13 in three secondary schools here. The school offered occupational courses which had been started during the past years.

EXTRA ACTIVITIES

There also had been a series of events, extra activities which tended to develop responsible citizens, with good characters. He was proud of the students' conduct which was not like policing. The student council had contributed the floodlighting and had donated to child in India. Athletics included volleyball, wrestling, rugger and soccer. He concluded by extending appreciation to the School Board for the educational opportunities provided; to Mr. Linton Read, and to those who had had charge of the projects, saving a thought for the graduating class in so learning, "helping to make this Canada of ours a better place to live."

The guest speaker for the evening, Mr. J. G. Demeza, B.A., B. Paed superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, was introduced by Mr. M. Irwin, who was happy to introduce a man who had fitted himself for his position. He knew not only how to teach; but how to instruct others how to guide, how to counsel to be mother and father to the children at the O.S.D. and how to become part of a community.

KEEP ON LEARNING

In addressing the graduating class Mr. Demeza said he was proud of their attainments and that the school had attended, was but a jumping-off point and but a taste of the future. "Develop your strength; make the most of your handicaps and your opportunities; build up your basic level of education; keep on learning; have a set of values and ideals; your school and the church, and live by these standards; cherish their ideals, their influences will be either good or bad.

CHALLENGE OPPORTUNITY

"Challenge opportunity. Every one of society is a stepping-stone to greater opportunities." He urged the graduates to strive for an ever higher level in whatever they do. "Personality is a precious gem; raise the basic asset; make the most of your talents, discover them to their maximum; have a sense of purpose; a desire to serve your God; seize the opportunities and may God grant you the wisdom to do so."

Mr. Demeza was thanked by Miss Anne Portt for his timely and timely advice.

The valedictory address was given by Miss Shirley Chisholm, of Roslin and appears elsewhere in this issue.

Sugar Price Rises

LONDON (Reuters) — The price of sugar on the London market rose by £3 (£85) a ton today to £99 ($297).

The price now is within £2 (£87) of the spot price and the £101 ($303) reached last May.

It has risen £22 10s (£67.50) since hurricane Flora damaged Cuba's sugar crop earlier this month.

Miss Shirley Chisholm Gives Valedictory Address

The following is the valedictory address given by Miss Shirley Chisholm, Saturday evening at the graduating exercises of Moira Secondary School:

Mr. Musgrove, distinguished guests, students, and friends of Moira Secondary School: It is a great honor and privilege to have the opportunity of speaking to you as the valedictorian of the graduating class of 1963.

"Five years ago we entered a school that was just as new and untested as we were. Our first assembly saw Mr. Musgrove giving his opening address and presenting our teachers from atop a pile of cement blocks. Classes changed to the tune of an old school bell rung by Mr. Read and by 'gym' periods were held in an upper corridor. Those first few months required a great deal of patience and adjustment by both teachers and pupils; but now I think that we all agree that this beautiful school was worth waiting for.

INTANGIBLE ASSETS

"Just as our school has developed, so have our attitudes and goals during the past five years, as we have also. We have gained, besides our education, certain intangible assets which will stand us in good stead all our lives. I mean our physical education program where we have developed skills and agility in playing sports and have learned the importance of sportsmanship. Leadership activities have been encouraged by participation in school clubs and in politics. Parliament we have made many new friends and have acquired some further knowledge of others. The reward of hard work has been evidenced in your studies. Certainly, even if we forget our history dates and chemical formulas, we will retain the qualities for the rest of our lives.

"All our memories of Moira will not be of hard work and exams. We will remember our teachers as they, so doubt, will remember us. In years to come, we graduates will meet again and remind each other of Mr. Cody saying: 'If it's in the book, you've got to know it!' Or, of Mr. Boyce remarking in his mock anger: 'Only 29 seconds remaining before the bell rings, or of a form teacher pleading with his dormant class. 'Shouldn't you people be some place?' But the memory which will probably top them all will be of Mr. Read shouting, 'Peasant' as he derides us in mock anger.

MUST GIVE CREDIT

"Seriously, we must give our teachers a great deal of credit. Think of the difficulties they have encountered and the obstacles they have overcome in teaching us! The size of the graduating class alone attests their skill, patience and endurance. Let us, as graduates put to use the knowledge they have given us and always be proud to belong to the teaching profession.

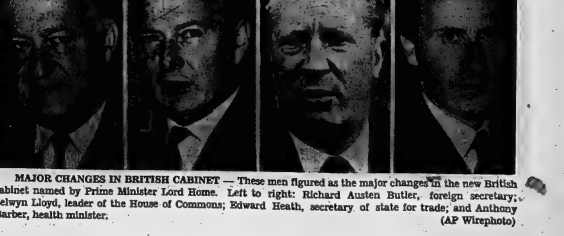
"To our parents we also owe a great debt. We girls appreciate our mothers when they have taken an active part in studies during exams, and I'm sure the boys enjoy using the family car; but we realize the sacrifices they make for our education and upbringing! We have tried to live up to our ideals of right and wrong; they have taught us proper manners; they have helped us when we deserved it, and have encouraged us when we needed praise. And as always, conduct ourselves in such a way as to make them proud of us.

OBJECT OF TEACHING

"It is said that 'the object of teaching a child is to enable him to get along without his teacher.' We graduates are experiencing this now. Some of us have already taken our places in the business world; while others have either retired to Moira for grade 13, or gone on to further training in hospitals, teachers' colleges and universities.

"We are setting out on a new stage in our lives. Childhood, public school, high school are behind us, and we look forward to taking our place in the world of adults.

"Our years at Moira have given us a good background for our future. They have provided us with not only a sound education, but with precepts and ideals which will aid us in any field we should choose to enter.



FAREWELL

Tonight I am giving the valedictory address, a farewell to Moira and to commencement—a beginning. We graduates are bidding farewell to our years at Moira and we are going forward—armed with the teachings and principles received in the home, public school, high school and by parents, and teachers, and with our own perserverence and confidence to begin a new life. I challenge each one of you to do your best in whatever field you enter, and to use to the fullest possible advantage the talents God has given you.

"Shirley Chisholm."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Eighteen sportswriters and sportscasters of the National Hockey League circuit turned from typewriters and mikes to crystal balls and came up blooey-eyed with the loop race selections.

Ink-stained and tonsil-worn they retreated into their lairs, some perhaps anticipating the wrath of home-town fans, others readying shoulders for accolades.

Whether it was the spectre of Rudy Pilous fading into the Denver mists and smelling Billy Reay looming over the Chicago horizon, the press-box-Ty-Cobb wreches came up with the Black Hawks to take the league gold and gravy.

That roar you hear in the background is the tonsilar thunder of one "Trunch" Imlach, echoing in the Toronto canyons.

For didn't the habitues of press box and radio-television cubicles relegate his beloved Maple Leafs to second place by the selection standing? They gave Chicago eleven firsts in their choice and the Blues of the Gardens but six.

The Black Hawks received six second-place selections, the Leafs nine. One picked the Hawks to finish third and three chose the Imlachians for the place spot. Nary a one put them in fourth position.

The Detroit Red Wings were the overall selection for third slot receiving only one loyal Motor City for top slot. The Wings got two and six votes for second and third place finishes.

At least one loyal Montrealer doesn't believe that his Habs are destined for oblivion come playoff time. He was the only selector to give them a second place finish. They received three thirds and nine fourths. Five relegated them to fifth spot and four anti-Habs picked them to finish in fifth position.

The New York Rangers, now training on pea-soup and frogs' legs since being bolstered by three-or-four-or-more ex-Canadiens were given four (three of them from Gotham writers and casters) votes to finish in third place and the same number to end up in fourth. They also received five votes to finish fifth and sixth.

The hapless Bruins had a loyal supporter in a radio type from Beantown who picked them to wind up in third slot. But three voted them a fifth-place finish and thirteen to occupy the janitor's quarters.

Two Toronto "renegades" will likely feel the wrath of the Imlach post-selection tirade. Two evening papers' selectors picked Chicago to finish in front of his beloved Leafs, the morning paper bloke remained loyal. One of the others had the audacity to pick the Hawkins champions as a third-place finisher.

The Chicago writers and talkers went solid for the Hawks with two picking the Leafs and one Detroit to finish in first place position. The other chose third slot for the Leafs.

Two Boston selectors liked the Leafs for the honors, one chose Chicago. One placed the Bruins in the cellar and the other two went anti-American and placed the Rangers in the bottom slot.

The Detroit trio, strange to say, were split three ways for the top-slot selection. Chicago, Detroit and Toronto were their individual choices. They wanted no part of New York, Boston or Montreal in the top three spots. Two voted Montreal and one New York for the fourth position.

The Montreal experts didn't go out on the limb with the exception, as was noted, of one who gave them a second-place finish. Two picked Chicago and one Toronto for the slot. Toronto got two second place votes with the Wings, Habs and Hawks sharing a third-place selection. One gave the Habs a fourth place position and Detroit and two selections for this spot. All sent the Rangers and Boston into the discard.

So there you have it.

The limb beckons—and here we go.

Chicago to finish on top, Toronto second with Detroit third, and—ah, here's the rub—Montreal and the Rangers in a see-saw battle for fourth spot with the Habs favored. Boston, you know where.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A couple of outsiders made a weekend cult into the Chicago-Montreal monopoly in the National Hockey League's list of top individual point-getters.

Phil Goyette of New York Rangers and Bobby Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs climbed into a five-player tie for the No. 5 spot at the six-point level.

Goyette collected four assists in the first period of New York's Sunday night game with Boston —a 5-1 Ranger win—while Pulford bagged a pair of assists in Toronto's two weekend outings.

Both have six points and share fifth spot with John Ferguson of the Canadiens and Bobby Hull and Ab McDonald of the Black Hawks.

Chicago's Stan Mikita head the group with six goals and four assists. Two points behind him are Bernie Geoffrion and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens and Ken Wharram, Mikita's linemate.

The leaders:

Guadalajara, Mexico — Ernan Torres, 112, Mexico, knocked out Pascual Perez 100, Argentina, 3.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A blast of the whistle by referee Frank Udvari has preserved Maurice Richard's goal-collecting record in the National Hockey League for at least another three days.

Gordie Howe's assault on the mark appeared to have reached a successful conclusion Sunday night. But it was no go.

The big guy lofted a 70-foot puck Tuesday night but after goalie Johnny Bower of the Maple Leafs had been lifted for a sixth attacker.

Udvari whistled it down, invalidating the goal.

He ruled Howe's teammate Alex Delvecchio had started the play illegally by shovelling the puck with his gloved hand.

Eight days ago, a goal by the Detroit right-winger was wiped out under similar circumstances. He put the puck into the net in a game against Boston Bruins. But Howe was disallowed because of a penalty to the Red Wings.

HOWE PHILOSOPHIC

Gordie takes such setbacks philosophically so he expressed little concern Tuesday at another shot at the record when the Red Wings play Chicago Black Hawks next Thursday.

Said Howe during the weekend:

"I've said it many times before. That next goal means more to you reporters than it does to me."

The Red Wings shaded the Leafs 3-2 in Sunday night's game in Maple Leaf Gardens, a split in their home-and-home series which means a 3-1 winner at home Saturday night. The saw-off left the two clubs sharing second place in the standings with six points.

Billy Reay's Black Hawks measuredly banished the Habitants eight points, downing Montreal Canadiens 5-3 in Chicago Sunday night.

RANGERS DRUB BRUINS

In another Sunday night game, New York Rangers drubbed the Boston Bruins 5-1 at Madison Square Garden. A 2-0 shutout by the Canadiens over Boston in Montreal Saturday night rounded out the weekend splashes.

Some of the highlights:

Camille Henry of the Rangers counted his 200th goal of his NHL career.

Billy Harris of the Leafs scored his 100.

New York's Phil Goyette helped set up four of his team's goals in one period.

Howie Young of the Hawks, tagged with only one minor penalty in Chicago's first four games, reverted to last season's form and is back at the top of the list of penalty leaders with 24 minutes.

The home team won all five weekend game. Now in 15 games so far this season, home clubs have piddled only one win and one tie to clubs on the road.

Detroit, short of manpower with Parker MacDonald and Bruce MacGregor on the sidelist, surged ahead of Toronto Sunday night with goals by Dave Ingram, Delvecchio and Doug Barkley in the opening period.

Dave Keon and Harris clicked for Toronto in the second and third periods, respectively, before the Howe affair with 24 seconds left to play.

Howe played both weekend games with a painful cut on his right ankle suffered in a practice session. Goalie Terry Sawchuk also played with an injury — a severely-bruised left hand suffered Saturday night—and turned back 46 shots, 11 more than Bower.

Stan Mikita, Ron Murphy, Bill Hay, Pierre Pilote and Al MacNeil shared in the Chicago scoring as Glenn Hall and Vasko picked up three assists.

Gilles Tremblay, Claude Provost and Bernie Geoffrion were the Montreal goal-getters. The Canadiens were left in fourth spot with five points.

Peter Kempf got four field goals and two converts Saturday night to strengthen his hold on second place in the Western Football Conference scoring race.

His 14-point performance for British Columbia Lions in the Lions' 32-6 victory over Edmonton Eskimos left him with 76 total, 14 points behind George Reed of Winnipeg Blue Bombers who were idle during the weekend.

Third place changed hands with Larry Robinson of Calgary Stampeders taking over the spot from teammate Lovell Coleman.

Robinson got two field goals and three converts in the Stampeders' 33-32 tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday to increase his total to 52. Coleman went pointless in the game to stay at 50.

In a Saturday afternoon game, Calgary and Saskatchewan battled to a 33-33 tie which left the fight for the last two playoff spots open.

The Stamps, 8-4-2, are second with 18 points, Saskatchewan, 8-6-2, is third and Winnipeg, 8-8-0, has 13. Edmonton is last with only two wins in 14 starts.

Lions jumped into an early lead in the game at Vancouver taking advantage of penalties and an error by the hapless Eskimos to go ahead 10-0 at the end of the first quarter. They led 19-6 after the second and 26-6 at the end of the third.

Nub Beamer, Willie Fleming and Ron Morris scored touchdowns before the crowd of 29,133.

Canadian Championship

'The Axe 11' Wins Big One

TORONTO (CP)—The Axe II chopped 1.5 seconds off the Woodbine course record, easily winning the 36th running of the $60,600 Canadian Championship over the Marshall turf course Saturday.

Some 19,357 persons saw the Greetree Stable's entry open up a four-length lead leaving the final furlong marker and blaze past the finish in two minutes, 41 seconds for the mile and five furlongs.

Jockey John L. Rotz found his mount unopposed in the finish. 4½ lengths in front of Morton Johnson's Hard Rock Man.

The former record for this distance was 2:42.2 set by Rocky Royale.

The Axe II, foaled at the Greetree Stables, began his racing career in England where he won the Imperial Stakes as a two-year-old and the Newmarket Stakes as a three-year-old.

Saturday's win gave the grey five-year-old son of Mahmoud—Blackbull, by Stut Out, a lifetime account of $319,496.

In the Canadian Championship, Hill - N - Dale Stable's Bronze Babu swung wide at the clubhouse turn and had to settle for third spot. Mr. Sometime, owned by Mrs. Lee Lear, was fourth.

Under weight-for-age terms, The Axe II carried 126 pounds. The race last missed being Canada's richest, open to all nationalities. In 1956, Arnold Ranger's Sugrama II won the Hendelberg Rowing Club rugby side 22-6 Saturday in the last match of its European tour.

Halfback Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts scored his team's only touchdown Sunday in an 11-10 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats to retain the lead in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race.

The touchdown gave Shatto 11 for the season, good for 66 points and a six-point lead over George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes. Dixon scored two touchdowns Saturday as the Als lost 37-21 to Ottawa Rough Riders, and has 10 for the season.

Ottawa place kicker Moe Racine, who missed Saturday's game, and fullback Dave Thelen, who scored one touchdown, follow with 37 and 34 points respectively.

Two more Ottawa players, halfbacks Ron Stewart and Ernie White, are tied for fourth place. They have 42 points each on seven touchdowns.

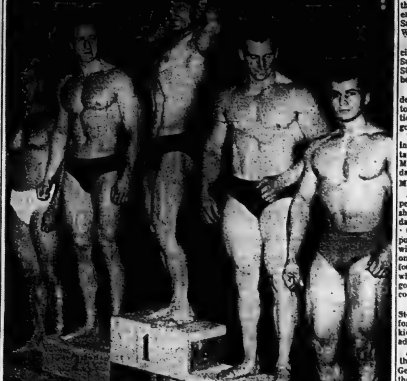
Aces Score First Win Over Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They didn't do it once last season so in one respect Quebec Aces could consider their current American Hockey League season already a success. Their achievement: Beating champion Buffalo Bisons.

The Aces turned the trick Sunday night 3-2 with Bill Sutherland leading the attack with two goals and one assist. It was their first victory over the Bisons in 19 games.

In Sunday's other AHL games Baltimore Clippers won their first game of the season by defeating Providence Reds 5-3, Hershey Bears whipped Springfield Indians 7-3 and Rochester Americans defeated Cleveland Barons 3-2.



Pittsburgh Hornets beat Quebec 5-2, Providence downed Cleveland 5-3, Hershey took Buffalo 4-1 and Springfield defeated Baltimore 4-2 in Saturday night's games.

Other Quebec scorers in the Buffalo game were Wayne Hicks, Terry Gray and Don Blackburn. Barry Cullen and Larry Wilson scored for Buffalo.

"Hold It, Ladies!"

Cats Lucky

By PAUL KINSTEAD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Hamilton Tiger-Cats win the Eastern Football Conference title by one point, Ralph Sazio will probably send Nobby Wirkowski a card of thanks.

The Ticats took an 11-10 decision from Toronto Argonauts Sunday at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium when they should have been held to a tie.

Wirkowski, whose Argos are dead with a 2-10 record, elected to pass on a third-and-10 situation late in the game when Argos were in position for a single.

The win boosted the Ticats into a first-place tie with Ottawa Rough Riders who dumped Montreal Alouettes 27-21 Saturday afternoon at Ottawa.

MIGHT HAVE WON

Argos, with one of their better performances of a bad season, should have won the game Sunday. They outplayed the Ticats.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney pulled it out for the Tabbies with an 18-yard touchdown run on an intended pass play in the fourth quarter. Don Sutherin, who had booted a 39-yard field goal and a single, kicked the convert to break the tie.

Argo quarterback Sandy Stephens, passed to Dick Shatto for a second-quarter touchdown, kicked the convert and later added a field goal.

A bright spot for Toronto was the performance of halfback George Hughley, who looks like the hard-running back they have needed all season. Ineligible at Central State Teachers College in Edmond, Okla., Hughley was signed recently by assistant coach Cliff Speegle.

The 211-pound rookie in his first pro game, ran the second-half opening kickoff back 95 yards to the Hamilton 13-yard line.

Quarterback Russ Jackson was brilliant for Ottawa before a record crowd of 22,762 at Lansdowne Park. He threw four touchdown passes, one with less than two minutes to go, as the Riders topped the stubborn Als.

Montreal now trials Ottawa and Hamilton by four points in the four-team conference.

TAKES TWO PASSES

Fleet Whit Tucker gathered in two payoff passes, including a 24-yard one for the winning touchdown. Dave Thelen and Gene Gaines caught the other Jackson touchdown passes and George Belu, kicking in the absence of injured Moe Racine, added three converts.

Halfback George Dixon plunged for both Montreal touchdowns. Gino Berretta, the reformed soccer player, kicked two 33-yard field goals, a single and a convert to round out the scoring.

The knee-injury bug hit three of the clubs. Montreal defensive ace Jim Reynolds was to undergo surgery for a knee injury today, Hamilton lost tackle Ron Ray with a similar injury and Toronto lost halfback Lynn Bottoms. Wirkowski is doubtful if Bottoms will be back.

The Ticats may also have lost outstanding Garney Henley. Hensley, a standout again Sunday with two fourth-quarter interceptions—one to set up Faloney's touchdown, suffered a possible bruised kidney.

Wins Pacific Grand Prix

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP)—Dave MacDonald easily won the 120-mile, $20,000 Pacific Grand Prix for sports cars Sunday when early leaders Bob Holbert and Jimmy Clark were forced from the race.

MacDonald drove a Cooper Ford to his second Grand Prix victory in eight days, worth $4,000. He won last week's at Riverside, Calif., lapping the field.

MacDonald averaged 83.2 miles an hour and took two hours, nine minutes and 19.2 seconds to complete the drive.

Gaels Roll To Third Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University Golden Gaels rolled to their third consecutive victory Saturday, but University of Western Ontario Mustangs gave indications that the Intercollegiate senior football race is far from over.

The Gaels piled up a big lead and coasted to a 26-19 victory over McGill University Redmen in Montreal, but the Mustangs added to their big lead to humble University of Toronto Blues 53-15 in London.

Fullback Jim Young showed his all-star form, scoring a 53-yard touchdown and adding a single and a convert to help Queen's to a 26-7 lead early in the third quarter. Bruce Stewart, Bill Edwards and Bayne Norris scored the Gaels' other touchdowns.

Halfback Willie Lambert, as usual, paced the Redmen, scoring 13 points on a pair of touchdowns and a convert. End Don Taylor scored the other touchdown.

SHARE SCORING

Six players shared in the Western scoring, as the Mustangs built quarter leads of 3-0, 25-1 and 32-8. They were led by third-string quarterback Ted Miller, who threw five touchdown passes.

End Pat McConnell caught two and added a single for 13 points; halfback Bill Sasso caught two more, and halfback Art Froese caught the other. Linebacker George Chris and end Dick Soderman also scored touchdowns, and Jim Weber added six converts and a 38-yard field goal.

For Toronto, halfback Gerry Sternberg scored two touchdowns. Quarterback Bryce Taylor converted both, and Jim Israel booted a single.

The win for Western left them in second place behind Queen's with two victories in three games. They lost to the Gaels 20-18 the previous week in London, but will bet another chance in Kingston in two weeks.

In Montreal, the Gaels scored on the first play of the game when Young boomed the kickoff deep into the McGill end zone for a single. Norris later went 36 yards on a reverse to make the score 7-0.

Lambert's unconverted touchdown on a one-yard plunge made it 7-6, but Queen's answered with three touchdowns before the Redmen struck back for two unconverted scores late in the game.

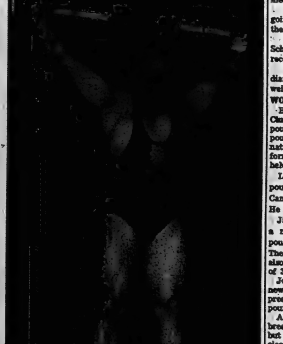
Western Hockey League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS



Rookie Jack Norris, showing more poise than many veteran goaltenders, didn't bend under pressure Sunday as Los Angeles Blades moved into second place in the Western Hockey League.

Norris blocked 42 shots when the Blades took a 3-4 overtime win over Portland. The Bucks roar drooped their third in a row before 6,884 hometown fans Sunday.

In other action, the surprising Seattle Totems won their third in succession, clamping San Francisco Seals 5-2 to move into a first-place tie with the Seals and the idle Denver Invaders.

Records Go At N. A. Weightlifting Tournament

Improves With Age!

Norbert Schemansky, Detroit, 39-year-old former world champion broke four Canadian open records at the North American Weightlifting Tourney on Saturday. He gave a superb performance as mark followed mark into the discard.

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

STATION TRENTON, RCAF—United States athletes scored a sweeping victory in the North American Weightlifting Tournament held in the sports hangar here Saturday.

The Americans won five of the seven class titles, Canadian lifters taking the remaining two in the records-shattering meet.

Fourteen Canadian open records were smashed, thirteen going to the United States. John Lewis of Belleville, claimed the other.

Thirty-nine-year-old former world champion, Norbert Schemansky of Detroit practically stole the show with four new records.

Bill March, another Detroiter, also smashed four Canadian Open marks but three were disallowed because of overweight.

WON BY POUND

Belleville's Apollo Barbell Club's John Lewis lifted 306 pounds (press) in the 198-pound class to set a Canadian native and open records. The former mark was 305 pounds held by C. Wirka.

Lewis, total, however was 930 pounds, fifteen short of his Canadian native mark of 945. He finished second to March.

Jim Dorn of York, Penn., set a new total record of 930 pounds in the 181-pound class. The former mark was 910. He also set a new clean-jerk mark of 360 pounds.

Joe Pullo of Detroit set a new over total (860) and a new press (375) records in the 165-pound division.

Alain Salter, Ottawa, didn't break his native-open records but won the 123-pound bantam class with a total of 655.

The second Canadian winner was Marcel Bedard, Beauport, Quebec who took the 148-pound class with a total of 745 pounds.

Bein Hidalgo of East District, New York City, won the 132-pound class with a total of 710 pounds, 15 short of the record.

The veteran 261-pound Schemansky put on a fantastic display in his record-smashing performance. Twice he went to the bar three times before succeeding.

His new Canadian Heavyweight Open records are press 380; snatch 330, and clean-jerk 430 pounds. His total was 1,130 pounds, ninety pounds better than the record of 1,040 held by Canada's Doug Hepburn.

Bill March who captained the American team and received the team trophy lost three records by ounces poundage. He set new marks of press, 340; snatch, 290 and clean-jerk, 390 for a record total of 1,020 pounds. This bettered the former record of 955 held by C. White.

Officials said although March's three records were nullified because he was overweight, the new Canadian Open total record would stand.

"MR. NORTH AMERICA"

Eleven splendid physical specimens vied for the title of "Mr. North America" in post-tournament competition.

Floyd Despirito of Union, New Jersey, was the top choice of the panel of judges, John Hazel, Toronto, was second; Jim Dorn, York, Penn., third, with Rodrique Picard, Quebec, and Sal Santalucia, Buffalo, tied for fourth position.

Other entries were Jerry Doetrirel, Buffalo; David Principe, Toronto; Joe Lazaro, Buffalo; Andr Lalbranche, Quebec; Fred Steeson, Torpain; and Brian Toner, RCAF, Trenton.

The tournament attracted thirty-one weightlifting athletes from the United States and Canada. Americans came from New York City and New York state, Buffalo, Detroit, New Jersey, Michigan and Pennsylvania. Canada was represented by lifters from Montreal, Quebec City, Belleville, Toronto, Edmonton, Ottawa, Calgary and the province of Quebec.

The meet was sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. The judges were Mr. Maurice Allen, Montreal, AAU official in charge of weightlifting; Rudy Sablo, New York city and Lionel St. Jean, Quebec city.

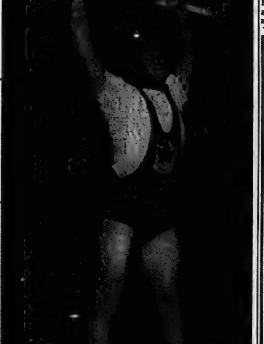
It was sponsored and excellently arranged by the Apollo Barbell Club of Belleville under the supervision of Ken Caro-Brault, weightlifting coach and official of the club.

The results:

Heavyweight Class — Nor. best Schemansky, Detroit, 330-430-330; Tom Suggs, York, Pa., 275-345-315-835; K. Sparlire, NYC 260-350-315-835.

196-pound Class — Bill March., Detroit, 340-390-390-1020; John Lewis, Belleville, 306-375-350-930; Joe Saputa, New York city, 330-340-330-940.

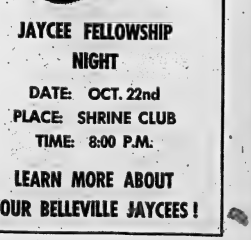
181-pound Class — Jim Dorn, York, Pa., 360-380-360-930; Mike Lipari, Quebec City, 290-340-360-990; Steve Theukize, Quebec, 260-340-330-930.



165-pound Class — Joe Pullo, Detroit, 375-350-340-965; W. St. Jean, Montreal, 255-360-305-830; Floyd Despertro, Buffalo, 280-345-310-830.

148-pound Class — Marcel Bedard, Beauport, Que., 330-395-340-965; Sinclair Bailey, Long Island, N.Y., 325-310-370-705.

123-pound Class — Bien Hidalgo, New York city, 330-305-275-710; Leonard Rowe, Warren, Michigan, 195-310-305-680; Maurice Daigle, Quebec city, 305-290-360-955.



123-pound Class — Allen Salter, Ottawa, 300-190-265-655; Ken Caro-Brault, York city, 230-185-345-760; Charles Cousineau, Quebec City, 300-185-340-825.

Broke Record!

Jim Lewis of the Apollo Barbell Club here broke a Canadian open record at the tournament. He was the only Canadian to establish a new mark as Americans swept thirteen of the fourteen records created.

Kelso Wins Rich Race

NEW YORK (CP)—Kelso, one of the greatest horses in the history of U.S. racing, drew away steadily in the last mile Saturday and easily captured his fourth consecutive Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct.

The six - year - old gelding, backed down to odds of 2-10 in the 45th running of the $108,900 race, finished four lengths in front of Mrs. Robert L. Dotter's Guadalcanal.

Guadalcanal, a son of the 1948 Gold Cup winner Citation, was five lengths ahead of Harbor View Farm's Gerwol.

Knights Still Unbeaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Omaha Knights continued their unbeaten streak in the Central Professional Hockey League during the weekend, making lowly Indianapolis Capitols their fourth successive victim at Indianapolis Sunday.

They clobbered the last-place Capitols 6-4.

Knights are on top of the league with eight points. Minneapolis Bruins, who tied 3-3 with St. Louis Braves in Minneapolis Saturday, are second with seven points on three wins, a tie and one loss.

In the third weekend game the third-place St. Paul Rangers defeated fourth-place St. Louis 2-0 Sunday night as Rangers' goalkeeper Marcel Pelletier cracked up the first shutout of the season.

Omaha led 3-1 at the end of the first period in a game which saw all 19 goals scored by defensemen.

At St. Paul, Pelletier made only 22 saves in recording his shutout as the Ranger defence beat the Braves in check.

Jack McCartan in the St. Louis net made 29 saves and had no chance on either St. Paul goal.

Tradeaus Mark Season End

The Trudeau Motors softball club held a season-end get together at the home of team manager Ron Fralick Saturday night and promised to be back next year with "a championship to celebrate."

A number of players and special guests enjoyed cards, a delicious lunch and sport movies, supplied by Nick Stefan, in the host's recreation room.

Special plaques of appreciation were presented to sponsor John Trudeau and coach Harold Reid.

King of the Hill

Ron Saylor retained his King of the Hill title by a narrow two-pin margin on Saturday but watched his opponent carry home the pot of gold.

Saylor rolled games of 276, 250 and 264 to nip challenger Jim Begley 790 to 788. Begley, who hit for eight strikes in a row to win that special prize, had games of 317, 227 and 244. The challenge match was the closest ever in the tourney.

A number of other fine games were also recorded. Begley qualified as challenger with games of 306, 304, 256, 239 and 163. Wes Andrews was second with 1241 and Bud Pettican was third with 1236, including a 339 single. Other 300 games saw Cec Haines roll 318 and Bill Dafoe, who had seven strikes a row, 303.

A new pot of gold will be up for grabs this week.

End Discrimination Or Be Barred

Olympics Hand South Africa Ultimatum

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany (AP)—The South African Olympic Committee was handed an ultimatum Sunday by the International Olympic Committee to have its government end racial discrimination in sports, or be barred from the 1964 Olympic Games.

The winter Olympics will be held at Innsbruck, Austria, and the regular games will be in Tokyo in 1964.

Otto Mayer, chancellor of the IOC, said a resolution was passed after more than nine hours of discussion at a closed meeting, giving the South African committee until Dec. 31 this year to end the color discrimination.

The resolution, offered by G. D. Sondhi of India, declared:

"That the South African Olympic Committee be told it must ... get from its government by Dec. 31, 1963, a change of policy regarding color discrimination in sports, and competitions in its country, failing which the South African National Olympic Committee will be debarred from entering its teams in the Olympic Games."

DISCRIMINATION BANNED

The Olympic rules and principles say there must be no discrimination because of race, color, creed or religion.

Mayer said that the IOC had previously forced a government to change its policy to meet Olympic requirements in sport.

He recalled that the IOC forced Hitler to abolish his discrimination against the Jews at the 1936 Games in Berlin.

Mayer also said that before the First World War the government of imperial Russia was told not to include Finns on its team.

Mayer said that the matter would be further discussed during the Innsbruck Olympics on the points of Sunday's proposal are not met.

MUST WITHDRAW

Mayer made it clear that if the South African Olympic Committee is not successful in changing the present policy at home "then it will have to withdraw from the 1964 Olympics."

Reginald Honey, IOC representative from South Africa, proposed that the whole matter affecting South Africa should remain unchanged. It was not accepted, said Mayer.

Browns, Giants Win

Frisco Upsets Unbeaten Bears

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lamar McHan, a discard who'd been tossed away so often he began to feel as useful as a three of spades in a pinochle deck, has turned a hot hand into the No. 1 upset of the National Football League season.

The 30-year-old journeyman quarterback, who wound up at San Francisco three weeks ago in a quick shuffle, completed 19 of 29 passes for 141 yards and one touchdown while pacing the 49ers to a 20-14 victory Sunday over the previously unbeaten Chicago Bears for their first triumph of the season.

BATTLE WIDE OPEN

The upset by the 49ers, whose total scoring output in two previous games consisted of a pair of field goals, threw the Western Conference race into a wide open battle and overshadowed two other developments—Jimmy Brown's career rushing record and Bart Starr's hand injury.

Brown carried 25 times for 144 yards and scored one touchdown on a pass, breaking Joe Perry's rushing record by bringing his total to 8,390 yards as Cleveland Browns whipped Philadelphia Eagles 37-7 and became the league's last undefeated team.

Starr, the No. 1 quarterback for Green Bay's defending league champions, suffered a severe injury to his passing hand in a first-swinging battle with St. Louis Cardinals' Jimmy Hill during the third quarter of the Packers' 30-7 romp over the Cardinals.

The Packers' triumph, coupled with the Bears' loss, left Green Bay and Chicago tied for the Western lead with 2-1 records. Cleveland, 6-6, leads the East by two games over St. Louis and New York, both 4-2.

V. A. Tittle passed for four touchdowns in the Giants' 37-21 victory over Dallas Cowboys, Pittsburgh Steelers came from behind for a 35-27 triumph over Washington Redskins, Baltimore edged Detroit Lions 21-20 and Los Angeles Rams downed Minnesota Twins 27-24 for their first victory.

Sets New 10-Pin Mark

Austin Watkin set a new Belleville 10pin bowling score in ten-pin bowling last week when he registered a 712 score in the Belleville Bowlers' League.

Watkin had a three-string of 253-247-212, including seven consecutive strikes in both the first and second games.

It is believed to be the first time a 700 score has been recorded in the short history of the game here.

ASKS ASYLUM

BONN (Reuters) — Ebrahim Ashmad Gora, a South African taking part in the current congress of the International Olympics Committee in Baden-Baden has asked for asylum in West Germany because of racial persecution in his home country.

13th Death In Football

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Wayne Pridgeon, 18-year-old Chamblee High School halfback, died Sunday of injuries suffered Friday night in a football game—the third U.S. football fatality in as many days.

It was the 13th football death in the U.S. reported this year.

On Friday at New Orleans, 18-year-old Robert Creel Jr. died of a brain injury suffered in a high school game a week before. On Saturday, 18-year-old Thomas Warren Jr. of New Hartford, N.Y., died of a head injury suffered in a game Wednesday at Rome, N.Y.

HAWKESBURY LOSES

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Doujan scored two touchdowns Sunday to lead Montreal North Bears to a 19-7 home ground victory over Hawkesbury, Ont. Hawks and the right to meet Rosemount Lions next Sunday to represent Quebec in Canadian intermediate football playdowns.

Marlboros, Oshawa Triumph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals are serving notice that they belong back in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A provincial group.

Both former members of the OHA junior A Metropolitan Toronto league, which folded after three seasons last year, the Marlies and the Generals were impressive in victory Sunday.

Toronto edged Niagara Falls Flyers, last year's Memorial Cup finalists, 4-3 in Toronto to retain a share of first place. Oshawa stunned St. Catharines Black Hawks, 11-3.

In other games Sunday, Peterborough Petes remained in a first-place tie with Marlies by whipping Kitchener Rangers 5-0, and Montreal Junior Canadiens moved into third place with an 8-0 whitewash of Hamilton Red Wings.

The Marlboros led 2-1 after one period, 4-1 after two, and had to repeal a valiant bid by Tim Flynn, who scored twice early in the third period.

Wine Mile, Three-Mile Events

Kidd Regains Old Form

TORONTO (CP)—A touch of bronchitis and an upset stomach were not enough to stop Bruce Kidd of the University of Toronto from winning both the mile and three-mile events at the annual Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Track Championships Saturday.

Kidd broke his meet record, running the mile in four minutes 11.6 seconds. The previous mark was 4:11.7. His time for the three-mile was 14 minutes, 8.6 seconds.

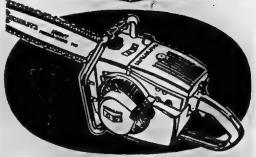
"I wasn't running up to par," Kidd said after the marathon. Beads of perspiration dotted his face as he huddled in a warm up suit, a towel wrapped around his neck because of his bronchial condition.

However, he admitted that he ran "comfortably" in the three-mile event.

The 30-year-old distance runner went out in front of the pack early in the mile race and never looked back. He sprinted across the finish line some four seconds ahead of his closest rival, Hinky Van Der Wal of the University of Western Ontario.

OPENED LEAD

In the three-mile event, Kidd was dogged for the first few laps by Ross Byers of McMaster University, but he opened up a strong lead in the latter stages, lapping the fourth-place finisher twice. He breezed across the finish some 39 seconds in front of the second-place finisher.



Nine colleges participated in the Ontario-Quebec meet. Toronto was the over-all winner with 89 points. McMaster was second; Western, third; Queen's fourth; Assumption fifth; McGill, sixth; Ontario Agricultural College, seventh; Montreal, eighth; Waterloo, ninth.

Frank Baines, running for McMaster, was named Athlete of the Meet. He copped the 100-yard dash in 9.9 seconds, one-tenth of a second off the meet record. He set a meet record for 220 yards running it in 21.7. The old mark was 22.1. Baines was also instrumental in giving his college first in the 440 relay.

Kidd and Baines were the only two athletes to break records in the meet.

Garden Notes

Garden Color Despite Frost

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Frost writes finish to many of our loveliest late flowers but there are others that will survive two or even three rather severe frosts and still keep blooming.

The hardy chrysanthemums and such are two but they need not be considered the only ones. Bring in a few companions to add color and cutting material to extend the season for several weeks.

Solidago, the hybrid golden rod has several forms that make bold gold clumps about 3 feet high while last and last.

Willowy gentian flowers on willowy arching stems and has lovely deep blue trumpet flowers.

Many members of the sunflower family (Heliopsis) is a've been improved and are now welcome in the border. H. light and dark blue, branching stems with many butter yellow daisy-like flowers. H. Patula has light-double blooms with long stems, the better for cutting. H. Lemonie is a hardy perennial of compact growth with four inch yellow daisy-like flowers, drought resistant, blooms from July to October.

SHEETS OF BLOOMS

Gypsophylla Old Haniana with single pink blooms in sheets, sheets of blooms from August to hard frost.

Liatris Gay Feather does its best in poor soil and produces stately spikes of bloom. The tube type blooms are very good foil for the usual fall orange and yellow of the Calendula and Solidago.

Achilles, that long lasting perennial that florists dye for winter bouquets, has arrowy foliage. The Pearl, or Perry's White with its extra large bloom lasts well for many months in the garden or cut.

A Coronation Gold has three foot sturdy stems and bright bloom with lacy silver foliage.

A. Carise Queen (Barker's variety) has an abundance of cherry red flowers.

LATE FLOWERING

Anaglina Flasheri and A. Wilsoni are late flowering members of that family. They are tall stately plants with hood shaped blooms (also called monks hood) in lovely blues and purples. Good cutting material. They will bloom on until really cold weather comes to stay if you keep them picked, or pinched back occasionally. Give light protection in December with a few loose evergreen boughs and they will winter over.

The grey leaves of Artimisia make those lovely flower clumps for the background and the silvery foliage is useful for drying for winter bouquets and arrangements all through the year.

As background plant try Bellonia. The white daisy-like flowers bloom on six foot stocks with dark green foliage. Eupatorium has lavender pink bloom and is equally late.

With a few of these perennials you can keep color in the garden for several extra weeks in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Champagne spent the weekend in Oswego, New York at the home of Mr. Champagne's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Champagne.

Miss Mary Ann Bonter of the teaching staff of Tweed High School returned to her home on Wednesday after spending several weeks in Belleville hospital as the result of a broken leg.

PLAYERS HONORED

REGINA (CP)—Three Canadians who among them have played 27 years of professional football—all of them from Saskatchewan Roughriders — were honored by fans, teammates and other football clubs here Saturday. Middle guard Ron Atchison and tackle Ray Wietzner, who have played 12 years each with the Riders, and Gene Makowsky, who has played 13 years, are known as "The Big Three."

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN—Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harry and children were visited with Mr. and Mrs. Mac Nobes of Cobourg, on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Si Sloat and George of Carrying Place had supper on Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. William S. Harry and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kennedy, Ricky and Grant of Garden Ci'y, Long Island were visitors of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sickels recently and attended her sister Thelma's wedding.

Miss Geraldine Harry and Ralph Lawrence of Melville spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William S. Harry. Ross Carroll of Stirling was a Sunday guest.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hale of Toronto spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Clapp and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harry and family of Brockville were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Harry and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harry and family were visitors on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paul of Almonte were weekend visitors of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Clapp and family.

Goyette May Have Set Assist Mark

NEW YORK (AP)—Did Phil Goyette set a National Hockey League record here Sunday night?

New York Rangers don't know, Goyette doesn't know and the record books don't say.

The New York forward earned four assists in one period as the Rangers downed Boston Bruins 5-1.

"I think somebody got five a long time ago," said Goyette. But he may have been thinking of the record for most points in one period. The NHL book shows Les Cunningham and Max Bentley, both of Chicago Black Hawks, tied in this department with five.

Cunningham got his on two goals and three assists against Montreal Canadiens Jan. 28, 1940. Bentley did it against the Rangers on Jan. 28, 1943, with four goals and one assist.

Billy Taylor of Detroit Red Wings had seven assists in one game against Chicago March 16, 1947, but the NHL records do not list any "most assists in one period."

Centenary

CENTENARY—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Plumpton, Mark and Marcia were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nobes and Randy.

Margaret, Marie and Shirley Edmondson of Peterborough spent the holiday weekend with their grandparents.

The Men's Club of Bayside Charge held their regular supper meeting on Friday evening in Centenary Hall. Mr. W. Slavin of Belleville was guest speaker.

Mrs. P. Ray who underwent surgery in Kingston hospital is progressing nicely.

Mrs. L. Pearson, Mrs. R. Thrasher, Mrs. R. McGrath, Mrs. A. Christopher and Mrs. R. Edmondson attended the Second Regional Meeting of the West Hastings Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women in Marmora on Wednesday.

Miss Eileen Hancock of Guelph spent the weekend with Marcia and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hancock.

Mrs. Erwin Hart and Miss Helen Hart are enjoying a trip through the States, visiting friends on the way.

Laughs for Sale Unfunny And Not Likely to Last

By CYTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It is not very often that even a dedicated television viewer has an experience like Laughs for Sale, the program that replaced Sunday nights 100 Grand on ABC.

I cannot remember a program so unfunny. If it lasts a couple of weeks, it could make comedians go out of style.

The idea is to solicit comedy material from amateur writers. The material, selected by an unidentified board of experts, is read by professional comedians.

Sunday night Mickey Rooney, Phil Foster and Shecky Greene tried but could not conceal their distaste for the material. Comedienne Cara Williams was around, too, and I suspect her spot was cut out of an over-long tape. She was the luckiest of the four.

Steven Allen once had a network show called Songs for Sale based on the same idea, but smart arrangements covered a lot of musical sins. But surrounded by really bad amateur comedy writing, Mickey Rooney couldn't be funny even when they released dozens of dogs on the stage to help out.

One show returning for a new season has quietly picked up a new format and is much happier and faster than before. It is NBC's Joey Bishop Show on Saturdays.

Joey seems more easy in his role and the format includes a sort of concealed night-club or variety-type entertainment each week.

Rote Leads Charging Chargers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tobin Rote, a cart-sliding guy who probably has played out more options than any other team in pro football, is driving San Diego Chargers toward their third American Football League divisional title in four years.

Rote rolled up 266 yards in the air by completing 16 of 22 passes, including touchdown pitches of 79 and 44 yards to Lance Alworth, as the Chargers knocked off the defending league champion Kansas City Chiefs 35-17 Sunday.

United Dethrones Hotspurs

LONDON (Reuters) — Tottenham Hotspur was displaced as leader of English League soccer's first division Saturday when it could only draw 1-1 with the Football Association Cup finalist, Leicester City.

It was the first point Tottenham has dropped at home this season.

The new leader is Spurs' great rival, Manchester United, which beat Nottingham Forest 2-1.

Spurs were a goal down in the 19th minute through Frank McClintock but equalized before half-time through Cliff Jones.

Manchester United, with the score 1-1 at half time, had its work cut out in the second half against a lively Forest attack, but Albert Quixall scored the winner with 20 minutes to go.

THREE ARE AT TOP

There are three teams at the top with 19 points, Manchester United leading on goal average. Spurs are second and Sheffield United is third.

Sheffield United beat Birmingham City 3-0 as centre-forward Derek Pace scored all the goals and nearly got a fourth.

The positions in the first division continues to be tightly contested, with only two points separating the leaders.

In the match at Wolverhampton, where Wolves drew 2-2 with Bolton Wanderers, police were sent into the crowd 15 minutes from the end after a complaint that something had been thrown on to the field.

At Chelsea the home team lost 2-1 to Sheffield Wednesday.

US College Football

NEW YORK (CP)—Southern California crushed four times ranked Oklahoma State 32-3 in the major shocker on Saturday's U.S. college football program.

While the Trojans pulled off the top - upset, Jimmy Side passed for one touchdown and scored another as Auburn remained undefeated with a 29-21 decision over Georgia Tech, and entered its bid for a spot in the top 10 teams across the U.S.

The other members of the top 10 came through unscathed, but second-ranked Wisconsin, third-ranked Pittsburgh and sixth-ranked Oklahoma had considerable difficulty.

BEAWA

Wisconsin had to turn back three final-quarter bids by Big Ten foe Iowa before subduing the Hawkeyes 10-7. Pittsburgh needed a 46-yard touchdown run by Paul Martha in the fourth quarter to down West Virginia 13-10 and Oklahoma had to mount a second-half drive to edge Kansas 21-18.

Elsewhere among the elite, fifth-ranked Mississippi shut out Tulane 21-0, seventh-ranked Illinois took care of Minnesota 16-6 and ninth-ranked Alabama rode over Tennessee 35-0. Navy and Northwestern, tied for No. 10 ranking, kept pace, the Middies defeating VMI 21-12 and Northwestern walloping Miami of Ohio 37-6.

Notre Dame quarterback Frank Gullo passed for two touchdowns and scored once in a 27-12 walloping of UCLA and Army clobbered Wake Forest 47-0.

Air Force was upset by Maryland 21-14.

Picton News

50th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

PICTON — Sunday was a bright, sunny day when it was made brighter for Mr. and Mrs. Stewart York, when many friends and relatives joined in the celebration of their golden wedding day.

At noon, there was a family dinner at Maple Park, Bloomfield, and later, Mr. and Mrs. York were at "home" to relatives and many friends. Their home is at Black Creek, where they have resided ever since they were married. On the lawns, which sweep to the edge of the mouth of Bloomfield, where it joins Lake Ontario, roses still bloomed in the garden, and the beauty of autumn was still visible on McMahon's Mountain, across the creek — one of the county's scenic spots.

Indoors, where guests were graciously received by Mr. and Mrs. York, there were lovely roses on the table and an anniversary cake which featured a golden heart. There were potted golden 'mums from the Black Creek Horticultural Society of the United Church Women. There was an electric clock from Prince Edward Agricultural Society and gifts from family and friends. Delectable refreshments were served as friends joined friends on this happy occasion.

"It does not seem anything like fifty years," said Mrs. York, attractive in a flowered dress with golden rose corsage. She recalled that though it was raining the day they were married, she was driving a bit at Gananoque as they travelled on their honeymoon.

BORN IN COUNTY

Mrs. York was formerly Florence Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Willet Cook, and was born in Rochester — Mr. York, son of Mr. and Mrs. William York, was born in Hillier county. However, their families returned to Prince Edward while they were young — so they consider themselves natives.

Both Mr. and Mrs. York have been esteemed members of the community, sharing in its activities and proving good neighbors and friends. They are members of the United Church and Mrs. York is active in the W.C.W.

The anniversary was marked by greetings and good wishes from several dignitaries. Among them were Prime Minister Lester Pearson, Premier John Robarts, Opposition Leader Mr. Diefenbaker, Douglas Aikenbrack, M.P., Prince Edward-Lennox.

JUDGE OF POULTRY

Mr. York's hobby has been poultry. In earlier years he kept many fancy birds and participated in the big shows held each January in Picton armouries. He is acknowledged an "expert." For many years he has been given the services as poultry judge at the county fair in Picton. Mr. York received a year ago after twelve years as secretary-treasurer of South Marysburgh Fair at Milford.

Mr. and Mrs. York have a family of seven: Mrs. August Kaiser, Belleville; Mrs. Lorne MacDowell, Listowel; Mrs. Ed. Mallen, Kingston; Mrs. Sheila Dean, Toronto; Brian at Picton, Robert on the farm, Neil in California.

The members of the family attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles York (brother) of Wooler, Mrs. E. Dean and daughter Theresa, Kingston; Mrs. S. Dean, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Edward York (nephew), Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert York, Mr. and Mrs. Brian York, Mrs. A. Kaiser and children, Mr. and Mrs. Y. MacDowell and daughter Shirley, Mrs. Harold Boyce (sister), Picton; Mrs. Charles Shibley (sister), Picton; Kurt Kaiser (nephew), Cressy.

87-Foot Yawl Runs Aground Off Salmon Point

PICTON—An 87-foot yawl, "Sable", owned by Dave Morrissey of Chicago, Ill., ran aground on a reef off Salmon Point about 8 AM Saturday morning. It was released about 7.30 Sunday morning, and, not suffering damage, proceeded on its way east.

Florida - bound, the craft is believed to have got off its course due to magnetic rocks in the area which affected the compass and the fog which hung over the lake.

There were eight on board the captain, Mr. Morrisey, Robert McManus, Chicago, first mate, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Simpkins, Milan, Mich., Mrs. Cameron, Southfield, Mich., Mrs. Stan Setzner and Richard, Chicago, Stan Grucott, Choxbourgen, Mich.

The palatial yawl had come from Chicago via Mackinaw, Detroit, Welland Canal, Kingston, St. Lawrence Seaway and river, to the Atlantic.

HALF MILE OFF SHORE

The grounding occurred more than a half mile off shore and north of Point Petre where there is a lighthouse, which the craft should have passed on the south side. A night run had been made from Toronto to Kingston.

"We attempted, first, to get free by heaving out with an anchor," Mr. Simpkins related. "Then we took soundings and decided help would be needed. Mr. Morrisey rowed ashore with a duck hunter directed him to Stanley Hanna, a commercial fisherman, who has a good sized tug. However this attempt failed as the yawl was firmly grounded."

"A call was made to the United States Coast Guard at Oswego and they referred us to the new Canadian Coast Guard across the bay at Trenton. Then the 35-ton rescue ship "Rocsay" came from Toronto. During the night the tug may have floated the yawl, as she pulled off easily, but we are grateful to them and to the Rocsay."

"As the Rocsay left we could see their official mascot, a rag doll, perched as if he approved of the whole operation," said Mr. Simpkins.

Cherry Valley Scene of $1,000 Fire

PICTON — Exploding gasoline and bursting shells drove spectators from the scene when a spectacular fire destroyed a garage owned by Sam Armstrong in the village of Cherry Valley Saturday night.

All the contents and a car were destroyed with a loss of between ten and fifteen thousand dollars. No insurance was carried.

The garage is located in the heart of the village and a much more disastrous conflagration would have been likely had the garage not been covered with asbestos shingled roof.

The Armstrong home and a small garage are similarly covered and they escaped only with blistered paint due to the intense heat. Another factor aiding firemen was the lack of any breeze which would have carried sparks to the township general store nearby and to the tender-like brush and marsh at the rear of the burned building. Although Camp Picton fire department responded, the blaze was beyond control and the building was levelled in thirty minutes.

The fire was fed by cans of oil, a stock of new tires, cans of anti-freeze and the gasoline in the car tank.

FLAMES MUSHROOM

Mr. Armstrong had recently purchased about 400 cases of deer hunting and when these exploded, along with cans of oil and gasoline, it was like a war time bombardment. When the gas tank of the car exploded, flames mushroomed 40 feet into the sky.

Contests lost also included complete sets of garage tools, air compressor, welding outfit, many types of auto accessories.

Fire started in the shed in use to deliver mail on rural route one," said Mrs. Armstrong. "I had been at the garage at seven o'clock and all was well. Shortly before nine, Mr. Armstrong glanced out of the window and saw the fire. I went in through a side entrance. Interior of the car was ablaze. I went out the big front door to get the garden hose but the fire drove me back. Also the hydro service was cut off and the pump in the house stopped."

Although he had removed the cash box, Mr. Armstrong lost many valuable records. He believed a short circuit may have occurred in the car, causing the outbreak.

Nicklaus Wins Sahara Tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (A)—Jack Nicklaus came from behind on the last nine holes Sunday to win the $70,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament with a final round 68 and a 72-hole score of 276.

The 22 - year - old Masters champion collected $13,000 as he rallied from a two-stroke deficit to overcome his nearest rivals, Al Geiberger and Gay Brewer. Both Geiberger and Brewer finished with 70s and 277 totals.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 73 in Sunday's play for a 283 total worth $1,208.33 in prize money. Also finishing with a 283 was Al Johnston of Montreal who duplicated his fellow-Canadian's 73 on his last round of the course.

Al Balding of Toronto shot a 74 on the final round for a 284 total, and $196.33 prize money.

Geiberger led Nicklaus by two strokes as they passed the 63rd hole. He putted from 40 feet down the carpet on the last green.

The ball hit the middle of the cup, only to bounce out and travel another 4½ feet.

PUTTED BACK

Geiberger putted back and holed out to gain a tie and a split in the runner-up money.

The setting for the tournament was the 7,038 yard, par 36-35—71 course at the Paradisedise Valley Country Club.

Tied at 278 were Bobby Nichols, Tommy Aaron and Don Whitt—Aaron with a 68, Nichols a 69 and Whitt a 70.

Arnold Palmer who went into the tournament tied on even terms with Nicklaus, wound up well down the line with a 73 for 283.

Nicklaus, Geiberger and Brewer went into the final 18 holes all even.

Nicklaus started out with a miserable 75 in the first round. He came with two straight 66s and closed out with a 69 SUNDAY.

Geiberger had rounds of 67-71-69-70 and Brewer 68-69-70-70 as each collected $5,250.

BAY SEASON ENDS

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—The freighter Deborah, loaded with 667,500 bushels of wheat, sailed from here early Sunday as the Hudson Bay shipping season closed. A National Harbors Board spokesman said the northern port handled 22,864,400 bushels of wheat this year, a record.

Letter From Mistress Brings Much Mail in Reply

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was fascinated by the letter from the woman who admitted that for 11 years she had been the mistress of a married man. I'm sure her lover is my husband.

I have adored this man with all my heart these past 11 years — and you can add another 11 years for good measure, because there were two other women before this one came along.

I'm in excellent health, contrary to what she believes, but it's far more convenient to tell one's mistress that the wife is mentally ill, or that she suffers from headaches, backaches, exhaustion and so forth. This provides him with an excellent excuse for seeking outside company and it makes the mistress believe she is filling a vital need in his life.

I've dedicated myself to being a good mother, an active and useful member of the community, and I'm determined to hold my head up. Life would be infinitely easier, however, if well-meaning "friends" didn't feel it their moral obligation to tell me what is going on.

I hope to face the future with courage and to wait patiently until my man comes home for good. I will welcome him back and yes — even push his wheel chair — because I love him and I always will. — GRISELDA.

DEAR ANN LANDERS—Please tell that mistress of 11 years that her letter scored a bull's eye. It's my husband she has all right, and she can have him.

I've been begging the big clown to clear out for the last six years. I've told him I'm sick and tired of covering up for him with the kids. I've even packed his clothes and ordered him to leave. But do you know what he says? "Honey, that woman can't shine your shoes. Please stick with me until I get this foolishness out of my system."

So I'm sticking — with the clear understanding that the first time he embarrasses me or his children by appearing on a public sidewalk with that dame I'll knock his block off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please wire me collect either yes or no. Did that letter from the 11 year mistress come from Hamilton, Ontario? My husband has been acting funny since 1952 and it all figures. Thanks, Mom. — T. C. L.

* * *

DEAR T. C. L. — Sorry I will not tell you where the letter came from, but I will tell you that it did not come from Hamilton. And I'm not your mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm so furious I could chew nails. Thursday's mail brought a Chicago Sun-Times clipping of your column about the woman who has been a mistress for 11 years. Friday morning I received a clippiig of the same column — this one from the Detroit Free Press. Saturday I got another clipping — this one from Grand Rapids, Michigan.

My husband and I have been married for 11 years and I can't figure out whether someone thinks we are living together without the benefit of clergy — or whether I'm being told in a not-so-subtle way that my husband has a mistress. What does this sound like to you? — BUNDLE OF NERVES.

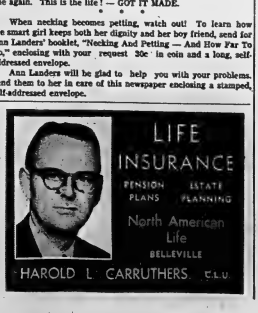
DEAR BUNDLE — It sounds like you know a needle-artist with an air-travel card. Forget it.

* * *



DEAR ANN LANDERS — You'll never print this letter because it doesn't support your stupid, outdated Puritanical advice. As a mistress of seven years standing I would like to say I hope the man doesn't marry her because it will spoil everything.

A mistress doesn't have to wash the guy's socks or listen to him snore. Neither does she have to put up with his miserable relatives or his boring boss. I get the man at his best. His wife gets him at his worst. I've been a wife twice and I'll never be one again. This is the life! — GOT IT MADE.

240 Jets Fly U.S. Division To Germany

Move Armored Troops Overseas in 3 Days

BONN (Reuters)—The first of 240 American jet transports carrying battle-ready armored troops headed for West Germany today in the biggest transatlantic troop lift in history.

Operation Big Lift was scheduled to move an entire American armored division from bases in the United States to three points in West Germany —Rhein Main, Ramstein and Sembach—in three days.

Tanks, artillery and troop carriers for the lightly equipped airborne contingent will be made available from the stockpiles in Europe.

Plans called for immediate employment of the division after landing.

Troops were to pick up heavy and mobile equipment and simulate a counter - attack over ground theoretically seized by an enemy in a sudden attack.

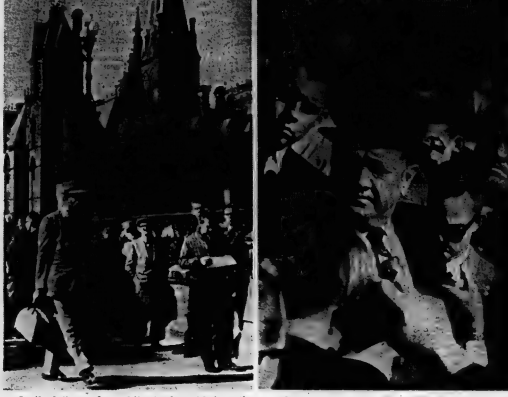
The exercise has been described by American military sources as a massive test of American ability to move troops to Europe in support of NATO if a sudden threat required their presence here.

AT HEAVY COST

But military observers here saw a different significance in the airlift, which will involve 24,000 troops and cost about $20,000,000.

If Operation Big Lift demonstrates the ability of American forces to move quickly into any area in the world where they are needed, the Johnson administration could argue for withdrawal of some of the European forces to U.S. bases at a considerable saving to American taxpayers.

Besides saving dollar expenditures abroad, the move would create a standing pool of battle-ready divisions to be launched from Fortress America to troubled spots anywhere.



The observers noted that similar tests were planned for next year and 1965 to include the Middle East and Asia.

The possibility of American troop withdrawal from Europe, widely discussed in the West German press, was cited by the West German defence ministry to ask Washington for clarification on its intentions.

A ministry spokesman said Monday West Germany had received assurances that NATO followed.

He said he has lost his job and house. He is the father of

Former MP Gets Term Of 5 Years

TORONTO (CP) — A former Liberal MP had his two - year suspended sentence increased to five years in penitentiary Monday by the Ontario Appeal Court.

Raymond Brunesz, former MP for Glengarry - Prescott, was convicted in Ottawa last year of taking a $10,000 bribe. Brunesz accepted the money from a fellow Hawkesbury resident in return for using his influence to have the federal government purchase special property for a post office site.

The stiffer penalty was handed down Monday in a judgment by Mr. Justice James McLennan.

Both the Crown and Brunesz appealed the decision of County Court Judge Frank Costello at Ottawa in June of 1962, the Crown seeking a more severe sentence and Brunesz appealing the conviction. The charge carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

Judge Costello said at the time of sentencing it would be an insult to members of Parliament to impose a prison term as a deterrent. He ordered Brunesz to sign a bond to keep the peace for two years.

Property involved was sold to the federal government for $63,000. A $170,000 post office subsequently was built on the Hawkesbury site.

Brunesz contended he did not accept the $10,000 corruptly and was not acting in his official capacity as an MP at the time.

The appeal decision said that departure by an MP from the rigorous standard of honesty should not be tolerated.

"Nor, in violation of these responsibilities, the service of which can be bought," he said, "then justice and freedom cannot survive, nor can this nation long survive as a place where free men can live."

ASKS FOR MERCY

The accused, a star debater in university and a political science graduate, pleaded with the court for mercy after it was announced that the attorney-general's appeal had been allowed.

Legal Battle Looms

By ARCH McKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — A legal showdown seemed today with seamen and their union who marched 2,000 strong on Parliament Monday in defiance of federal back-to-work demand.

Steps are "under consideration and will have to be viewed in the light of what happens" today, Prime Minister Pearson told the House of Commons as the marchers withdrew.

"We'll know the situation when we get back to our ports," President Hal C. Banks of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada told lieutenants in ordering dispersal of the picnicklike and peaceful three - hour demonstration. "We'll know what to do then."

Members themselves would decide whether to end the walkout that has been termed an illegal strike by the government, he said. From Montreal SIU headquarters later came word that meetings would be held today by the men who had made the 27 ships from the Lakehead eastward—starting about noon with the return of the demonstrators.

Tied in with the government plans for possible legal action challenging an SIU action, today—were reports that the shipping companies themselves may be ready to take disciplinary action or move into the courts in an effort to end a lineup that has hindered some shipping but has failed so far to curb record inland export movements.

PROVISIONAL TRUSTEES

The demonstration on Parliament Hill protested the government's federal trusteeship legislation ready to be clamped on the SIU and four other unions —which have accepted it. Last efforts to negotiate a private settlement ended Sunday.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Monday that the trusteeship will be lifted quickly without delay as soon as the three trustees are selected.

As marchers dispersed outside Parliament, his minority Liberal regime of a year was charged, in a non-confidence motion by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, with undue delay in invoking the trusteeship.

Its objective is to end the Great Lakes labor strife caused by SIU opposition to the fledgling Canadian Maritime Union —sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress—and to cleanse the SIU of irregularities cited in a biting federal shipping inquiry report.

There was speculation that Great Lakes shipping firms themselves may be on the war-

SIU Walkout Has Not Yet Affected Grain Shipments

MONTREAL (CP)—The continuing walkout by members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) in defiance of federal government orders to return to work has had little immediate effect on the shipment of grain out of Canada.

Union organizers in Montreal said meetings at SIU halls, nearest the vessels abandoned by the sailors, are scheduled to be held around noon today in the face of government threats to take disciplinary action against the sailors and union officers for violating federal labor laws.

Although movement of grain out of St. Lawrence River ports is reported to be "normal" by department of transport officials, there were fears a prolonged SIU walkout would soon empty grain elevators in Eastern Canada.

SIU crews on the West Coast did not join in the walkout.

Following Monday's march on Ottawa by an estimated 2,000 SIU members in protest against a government trusteeship over five unions, a scheduled meeting in union halls Monday night did not materialize.

Union organizers said later a "committee of 15" in charge of the protest had decided to schedule the meetings today and that the SIU members would remain on the shore at least until after the discussions."

Neither Hal Banks, union president, nor members of his executive were seen at union headquarters in downtown Montreal Monday night although they were reported to have returned from Ottawa.

Port officials reported ships were moving in and out of Montreal harbor "as usual" because most grain carriers were able to dock at, and sail from grain-loading sheds without help.

Besides the 25 ships tied up in Montreal Harbor, at least an-

UN Still Excludes China

By JIM PEACOCK

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN General Assembly, having again refused to seat Communist China, turned to the peaceful coexistence policies of President Tito of Yugoslavia today a few hours after two men were arrested near his hotel suite.

Tito, scheduled to address the 11 - country General Assembly at noon in the general debate is expected to call on the UN to adopt a set of principles of peaceful coexistence as a guideline for improving international relations.

Tito came to New York after talks in Washington last week with President Kennedy and was visiting the UN for the first time since 1960.

He has expressed belief that the division of the world into two main power blocs would ultimately break down as na-

Prime Minister Pearson said the government's trusteeship legislation will be proclaimed "without delay" when the three trustees are named.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, moving non - confidence, charged the government had created chaos in Canadian shipping by "dawdling" on the trusteeship.

External Affairs Minister Martin said the government has placed embargo on sale or shipment of military equipment to South Africa.

Mr. Pearson announced RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harrison is resigning Oct. 31 and will be succeeded by Deputy Commissioner George B. McClellan.

Spokesmen for the New Democratic, Social Credit and Creditiste parties indicated they will vote against the Conservative non - confidence motion.

New Democratic Leader Douglas said the test of the government's courage and decisiveness will lie in what it does in the next day or so.

TUESDAY, Oct. 22

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to resume debate on the Conservative non - confidence motion. The Senate sits at 8 p.m.

Fight Reds or Lose Help U. S. Tells Nhu's Guards

CP from Reuters-AP

SAIGON — The government's elite special troop force today face an American ultimatum that it return to fighting Communists or lose United States aid.

Special Forces Commander Col. Le Quang Tung was told his six battalions of highly trained specialists would have to earn their money fighting Viet Cong guerrillas instead of protecting the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The action, announced Monday by the state department in Washington, is a direct challenge to Ngo Dinh Nhu, brother of Diem and reported to be the behind-the-scenes ruler in Saigon.

It is also, state department officials said, in line with President Kennedy's announced policy—the United States will support what helps the war effort and will not support what does not.

The troops are an elite airborne corps numbering about 2,000. Besides military assistance, they have been receiving training from a team from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for special anti-guerrilla warfare.

Headed by Col. Tung, a decorated veteran of Nhu, about 4,000 of them are placed on special duty in August, in this

Fears Retaliation by U.S. Against Lumber Industry

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Any bid by Canada to reduce imports of automobile parts from the United States could result in retaliatory measures against Canadian lumber and other products, economist T. E. English said Monday.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Exporters Association that such a step by Canada cannot be justified under accepted economic theory.

"If we press this case on these grounds the U.S. will not be able to resist the pressure to reduce their import balance in lumber and quite a few other products." Dr. English, director of the Canadian trade committee and former economics professor at Ottawa's Carleton University said.

Dr. English spoke after American economist Howard S. Piquet said the U.S. and Canada should agree on a period of time in which they will move by stages toward free trade.

Prime Minister Claims SIU Walkout Illegal

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Acknowledging that the situation could become dangerous, Prime Minister Pearson said Monday night the government intends to "proceed without delay" in putting Canada's maritime industry under government - controlled trusteeship.

He revealed he had phoned President Kennedy on Monday morning and outlined the president's assurance he would do "all he could" to prevent the American labor movement from reacting in a way that would mean harassment of Canadian ships in U.S. ports.

Mr. Pearson said he told President Kennedy that "we would be in for serious trouble" unless the AFL - CIO in the United States is persuaded to accept the Canadian legislation already passed by Parliament, and make necessary because talks on a private trusteeship had been washed out by the illegal walkout of Hal Banks' Seafarers' International Union.

Pressed in the Commons for Mr. Kennedy's reply, Mr. Pearson said:

"He said he regretted the necessity for this action, but he understood the necessity and he would do all he could to avoid any impact which might cause trouble between our two countries."

PHONED PRESIDENT

Mr. Pearson also revealed for the first time that the latest round of talks between the AFL-CIO and the Canadian Labor Congress on a private trusteeship came after he phoned Mr. Kennedy—he didn't say when—and asked for, and received, his intervention to get the talks restored.

These talks were scuttled by SIU walkout, the prime minister said.

The walkout was illegal and the $1,000 - a - minute demonstration on Parliament Hill Monday by Banks and his men was "an effort to bring unjustifiable pressure on the government with respect to (trusteeship) legislation."

"We must show that Canada, and free and democratic labor unionism in Canada, are bigger than Mr. Banks, and that a democratic government is going to be intimidated by the illegal action and pressure of one who has destroyed democratic government in his own union."

Mr. Pearson spoke after being told by the Conservatives he had a Conservative non - confidence motion—due to come to a vote

Lord Home Wants Seat In Commons

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Lord Home today held his first cabinet meeting—and in doing so became the first British peer to head its discussions in 61 years.

He also made plans to see Labor Leader Harold Wilson to discuss plans for an expected delay in the resumption of Parliament.

Home shared the great cabinet table at 10 Downing St. with two of the three men who bitterly opposed him in last week's Conservative party struggle for the premiership.

They were Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler and Treasury Chief Reginald Maudling. Home's third chief rival, Scientist Minister Lord Hailsham, missed the meeting because of a speaking engagement.

Mr. Maudling is the favorite about two weeks' beyond next Tuesday's scheduled opening.

Home's diary says "it will be wants to lead his ruling Conservative party in the House from the start of the fall session.

"To do this he must renounce his 300-year-old Scottish earldom and run in a byelection—which he is certain to win—in order to take a seat in British's effective legislative body.

The cabinet today is being held Nov. 7, the earliest the House can sit under Home's revised schedule would be Nov. 11.

CALLS TIMPERTINENT

Wilson already has dismissed the Home plan as "an impertinence." Other Labor party leaders have referred to it as being part of the Conservative party's "undemocratic" action in forcing Home to accept a nobleman as prime minister.

As the scheduling of House sittings is the prerogative of the Queen acting on the advice of her ministers—in this case the Conservatives—it is not a Home's move does not legally require Wilson's agreement.

Halton May Seek Drought Relief, Fire Hazard Is Worst in Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Farmers in some parts of southeastern Ontario are considering an appeal for drought relief and fire-fighting assistance as no end appeared in sight for the end of a month-long drought.

In Halton County, stretching northwest from Metropolitan Toronto to Hamilton, several municipalities said they would wait two more days before deciding whether to ask for provincial drought assistance.

Halton County Warden C. E. Martin warned residents and outsiders Monday to stay out of their dry bush and farmlands in the county because of the danger of fire.

The warning preceded the opening of the deer - hunting season Tuesday. Mr. Martin's den has met members of county societies to discuss the fire situation, which he described as critical.

The weather office promised some rain for northern regions and none was in sight for southern sections.

However, it said it would be only a light and scattered rain and would do no appreciable good. At least 24 hours of steady rain is needed to ease fire danger, freshen pastures and replenish farm water supplies.

Farmers in southwestern Ontario are abandoning plowing efforts because the soil was either too flaky or too hard to work with good furrows.

In the Parry Sound area, 50 men and a water-dropping aircraft were fighting to control a 300-acre forest fire 35 miles northeast of Parry Sound.

Forest - fires and grass fires were reported burning across the province Monday—under-dry bush and farmlands in the county because of the danger of fire.

Former MP Gets Term Of 5 Years

TORONTO (CP) — A former Liberal MP had his two - year suspended sentence increased to five years in penitentiary Monday by the Ontario Appeal Court.

Raymond Brunesz, former MP for Glengarry - Prescott, was convicted in Ottawa last year of taking a $10,000 bribe. Brunesz accepted the money from a fellow Hawkesbury resident in return for using his influence to have the federal government purchase special property for a post office site.

The stiffer penalty was handed down Monday in a judgment by Mr. Justice James McLennan.

Both the Crown and Brunesz appealed the decision of County Court Judge Frank Costello at Ottawa in June of 1962, the Crown seeking a more severe sentence and Brunesz appealing the conviction. The charge carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

Judge Costello said at the time of sentencing it would be an insult to members of Parliament to impose a prison term as a deterrent. He ordered Brunesz to sign a bond to keep the peace for two years.

Property involved was sold to the federal government for $63,000. A $170,000 post office subsequently was built on the Hawkesbury site.

Brunesz contended he did not accept the $10,000 corruptly and was not acting in his official capacity as an MP at the time.

The appeal decision said that departure by an MP from the rigorous standard of honesty should not be tolerated.

"Nor, in violation of these responsibilities, the service of which can be bought," he said, "then justice and freedom cannot survive, nor can this nation long survive as a place where free men can live."

ASKS FOR MERCY

The accused, a star debater in university and a political science graduate, pleaded with the court for mercy after it was announced that the attorney-general's appeal had been allowed.

He said he has lost his job and house. He is the father of

Castro Raises Price of Food, Beer, Smokes to Fight Floods

CP from AP-Reuters

HAVANA — Prime Minister Fidel Castro has announced that his government is raising the price of beef, poultry, beer and cigarettes to help pay for a $300,000,000 flood control program in hurricane - devastated Oriente province.

In a three-hour television report Monday night on hurricane Flora, Castro accused the United States of withholding weather information from Cuba.

Today's Chuckle

Some of us don't know what we want, but feel sure we don't have it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Rain will spread rapidly northeastward across Northern Ontario this morning being chiefly confined to regions north of Lake Superior and Georgian Bay. Partly cloudy skies will continue over southern Ontario. Warmer weather will return to the region Wednesday with variable cloudiness expected in the north but mainly sunny skies in the south.

ban meteorologists during the storm.

He said a charge by the United States that Cuba had refused to allow flights of U.S. hurricane spotter planes over Cuba was "absolutely false."

"How can anyone dare say this when they don't ask permission to fly their spy planes over us every day?" Castro asked.

He demanded lifting of the U.S. economic blockade because of the hurricane disaster.

"What we only ask," Castro said, "is that they cease a blockade on a country which has suffered a disaster of this kind."

The prime minister said a massive public works program for Oriente province, in eastern Cuba, will include dams and flood control projects which will never be a repetition of Flora's floods.

Admitting heavy losses in the sugar crop, Cuba's principal earner of foreign currency, Castro said the price increases are necessary to buy heavy building equipment for the re-

Establishment of Industrial Development Fund Will Be Decided by the Ratepayers

City ratepayers this year will be asked to vote on the question of establishing an industrial development fund to encourage the location of new industry in the city.

The fund, if approved, would be used to provide required services for new industry.

The recommendation asking for the plebiscite was introduced by Mayor A. M. Haig who said industry today was not looking for fax concessions before deciding to locate but rather was asking what a municipality was prepared to do by way of providing services.

He could see no legal way of establishing an industrial development fund except through a recommendation such as he was introducing.

Mayor Haig said if such a fund was properly administered it would be largely self-liquidating through sale of land and other benefits, which would accrue.

UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED

The recommendation to have the plebiscite was unanimously endorsed by council.

Alderman Jack Ireland noted that the question of Sunday movies, and increasing the public utilities commission membership from three to five would also this year be voted on by the ratepayers and he asked if the timing was right for the question of the industrial development fund.

In spite of this his remarks had received a letter from the collector stating that "due to circumstances beyond his control" garbage could no longer be picked up at the rear of the Bean apartment block.

Wants Garbage Still Collected At Lane's End

Have the city garbage collector's trucks suddenly become wider, or what?

That is the question which Mr. William Bean, Front Street apartment building owner would like to have answered.

Yesterday Mr. Bean told city council he has 12 tenants in apartments over the Front Street Simpsons-Sears store had been notified by letter from the garbage collector that the trucks were too wide for the public lane to the rear of his building and that in the future garbage would have to be carried to the Front Street sidewalk.

He claimed there was no reason why the garbage trucks could not continue to use the lane to the rear of his property to pick up garbage.

"They have been doing it for 15 years," he said. "And the lane is still 10 feet wide."

Mr. Bean said the garbage collector's contract with the city required his trucks to pick up garbage along all public streets.

He agreed, however, that it was a step in the right direction, but "totally inadequate" under circumstances beyond his control" garbage could no longer be picked up at the rear of the apartment block.

FIVE DAY WEEK JUST A DREAM

Although a 5 day week is a reality for many Canadians, for hundreds of thousands a 5 day week is just a dream . . . as any mother of small children will tell you.

Up at the crack of dawn—fetching, carrying, washing, ironing, preparing meals and formulas all day long—7 days a week. She wonders how she could possibly do more.

If she's your wife, you certainly wouldn't trade places with her. Yet think how much EXTRA she'd have to do if anything happened to your income and she was forced to go back to work. Worse still, perhaps, think how many things for your children would be left undone!

There is one sure way to guarantee that this won't happen to your wife and family and that is by your purchase now of sufficient permanent personal life insurance.

May we suggest you talk over your future financial plans and your present health insurance protection with a trained representative of The Excelsior Life Insurance Company, the Company helping Canadians help themselves to peace of mind.

BCI Will Hold Graduation Program

On Friday of this week graduation exercises will be held in the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, when the guest speaker will be Rev. W. F. Banister, D. D., Minister of Chalmers United Church, Kingston.

Honor graduation diplomas will be presented to 90 students who have completed Grade 13, and graduation diplomas to 131 students upon completion of one of the four-year courses. Of these 14 students will also receive Special Commendiate Certificates to mark the successful completion of one of the regular courses of study for grades 7, 8, 9, and10. In addition, the Bay of Quinte District High School Board will present 31 certificates to students completing special courses in grade 10.

Many other awards, including trophies, scholarships, bursaries, public school medals and honor pins will also be presented.

Parents, former B.C.I.V.S. students and other friends of the school are invited to attend.

Burning Leaves Unattended Reports Dept.

The city's fire department is still receiving calls to extinguish burning leaves in the streets which have been left unattended.

The department received a call to 230 Bleecker Avenue last evening to extinguish a pile of burning leaves which had been set a fire and then left burning with no one watching them.

A second call was received this morning to Coleman Street for a similar occurance. Leaves were set a fire and left unattended.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said upon questioning residents in the area, no one knew who lit them.

Also on Monday evening, the department was called to attend an overheated stove at 64 Cedarvale Street. No damage was reported.

Public School Trustees Want No Pay for Services

Members of the Belleville Public School Board have no desire to receive pay for the service which they render the municipality as school trustees.

At their regular monthly meeting held Monday evening, board members present unanimously voted against the suggestion that legislation be enacted to permit payment of school board members.

The vote was taken in reply to a request from the Ontario School Trustees Council, initiated from the Ontario Department of Education.

The night's meeting was long list of routine board matters discussed. Attending the meeting were: chairman Morley Lowrison and trustees Hazel Pugh, Lyle Langabeer, J. N. McKibbon, George Olsen, James Ritchie, J. Russell Scott, M.D., MacDonald Smith, William Townson and Gordon H. Wills.

ENROLMENT UP

The report of the superintendent and chief inspector showed an enrolment of 4,883 at September 30th as compared with 4,705 at the same date in 1962. Attendance efficiency for September stood at 97.57 per cent and attendance for Bessie M. Kerr reported attention had been given to 17 referrals. Miss Kerr advised that the contents of the children referred for his attention had been returned to school, one is in the Ontario Training School, Bowmanville, a second is at the Ontario Training School, Galt and action is pending on the remaining case.

The Board accepted the recommendation of its property committee to proceed with further work to complete landscaping and site development at the Harry J. Clarke School. Contract for shrubbery was awarded to Belleville Landscape Service at $431.82.

Agreement was approved to share the cost of a sidewalk on Rollins Drive at a cost to the Board of approximately $1,025.00. A contract will be let to complete fencing across the northern boundary of the school site.

WILL BUILD FENCE

The Board also authorized the construction of a 6-ft. wire mesh fence along the western boundary of the Prince Charles school property to eliminate entrance from Yeomans Street.

A proposal to improve ventilation at the Harold Ketcheson Queen Elizabeth School was delayed until further information can be secured.

The statement for the third quarter was received and overspending in eight accounts was four accounts were noted to be noted. The remaining forty-seven within their limits and the treasurer advised that the year should be finished with a considerable balance.

Current accounts totalling $72,866.49 and including $1,025.00. No 2 payroll were approved for payment. Also approved were amounts for capital $31,513.24 on the building account for the second addition to the Harry J. Clarke school.

CAN TAKE PHOTOS

William E. Riley, photographer, appeared before the Board to provide ngthing entertainment to children and parents group pictures of classes in the public schools. Approval was given providing permission, however, for Grade Eight classrooms only.

Four trustees indicated intention of attending a regional conference of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association at the Victoria School in Kingston, Wednesday, November 13th. Topics to be discussed will be the value of trustee organizations to Boards, teachers' salary trends and financing problems associated with the Robarts Plan.

Dr. W. C. McCutcheon, President of the Belleville Dental Society, advised that the Society has appointed John M. Clarke, D.D.S. to act as Dental Advisor to the Belleville School Board.

And the Belleville YMCA has plans for an organized "Y" program in the west part of the city.

At last night's meeting a request from the "Y" seeking permission to use parts of the Prince Charles School building to carry out their program was given through discussion.

Chairman Morley Lowrison appointed trustees Mac Smith and James Ritchie to act with him in preparing information and a report on the matter for the next meeting of the board in November.

Taxable Assessment of City Close to $100 Million After 3-Year Program Completed

Taxable assessment in the city of Belleville for 1964 will be close to $100 million — an increase of more than 200 per cent over that of the current year.

This doesn't mean the city has suddenly taken on a phenomenal growth or that the city tax collector will collect three times as much in taxes next year.

It merely means the city assessment department has now completed its three year program of property re-assessment and that the new figures will apply in 1964.

City Assessment Commissioner G. Leighton Thompson yesterday told council that the new assessment notices will be going out to property owners later in the month.

Mr. Thompson would be a letter explaining the new re-assessment and inviting any enquiries for further information. The letter also sets out dates on which owners of various values might come to city hall to hear assessment matters explained.

NOT ON NEW ASSESSMENT

He said that the new assessment figures would approximate $98,780,000, as compared with assessment values of $31,961,865 for this year. "Taxes will not be based on this total on the new revised assessment," he said.

Mr. Thompson noted that the city this year required a sum of $3,063,385, to meet expenses in all departments. This required a mill rate of 91.9 residential and 103 mills for non residential properties.

To raise the same amount of money next year based on the assessment figures would require a rate of 30 mills residential and 33.3 mills non-residential.

He noted, however, the amount of money to be raised was the responsibility of the city council and was of course dependent on the services required by the citizens of Belleville.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

"The assessment department is not responsible for the amount of taxes levied in the municipality, a fact that is sometimes misunderstood," he said. "As more revenue is required to provide the services and improvements desired by the people of the city efficiently the tax rate is increased accordingly and levied on assessment."

Mr. Thompson said the main function of the assessment department is to appraise and assess property in accordance with the provisions of the statutes to the end that equality of assessment.

He pointed out that any increase in taxes due to the reappraisal alone will occur only where assessments have been found to be out of line with other assessments in the city.

Factors which must be taken into consideration in making the new assessment include present use, cost of replacement, rental value, sales value and any other circumstances affecting the value.

The resulting figures would bring properties into closer parity to today's true values, while land has also been treated in similar manner resulting in a more realistic worth to the city.

ALL BUILDINGS INSPECTED

All buildings have been inspected inside and out, measured, typed, classified into physical and economic depreciation given where warranted. Lands had also been depreciated where necessary and obsolescence where certain circumstances might affect the value.

Mr. Thompson said a letter explaining the re-assessment would be mailed out to property owners along with the new assessments. While only the future would tell the number of appeals which would be made, Mr. Thompson felt that property owners generally would "take an honest view" of the matter.

Mayor A. M. Haig, expressed his own and council's appreciation to Mr. Thompson for the able manner in which the city's re-assessment program had been carried out.

"There are very few municipalities with an assessment department able to take on this additional work" he said.

Cash Register Rifled After Window Broken

A middle-aged transient charged with two break-ins in Belleville, one in which a store window was smashed, will undergo psychiatric examination.

The man was arrested after police were called late last night to Barns' Cigar Store on Front Street. Police say the cash register had been rifled after a store window was broken.

The accused man today told Magistrate T. Y. Wills he had been hospitalized at provincial mental centres in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick.

The magistrate ordered the mental examination before allowing him to stand trial.

Two Remanded For Car Theft

Bail was set at $500 each today for each of two Belleville youths facing car theft charges.

Steven Allan Mott, 16, and 17-year-old John Arthur Lowes are charged with theft of automobiles, October 13th and September 21st.

Lowes's parents signified to Magistrate T. Y. Wills they could put up the ball and the youth was remanded one week.

Mott will appear in court again Friday when possibility of Mott's meeting bail will again be discussed.

However, the magistrate warned police the case would have to be expedited.

"I am not going to let him (Mott) sit in jail, and the other to be out, for too long a period of time."

Motion to Construct Walk On North Side West Dundas Street Defeated in Council

United Appeal Fund $23,171

National corporations canvassed by the Belleville United Appeal have donated a total of $6,405 to the campaign so far, according to R. G. Gnaedinger, the Appeal campaign manager. The sum represents about 67 per cent of the total expected from this source, Mr. Gnaedinger added, and is more than a third of the total collected in the city so far.

Returns to last Saturday night totalled $23,171.50, or about 26 per cent of the total objective, Mr. Gnaedinger said. The total is much less than last year's campaign results after the same amount of campaigning.

Last year, the total by the end of the 17th day of the campaign was $33,695, or about $12,500 more than this year's total. About $4,900 of this amount though, was raised through a residential blitz, which has not been repeated this year. Even allowing for this $4,500, the total is about $8,000 less than last year's results.

SLOW RETURNS

"The level of giving this year is quite satisfactory though," Mr. Gnaedinger commented this morning, "possibly even better than it was last year. It's just that the returns are a bit slow in coming."

Belleville's performance is far below that of Oshawa or other cities, Mr. Gnaedinger said. Brantford, first city in the province in the past, the top has reached $204,000 in three weeks, and it has yet to begin its residential canvas. Although Brantford is twice the size of Belleville, Mr. Gnaedinger said, the Brantford objective was about twoand-a-half that of Belleville.

THIRD WAY HOME

Chatham, a city the same size as Belleville has an objective of $101,300—$16,000 more than Belleville's and had achieved 35 per cent of it at the end of the second week of the campaign.

Fredericton, N.B., another city the same size as Belleville, has a goal of $114,916, and had collected $37,779 of that total by the end of the second week of the campaign.

Main objectives of the campaign in Belleville, Mr. Gnaedinger said, is slow returns. Except in the business and institutions canvass, returns have been generally too slow. They have improved greatly since last Friday though, he said.

Kinsmen Hold Regular Meet At Shrine Club

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville held their regular meeting at the Shrine Club on Monday evening, with a good showing of members present. Dennis Farnsworth, a prospective Kinsman, was accepted into the club.

A special guest attended Monday night's meeting, in the person of Brian Pease, a member of The Round Table of Great Britain. Mr. Pease spoke briefly to the club and outlined the activities of The Round Table, explaining that it was very much like the Kinsmen Club. He said he was much pleased with what he had seen of the meeting to that point, and the spirit of fellowship which was shown.

A report on the forthcoming show, Carousel, was given and memb. s were advised that the total cost of the show would not be at the November 4th meeting as had been arranged previously. Members urged to get out and sell their advertising as the deadline is drawing nearer.

President Jim Wild presided over the meeting.

Two Councillors Resent Remarks Of Comptroller

TRENTON — Clerk-comptroller O. W. Jary told the members of Trenton Council last night that they quite often make "snide remarks" of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board when problems to do with planning arise.

Councillors Ross Burtt and Gerald Weaver resented the remarks, however.

"The planning board makes a 'whipping post' out of us," Councillor Burtt retorted.

"I don't think we made a 'whipping boy' out of the board," was Councillor Weaver's comment. "If the board's terms of reference were given more flexibility we would eliminate many of the problems we're confronted with today."

"Well, next year I'm going to recommend that a councillor be appointed to the board," said Mr. Larry.

The exchange of words came on the heels of a letter from the Community Planning Associates / Did Trenton council want to see the planning board dissolved and an area planning board set up, to include representatives from Trenton Council and from such places as Belleville, Brighton and the counties' (I the area board were set up, Trenton would perhaps hire a full-time planner to deal with local problems.)

"Certainly not in the near future," said Councillor Weaver. "We're having enough trouble now with planning."

Councillor Burtt thought that there should be some easement of planning restrictions in the older areas of the town.

St. Peter's School Holds Commencement Exercises

TRENTON — Commencement exercises were held in the auditorium of St. Peter's School Friday. The program got underway at 8 p.m., when the grade ten graduates filed up the centre aisle of the auditorium to their seats on the stage.

Chairman, Randy Hollingsworth, a present grade ten student, welcomed the graduates, Very Rev. Father Clancy, Rev. Father O'Neill, the Sisters, parents and other guests.

The choir, under the direction of William Long, rang "Ave Maria," Other vocal selections were rendered at appropriate intervals. Next, followed the distribution of prizes. Mr. Dobson, Grand Knight, on behalf of the Knights of Columbus, presented a scholarship of $200 to the student obtaining highest standing in Grade XIII examination. The prize was won by Miss Sheila Gauthier of Trenton, who is attending St. Patrick's College, Ottawa. It was accepted by her father.

Mr. T. Gauthier presented the Margaret Gauthier Memorial Music Scholarships to the pupil coming highest in the piano examinations. The prize was won by Donna Gauthier of Trenton, who is attending St. Patrick's College, Ottawa.

Mrs. William O'Neill, president of the Catholic Women's League, presented cups to those coming first in grades nine and ten. Eileen Hannaford — first in grade ten, and Dennis Daoust — first in grade nine.

After congratulating the graduates, Father Clancy expressed the hope that these graduations would continue their good work. He also said that St. Peter's had equipped them with the foundation necessary for good citizenship. He urged them to build on them save their immortal souls and to make a living in this world.

Fatheer also offered special congratulations to Tony Klemencic who won first prize in the Archdiocesan Catechetical examinations for the junior students. Carole Thompson received graduate and valedictorian, offered a prayer of her classmates thanks to the Clergy, Sisters, lay teachers and the school trustees who had so generously looked to the needs of the graduates for the past ten years, both spiritual and academic.

She also offered some sincere words of appreciation to the various organizations who were generous with their prize donations.

Guest speaker, Mr. Francis Buckley, teacher of English in Belleville Collegiate, delivered a fitting address to the graduates regarding their debt to St. Peter's and responsibilities for the future. He stressed that the best way to assure that these responsibilities would be fulfilled would rest in their concern for the present. For, as he quoted, "the rock of life is wound; the present alone is ours".

The home-room teachers of the grade pupils, Miss Julie Leffett and Mr. Wayne Johnston, were presented with tokens of appreciation and by principals Sister Mary Angeline, with an attractive bouquet of pink carnations, and a Bible, Gift of the graduates.

DATE CHANGED

An item in Saturday night's Intelligencer, naming next Thursday as the day when a special draft on the procurement of ground water would be shown at the utilities building on Front St., should have read: "Thursday, Oct. 31, at 4 p.m."

The public has been invited to the showing of this film by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission.

Council Votes To Settle Bill At $1,000

TRENTON — Town Council last night voted to accept a $1,000 settlement for the cost of the sewer installed from Dundas St. to the new Bayview Mill. In accepting the settlement, the town noted the Mr. Walmsley had already paid $400 on the bill in the last two years.

When the sewer service was installed, three years ago, Mr. Walmsley agreed to pay the town half the difference between the taxes in Murray township, where the motel is located and the taxes the town would collect were the motel inside the town limits.

For the past two years, however, Mr. Walmsley has paid only $200 per year — the rate charged for out-of-town residential hookups. He owes about $3,000, according to the town.

The $1,000 settlement terminates a legal wrangle which began last fall. In September, the town decided to collect the bill — or else.

5 Installments To Pay Taxes Turned Down

TRENTON — Trenton councillors last night voted to shelve a suggestion for a new system of tax billing until some future date.

Under the suggested system, taxpayers would be required to pay their taxes in five different instalments rather than four. The first payment would come due around Jan. 15.

Councillor Ross Burtt argued that this would work a hardship on low income people, per se. "Many small property owners," he said "face unemployment for two or three months. It is too close for comfort to Christmas bills."

Object of the change would be to do away with the town having to borrow money from the bank to meet pay with current accounts until the first tax instalments come in (now in May.) The pre-payment certificates go on sale early in the year, but Councillor Burtt said that very few people take advantage of this interest saving, and those that do, he said, are well able to pay their taxes anyhow.

Belleville this year changed to the five instalment plan from the former three.

Councillor Gerald Weaver wanted to know why Trenton should "pioneer" in the matter.

"Let Belleville get out in a year or so and see what savings they make down there," he said.

A further suggestion that the Jan. 15 first instalment date be put back to March 15 was pointed out by Councillor Weaver as defeating the reason for change, as the town would have by then had to bor. row some money and would be paying interest rates.

A new IBM machine would cost the town around $4,000 the first year. Running the system would cost around $2,300 annually.

With the new system saving the town around $5,000, each year, (after the first year), it was felt that the idea had some merit and it will be considered at a later date.

PROCLAIM REPUBLIC

The People's Republic of China was proclaimed Oct. 1, 1949.

Minister Joins in Protest Of Whistle Blowing in Town

TRENTON — A Trenton minister, Canon K. F. Blachford, has added his voice to a protest raised by Councillor Ross Burtt about the blowing of the whistle on CNR ore trains, passing through the town on tracks parallel to Division St. Rev. Blachford's residence abuts the tracks at the intersection of Division with King St.

In a letter to town council, read at last night's council meeting, Mr. Blachford said that at 10 minutes to 11 o'clock on Oct. 1, he had been "completely deafened" by a blast from the whistle of a passing train. The engine number was 1294, he said, and the whistle had been blown four separate times, while the train was approaching the intersection, once when the engine was across the intersection.

Mr. Blachford said that he quite often had telephone conversations interrupted and that Mrs. Douglas Rushnell, the wife of ambulance operator, R. D. Rushnell, who lives nearby, had told him that she sometimes had a phone for an ambulance delayed until the train passed by.

Mr. Blachford said that Father Clancy of St. Peter's Church had remarked that the blowing of the whistle should not be allowed. (St. Peter's rectory is also located close to Division St.)

Council intends to pass a by-law asking CNR authorities to curtail the whistling. Mayor Meyer, membership chairman.

A buffet lunch was served and dancing held. The new small hours was enjoyed to Hammond organ music, provided by William Long.

Council Asked For Vote on Sunday Movies

TRENTON—Trenton voters will be asked to rule on the question of Sunday movies in the December municipal elections.

Trenton council, meeting last night, was presented with a petition for the referendum, signed by 823 town residents. By law, 700 signatures were required in a town the size of Trenton to force a vote on the issue.

Council will pass the appropriate by-law in connection with the referendum by the first of the month.

Last year, Sunday movies were endorsed by 589 votes to ...1,257 persons didn't want them.

"Do we have an annual vote on this issue?" queried Councillor Gerald Weaver last night.

He was told by clerk-comptroller O. W. Jary, that if enough people signed a petition, a vote could be called each year.

ENJOY OPEN HOUSE

Saturday night, approximately 100 members and 80 to 90 prospective members attended an Open House at the Trenton Country Club. A welcome was extended by acting-president Douglas Alcorn and Ralph Weaver, membership chairman.

A buffet lunch was served and dancing held. The new small hours was enjoyed to Hammond organ music, provided by William Long.

Plan Tyke League

TRENTON—To raise money towards the formation of a "Tyke" hockey league in Trenton, two members of the Trenton Minor Hockey League's Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. G. R. Baker and Mrs. E. Taft, conceived a bake sale. Two persons Sears show room in Trenton, Saturday morning.

Returns from the venture were good. Mrs. Baker said today. Miss Nancy Baker also sold tickets for a Boston Bay draw with marked success.

The ladies of the auxiliary, feeling that many of the 5th and seven-year-olds that left out of hockey, have gone ahead with registration for the Tyke league. As a result, 40 youngsters registered.

The Hen, the Egg and the Ostrich

Belleville Horticultural Society members told city alderman Frank Murray recently that citizens cannot be expected to clean up the city until after the city itself has cleaned up city property. The members spoke after Alderman Murray had addressed the club, and suggested the city should be cleaned up and beautified before the 1967 centennial.

Like the old question of the hen and the egg, the answer is obvious to anyone who does not stop to think about it. Fish and reptiles were laying eggs long before there were hens. If citizens refuse to act for, or demand, a cleaner city—the civic administration can do nothing. The city fathers hear complaints about the tax rate, and with an eye on the next election do their best to keep the taxes down. Even if they realize the city is a mess, (which it is), they know all too well the cost of cleaning it up.

The question is one of leadership. City council is elected to administer the business affairs of the city, and as long as the crime rate remains close to the national average, and health conditions in the city remain acceptable, leadership is a strictly optional function of the group.

No individual citizen is required, of course, to take the lead in anything. And most of them don't.

So the answer is that either a citizen or a group of citizens should take the initiative, or the city administration should. Whoever makes the first move will be damned, but until someone does move the situation will remain static.

It is a very simple problem until either group starts thinking about it. Then the group that starts thinking decides that it's the other group's responsibility.

Security Council Membership

The Ivory Coast has been elected to the Security Council of the United Nations, with a possible 92 out of 111 votes.

If the founders of the UN had possessed second sight when they met in San Francisco less than two decades ago, they would almost certainly have choked on the olives in their martinis when they reached this scene in their gurvey of the future.

The election is, of course, indicative of one of the most surprising developments of the post-war period—the emancipation of the black world and the rise to hopeful independence of handfuls of African states.

Judgment as to whether this development ought to be recognized by, the appointment of a virtually powerless nation like the Ivory Coast to sit in the power-oriented Security Council depends on one's views of what the United Nations should be and, even more important, what it can be in today's world.

The hard-headed diplomats who drafted the constitution of the United Nations in a world at war created the Security Council as a body in which the facts of power would be recognized —and endowed the great powers with the veto. The provision for elected, as well as permanent, members of the Security Council was in itself a bow towards the principle of the equality of all nations. It is, however, carrying this principle rather far if the elected nations are to be chosen without any regard to their might. This move is in the proper direction if it is desired to eventually constitute the Security Council on the basis of equal representation for all factions and regions, regardless of power, but it is not yet clear how any security Council not dominated by the powerful could keep the peace of the world—which is the Security Council's designated responsibility under the U. N. constitution.

Deaf Mutes and Astronauts

"Deaf-Mutes and Astronauts to Benefit from New Israeli Device?" queries a headline on an article in UNESCO Features.

The possible benefactions seems as incongruous as those other associates in a jingle from the world's colonial past, the mad dogs and Englishmen who go out in the noon-day sun.

On examination, though the relationship between deaf-mutes and astronauts proves to be based on physical facts.

The Israel Institute of Technology is experimenting with a telephone which consists of an apparatus with sensitive vibration keys. The "speaker" plays these keys. The "listener" hears through his fingers, placed on a vibrating diaphram. The application of this device to the needs of deaf-mutes is obvious. Astronauts may find it useful because voice communication "is subject to distortion."

Ottawa Offbeat

Sensitive M.P.'s Try to Wear New Salaries Nonchalantly

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . Don't start hoping that it just might, by some wildly fortunate chance, happily work out to mean a thin slice off your income tax . . .

. . . Don't dare to think that it could, in some luckily remote way, even stem the growing cost of Parliament and its increasingly expensive processes . . .

. . . But now, the Honorable Members of the Commons, after that handsome 80 percent salary raise they so generously voted themselves, suddenly have gone on a bit of an economy kick.

When all but ten of them jumped up to vote a resounding "Yea" on that $7,000 salary jacking, they were also plumping cheerfully for certain "fringe benefits," including the charging to the Government—that's you, as a taxpayer—the cost of their telephone calls (a lot by long distance, some overseas) and their telegraph messages.

Either suffering sober second thoughts or the pangs of conscience, the Commons Internal Economy Committee (which is, if only by definition, a luxury-loving management group staffed by MPs themselves, has decreed that the members will simply have to struggle along on that $18,000-plus and pay their own phone and telegraph bills.

BOUNCE BACK

Some of the MPs already had forwarded their bills for charging against the supposedly open-ended Commons expense account when the ruling was made.

They got them back (of course), and, as I say, before have to settle them out of their own pockets.

Some of the individual phone bills — with calls coming in chiefly from distant constituencies — can run as high as $100 monthly.

But then, with $18,000 plus other expenses, the MPs now are in a much better position to handle it.

Additionally, in the all-but forgotten name of Economy, the Management ruled that the Honorable Members may collect refunds — paid out of the Treasury, naturally — for air travel tickets, but only if they go economy class.

There'll be no politically unwise air-borne financial upstaging by the MPs of the taxpayers who are paying for their travels.

The new ruling reads that the MPs may collect refunds on travelling expenses between their place of residence or their constituency and the place where he required for the performance of their Parliamentary duties . . . for transportation charges incurred in travelling by common carrier, and do not exceed the cost of air transportation economy fares, and if the claims made are supported by receipted tickets.

Vainly, the MPs keep protesting that "nobody minds" them helping themselves to that $8,000-plus-expenses pay raise.

Poor dears! They are confronted with the printed evidence that not only do a great many people mind, but continue doing a slow burn about it.

THE POOR PEOPLE

One of the Ottawa newspapers the other day published a full page to pictures and interviews of the MPs on what they were doing to help their new elite financial status as $20,000-a-year-men.

Their wives, going to work harder, they said, of course. They would not have the money to pay for Parliamentary "research." They would be able to keep in closer contact with their constituents (this was before the ruling was reversed that all long distance calls and telegraph messages could be written off to expenses), and generally would become much the better Parliamentarians.

A couple of the wealthier MPS even allowed, in all modesty, that "now" they could afford to bring their wives to the Capital.

One nice, reassuring reading for the embarrassed (and a lot of them were) MPs was that they were very worried about voter and taxpayer reactions to the pay raid.

And when the warm, comfortable mood was rudely broken by an irate taxpayer, still smouldering with resentment, who wrote to the same paper, snarling:

"All you succeeded in providing in your interviews with some of our $18,000-plus MPs was the fact that they are not only first class public pickpockets, but also accomplished prevaricators.

"I suggest you now interview a few of us poor people, the under-$5,000-a-year taxpayers, and find out how we manage to make ends meet.

The MPs who read it — and there it was, in cold print for all the capital to see — could scarcely have mustered a paraphrased "Ouch."

"Son, I do wish you had become a doctor like your father and I wanted you to."

Auto Mishap Causes Hidden

Christian Science Monitor

All too often the explanations set down on the police record fail to explain actually why traffic automobile accidents have occurred. This is the conclusion reached by investigators at the Harvard Medical School in a study financed by the United States Public Health Service.

The management of the traffic death problem in the United States," says Alfred L. Mosley, chief investigator, "is so incompetent that it is appalling." "Driving too fast" and even "driving under the influence of alcohol" may cover up one's basic fault either in driver failure or mechanical failure his group believes.

A number of drivers involved in fatal mishaps were found to have had a previous record of law violations. Or they may have sustained injuries or exhibited tendencies that would warn against their being at the wheel of a car. Suicide or homicide by automobile may occur in undetected cases. The investigators conclude, though in one instance an apparent suicide was found merely because of defective equipment.

Just what, if anything, the may indicate in matters of public policy is still a long way down the investigative road. And thus far no second appropriation has been forthcoming to continue the study.

But an insurance company, Liberty Mutual, is sponsoring a conference on the problem of the driver in "The Automobile And Public Health" in Boston, Nov. 21 and 22. Such conferences can only explore the problem at this stage; the answers may be more individual or educational than legislative; but such discussions indicate that the subject is too significant to be allowed to drop.

Automation Gone Wild

New York Herald Tribune

Nothing is sacred any more. First the martini, which in the proper hands is a work of art, falls afoul of the madness of the mechanizers and ends up in a dispensing machine.

Now the cocktail, which over the years has become a symbol of Americanism no less American than Thanksgiving and Yule tidings, gets smashed beyond all recognition by the twentieth century's rage to automate.

Shortly, the industry tells us, half the people will still be factory peeled, factory cut, factory fried, and factory frozen. All the housewife will have to do is break open the package of "processed potatoes" and plunk them in the oven.

The child of the future can follow suit by the beauty of sliced potatoes, the miracle of home fries, or the joys of well browned au gratin. The conveyor belt complex is taking over.

We don't want to return to the days when every potato bug was laboriously hand flicked from the plant. The clash of "arts green, but we don't want to take our nourishment through a tube, either. It will drive us to drink automated martinis.

Afraid to Brake

Vancouver Province

When nine out of ten voters wisely applauded a political candidate who promises to cut public spending and reduce taxes, the governments will begin to retrench. In the meantime public spending is much like an auto speeding along an icy highway. Everyone is afraid to put on the brakes for fear the vehicle might skid right off the road.

Hospital Patients Treated Obnoxiously by Relatives

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've read your columns for years about hernitis, neuritis, enuresis, cardiac failure, spinal curvature, prostate ulcers, possibility of pregnancy during menopause, and obesity.

Couldn't you devote a few lines to what we in the nursing profession refer to as "patting and wetting syndrome"? This is when a hospitalized patient gets the most objectionable treatment from well-meaning but annoying relatives. Wives and daughters are the worst. Sisters and mothers run a close second.

No sooner does daddy get into the hospital when all his women swarm in to comfort him. They pour water out of his drinking glass and in a wash cloth and start mopping his head. Then they pat his cheeks and hands.

If the poor guy has surgery it is even worse. The minute he gets back from the recovery room some female is right there acting for a pan of ice water so she can start rubbing it on his horizontal strokes while she pats his hand in vertical ones.

It doesn't matter if he's had a sedative or "hypo" for pain. He must be made to know that she's there. Here is the answer to your question.

The illness of H. Shannon on the Slash Road, Tyendinaga township, was destroyed by fire on Monday evening. Most of the household effects were saved.

Modern Spies Wear Cloak of Respectability

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Owing to a scarcity of good new suspects, we are all in the civilized British kind I like, not the American kind, full of booze, blood, and lust—the murder of the dead in the bathtub — I dipped into a number of spy thrillers this summer while giving my tiny overworked brain a vacation.

What struck me about most of these cloak-and-dagger affairs was that, in nearly all of them, the cloak and the dagger were singularly absent. Influenced no doubt by such modern novelists as Graham Greene and Eric Ambler, the later-day spy novel is a grim and sordid thing.

Fashions in fiction swing almost to the extremes of fashions in women's clothes from decade to decade. When I first began reading spy novels as a youngster, it was the heyday of Sax Rohmer's Phillips Oppenheim school — the characters were all glamorous, with flamboyant heroes and slinky seductresses quaffing champagne on the Orient Express.

Then, as if in revulsion from this hard glitter, there came a drab, grey little men darting furtively out of their furnished rooms and rubbing threadbare shoulders with the scum of four continents.

In point of fact, from what we know about those spies who have detected or been caught, neither extreme has been the most resemblance in reality. The effective and successful spy is not a glamorous and colorful character, nor is he that deprayed monster of the half-world in order to the hearts of Mr. Greene and his many imitators.

He is "normal" that makes a spy valuable; and the best cover in modern society is ordinary respectability. Some spies, it is known, have been foreign service officials, some have been physicists, some doctors, some engineers, and importers — but all have moved in commonplace circles, with wives and children, attending conventions, going on picnics, and maintaining a consistent professional status.

As in Chesterton's story, "The Invisible Man" (in which a postman commits a murder with impunity, because nobody "sees" a postman as a man, but only as a function), the spy above all wants no attention called to himself; he subordinates himself to his environment and takes on the color of his occupations and status, as the postman puts on his uniform, which is distinctive, brightly colored, and yet "invisible."

But of such ordinary stuff, adventure novels cannot be made; just as detective stories cannot be written about the dull, plodding, patient routine that collects evidence, but only about those when he apprehend them, turn out to be superficial — at least — like the man on the porch next door.

Speed Reading Is Debunked

Baltimore Sun

A professor of reading at Columbia University does not think much of the "speed reading merchants" who have lately been making remarkable claims for their methods even on the floodtide of Washington paper work. They started going back to school to learn speed reading, so that they could get home in the evening in time for supper and "Perry Mason."

Prof. Eugene Kinkele tried out some readers who claimed 1,000 words a minute and found that even when allowed to read the same material three times over in the last page, none of them had noticed that the material they were given consisted of a repeated line, two, two from one magazine article and two from another, typed into a single sheet they had, but not comprehension. He thinks that 700 to 800 words a minute is the most one can read with comprehension of what is read; after 1,000 words a minute it is doubtful more words than are read. Next craze, please.

Ald. J. Ireland Resigns Seat, Runs for Mayor

The contest for the mayoralty in Belleville's 1964 municipal election became a two-way fight yesterday when at the close of the regular council session Alderman Jack Ireland announced he was entering the race.

He said that his resignation as alderman would be in the city clerk's hands in time for him to be nominated as a mayoralty candidate.

Two weeks ago Mayor A. M. Haig said he would not seek re-election and yesterday Alderman Jack Ellis was the first to toss his hat in the ring with the announcement that he would contest for the mayor's chair.

In making his announcement yesterday, Alderman Ireland said he felt it was his "turn or time" to contest for the mayoralty. In leading the polls in last year's aldermanic race he said he felt he had the confidence of the voters.

He promised he would put forth an active campaign against one or more opponents and said his election campaign would be announced at as early date.

"I will be running a vigorous but clean campaign," he said.

Alderman Ireland is now completing his sixth year on council and is this year serving as chairman of the city traffic and fire committees.

With two of this year's council members running for mayor and as many others resigning because of company transfers, and others having decided not to run for re-election, Belleville will be many new faces on council next year.

Aldermen Robb and William Lowen are being transferred out of the city, while Deputy Mayor Ben Corke a week ago said he would not run for re-election.

Yesterday two more of this year's councillors, Aldermen Walter F. Elliott and Joseph Raycroft intimated they would not run for re-election.

Compensation Board Benefits Outlined at Rotary Luncheon

There was a good showing of members at the regular dinner meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday to hear Mr. Jack Hollingsworth, Toronto personnel manager of the Workmen's Compensation Board, speak on the subject of compensation.

The speaker said the Workmen's Compensation Act was brought into effect in January, 1915, mostly because employees who became injured while at work, after spending a considerable length of time in hospital, found their jobs were not waiting for them when they were able to return to work, and they would then in turn lose their employer, saying that it was their (the employer's) fault that they were injured because the machinery they were using was not working properly or not guarded properly. It would then pass back to the operator of the machine, he said, and therefore, would lose his job.

Mr. Hollingsworth went on to say that the Province of Ontario was the most highly industrialized province in Canada.

"Sometimes there are as many accidents through carelessness as there is guilt a high accident rate here," he said, "but they don't take into consideration that there are many more man hours exposed in this province than in any other in Canada."

"It is true," he said, "that some accidents are negligent, but this is not a fact when a claim is allowed. More than one-quarter of a million persons in Ontario were injured last year and 1,800,000 people are pensioned, plus survivors of the Workmen's Compensation Board, with 761 settled cases last year."

MANY BENEFITS

"If an employee is off work more than two days," he continued, "the board pays for their medical expenses and if he is off longer, pays his medical and hospital expenses in part, but if the employee is off work permanently, he receives his pay according to the seriousness of his disability, tax free. In the event the disability is fatal, the widow then receives $300 for out-of-pocket expenses and $300 for burial expenses and $200 a month for life or until she remarries. If there are children under the age of 18 she receives $50 a month until the age of 18 or until they are 18 if they continue to go to school."

"The compensation board has attracted world interest and has administered more than 37 million dollars in benefits to industries throughout the province," he stated.

CLASSIFICATIONS

He said "the various industries in the provinces are divided into classifications and their premiums to be paid are based on this classification system, and are assessed according to their accident rating in their specific classification."

REGULATION NOT ADEQUATE CLAIM

"For instance," he said, "motor factories pay about 30 cents because there aren't too many accidents in this division where as mining companies pay $15 because of the accident rate involved in tunnels, shafts, and hoses wrecking involved about $12."

In closing the speaker said that $5,272,000,000 was assessed last year, up $198 and one half million dollars over the previous year.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Director Don MacKinnon and thanked on behalf of the club by Jack Ireland.

Visiting Rotarians and guests were introduced by Rotarian G. J. Reynolds. The meeting was chaired by President Ronald Cass. Mr. Hollingsworth spoke to the grade 12 students at Moira Secondary School earlier in the day, and is scheduled to address the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

Red Cross Will Hold Regional 'Workshop'

On Friday morning, an Executive Council regional public relations workshop, sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross Society of Ontario, will be held in the Prince Edward Suite of the Quinte Hotel.

The workshop is set up to deal with public relations problems encountered by the Red Cross.

Chairman of the workshop will be Captain E. C. Hopkins, Ontario Division public relations committee chairman and public relations director, trade development of the Toronto Harbor Commission.

The vice-chairman of the Ontario Division of the public relations committee and assistant vice-president of CHUM Radio, Toronto, Mr. Phil Stone will be the guest speaker. Prior to the speaker's remarks a "brainstorming" period and a "problem solving session" will be held.

Following the lunch period, Mr. Clive Tindle, area manager chairman, will address the group. The workshop is scheduled to being at 10.15 a.m. and will meet until 4.00 in the afternoon.

Plans for City Works Barn, Commission Garage Tabled

City council will take still another look at plans for a new combined city works barn and transit commission garage before the go-ahead signal is given for construction.

Yesterday the public works committee recommended the postponement of the proposed new barn and garage at a total cost of $287,100 of which the Transit Commission's share would be $70,700.

But the matter was tabled for further consideration after doubts were expressed that the city could afford the building at present.

It was pointed out that the city had many other commitments, such as a big expense for the hospital, schools and roads. Others felt the building could be delayed, with one alderman stating it might be cheaper for the transit commission to purchase a new vehicle, rather than build.

MAYR BARRY DISCUSS

Mayor Barry, Joseph Raycroft, chairman of the public works department, claimed the present city barn was a fire trap.

He hoped for council approval for at least part of the project.

Alderman Enos David objected to the site development cost, estimated at $44,000 and said that workers' cars could be parked on a gravelled lot instead of a paved area.

And Alderman Jack Deacon claimed that Premier Robert Ward site for the new building was not sufficiently central for location of the city development going to the north.

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke felt the city should go slow in any plans for a Transit Commission garage, suggesting that the city might not have buses in another three years.

Council Rescinds By-Law Limiting Number of Gasoline Service Stations in City

After weeks of consideration Belleville city council yesterday rescinded its by-law of several years standing, limiting the number of gasoline service stations to five.

Instead council will license such gasoline outlets at an annual fee of $5.00 with power to revoke the license of any holder if called for standards are not maintained.

The by-law limiting the number of service stations in the city was passed some years ago more or less as a "freezing" move until new zoning regulations were approved following annexation.

Since then requests for permits for new stations had been turned down with the result there had been considerable "trafficking" in licenses to operate gasoline outlets.

Two weeks ago council was told that there were several requests in from big oil companies for gasoline outlets in the city. Among the requests was one from Mr. Gordon Chalmers for a station on Dundas Street West.

Yesterday Alderman Bailey said the solution to the problem was one of "cold, hard facts."

It May Cost Less to Trade Your TV

Many television receivers that are 4 years old or more are definitely in need of a general overhaul to put them in tip top condition again. This could run from $60.00 to $100.00 depending on the condition of the picture tube.

Many customers feel that it is more economical to trade their old TV set for a brand new 1964 model at Booth Radio and Television Limited for as low as $139.95. These sets are fully guaranteed and are delivered in factory-sealed cartons—and are serviced by Booth's own factory-trained technicians.

Why not drop in today to Booth Radio and Television Limited, 170 Front Street (Opposite the City Hall) and take advantage of this wonderful trade-in value.

You may even buy on Booth's own budget plan with no outside finance and low monthly payments. If you can't drop in, phone us at WO 8-8785 for further information.

Volkswagen Sales Growing Fast

TORONTO—September retail sales of Volkswagen cars and trucks, as reported by the company's dealers from coast to coast more than doubled, indicating a strong beginning for the 1964 model year. Last September's sales were 2,229 units.

Proof of the fact that Volkswagen sales are steadily regaining the position held before the temporary surcharge is provided by a review of the past 6 months sales. April to September inclusive this year saw 17,605 cars and trucks sold, an improvement over the same period last year, when 17,569 vehicles were sold. A continuation of this trend is expected to put 1963 Volkswagen sales well ahead of the 1962 volume.

Holds Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Pelrve, who says he holds the world's record for getting fired, now has plenty of job offers, including coaching about his fallures at a skid road mission.

Monday's mail to the man who admits having been fired from 75 jobs came from California employers.

Pelrve, 35, said he spent his last cent to run a newspaper advertisement and identified himself as the "world record holder for getting fired."

He said he could fill a variety of jobs, adding he can sketch, wrlck birds and daydream expertly."

Pelrve is staying at a Los Angeles hotel, where he pays for his room by washing dishes.

Gives Reason

WASHINGTON (AP)—An American congressman looked Ngo Dinh Diem in the eye and asked: "Why can't you control your wife?"

Rhis brother-in-law of South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem, replied: "It is the same the world over."

The exchange was reported in Washington by Representative Clarence B. Broomfield (Rep. Mich.), a member of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee, which recently visited Saigon. Broomfield wouldn't say who asked the blunt question.

Mrs. Rhe, an outspoken critic of U.S. policy in Viet Nam, is touring the United States.

General H. Graham Addresses Canadian Club at Dinner

In a warm, charming and entertaining manner Lieutenant General Howard D. Graham addressed members of the Canadian Club at their annual dinner meeting held last evening in Club Canara.

General Graham, who gave a most informal talk on the "Secrets of the Stock Exchange", is widely known throughout Canada for his achievements in military life, in the legal profession, and now in the financial community which he serves as the president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, the largest in Canada; also largest in North America outside of New York City and next to London, England in the British Empire.

Mrs. J. G. Demeza said grace and previous to the introduction of the speaker by Mr. E. S. Fairman, the president Mrs. J. H. Forrester introduced those seated at the head table who were Mrs. B. Kerr; Mrs. S. Joss; Mrs. J. R. Cameron; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Demeza; General Graham; Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Dr. J. H. Forrester; Mr. and Mrs. Linton Read; Mrs. D. W. Maddocks and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Fairman. She also introduced past presidents as well as members of this year's executive.

HISTORY OF STOCK EXCHANGE

At the opening of his talk, which was interspersed with a number of humorous stories, General Graham dealt briefly with the history of the stock exchange which he felt is not discussed frankly and yet is an important institution in a country of free enterprise. Two or three centuries ago ownership was by individuals or families but this was changed with the advance of travel and communications and partnerships were formed and from these corporations developed. Each partner was responsible for all debts involved. In a corporation the number of people who have ownership is much larger and a member of this is called a shareholder who can buy from one to 1000 shares. There had to be regulations for facilities where these shares could be sold as there was difficulty in selling shares back and forth, thus there became a need for an organization for these transactions which resulted in the forming of the stock exchange. In other words it is a place or a market for shares to change hands.

The Toronto Stock Exchange was formed in 1852 and in 1878 it was incorporated by an act passed by the Provincial Government. There are 113 members in the Toronto Stock Exchange, sometimes referred to as seats. These members can trade on the floor with others. These seats have sold for $101,000, but this price fluctuates according to the period. Anyone is eligible to buy a seat but he then in turn must be elected by a secret vote. There are 11 governors who set the policy for the exchange. In the case of any infractions by a member a fine of up to $15,000 can be levied. Each member must keep a certain amount of capital to assure that transactions are conducted and anything under this minimum amount must be reported. An executive staff of 150 looks after all executive business.

METHODS OF SALES

The speaker continued by dealing with the method of sales and said that a buyer can telephone his order to his stock exchange clerk on the floor of the exchange, who will go to where it is listed and if anyone is looking to sell this particular stock a deal can be arranged. All that is required is the initialling by the buying and selling broker. The transaction slip is lowered in a tube with the sales entered on tape. This is fully recorded on tape and all slips are processed and recorded on IBM cards with information of time, date and amount of sales available at all times.

General Graham stated that they receive many criticisms but the greatest is in regard to the complaint from shareholders about companies who do not give out enough information. It seems that Canadian industries are not required to give their shareholders as much information as other countries. All that the stock exchange requires of the company is that it must pay a fee and have certain requirements. Shares are widely distributed and companies must produce a list of shareholders and a list of earnings. The only thing a stock exchange can do in regards to these companies is to write them and request that they give out more information.

STOCK EXCHANGE MAGNITUDE

In regards to the magnitude of the stock exchange, General Graham said that shares amounting from three to ten million are exchanged in a day and that anywhere from 7,000 to 20,000 transactions are completed in one day. The Toronto Stock Exchange handles twice as much as the total number of stock exchanges across the Dominion of Canada. There are two kinds of shares available—the blue chip share which is a proven dividend paying type; speculative shares which may be bought from a reliable new company just getting started and the highly speculative type which usually would be mining or oil stock. The risk involved in this type is much greater, but nevertheless sales are necessary to develop these resources.

In the second portion of his talk the speaker explained why the stock exchange is considered to be an important institution. He stressed the need for more Canadians to buy more stocks to earn more Canadian business. He felt that Canada must try to get more of their people to buy more Canadian securities as there was in comparison too much foreign buying, although this should not be curtailed too severely as Canada has a good image in the eyes of the world and that this position should not be jeopardized. The feeling of the committee is that the Canadian government should educate the public in buying stocks.

AMERICAN CAPITAL

General Graham stated that 5,000 Canadian companies are owned or controlled by American capital and that there has been an increase from 2.3 to 11 per cent since 1945. In the Canadian electric appliance industry alone 65 per cent is controlled by American capital, as well as many other companies. It seems that Canadians have not been patient enough to wait for the development of resources with Canadian funds. The speaker said that he did not want to appear antagonistic towards foreign buying but felt that Canadians must change their attitude in regards to security and that their attitude towards investing in stock must change. He did not feel that all Canadians should rush out and buy securities but there should be more sale of good common stock which will continue to pay dividends, even at a lesser rate.

QUESTION PERIOD

A most enlightening question and answer period followed, after which Mr. Linton Read expressed sincere appreciation on behalf of the members and presented the speaker with a little memento of his visit here. Mrs. Forrester also added her appreciation to General Graham.

WEDDING

MADIGAN — BADGLEY

Saint Andrew's United Church was the setting for a pretty wedding recently when Betty Irene Badgley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Badgley of Corbyville, Ontario, was united in marriage to Allen Dugald Madigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Madigan, Peterborough. The Rev. Stanley Gibson officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mr. Harry Northrop who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Margaret Badgley, sister-in-law of the bride, in her renditions of the "Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sheath of peau de soie designed with two open panels delicately trimmed with guippiere lace. The bodice was flattered with a rounded neckline accented with matching lace appliques and long lily-point sleeves. A detachable overskirt at back flowed to a full-length chapel train designed with the same open panel effect as the front, with matching lace appliques in the back caught to a large bow at back of waist. Her finger-tip scalloped edged veil of silk illusion flowed from a cluster of pearls and crystals. She carried a white Bible crested with a solitaire white orchid.

Mrs. Donald Gorsline, sister of the bride, as matron of honor and Miss Audrey Swan as bridesmaid, were identically gowned in willow green peau de ange dresses enhanced with rounded neckline and tiny sleeves. They wore matching three-tier overskirts caught with a bow at the front. Their headdresses were in matching shade of star shaped petals adorned with pearlized stamens. Each carried a cascade bouquet of bronze 'mums. The little flower girl was a niece of the bride, Miss Janna Lee Gorsline, who wore a white taffeta dress overskirted with nylon featuring a wedding ring collar, puff sleeves and full skirt with large bow at back. She carried a colonial nosegay of white 'mums and yellow roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Dale Ross, while Messrs. Irvin Badgley, Bob Mayes, Eugene Badgley and Paul Collins were the ushers. Master Gary Badgley, nephew of the bride in dark suit with short trousers, carrying a white pillow with the rings was the natty ringbearer.

At the reception in the church parlors the bride's mother received the guests wearing a moss green chantilly lace sheath featuring a rounded neckline and three-quarter length sleeves with a softly draped skirt, beige and rust accessories and a corsage of Johannahill roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gold Italian brocade sheath with matching bolero, brown accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid and Niagara Falls, the bride chose a three-piece double knit suit in forest green, white accessories, matching purse and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

Previous to the marriage a shower was held by girl friends of the office staff at Westclox Canada Limited in Peterborough, at the home of Mrs. Allen Hughes at which time she was the recipient of a chrome canister set with matching bread box and at a miscellaneous shower held by Miss Audrey Swan with guests from Corbyville, Belleville, Foxboro, Indian River and Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Madigan are residing at Elm Courts Apt. 4 in Brockville.

Guests at the wedding were present from Belleville, Carrying Place, Foxboro, Frankford, Deseronto, Brighton, Bancroft, Woodstock, Toronto, Havelock, Scarborough, Indian River.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dugald Madigan, Brockville, are pictured cutting the cake following their recent marriage in Saint Andrew's United Church. The bride is the former Betty Irene Badgley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Badgley of Corbyville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Madigan of Peterborough.

Trousseau Tea For Bride-to-Be

2nd SIDNEY. — A trousseau tea was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dickens in honor of their daughter Sharon's coming marriage to Ted Couture of Trenton, on Saturday, October 26th, at St. Peter's Church, Trenton.

The mother of the bride-to-be, Mrs. H. Dickens, Mrs. John Couture, mother of the bridegroom-to-be, and Sharon Dickens received some 80 guests at the door. Upstairs, Miss Carol Irwin and Miss Rosemary Ryan were in charge of many articles done in fancy needlework, dish towels, tablecloths, and things to help in housekeeping. On the way out the guest book was signed. In another room were all the trousseau clothes the bride will be wearing.

The guests were taken downstairs to see the wedding gifts and the many shower gifts.

Pouring tea on Saturday afternoon were Mrs. Clayton Curtis and Mrs. Fred Meyers and at night the two grandmothers, Mrs. J. Couture and Mrs. Morris Stickle.

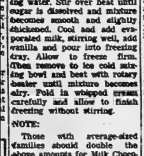
MAY LOWER AGE

The problem of drinking among minors, she feels, has not been solved. She thinks a referendum asking to lower the age at which a person is considered ready to imbibe probably will be the first step in legislation to ease this problem.

But, she adds, "I think it will remain a problem."



Mrs. Blackburn never taught school although qualified as she immediately stepped into the glove-making industry and was an active member of the Glove Workers' Union in the province.

Actively interested in politics for the last 20 years, Mrs. Blackburn was unsuccessful Progressive Conservative candidate for Logan constituency in the last provincial election.

While the board now meets only once a month committees with several times a month during its formative years. Mrs. Blackburn still is for a busy time.

MAIL CALL

Question: My niece is getting married and I understand that the groom is sending corsages to both mothers, both grandmothers and to her godmother who isn't a relative at all. I'm her only aunt and I feel he should send me a corsage, as well. He has several aunts of his own, but I don't know if he's supplying them with corsages. My sister refuses to ask that he add me to his flower list since she feels it's not her place to do so. Should I buy my own? If I don't, I'll probably be the only close female relative not wearing flowers. — Mrs. H. C., Boston, Mass.

Answer: The groom usually sends corsages to both mothers, providing flowers for other female members of both families is optional and, in most cases, largely dependent on his budget. Suggesting that he send flowers to any or all of the aunts would be impolite and probably would put him on the spot. If you feel you must wear flowers, by all means buy your own, although it's not really necessary for a family to wear posies to show a relationship. Flowers usually are worn only by members of the wedding party; guests generally don't wear flowers as a rule, but there's no strict rule against doing so if one feels it enhances a costume and the flowers are not overly pretentious.

Question: I was maid of honor at the wedding of a close friend five years ago. Since then, I was married and moved to another city, and now we see each other only infrequently. When the couple celebrated their fifth anniversary, we were invited to attend a party in their honor, but, since we couldn't make the trip, I sent a note of apology, along with a fairly expensive gift. This was three weeks ago, and to this day I've never received any acknowledgement saying the gift had arrived or anything. Shouldn't an anniversary present be acknowledged the same as a wedding gift? I'd like to write her to check if it arrived safely, but I'm reluctant to embarrass her. What would you suggest? — Mrs. W. C., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: A thank you note should be sent for any gift just as soon as it is received. I wouldn't hesitate to check through on its arrival. If it was not delivered, you then could start tracing its whereabouts. Possibly your friend didn't acknowledge it because of an oversight. Even so, a reminder, in the form of a follow-up note, might give her the nudge she needs to remember her manners in the future and not delay fulfilling such an important social obligation.

WEDDING

DELANEY — LAJOIE

MARMORA — Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church in Marmora was the scene of a pretty wedding on October 12th when Jean Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lajoie was united in holy matrimony to John William Delaney, son of Mrs. George Dalton of Sherbrooke, Que., and the late Lawrence Delaney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Healey P.P. Mrs. Hugh Brady was organist and soloist. The altar was decorated with mums and gladioli.

The bride chose for her wedding a street length dress of white peau de soie with a finger tip veil gathered to a crown of tiny seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Joan Lajoie, sister of the bride was maid of honor and Miss Lynda Kennedy, cousin of the bride, of Peterborough was bridesmaid. They wore matching identical dresses of blue organza over taffeta with wedding ring headdresses and windblown veils. They carried pink and white baby mums.

The groomsman was Ronald Halliday and the usher was Cecil Lajoie.

Dinner was held in the Parish Hall and the reception was held at the bride's home. The bride's mother wore a teal blue suit with beige accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a beige suit with brown accessories. Their corsages were white baby mums and pink roses.

For their wedding trip to Quebec City the bride wore a blue knit suit with black accessories and corsage of red roses.

They will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Montreal, Quebec City, Toronto, Peterborough, Tweed, Actinolite and Marmora.

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Delaney was tendered a miscellaneous shower by her cousin Mrs. Keith McHugh assisted by Mrs. David Robertson.

'Don't Look for Bargain' In Buying Girl's Diamond

MONTREAL (CP) — Advice for the young man thinking of buying a diamond for his girl friend: "Don't look for a bargain."

This is the word from Norman Weisman, a Montreal jeweler who said many people will follow the recommendation of their milkman when buying a diamond and then will be sorry for the rest of their lives.

"Believe me," he said in an address to the Canadian Insurance Accountants Association here, "there are no bargains in the diamond trade. We would be happier if the general public was let in on the so-called secrets of the business."

For example, just because a store will put glass in an indication of diamond content — saying darker than glass, even another piece of glass if clearly enough, would do the job.

And perhaps 80 per cent of all diamonds mined are not suitable for a woman to wear on her finger or around her neck.

REPUTABLE SOURCE

The most important thing in buying a diamond is to have faith in the person from whom it is purchased, he said. Buying from a reputable merchant is the best bet.

"Often people will buy from some particular dealer because they are told this will give them a bargain," he said. "Then after a while they begin to wonder if they did get a bargain, so they go to a second dealer and pay to have it evaluated.

"What I don't understand is why they didn't go to the second dealer in the first place."

Diamond dealers themselves will rarely buy diamonds before 11 a.m. and after 3 p.m., and then only on a clear day.

"If it's cloudy they can't detect the true color, and there's no sale," he said.

It takes an expert to evaluate a diamond, the worth being determined by the carat, or weight, the various shades of color, and the cut.

In the diamond business, as in any other, he added, there are "operators out to make a fast buck—so beware."

The washing action that dares to be different up down—330 times a minute

Why up and down? Less wear and tear on clothes. Only a Frigidaire Washer's agitator works this way. All Frigidaire Washers work up and down. Not sideways.

Why not sideways? Because sideways agitators wash by dragging clothes through the water. Back and forth. Back and forth. Too many pulled threads.

Up and down is kinder to your clothes. Safer. Instead of dragging clothes through the water, the Frigidaire agitator pumps sudsy water through the clothes. Keeps clothes entirely underwater too. Always circulating. Never letting them ride up.

And it works. Give even the heaviest, dirtiest denims 6600 ups and downs and they come thoroughly clean. But that's easy. The real test is with your dainty things. They don't take kindly to backs and forths. But they come clean gently with ups and downs. No drag. Anything you can put in water can be washed in the Frigidaire up-down Washer.

More facts: You can use liquid or powder washing aids. You can spin water out fast when washing's done, leaving clothes barely damp and saving drying time. Still more facts? See your Frigidaire Washer dealer. See his matching dryers, too.

Phi Beta Kappa Key Evokes Jealousy in Associate

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a recent graduate of New York University who was elected to the society of Phi Beta Kappa. Last evening I attended a wedding shower for a friend and I wore my Phi Beta Kappa key on a chain around my neck. One of the girls took me off to the side and told me it was catastrophic to wear the key around my neck. She said it belonged on a charm bracelet.

My first reaction to her criticism was resentment. I decided she was jealous and I dismissed it from my mind. Now I'm beginning to wonder if perhaps she is right. May I have your opinion, please? — YONKERS.

DEAR YONK — I'll bet the girl who stuck in the shiv has no Phi Beta Kappa key — and if she had one, she'd probably wear it embedded in her forehead like an Indian jewel.

Congratulations. Around your neck is just fine.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I believe I have read every column you've ever written but I don't recall that you've ever dealt with the problem of married couples who work in the same organization.

Because of two married couples in our office the place is up for grabs. The top mucky-muck in my department married the chief bookkeeper's assistant and now she is out of the office about 40% of the time — on full pay. When she does come in she's out of touch.

The second married couple are known as the happy warriors. They alternately hit each other and mush it up at the water cooler, behind the file cabinet or wherever they happen to be when the mood hits them. Their shenanigans are distracting and annoying.

Will you kindly review this problem in print and give us your views? — DISTRACTED AND ANNOYED.

DEAR D AND A — I can't come out flat-footed and say that married people should never work in the same organization since some couples manage this arrangement well.

For the most part, however, it is a poor idea not only for the reasons you mentioned but because too much togetherness can put a dead hand on any relationship.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 22, divorced and the mother of three small children. My ex-husband has no interest in the children. I support them and myself.

The problem is this: My only recreation is dancing. I go to a nice night club once a week from 9:00 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. My brother drives me over and comes back to take me home. I never date any of the men I meet there. I only dance with them.

My aunt says I have no business going to this place. I see nothing wrong in it. I work all day and this is the only fun I have. What do you think about it? — SANDRA.

DEAR SANDRA — Sorry, but I can't tell a 22-year-old mother of three children it's all right to stag it to a night club.

It may well be that you are looking only for a dancing partner, but most of the men who frequent such places are good-time Charlies who are looking for a pick-up. If this is "the only fun you have" I can tell you right now nothing good will come of it.

Legal

path against the SIU, although the shipping inquiry report by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver cited some for compliance with SIU practices, especially the dominant Canada Steamship Lines.

TWO ACTS INVOLVED

Government legal action would be taken under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Act while the Canada Shipping Act provides opportunity for companies to proceed legally with desertion charges. On conviction, the federal government could exact fines of a maximum $200 daily for the SIU, $300 for union officials and $100 daily for union rank-and-file members.

The march Monday brought to Ottawa sailors and some female union members from Vancouver to the Atlantic Coast although the bulk came from Ontario and Quebec. They numbered about 2,000 — half the number of tourists who throng Parliament Hill each summer morning for the changing of the guard ceremony—whereas union leaders had forecast a turnout of between 7,000 and 9,000.

They arrived by train, chartered bus, plane and car with a confident and masterful Mr. Banks driving from Montreal in his big white convertible to act as parade marshal although he styled himself an adviser.

Gathering for about three hours on the Parliament Hill lawn in sunny weather, the marchers were wild by the SIU boss: "You look real good." They were told to congregate under their own plain-sign their individual federal constituencies although more than one MP complained later that he found no naive seamen from his riding there.

SOME CAME OUT

Some MPs came out to see their protesting constituents. Others had delegates call on them.

MPs who did not appear or delegate their aides received a letter left for them which included the phrase: "The main purpose of my trip was to let you know I like my union fine, just the way it is."

Labor Minister MacEachen spent 90 minutes with SIU members from his Nova Scotia constituency of Inverness - Richmond—he knew some by name —but Mr. Banks entered the Parliament Building only to use a washroom.

The marchers cheered Mr. Banks, ate sandwiches and drank soft drinks on Parliament's lawn and kept clustering around their controversial chieftain as he walked back and forth amongst them for three hours—dapper in a black hat and pin-striped suit. His confidence was undampened by recent events that include a special study to see whether charges should be laid against him and some aides.

Monday night, police arrested the two men—described by police as anti-Titoists—near Tito's 34th floor Waldorf Astoria Hotel suite shortly after three members of Tito's entourage had a fist fight with five men outside the hotel.

The two men were questioned by U.S. state department officials and then booked on disorderly conduct charges.

The three members of Tito's entourage, including a man said to be one of his bodyguards, were released after questioning.

Police said the unidentified trio claimed to have been attacked by five men on Lexington Avenue, between 49th and 50th Streets. The five men fled when police intervened.

Officers said one of the three Tito men pulled a pocket knife during the scuffle.

But the 60 - year - old Home knows it may well plunge him into a big political clash with confident Labor party members who are aware that the recent Profumo scandal will be debated this session.

Another big questions in a television interview Monday night, Home said the calling of an early election was tempting but not likely.

Home made clear the Conservative party will spend the coming months in dramatizing the differences between its policies and those of the Labor party.

"If after that we are still unpopular we shall lose the election," he said. "But I don't think we shall."

other 54 ships were tied up in seven Ontario ports between Kingston and Port Arthur.

Port officials in Port Arthur were reluctant to pass out incoming posts to ships waiting for a berth while the SIU walkout continued and there were fears continued rail deliveries of grain to Lakehead elevators might begin to back up if the loading operations remained stalled.

The Winnipeg grain ex change urged renewed government efforts to keep grain moving in the face of the SIU walkout.

MOVE WITHOUT TUGS

Ocean ships taking on grain at Montreal, Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres, Que., moved out on schedule without the help of tugs. One Russian ship carrying 1,300,000 bushels of grain sailed from Quebec City Monday and another vessel with grain for Russia was reported ready to move.

The Montreal elevators, reported almost filled to their 22,500,000-bushel capacity, were cleared for taking on grain from lakers manned by other than Canadian SIU crews when customs harbors board tug, manned by officers and a "scratch crew," moved one laker to anchorage so that other lakers could unload grain.

Another attempt to man a tug to float the ocean freighter Aegean Island, aground five miles east of Montreal's inner harbor, was not so successful.

All the 10 tugs in the harbor were tied up by the SIU walkout.

The Greek flag ship was in transit with a cargo of sugar.

tonight—charging the government with attempting to dodge approaching scrutiny in Commons pledging by "pusillanimous dawdling" on the trusteeship issue.

But it became doubtful that this, or the Conservatives' thinking, would be the only Commons debate on the trusteeship issue.

SUPPORT ACTIONS

From the New Democratic Social Credit and Créditiste came promises of practically unqualified support for the government's policy in delaying the public trusteeship until all efforts to gain a private settlement had been exhausted.

And from Mr. Pearson, in an angry retort, came the charge that Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in his motion and hour-long speech was reciting "political claptrap" and directing the official opposition in the House by "cowardice, bankit and knavery."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker—the latter's description of them all"—demonstrated "virile exaggeration" in appraising the situation.

The Diefenbaker motion reads:

"This government, because of its confusion, inconsistency and pusillanimous dawdling and delays in bringing effective action has encouraged chaos approaching anarchy to develop on the Great Lakes waterway, and in several Canadian ports, thereby causing disruption in shipping and the pledging in jeopardy of essential trade in general, and in particular contracts for delivery of wheat to foreign countries."

CRITICIZES U.S.

At one point, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"Sir, there is no help from the United States in this labor difficulty because Mr. Kennedy should know."

Mr. Pearson replied later that he had more help from Mr. Kennedy in coping with the situation than from Mr. Diefenbaker.

The Conservative chieftain said that if the government had imposed the trusteeship early in August—it had the support of Parliament—then "many of today's difficulties would have been avoided."

The two-month delay gave opponents of the plan time to organize.

Meanwhile, the government gave opponents of the plan time to organize.

Meanwhile, the government had demonstrated "dawdling" accompanied by tranquillizing statements . . . its record has been a epitheur of pusillanimous pussy - footing for the last several months."

Mr. Diefenbaker said U.S. Labor Secretary Leonard Wirtz tried to put pressure on the Canadian government to abandon the trusteeship plan. But the government denied there was any such pressure.

CAN 'PUSH AROUND'

"The result was that in the United States it was taken for granted that this was a government that could be pushed around with impunity and ease. They were pushed easily.

"Meany and Peal Hall were met with trepidation and timidity. You cannot blame them across the line for not taking Canada seriously."

(He referred to AFL - CIO President George Meany. Mr. Hall is president of the American SIU and also heads the AFL - CIO's Maritime Trades Department.)

Mr. Pearson said it was obvious that had Mr. Diefenbaker been prime minister he would have rushed in at once with trusteeship — without trying to find an alternative, and irrespective of the CLC's wishes.

"He (Mr. Diefenbaker) would have said, never mind whether there could be a better alternative than public trusteeship . . . never mind what the consequences in relation to the United States.

"would, this government rejected that course and we are glad we did."

Said NDP Leader T. C. Douglas:

" . . . I do not share the view that the government has dawdled in the matter of dealing with the Norris report.

"I think that up until now they have taken the wise course of examining and exploring every alternative in the hope that it might not be necessary to take this very radical and far-reaching step."

'ACT DECISIVELY'

"But I urge the government now to call upon all hops of a private trusteeship is good, to be legislate any longer but to act decisively, always in the best humanely in the interests of the workers concerned."

Said H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat):

"If there ever was a time when there was need for full support of the government by Parliament it is now. . . . (Mr. Diefenbaker) should be commending the government rather than condemning them for resisting pressure from the United States."

In an attack on Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Olson said that 67 of the 75 incidents of waterfront intimidation and violence listed in the Norris report occurred when Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister, but no effort was made to enforce the law.

"What could be more in accord with pusillanimous dawdling than to turn and look the other way when these things were going on, and allow them to take place."

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the Diefenbaker motion would do nothing to assist a quick settlement of waterfront disruptions.

in international economies for the U.S. Congress, said other free world countries also could be invited in, "looking toward the eventual world-wide elimination of as many tariffs and other trade restrictions as possible."

NIXONS NEW APPROACH

Dr. English agreed that Canada needs to make a multilateral or at least bilateral approach to solving its import-export problems but he was not as specific as Dr. Piquet, who talked of free trade between Canada and the U.S. within 10 or 20 years.

Dr. Piquet said the U.S. has indicated it is ready to start moving towards easing trade barriers by passing its Trade Expansion Act recently, giving President Kennedy authority to reduce tariffs over a broad range.

Dr. English said it is a case of "misplaced emphasis" to highlight Canada's balance of payments deficit as the country's No. 1 problem.

He said a deficit or a surplus in the balance of payments means little by itself, since it did not necessarily indicate that an economy was either healthy or sick.

Both economists said countries that opened their markets to foreign competition must be ready to go through periods of economic adjustments until the benefits of increased trade are fully realized.

Knights Admit Using Influence To Fire Berton

OSHAWA (CP) — Writer Pierre Berton was dismissed from his editorial job with Maclean's Magazine because of influence of Knights of Columbus and other organizations, Vincent Kelly, provincial state deputy for the Knights of Columbus group, said during the weekend.

Speaking at a Columbus Day dinner, Mr. Kelly said:

"This is one example of where we have power."

He said the Knights of Columbus took action against Mr. Berton after he wrote a column "trying to promote premarital sex relations."

Mr. Berton's column in the May 18 edition of Maclean's, entitled "It's time we stopped knocking the kids about sex," described how teenagers are fed sex through commercialism.

He wrote:

"We had better make the best of the fact that teen-aged sex is here to stay and that we adults have been helping to build the kind of society in which it flourishes. We have fashioned a world in which "popular" music is the greatest aphrodisiac the earth has known, the total baltimore and the brief, and made the dark blue trousers appear black for contrast, required by the male fashion of the year. The women moved into the world in a long column for the "March On." Then there was the "Fall-in" and at the sound of the word "Scram!" the Colors were paraded in front of the troops that they might inspect the colors and become familiar with them.

The spectacular march past followed, at slow time and then quick time—and then the March Off—to end a perfect display that did credit to every officers and man participating.

role they led government raids against Buddhist pagodas. An estimated 2,000 or more remain in Saigon, serving — according to some reports—as a palace guard to protect Nhu from desertion attempts.

The American action came as 2,000 government troops launched anti-guerrilla attacks north of Saigon, and military sources reported setbacks in bloody weekend fighting with the Communist Viet Cong. Government forces reported losses of 30 dead and 80 wounded including 13 American observers.

To add to the spectacle there were a hundred musicians, the 1st Battalion's Pipe and Drum Band from Camp Petawawa, Band from Camp Petawawa. These colorful uniforms included some of the ever-popular Kilties and they contributed much to the ceremony.

The salute on Thursday at the dress rehearsal had been taken by Major-General G. Kitching, G.O.C. Eastern Command, Oakville. On Saturday he was taken by Hon. Paul T. Hellyer, Minister of National Defence. Bare-headed, he wore a dark suit, without medals or service button. He stood on a low reviewing stand to which led a red carpet. There were no speeches.

The Guards moved into the field in a long column for the "March On." Then there was the "Fall-in" and at the sound of the word "Scram!" the Colors were paraded in front of the troops that they might inspect the colors and become familiar with them.

Impressive and Colorful Ceremony Seen at Picton

PICTON — Highlight of the tenth anniversary of the Canadian Guards, is celebrated by the First Battalion at Camp Picton, was the Trooping of the Color, Saturday morning.

This impressive and colorful ceremony, with all the pomp and splendor of Royal events in London, more than lived up to the expectations of between three and four thousand people.

A 73-degree temperature prevailed, while the warm sun helped to bring out all the color of uniforms worn. It added a gleam to the huge black bearskin headdresses, it enhanced the scarlet tunics, the gold buttons and the braid, and made the dark blue trousers appear black for contrast, required by the male fashion of the year. The women moved into the world in a long column for the "March On." Then there was the "Fall-in" and at the sound of the word "Scram!" the Colors were paraded in front of the troops that they might inspect the colors and become familiar with them.

He said beef would be raised to 30 cents a pound and poultry to 60 cents, while five-cent lemonades would be added to cigarettes, now 10 cents a pack, and beer, now 25 cents a bottle.

He said sugar consumption would be limited to a monthly ration of five pounds a person in order that exports can be increased.

FOOD INCREASES

Castro said the death toll from Flora is shattered eastern Cuba has risen to 1,150. More than 100,000 persons lost all their possessions.

"There are people who have disappeared and are being sought," the premier said in a radio speech on the eve of the Cuban crisis anniversary.

"The number is even greater" than announced, he said. "Everywhere there is utter destruction."

In his first speech since hurricane Flora struck Cuba two weeks ago, Castro added:

"Virtually every family in Oriente province (easternmost Cuba) has lost someone. Virtually all roads and railroads there are destroyed."

Castro said most families lost all their livestock.

"The amount of damage is not known. A census is under way to determine it."

There were 11,103 homes destroyed, 21,248 others damaged, Castro reported.

Many Gaps in Ontario's Rehabilitation Facilities Says Expert in Journal

TORONTO (CP)—Many gaps exist in Ontario's rehabilitation facilities, says an article in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Journal.

The article by two Toronto doctors, C. M. Godfrey and A. T. Jousse, says that although rehabilitation is commonly referred to as a new method of treatment, the fact is that it is not new. Rather, it is a concept governing the total care of the sick—from bed to job placement.

Rehabilitation means doing what needs to be done to get the patient functioning again, the article says. If there is a gap anywhere in the continuity of the treatment program the patient will tend to relapse—to fall between two areas of treatment and become an invalid.

NEED MORE STAFF

In some areas, the article says, facilities are grouped too closely together, necessitating transport of patients from great distances.

Also, there was a great shortage of trained personnel and little provision for mentally ill patients in existing rehabilitation centres.

The concept of rehabilitation embodies the belief that the physician charged with the care of a patient must assume responsibility for his management through all phases of treatment essential to his well-being.

This process begins with diagnosis and leads to medical or surgical treatment. Evaluation of the result of therapy may in certain instances indicate the need for a restoration program.

The article states that although this duty is recognized by many practitioners, they are too often dismayed by the amount of time such management may take.

"A patient with rheumatoid arthritis may require six months to recover from an acute attack and another six months of restorative treatment in order that he may work with his disabled hands."

MUST FOLLOW UP

Can the normally over-worked physician take responsibility for directing all aspects of this management?

"He not only can, but he must," say the two doctors.

Too often, after the acute phase of illness has passed, there is a temptation to transfer responsibility for the patient's care to other members of the health team—the social worker, the speech therapist or the district nurse.

Purpose of the report was to assess the rehabilitation facilities currently available in Ontario which can be utilized by physicians for the benefit of their patients.

There are 124 hospitals across the province which now have physiotherapy departments. Major vocational rehabilitation services are provided through the rehabilitation services branch of the Ontario department of public welfare.

Rehabilitation counsellors are stationed in cities such as Toronto, Hamilton, London, Ottawa and Fort William, while other areas are serviced by travelling counsellors.

SPECIAL CENTRES

To promote the rehabilitation of patients with speech problems, special centres are being developed throughout the country, the article notes.

General hospitals in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Kingston and Ottawa have organized departments of speech therapy and the Ontario Hospitals for the mentally ill also employ a staff of speech therapists.

"Rehabilitation services are at present available on a scanty basis throughout the province," the article concludes.

"In certain areas there are few or no facilities for physical restoration, speech therapy, job assessment, psychiatric care or provision of braces or artificial limbs.

"Most centres are located in the larger cities but even in communities where the greatest number of rehabilitation services exist, they are barely adequate and there are waiting lists for admission."

Credit Condition Changes Not Cure-All for Economic Ills Says Bank Governor

TORONTO (CP)—Changes in credit conditions are no more a cure-all for economic ills than any single kind of treatment is for physical ills, Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, said Monday.

In an address to a joint luncheon meeting of the Toronto branches of the Empire and Canadian clubs, Mr. Rasminsky said monetary policy is but one of the instruments of public policy which influence the performance of the economy.

"I am inclined to think that most people tend to over-estimate the importance of monetary policy taken by itself, to which the vigorous use of the monetary instrument can be of substantial help."

POLICY NECESSARY

Mr. Rasminsky said he regards monetary policy as a necessary condition, though not a sufficient condition, for good economic performance.

"Whether one likes it or not, monetary policy in Canada in the last few years has had to give a good deal of attention to shoring up our external position."

He said there is increasingly wide appreciation that good external economic performance has not been altogether satisfactory.

"Our dependence on capital from abroad to pay for the import surplus of goods and services, and the associated increase in our large international indebtedness, have been elements of instability in our position.

In referring to reliance on foreign capital he said he had in mind net inflows and that a reduction in Canada's reliance on net capital need not, of course, preclude continued large gross flows of capital in both directions across Canada's international borders.

WOULD BE DIFFERENT

"Our large and persistent reliance on net inflows of foreign capital to finance a current account deficit would have a different aspect if Canadian productive resources were being used to capacity.

"But this has not been the case. On the contrary, our record of output and employment have been much lower than we are capable of sustaining. And it is certainly not without significance that the improvement in domestic economic conditions in Canada during the last couple of years has been accompanied by—and indeed has been closely related to —the sizable reduction which has occurred in our current account deficit."

Mr. Rasminsky said part of Canada's economic difficulties during the last several years has arisen from a change in the internal economic environment.

This, he said, was extremely favorable in the first half of the 1950s and much less favorable since then.

"There is no practical way of insulating ourselves from such a change. But we need to find out how to float more buoyantly in whatever external economic environment we may encounter. The recent improvement in Canada's economic position, both external and internal, is encouraging, but we must endeavor to keep up the momentum of improvement."

U.S. Much Stronger, More Alert Over Cuban Situation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union and Cuban confront a much stronger a more alert United States than they did just a year ago when the opposing sides stood at the brink of war over Soviet missiles on Castro's island.

At the same time, the latest intelligence information indicates:

1. There has been no Soviet effort to reintroduce offensive missiles or bombers. The defence department says the old missile bases "are still in a state of disrepair" and their is no reason to believe that strategic missiles are stored in caves."

2. Russia's military forces in Cuba have been trimmed gradually from a high of about 22,-000 to—somewhat more than 7,000.

3. A formidable total of up-to-date fighter — supplied tanks, artillery, battlefield rockets, MIG fighters, missile-equipped patrol boats and anti-aircraft missiles remains. But the Soviets haven't tried to add to these arms since the crisis eased last fall, the Pentagon says.

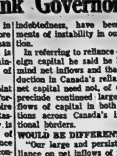
POWER INCREASES

In the year since that crisis, U.S. long-range striking power has grown significantly.

In the fall of 1962, the United States had about 180 liquid-fuel intercontinental ballistic missiles in place. Now there are about 294 in concrete silos, including about 200 of the advanced solid - fuel Minuteman designed to deep protected launch silos.

The Polaris missile submarine fleet has grown from nine boats last fall to 13 in commission now. Each submarine mounts 16 missiles able to strike into Russia's heartland from beneath the sea.

Aerial reconnaissance keeps a close and constant watch on everything that moves in Cuba.



Former Prescott Town Engineer Granted Divorce

BROCKVILLE (CP) — William Clow, former Prescott town engineer, was granted a decree nisi in a divorce action Monday against his wife, Dolores, 37, who faces trial here Nov. 4 on a $228,000 embezzling charge. They have been married 14 years.

Mr. Justice S. H. Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court also granted Mr. Clow custody of one adopted child, with costs levied against co-defendant Rosald Beisinger of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Mrs. Clow is accused of embezzling from a Brockville motor firm where she was an accountant for eight years.

Napanee Native To Be Speaker At CLU Dinner

R. I. KAYLER

"Every man is entitled if he can, to order his affairs so that the tax attaching under the appropriate laws is less than it otherwise would be. If he succeeds in ordering them so as to secure this result then, however unappreciative the taxing authorities or his fellow taxpayers may think of his ingenuity, he cannot be compelled to pay increased tax." That judgement rendered by the House of Lords is the basis for a speech given to a group of local life insurance men and their guests, all local businessmen, by R. L. Kayler, LL.B., C.L.U., Executive Director and General Counsel of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, Toronto.

In speaking to the Life Underwriters Association at Bay of Quinte and the guests on Thursday evening, at the Quinte Motor Inn, Quinte Hotel, Mr. Kayler will take as his subject "How to Roll with the Tax Punch".

The Life Underwriters Association of Canada, of which the Bay of Quinte group is one of 77 local associations across Canada, is composed of more than 11,300 life insurance salesmen.

Mr. Kayler is a native of Napanee, Ontario and attended the University of Toronto, graduating with an LL.B. degree in 1943. A medalist at Osgoode Hall, he was called to the Ontario Bar in 1943. He entered the life insurance business in 1946 and received the Chartered Life Underwriter (C.L.U.) designation in 1949.

Mr. Kayler served as an officer of the RCNVR from 1943 to 1945 in the North Atlantic, and was discharged in 1945 as lieutenant. He is married and has three children.

This talk will be broadcast at 8.05 p.m.

Man-in-News

Hal Banks, Head of SIU, Cuts Jaunty Figure Among Marching Men at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — "Walt till we're shook off the tree, said Hal C. Banks to a supporter. "We're not hurt yet."

The president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada stood confronting the Parliament Building, cracking jokes, exuding confidence and spreading the word personally to his rank-and-file that he thought they were doing a good job.

"Those guys (members of Parliament) didn't know what the score was—just what they read in the newspapers."

Riding a white Cadillac—he gets a new one every year—Mr. Banks arrived SIU headquarters to lead Monday's protest by some 2,000 seamen against federal legislation that will impose a government trusteeship on the SIU and four other maritime unions.

For more than three hours he patrolled Parliament Hill in single step, continually surrounded by a flock of aides, seamen and reporters.

WITH U.S. OFFICER

Close by was Al Tanner from Washington, a vice - president of the CIO and North America whose membership and allies in American ports have harassed Canadian ships shipping non-SIU seamen.

Mr. Banks was cheered wildly as he instructed the SIU marchers to impress their individual members of Parliament with the justice of the SIU cause.

"Ask them, they'll decide," he told reporters who asked where the demonstrators would return to their ships, made idle by what the government calls an illegal strike.

Mr. Banks was the picture of "King Hal" Banks — from an advance appraisal of the noon sandwich snack handed out on the lawn in bright sunshine, to ordering the demonstrators dispersal at 2:45 p.m., to the peeling off of six $100 bills from a hefty bankroll to pay chartered busses from Montreal.

Back and forth he went, an erect, quick - smiling six-foot figure with a rugged face whose natural effect all the marching orders make him seem shorter. He chain - smoked filter-tipped cigarettes, lit from a gold lighter and clenched between set teeth. A black snap-brimmed fedora was perched on the back of his head and he wore a green pin-striped suit, a boldly striped tie and a large gold wristwatch.

There was one sour note.

A young man separated from the hurly Banks by a stout steel fence shouted: "Banks, you're a . . . damned crook."

"I argree with you," retorted Banks without breaking stride.

This was the man that Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver singled out—with his union —in the federal shipping inquiry into the Great Lakes labor war. The judge's report laid the basis for the federal trusteeship.

In that report, Mr. Justice Norris had this to say about the man from the United States waterfront who came to Canada in 1949 to break one marine union and now fights to retain his grasp on another:

". . . capable, decisive, egocentric, intolerant and ruthless . . .

"He is of the stuff of the Capones and the Hoffas of whom the dictators throughout history . . . are prototypes. He is a bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, treacherous, contemptuous of the law."

His SIU is an outcast from Canada's maritime labor, repelled by the Canadian Labor Congress for raiding other unions. He has been denied Canadian citizenship in two applications and the latest hearing given by the justice department in a preliminary report by Mr. Justice Minister who reported on whether legal charges might be laid against him.

He has also drawn blood among the Ottawa sun.

But he gave the order to liven up to Ottawa. "I'm just a adviser."

But he gave the order to liven things a bit off, the demonstration.

He went into the Parliament Building once—to the bathroom as it turned out — but word spread quickly among his supporters that he had gone to confront the government.

He led marchers a merry chase and finally arrived at the truck where hundreds of sandwiches awaited for the noon snack—with soft drinks.

What about the Norris report? "A kangaroo court."

Hadn't Mr. Justice Norris once represented the SIU—back in the 1940s?

Sure, Mr. Banks agreed. "I fired the . . ."

CAUSE

"Because the Canadian Labor Congress kicked us out," they said he was the most anti-labor lawyer on the West Coast."

DIDN'T DUCK

Didn't Mr. Banks care about public opinion? asked a young reporter.

"Of course I care about public opinion. But how do you know what the Canadian public feels?"

Why was every Canadian newspaper against him?

"You're pretty young and naive, kid," said the SIU boss. "When you grow up and learn the hard facts about life, you'll find out the big guys who run this country slip you the newspapers. They won't print my side of the story."

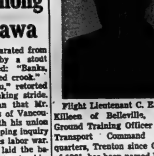
It was up to the membership to decide what to do next.

He said he expected support and at his elbow: "We're not going back to work unless you say so. You tell us what to do."

Dillon Requests Approval Of Foreign Securities Tax

WASHINGTON (CP)—Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon told Monday appealed to the House of Representatives ways and means committee to approve his proposed foreign securities tax, saying the government would be forced to adopt direct controls to limit the export of U.S. capital if the bill is rejected.

Noting that the bill would exempt new Canadian issues from the tax of up to 5 per cent, Dillon emphasized that President Kennedy would have discretionary power to limit the amount of non - taxable Canadian issues sold in the U.S.



"It is vitally an important reduction be achieved in the high level of recent outflows of portfolio capital to Canada," Dillon told a closed-door committee hearing. Text of his remarks was later made public.

"The Canadians fully understand that we intend to work closely the volume of their borrowing in this country and that should the total appear to be exceeding prudent limits, we will recommend that the president exercise his discretionary authority to impose a limitation on the volume of their exempt borrowings . . .

"This discretionary power to limit the size of any exemption is an essential element of the exemption proposal. Without it the proposed Canadian exemption could undermine the whole purpose of the proposed tax."

Kennedy placed the bill before Congress in July and asked that the tax on U.S. purchases of foreign securities be made effective July 18. With the New York financial markets aware of what Congress will do, many lenders have been reluctant to make loans pending the outcome of the legislation.

Dillon said the proposal by itself drastically reduced the sale of foreign securities in the U.S. in the July-September period. Even during this discussion stage in Congress, the bill is "playing a key role in reducing the outflow of capital."

Flight Lieutenant C. E. (Ed.) Killeen of Belleville, Station Ground Training Officer at Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton since October of 1961, has been named Personnel Administrative Officer with No. 115 Air Transport Unit, serving with the United Nations in El Arish, Egypt.

G. B. McClellan New Boss Of Mounties

OTTAWA (CP)—The new boss of the Mounties is George B. McClellan, husky, six - foot native of Dauphin, Man., who has specialized in criminal investigation and national security.

His appointment as commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, announced Monday by Clifford W. Harrison, was announced in the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Favreau. The appointment takes effect Nov. 1.

Commissioner Harrison April 18 this year reached the date for automatic retirement in the RCMP with 35 years' service. At the request of former justice minister Lucien Cardin, he agreed to stay on for a while longer.

George McClellan, 54, worked his way up through the ranks to the post of deputy commissioner after joining the force as a recruit in 1932.

In 1948 he was promoted to superintendent and in 1953 became the commander of the RCMP in western Ontario with headquarters at Toronto.

13 Per Cent in Que. Favor Separation While 43 Per Cent Oppose Division of Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A survey among 1,000 French-Canadians in Quebec province indicates 13 per cent favor the immediate political separation of the province from the rest of Canada.

But 43 per cent oppose the division of Canada, 21 per cent said they had never heard of the separatist movement and 23 per cent were undecided about the issue.

Almost all separatists who were questioned said they favor democratic methods of achieving Quebec's secession. Only eight per cent said they would approve of a coup d'etat. None favored violence.

The study was commissioned jointly by Maclean's Magazine; Le Magazine Maclean, its French - language edition; the CBC-TV program Inquiry; and the Group de Recherches Sociales, a non-profit group of social scientists at McGill and Montreal universities which did the actual survey. Results were announced on Monday's inquiry program and published in the Nov. 2 Maclean's.

The minority favoring separatism — the survey found 56 per cent of Quebec's total population would be more than 300,-000 — was strongest in Montreal, the province's largest and wealthiest city, dwelling place of the province's upper classes, the survey pointed out.

The study shows one out of four professional persons questioned favors the idea, which would have Quebec secede from Canada on the ground that the French - speaking minority is dominated by English Canada.

Nearly 16 per cent of Montrealers interviewed in the survey said they favor separatism while only 11 per cent outside Montreal held the same views. Forty - five per cent of farmers questioned said they had never heard of separatism.

Questioned about the Front de Liberation Quebecois, 27 per cent said the FLQ used violence "to draw attention to themselves" and 18 per cent believed the aim was genuinely to win independence for Quebec.

Most of those answering said they believe separatism is an important issue for Quebec and 37 per cent of those said they believed the consequences of separatist activity have been good for the province.

Three Sugar Refineries Will Maintain Price

MONTREAL (CP) — Spokesmen for Canada's three major sugar refineries said Monday they will maintain the wholesale price of refined sugar at $17.85 a 100-pound bag despite the price cut announced by British Columbia Sugar Refinery Monday.

The three eastern refineries—St. Lawrence, Canada and Dominion and Atlantic—raised the price $1.10 early Monday, following an increase in the London daily price of £8 a long ton, bringing the price to its highest level since July, 1950, when it hit $24.

B.C. sugar followed the eastern increase but rescinded it an hour later.

Sugar prices are "just too damn high," said Alan M. Robertson, senior vice - president of B.C. Sugar. Sugar prices are unrealistic," he said, and many persons "are turning to sugar substitutes....it's costing us a lot."

A spokesman for one eastern refinery said: "We don't know how they can do it. They must have some magic formula."

"We couldn't play that kind of game because our sugar is bought on a day-to-day basis and we have to pay the going rate."

Raw sugar on world markets have been in shortage of the world market.

The price of refined sugar has changed 85 times since Jan. 1, 61 increases and 24 decreases. It was $8.10 Jan. 1.

Question Is Whether Home's Background Fits New Mood

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It is one of life's little ironies that a belted Earl should end up as Britain's prime minister at a time when tradition is stirring in a democratic age.

Events, of course, may show that the Earl of Home is precisely the man for the job. Beneath that throw-it-away patrician manner, he is direct, brave, easy to talk to. He is unflappable, in the Macmillan tradition. He has a way of rising to the big occasion.

As a youthful cricketer, he excelled on a sticky wicket; in politics, he has the same relish for taking tough situations in stride.

This said, there still seems a piquant quality in the fact that the holder of an ancient Scottish earldom should rise triumphantly over the prostrate bodies of several untitled contenders to the top honors, apparently without even trying, in the Tory leadership stakes.

ARGUMENT DEEP

The obvious reply is that it would be inverse snobbery to debar the Earl from the job just because he happens to have blue blood.

But the argument goes deeper than that. The real oddity is that 10 Downing Street should beckon a man in terms who symbolizes, a super ficially at least, some of the trappings and traditions that post-war Britain is trying to shed.

In a ferment of self-analysis, the nation is questioning institutions that one would have thought would endure as long as lands the cliff upper lip, the "old boy" network, the theory that an educational elite trained to rule nonchalantly over a distant empire.

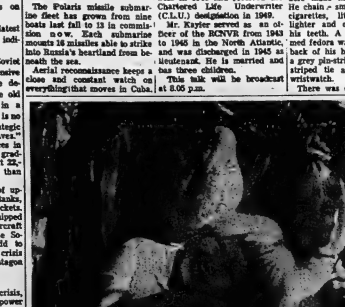
All the emphasis now is on the "new dimension" of science and technology, on change instead of tradition, on hitchen sink instead of stately home, on giving slum children an equal break in education, on demolishing barriers of class, accent and the accident of birth.

EDUCATION CHANGING

The Newsom report, published last week, and the Robbins report on higher education, due Wednesday, herald a new deal for an educational system that favors the privileged few at the expense of the mass.

One of the halls of learning that some now consider a hurry Britain cannot afford is Eton, whose black-suited boys carry an easy assurance into adult life. It is probably the top snob school in the country. Putting your boy's name down for Eton, it has been said, is like stamping a coronet on the baby's bottom.

Home went to Eton. He was captain of the cricket eleven and president of the "Pop," a school society boasting enormous prestige. All the other boys looked up to him.



Now, in the hurly-burly of time-time politics, nobody doubts the qualities that Lord Home will bring to Downing Street. The question is whether his background fits the new mood.

Melchers Will Be Delisted For One Week

TORONTO (CP)—The liquor control board decided Monday it would delist Melchers Distilleries Limited brands from its 345 Ontario stores for one week starting Friday.

The action follows prosecution against the company in magistrate's court there last week when the company was fined $6,000 after pleading guilty to selling liquor illegally from its Toronto office and keeping liquor for sale illegally.

Carlings Brewery Limited was delisted in July for one week starting in the company was accused of falsifying orders and delivering free cases of beer to outlets in a Toronto department building.

THEY'LL HAVE A LONG WAIT — These two little blondes are ready for Hallowe'en, but that Oct. 31 date still is a long way off . . . for them. In addition, there hasn't been any "frost on the punkins" yet. But, waiting happily are Deborah Fischer, 4, left, and Laura Caristrom, 3, both of Des Moines.

Your Car

Keep Eye On Oil Pressure

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Good oil pressure is needed to maintain strength and steady oil circulation to all moving engine parts — to keep them cool, cushioned, lubricated and clean.

The present red light warning unit does not indicate when pressure is too high, or when it is beginning to drop, although it does warn when pressure is inadequate. With the old - type gauges, however, the driver is always aware of any change in the normal rate of 40 lbs. pressure at 40 m. p. h.

Abnormally low oil pressure doesn't necessarily mean pump trouble. Extremely light or badly diluted oil can cause it. So can water, sludge, or dirt that might be clogging the intake screen. A faulty relief valve, excessive bearing or rocker arm clearance are other possible causes.

From S. N.: "In checking out the level, I noticed that my automatic transmission fluid appeared to be foaming. Does this mean anything?"

Foaming usually indicates leakage — or the wrong type of transmission fluid.

T. N. writes: "If the U. S. economy is reflected by U. S. auto production — as you automotive people always say — how do you explain the drop in production from approximately 7¾ million in 1961 to 6¼ million cars in 1962?"

This U. S. economy, auto production parallel is not in our department. . .but your information is all wrong. U. S. car production in 1962 was substantially higher than 1961 — 6,944,000 units vs 5,522,000.

V. J. asks: "My car seems to be sagging slightly at the right rear wheel. What would cause this?"

Spring sag — due to a faulty shock-absorber, broken spring-leaves or weakening of the spring due to constant overloading.

From N. T.: "I often hear of corrosion in the cooling system. What causes this to develop?"

When you fail to include a rust inhibitor, or continue to neglect draining and flushing service, you encourage corrosion formation. Air leakage in the cooling system is another possible cause.

Bulletins From Birdland

Woodpecker Differences

It is easy to identify a woodpecker as such with the exception of a flicker, which in some ways is the odd member of the family. While all other adults are mainly black and white, the adult flicker is brownish; while all others commonly feed on the trunks or branches of trees, the flicker commonly feeds on the ground.

Most of the woodpeckers eat ants, at least to some extent, which they extract from the bark of trees; but the flicker often finds its ants on the ground. One flicker stomach was actually found to contain more than 5,000 ants. However, a flicker sometimes feeds on other insects and wild fruit, sourgum, dogwood and poison-ivy berries.

The bills and tongues of woodpeckers differ according to their food preferences and habits. The general description of a woodpecker's bill is "straight, strong and chisel-shaped at the tip" in order to drill into the wood of trees. The tongue is like a long spear, furnished with a sharp point that has diminutive barbs. This, of course, is to impale the prey and hold it.

HAS TINY BILL

The downy's bill is conical and quite tiny, even for the bird's length of only six inches. Although able to extract wood-boring ants from the bark it also eats insects found near the nuts and in winter will even come to suet hung on trees.

The tongue of a sapsucker differs from the rest because of this bird's fondness for sap. The tip of its tongue has a kind of a brush on it for sticking up the sap. Sucking sap is an unfortunate habit for a bird, as holes must be made in the trunk, and the sapsucker does its work so evenly and thoroughly that the hole actually girdle the tree — which very often dies. Many woodpeckers stay in Canada all winter, but because sap does not flow in winter weather this bird is one that leaves us then.

As woodpeckers cling in a vertical position to tree trunks both when feeding and when gouging out nesting holes, they require feet that will cling as well as hold on for working on wood. With one exception, they have three toes in front and a hind toe that is so long as the middle toe and has an exceptionally long claw to help support the bird in an upright position. However, the three-toed woodpeckers (and there are two species) seem to be able to get on with one toe less by twisting around a front toe to the back.

Why Can't the Girls Pay?

By DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — What is your opinion on a girl paying for the occasional dutch treat or treating her date when she really wants to?

Why do boys have to be so proud that they won't let the girl pay for something occasionally? Especially in the case where both are working and just good friends. — 409.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR 409 — Not proud — just well-raised. Canadian etiquette says it's the man who pays.

With a little thought you can pay back in acceptable coin: a dinner or doughnuts and coffee in your home; a party you put on and pay for, with your "good friend" acting as joint host and introducing some novelty dances or stunts.

(If you'd like my suggestion for "Throwing a Hallowe'en Frolic" write in with a stamped envelope — quick. Time's affecting and the pile is dwindling.)

DEAR DORIS — I will never forget your kindness to me at the time of my deepest depression. Things looked much blacker then than they should have; but I have another beef.

We have returned to the city we loved so long and now I find that while Joe was here ahead of me for six months, only two old friends invited him for dinner. Being very outspoken I let my temper go with the first "old friend" who called on us. When they neglected Joe they slighted me, I thought.

Funny thing, Doris, I didn't lose face by so doing. We are as popular as we were when we left here years ago. But; I find myself not caring whether I see them or not. No doubt about it, I need some kind of help. Why am I unhappy when I have no reason to be? — JUST QUEER.

DEAR QUEER — Either you take people as they are and enjoy them, or you waste time, energy and life itself with lost tempers and an injured ego.

Life went on while you were away. Your friends had boys and girls to raise and jobs to do. Their neglect was not deliberate. Do you want to be the kind of person who creates turmoil or its one to whom the troubled ones turn?

To be really alive again, you'll have to start giving love again; perhaps to one of those busy "old friends" who'd get a lift out of hearing from you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My husband is always hitting me. No matter what happens, if something doesn't go his way, he's forever blaming me. We've been married for seven years now and still don't have a place of our own. We either live with his parents or keep on drifting from one place to another.

Now I'm all aches and pains from him hitting me and my nerves are always on edge.

I was told to leave him and go out on my own and start the kind of life I should have. But what about the child? Who takes him? He's tired of being shoved from one place to another. So am I. — TIRED AND NERVOUS.

DEAR TIRED AND NERVOUS — In this day and age people don't have to put up with constant physical and mental abuse. Contact the welfare worker for the area in which you live. You can have help, whether it be in dealing with your husband, or setting up a separate establishment, or seeing that your child gets the guidance and care he needs. It may be all three.

* * *

(Doris can't begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your private reply, be sure to enclose a stamped envelope.)

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mrs. Peter Green Sr. has returned home after spending five weeks with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bugman, at Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Daily Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cummings and children, Mrs. Jack Henderson and son spent the weekend at the Cummings' cottage near Maxinaw Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cummings and family spent the weekend at their cottage near Maitland Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey and family, Mrs. Perry Akey of Campbellford, spent the weekend at their cottage at Long Lake, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Scoble of Toronto spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart and Mrs. Nellie Breach.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Hart and winners were Mrs. Helen Whalen, Mrs. Eva Jubylow, Mrs. Emma Sero. After euchre the hostess, Mrs. Nellie Breach, served refreshments and a social evening was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bowers of Belleville spent Wednesday evening with Mrs. Reggie Cox.

Mrs. Amah Akey of Canniffton, formerly of Point Anne, is still a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Her many friends here wish her a speedy recovery.

Collection of Butterflies Gets European Visit for Student

WINNIPEG (CP)—A collection of butterflies has been the ticket to London, England, for a Winnipeg student.

Andrew Hamilton, 17, a Grade 11 student at Kelvin High School, is back from an expenses paid two weeks in London which he won as first prize at the second annual Canada-wide Science Fair in Toronto.

His travels began last May when he placed first in his division at the Manitoba Science Fair with a thesis illustrating the evolution of butterflies.

Chosen from his collection of more than 300 butterfly specimens, his two glass-encased exhibits, all carefully labelled won the admiration of judges and visitors in both the Winnipeg and Toronto competitions.

With the assistance of his father, Rev. Kenneth A. Hamilton, who accompanied him on the trip to England, Andrew was able to extend his original two-week trip to six weeks. In the extra time he toured the south of England as well as Scotland where he visited relatives.

During the first two weeks he was Canada's representative at the International Youth Science Fortnight which brought students together from many countries to see scientific institutions in Britain.

ADDED TO COLLECTION

The groups of visitors were matched with an equal number of British students and were divided into segments according to their interests. Andrew's party was mainly interested in biology and consequently visited the Royal Medical Museum, Oxford's microbiology laboratories, the Beechan Research Laboratories and Kew Gardens.

Andrew was the only one of the students chosen for a specific scientific achievement; others attended on their scholastic record. Even so, his Grade 11 record was impressive as he managed an honors average despite addition of four subjects to the regular course.

Andrew has never taken biology and does not intend to take it in Grade 12 this fall although he has decided to enter the four-year honor science course in entomology at the University of Manitoba.

A serious collector for only three years, he plans to add to his knowledge of butterflies and his knowledge of butterflies and other insects from "personal observation and a great deal of research at Winnipeg libraries."

While in England he managed to capture 24 new specimens for his collection.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Casino Clay had better look to his laurels.

The one-man broadcasting station with himself as producer, announcer and star, better known as the 'Louisville Lip" and the "Marvellous Mouth" may have opposition.

And of all people it is none other than Jacques Plante, NHL goalie triumphalized from the ross of Montreal to the canyons of Gotham.

"Jacque the Snake," as someone dubbed him, is finding himself a stranger in the New York paradise. Accustomed to seclusion from fans from nine to ninety in Montreal, Jacques found himself just another of New York's eight million when he hit the big town.

He doesn't like it. "I was mad to people running up to me for my autograph," he told a Gotham hockey writer. "Now I was beginning to think nobody would love I was the Ranger goalie. I didn't like the idea of being unknown."

So the former idol of the Forum who spent evenings and weekends knitting long johns and toques, decided on a one-man publicity campaign.

He started his toonil tirade by telling all within earshot that the Rinks are headed for the stars and the Habitants are skidding for the potato bins.

The story in the Hockey News says Plante entered a Second Avenue restaurant for a steak. On the walls were pictures of famous athletes, boxers, football and baseball heroes, but many a hockey player.

"Hey," yelled Jacques, "why isn't my picture up there?" Then he added: "After they see me play a few games they'll put one up."

He claims he made himself known in a cigar store. "Pretty soon they began to ask for autographs," he said. "Finally the place became so crowded the proprietor had to ask me to leave."

Plante is impressed with his own personality. "People don't like me at first," he says, "but when they get to know me it's different."

He recalled the time when at a banquet with Doug Harvey, "There's a young girl there who says she hates me. Her favorite goalie is Glenn Hall. So I sweet-talk her a little and later she offers to answer my fan mail for me."

So far the lone masked Ranger hasn't talked himself out of the act as goals the Canadiens poured past him the first time the clubs met on Montreal ice. Nor has he discussed the triumphant look of unholy glee that swept across Geoffrion's face as he pumped a pair past his rookie critics.

Plante claims he carries his hostility towards "enemy" players outside the arenas. He met Guy Gendron of the Bruins at a golf club one day. "I shouldn't even say 'hello' to him," recalls Jacques. "Not that I have anything against the guy but he plays for the other team. I ignore him. That's the way I am."

He's been so loquacious in New York, the story goes, that the Ranger boys have a hard time keeping up with him. His feelings of self-confidence have never been at a higher level, in fact they have reached the spouting stage.

Nobody showed him a picture of himself taken six years ago while with the Canadiens. "I still look the same," erupted the gabby goalie. "I never lost a single tooth in hockey. With my mask I should stay around ten years or more."

A rematch on his thin-case drew this one. "I'm not skinny," he said, "I look that way because I have sloped shoulders. But I still have a strong physique."

Then he added: "There's another guy in the NHL who's built after me with the sloped shoulders — that's Gordie Howe."

14 Deaths Todate

U.S. Football Takes Toll

GAINSVILLE, Fla. (AP)— With about a month of the season over in the U.S., 14 football deaths have been reported, including three in as many days.

In 1962 there were 26 football fatalities and 28 in 1961, according to figures compiled by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of Los Angeles State College. He has been keeping records on football deaths for 23 years.

The latest football victim of 1963 was Wayne Pridgeon, an 18 - year - old halfback from Gainesville's Chiefland High School. He died Sunday from head injuries suffered Friday night in a game.

Robert Creal, Jr., 18, died Friday at New Orleans of a brain injury suffered in a high school game the week before. On Saturday, Thomas Warren Jr., 18, of New Hartford, N.Y., died of a head injury suffered in a junior varsity game Wednesday at Rome, N.Y.

Of the 14 fatalities reported for 1963, nine have been high school players. There have been two college deaths, one junior college, one sandlot and one professional — Olympic sprinter Stone Johnson of Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

DENSITY HIGH

The population density of the United Kingdom, one of the highest in the world, was 571 persons a square mile at the 1961 census.

"Slash" Mikita Leads With 10★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Two Hawk 'Scooters' Top Score Race

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Mikita gives his hockey sticks the same rough treatment he dishes out to Chicago's opposition in the National Hockey League.	Nevin, Tor	2	3	5
	Howe, Det	3	1	4
	Horton, Tor	2	1	3
	Mahovlich, Tor	2	2	4
	Oliver, Bos	2	1	3
	Hay, Chi	2	2	4
	Bucyk, Bos	2	2	4
	MacGregor, Det	1	2	3
	Rousseau, Mtl	1	3	4
	Jeffrey, Det	1	2	3
	Faulkner, Det	1	3	4
	Williams, Bos	1	2	3
	Duff, Tor	0	4	4
	Vasko, Chi	0	4	4

He runs through some 240 sticks a season. That's more than three a game on the average and roughly twice as many as most regulars.

Sticks go at perhaps $3 apiece. But you won't hear the Chicago front office complaining about the bill for Mikita's stick-busting habits.

Official league statistics released today show the slim, bellicose kid, they call Slash, at the top of the scoring list with six goals and four assists for 10 points.

Mikita, an NHL journeyman with five years experience at 23, is the centre and propellant of the Hull-Mikita-Scottie Line and the statistics indicate the unit has been hustling.

WHARRAM NO. 3

His right - wing mate Ken Wharram is in the No. 2 spot with two goals and seven assists while Ab McDonald, patrolling the left side, is in a five-way tie for fifth spot with six points made up of a goal and five assists.

Another Chicago Montreal's Jean Beliveau - Bernie Geoffrion-John Ferguson trio, is right behind the Chicago threesome with a 32-point total—against 35 for the Scooters.

At five - foot - nine and 155 pounds, Mikita is not built as robustly as most around the league. He employs a lighter-than-conventional stick, perhaps for that reason, and the wood tends to crack easily.

But his penalty record bears out that Mikita is a man to deal with on the ice with a stick in his hands, anyway, and he gives the wood a rough going.

In Chicago's two games during the week, Mikita collected four goals and an odd game against Boston Bruins. It was his fourth three-goal effort since making the big time in 1958-59 and goalie Eddie Johnston of the Bruins has been the victim of three of them.

CZECH BORN

Mikita bears the distinction, among NHL performers, of Czechoslovakian birth. He came to Canada at the age of eight to live with his uncle Joe in St. Catharines, Ont.

Since his first full NHL season, his scoring production has risen from eight to 19, then 25 and last year 39.

The scrappy Wharram grabbed off five assists in the two Chicago games, meanwhile, and McDonald added a pair to his total.

Geoffrion and Beliveau are bracketed with eight points in third place, the boomer with five goals and Beliveau three one. In Montreal's three games, Geoffrion potted two goals and Beliveau added three assists.

Their left-wing linemate with the Canadiens' rookie John Ferguson, is among those at the six-point level with McDonald.

The others are Bobby Hull of the Black Hawks, Bobby Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs and Phil Goyette of New York Rangers.

FOUR ASSISTS

Goyette piled up four assists in the first period of New York's 5-1 win over the Bruins and it was believed initially that the performance was a record of some kind.

But Ron Andrews, the NHL's publicity director and statistician, said later that Goyette's effort at least equalled a mark by Detroit's Joe Carveth 19 years ago.

Carveth picked up four assists in the third period when the Red Wings thumped New York Rangers 15-0 Jan. 23, 1944.

Phil Watson also collected four assists in one period while playing with Montreal Canadiens March 18, 1944, against New York, where he later coached.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.	PIM
Mikita, Chi	6	4	10	8
Wharram, Chi	2	7	9	2
Geoffrion, Mtl	5	3	8	4
Beliveau, Mtl	3	5	8	7
Ferguson, Mtl	3	3	6	8
Hull, Chi	3	3	6	2
McDonald, Chi	1	5	6	0
Pulford, Tor	2	4	6	2
Goyette, NY	1	5	6	2

Pacer Sold For $65,000

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Meadow Newport, a speedy 3-year-old pacer, was sold Monday for $65,000 to the Canadian multimillionaire brothers, Arden and Gerard Miron of St. Augustin, Que.

The sale was announced after Meadow Newport scored a four-length victory in a $7,000 invitational race at Roosevelt Raceway.

Petes Naud Leads Jr. A Race

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, a team which has scored 23 goals in four games to hold a tie for the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit, has no players in the league scoring leaders.

Veteran St. Petersburg, Pete forward Ron Naud has six goals and three assists for a leading nine points. That is one better than teammate Jim Paterson and Yvone Cournoyer of Montreal Junior Canadiens. Paterson has four goals and Cournoyer three.

Danny O'Shea of Oshawa Generals is next with seven points, including three goals, followed by four players with three goals and three assists for six points.

They are George Veit of Oshawa, Fred Stanfield of St. Catharines Black Hawks, and Bob Charlebois and Andre Boudrias of Montreal.

Doug Favell of Niagara Falls Flyers is the top goaltender with a 2.67 average on eight goals allowed in three games. Chuck Goldsard of Peterborough is second with a 3.23 average.

Wins Double Of $10,899, Drops Dead

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—An unidentified man, who hit the twin double for $10,899 on his bet last Saturday at Roosevelt Raceway, died of a heart attack Monday night as he was about to cash the ticket.

After the man fell, a spectator picked up the ticket and was about to go off with it when he was stopped by a special policeman. The valuable ticket was retrieved.

Argonauts Shatto Eyes Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts may lower their eyes at mention of their two - victories - and - 10 - losses record, but they're heads-up as far as halfback Dick Shatto is concerned.

Shatto leads the four-team Eastern Football Conference in scoring with 66 points, almost half of the team's total of 137. Shatto's touchdown Sunday in Toronto's 11-10 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats was his 11th of the season.

George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes picked up two in Montreal's 37-31 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday and now has 60 points on 10 touchdowns.

Shatto, leading scorer in the history of the Big Four, eclipsed the lifetime points mark of former Montreal star Virgil Wagner early this season. But Wagner fans argue that Shatto played after the touchdown became a six-point scorer. Wagner played most of his days in the five-point era.

Any day now Shatto should clean this one up, too. He now has 58 touchdowns. Wagner scored 78.

And this isn't the only department in which Shatto makes the Argos look respectable. He's the leading pass receiver in the circuit with 53 receptions for a total gain of 583 yards.

Dixon is gradually running away from the rest of the league in rushing. He has carried 189 times for 1,121 yards — an average of 6.4 yards a carry. Ottawa's Dave Thelen is next with 805 yards on 130 carries.

The man many in the East seems to be touting as the outstanding player in the country—Hamilton's Garney Henley —is the worst enemy of opposing passers. Henley has intercepted six, two in Sunday's game, and teammate Joe Zuger five.

Ottawa's Ernie Pitts is still in a class by himself in returning kickoffs. He's handled 19 for 665 yards—an average of 35 yards a return.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Manuel Yeara was suspended for 10 days by Ontario Racing Commission stewards Monday for his ride on a horse called Bimini Bill at Toronto's Woodbine track last Saturday.

The suspension, extending from Oct. 23 to Nov. 1 inclusive, will also keep the Panamanian grounded on New York tracks where he currently is doing most of his riding.

Yeara rode Bimini Bill in Saturday's Grey Stakes prior to handling Quill Pitch in the $80,000 Canadian Championship. Bimini Bill won the race but was set back to second behind Ramblin' Road after stewards viewed films of the race.

The suspension announced by presiding steward W. J. Rickwick, was "for coming in and interfering with Ramblin' Road in the stretch."

Meanwhile, with Ontario's racing program moving from Woodbine to Greenwood in Toronto's east end on Monday, the opening day feature, the $11,475 Fairbank Stakes, was taken by the American-bred Dr. Gideon under Hugo Dittfach. The colt, owned by Willow Downs Farm, returned $6.40 to win.

McGill Back Leads Score Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGill halfback Willie Lambert continued as a one-man scoring gang Saturday, contributing 15 points as the Redmen beat 26-15 to Queen's University Golden Gaels.

The 5-foot-10 two touchdowns and a convert—helped Lambert maintain his lead in the Intercollegiate Senior Football League individual scoring race with 38 points.

Gerry Sternberg, University of Toronto Blues halfback, leads a tight race for second place. He scored both Toronto touchdowns in a 12-12 loss to University of Western Ontario Mustangs, giving him a total of five for 30 points.

He is followed by Western's Pat McConnell, with 29, and Bill Sweet of Queen's, with 28. McConnell scored two touchdowns and a single against Toronto and Edwards scored a touchdown against McGill.

Jim Weber of Western, who kicked a field goal and six converts Saturday, is next with 25 points.

Olson Wins Over Menno

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former world middleweight champion Bobo Olson, 176, of San Francisco, won an unanimous and overwhelming 10-round decision over Argentina's Jose Menno, 175, Monday night in Kezar Pavilion.

There were no knockdowns in the light heavyweight bout, but Olson was in control all the way.

Immediately after the fight, a portion of Olson's purse was attached by the state for income taxes that agents said the fighter has owed California since 1954.

Canada Cup Golfers Eye Course

PARIS (AP)—Early arrivals for the Canada Cup golf tournament today were acquainted swings around the suburban Saint-Cloud course Monday and pronounced it excellent, but most kept quiet about their scores.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, and Al Balding of Toronto will represent Canada in the tournament.

The Canada Cup is decided on the basis of best 72-hole totals for the two-man teams. The individual championship is decided at the same time.

Eighteen-hole rounds will be played Thursday through Sunday. All of the players from the 23 countries are professionals, except for an amateur team from Austria.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two-year-old Lyndon Alex increased owner Max Webster's season winnings to $6,360 Monday night when he captured Western Fair Raceway's featured $3,025 dash for Canadian-breds by a quarter of a length.

The Brantford horse, piloted by Aylmer Holmes, took the lead from the start and was never passed.

Sandy Bonn, a 25-1 longshot owned by Otis and Ross Parr of London, annexed the second race to pay $47.20 to win. The two-year-old filly, winning her first race in five starts, teamed up with Patricia Margaret, owned by E. M. Riley of New Glasgow, Que., for a $64.80 daily double.

Canadian Speedskater Barred From '64 Olympics

OSLO, Norway (CP-AP)—"I can't believe it," said Paul Enoch, 29-year-old speedskating star after receiving a letter in which he said virtually bars him from representing Canada in the 1964 Olympic Games.

Enoch, from Toronto, has been working in Norway as an architect in Oslo and training and staying in speed-skating trim by training with Norway's Olympic skating candidates.

Enoch said he had received a letter from the Canadian Speed Skating Association which said: "You cannot qualify for the 1964 Olympic speed skating team because you did not refuse to accept any to take part in four meets held in Canada in February, 1963."

"Nobody ever told me those four meets in Canada were essential to final qualifications," he said in an interview.

He revealed that in February, 1963 he will race at Sarnia and staying in speed-skating trim by training with Norway's Olympic skating candidates.

Vaughan Breaks Hand Bone

OTTAWA (CP)—Guard Kaye Vaughan of Ottawa Rough Riders broke his right hand in Saturday's Eastern Football Conference game against Montreal Alouettes.

But coach Frank Clair, taking dead aim for first place in the Big Four, said Monday that Vaughan and four other riders with less serious injuries will play against Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday.

If we go down there (to Hamilton) to win a football game and never mind the hurts, we'll have a week to rest then," said Clair.

CHICAGO (AP)—Billy Reay, new coach of Chicago Black Hawks, said Monday that defencemen Howie Young "is being victimized to a certain extent by officials".

"Young can do as much, or more, on defence than any player in the league," Reay told the quarterback club of the newspaper, Chicago's American. "But he has a little habit of blowing his top and we are working on curtailing that."

Young last year with Detroit Red Wings was the most penalized player in the National Hockey League, rolling up a total of 272 minutes in the 64 games in which he appeared.

Earlier, Reay reviewed Young's charging infraction in Sunday night's 5-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens. The fiery defenceman, who became Chicago property between seasons, was accused by referee Vern Buffey of calling off Referee Vern Buffey.

(During the third period, Young was given a minor penalty and a game misconduct.) WAS DISAPPOINTED

Reay complained in what Young did, said Reay. "But he was antagonized to a certain extent, too, by the official and treat him the same as everybody else? When Buffey called it, he stood there staring at Howie as though he were saying: "Well, I finally caught you, didn't I?"

"They don't do that to anyone else. They just call the penalty and skate off."

Black Hawk general manager Tommy Ivan denied reports that he charged into the referee's room after the game and chewed out Buffey.

"I didn't enter the room," he said. "I stood by the door. Words were exchanged, but they were not as serious as the report indicated. It was no more than usual."

In answer to questions, Reay made these observations:

"The roughest player on the Black Hawks is Reg Fleming. The roughest in the league is Bobby Baun of Toronto.

"Gordie Howe (Detroit's scoring star) is not a clean player, but he doesn't go into a game looking for trouble. When it comes, he knows what to do about it.

"Rocket Richard (Montreal's record-setting scorer who retired as a player after the 1959-60 season) was the most explosive scoring I ever saw and the greatest in the clutch. Howe is the greatest all-around player. A tremendous team man and skater. Our Bobby Hull is a combination of both. He can play the puck harder than either and is a faster skater."

Test Reveals Heart Strain

Warning To Deer Hunters

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —More than one in 10 deer hunters over 40 years of age—possibly many more—face serious heart trouble in an all-out successful deer hunt.

This was the chief conclusion of a series of experiments recently conducted in Minneapolis in which hunters actually broadcast the strain put on their hearts under simulated hunting conditions.

Thirty - seven hunters, all more than 40 and screened by their own doctors as having normal hearts, were rechecked by a volunteer team of doctors.

Then they slogged through heavy gravel for three minutes, dragging a 100-pound sandbag behind them to simulate pulling a deer out of snowy woods.

As they did so, tiny radio transmitters strapped to their waists broadcast their electrocardiograms to receivers monitored by the team of doctors nearby.

Of the 37 men, four showed abnormal heart activity sufficient to halt their tests.

The test results, to be published in the November issue of Minnesota Medicine, were released in advance by the Minnesota Heart Association as a warning to deer hunters before the Minnesota season opens in November.

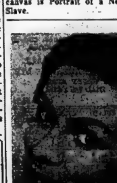
Arm in Cast Hurler Has No-Hitter

CAMPBELLFORD — No-hitters are quite a rarity in themselves but here is one that might just make Ripley "Believe it Or Not".

Tom Holmes pitched his Bombers team to the Seymour Township Softball League championship here recently, blanking the Petrick's Corners 5-0 in the final game.

Holmes hurled a no-hitter in the seven inning contest. He struck out 14 batters and the only base runners he allowed were on a pair of errors by his teammates.



Holmes, a right-hander, pitched the no-hit effort while his left arm was in a cast.

Details of the arm injury were not available.

Burnside won the titular series three games to two.

To Help Injured Players

OHA Establishes Fund

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association has established a welfare fund to aid clubs in providing assistance to OHA players who may suffer serious injury either playing in or travelling to a game.

Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Junior A circuit is chairman of the fund committee, established at the last annual meeting of the association.

Other members are OHA president C. G. Patterson of Guelph, Matt Leyden of Oshawa, Jack Devine of Belleville, Frank Buckland of Peterborough and Bill Bakst, Bill Hanley is business manager.

A sum of $5,000 has been set aside by the OHA to start the fund, and member clubs have been asked for suggestions on how they may contribute to its expansion.

Players and game officials in every association under OHA jurisdiction are eligible for benefits, an OHA official said Monday.

The association includes the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the Toronto Hockey League and the Western Ontario Athletic Association.

"Writing Is a Lonely Life' Says Tennessee Williams

By ROB THOMAS

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—Tennessee Williams sat in a hotel bar and stared at his martini. "Writing is a lonely life," he said.

He wore only bathing trunks and a tattered tan dyed that day. It was the end of a humid afternoon on the Pacific shore.

The Academy Award winner had come to this tropical resort to write some new scenes for the film version of his play, Night of the Iguana. Although producer Ray Stark was prepared to pay him a small fortune, Williams asked only for his expenses.

As he sipped the martini, he seemed world-weary.

"I usually do my writing in Key West," he said. "There is no social life there and that suits me. I avoid all social contact. I think a writer must.

IT'S EXHAUSTING

"Nobody but a writer knows how exhausting it is to write. Nobody except perhaps a writer's wife. She knows what hell it is to put up with a writer and it's paid for in silence.

"I was only sixteen years old when I did. After that I've emotionally worn out. I've never been able to write very well in Mexico; it is too humid and enervating here. It is hot in Key West (Florida), but it is there you have the trade winds that make the climate continually invigorating."

Williams, who is not married, said he knows a few writers—generally, he avoids fellow craftsmen.

"They are under the impression I like to talk shop," he explained. "And that complicates things. The fact is I am not a rich man. I work at it all. From the moment I started making money from my plays, I was in the 50 - 50 - per - cent income tax bracket. How on earth can I save any money?"

When Williams finishes here, he will attend to some business in New York and then go to Key West to work on script. Three plays he has in mind. His contribution to this season in New York will be a rewrite of last year's The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Any More.

"It is about 85-per-cent rewritten," he said. "I thought it might be valuable to get a new concept of the play from a new company. It came out during the newspaper strike and ran only 69 performances. I thought it was worth doing again."

It is mental energy that keeps him writing, Williams said. Every morning after breakfast he can be seen climbing the stairs to his work room, a large cold drink in hand and his Boston terrier Gigi at his heels, ready to race up the three to four hours of the lonely life.

AT THE BELLE — Alec Guinness, as Prince Feisal, in "Lawrence of Arabia", winner of 7 Academy Awards including Best Picture, continuing at the Belle Theatre, Belleville. Also starring Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Peter O'Toole, Claude Rains and Arthur Kennedy. Super-Panavision, in super-Technicolor. 2.00-5.30-9.00 p.m.

'Crisis' Truly an Unusual Broadcasting Enterprise

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—"Crisis: Behind a presidential commitment," a special ABC news program Monday night, was truly an unusual broadcasting enterprise.

The most remarkable aspect was that producer Robert Drew got permission to have his cameras and sound equipment with the principals during the critical moments last June when the Kennedy administration was preparing for a showdown on the admission of two Negro students to the then-segregated University of Alabama.

The cameras covered not only President Kennedy, and the attorney - general, but Alabama Governor George C. Wallace and the two students as well.

Intimate scenes showed Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy in his shirt sleeves, pouring his office while planning justice department moves, and a council meeting in President Kennedy's office.

Frequently in protect privacy sound was cut off. But most of the time the Kennedy brothers went about their work as if they were oblivious to the cameras.

Wallace used his moments on camera to explain first his position and later his bitterness over federal intervention.

The ABC cameras also showed a briefing session during which the Negro students were advised what to wear and how to act when they presented themselves for admission.

It was a great broadcast. And it may start some arguments about the way the affair was handled by all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Draycup of Lakefield were guests on Thanksgiving Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Haggerty and family spent a weekend at Quebec's grande waters. And although this has been only a week-end report, a good time must have been recorded.

Brigitte Guerre of St. Pie de Bagot, fishing the Black River, a tributary of the larger Yamaska River, caught six large muskies, one measuring 43 inches. More than 30 of the big fish have been taken from the Black River this year, making it the hottest muskie spot in Quebec.

A 33-pound muskie was caught in Chambly Basin and one weighing 36 pounds and measuring 33 inches was taken from Lake Deschenes on the Ottawa River. Five weighing up to 24 pounds each were hooked and nearly dipped out of sight.

As the 80-pound test line of Helen McCartney's trolling rod pulled taut, she was ready.

The muskie fought fiercely but in 20 minutes Miss McCartney had reeled it into the outlet. The fish weighed 38 pounds, 10 ounces, and was 49 inches long. It was the biggest catch of the season for Lake St. Francis, a broadening of the St. Lawrence River above Montreal.

Ten years ago Miss McCartney used a pike - and - minnow plug made of wood to land her biggest muskie in the same lake, a 43-pounder 54 inches long.

That fish is the largest caught in the lake in recent memory although it wasn't as big as the 48½-pounder Thomas Vass, now 80, caught with his father in 1900. "I'm still trying to beat it," Miss McCartney said. "I don't believe it."

Vass long ago abandoned the fishing rod for the fireplace but his secretary is a real muskie fan.

"She's out there every day without fail," Vass says.

"I'm just crazy I guess," says Miss McCartney. She guides for camp guests, particularly visiting American sportsmen who return year after year.

The muskie season in Vass's area lasts from May 16 to Dec. 1. Bass and trout, also fished in the lake, have shorter seasons.

Vass says lake fishing has been getting progressively worse each year, because of over-fishing and under-stocking.

Albert Bourtoumechka, director of wildlife management for the Montreal district, and his staff are deep in study of the muskie. Their report is due in late fall.

"We're pretty excited about it because maybe now we'll be able to get something done about preserving what we have in the lake," Vass says. "It's something we've wanted done for a long time."

Has Banked $128,230 So Far

Palmer Leads 'Gold Rush'

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer continues to lead the touring golf professionals with total winnings of $128,230 through this week's Sahara Invitational, the U.S. Professional Golfers Association announced Monday.

Palmer has played in 20 tournaments, won seven and finished among the first five in 13 of them. His winnings put him more than $30,000 ahead of Jack Nicklaus, with $98,230 in 24 tournaments. He has won five. Julius Boros is third, having played in 26 tournaments and from $77,358, followed by Tony Lema with $66,227, Gary Player with $62,652, and Dow Finsterwald with $48,814.

The top 10 winners is completed by Don January with $33,704, Bobby Nichols $29,094, Bruce Crampton $29,818, and Mason Rudolph $21,995.

Woman Battles Muskies With the Best of 'Em

By JOE DUFUIS

CAZAVILLE, Que. (CP)—The red - striped aluminum lure glided just beneath the surface of Lake St. Francis, then suddenly dipped out of sight.
